It was just recently discovered that Yale is maintaining an ape colony in Florida. Yale might just as well know, now that the boom there is over, that the Everglades is not a suitable place for "shooting" Tarzan pictures.

Queen's University Not Change Course

(Special to the Examiner)

KINGSTON, June 26—Queen's University will not change its course to conform to Toronto University's plan to abolish pass matriculation, or in other words to put back into the Collegiate Institutes the first form work of the University. Queen's prefers to accept students and give them the first form work as the professors find they can train the students more acceptably and can develop them better than in the Secondary School. The equipment is far superior. The high schools are numerous in Eastern Ontario and they are not fitting students for honor work. It is too expensive. Queen's fills the bill in training them and will keep the pass examination for admission.

By first removing the cargo of sulphate of copper an attempt will be made to re-float the Spanish steamer Albia, which last September was wrecked off the coast of Scotland.

DR. GEORGE COE DEPLORES SCHOOL MILITARY TRAINING

TORONTO, Ont., June 26 (C.P.)—That the modern state is encroaching upon the domain of conscience was the assertion of Dr. George A. Coe of Columbia University in an address before the International Religious education Convention meeting here last night. "In the United States", he declared "naturalization is denied to persons whose conscience, for avowedly Christian reasons does not permit them to make war." Dr. Coe deplored the spread of military training in schools and colleges, and charged that the military system tends to suppress freedom of speech, freedom of the press, and freedom of assemblage.

MANY OLD PEOPLE ATTEND SERVICE

Annual Event Held on Sunday Last in St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MADOC, June 26.—Old People's service was held at St. Peter's Presbyterian Church on Sunday 22, with a good attendance and attentive hearers. Cars had been placed at the disposal of the Committee for the purpose of gathering up those too aged, infirm or ill to attempt to walk to the church, and all courteous attention was given to see that these special guests lacked nothing to make this service a delight and a pleasure to these people who are so often debarred from public worship. The church was adorned with daisies and Baby's Breath, and a full choir was present to assist in the service of song and praise.

Old hymn tunes were softly played as a pre-worship period, then "Holy, Holy, Holy", was followed by the Invocation. The first hymn, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past", was heartily sung, and Psalm 71 followed. "In Thee, O God, Do I put My Trust", and then the old favorite, "What A Friend We have In Jesus", followed by earnest prayer by the pastor, Rev. T. G. Marshall, and the 23rd Psalm, "The Lord Is My Shepherd, I Shall Not Want." in unison. Mr. and Mrs. Bedford gave a beautiful duet.

Rev. Mr. Marshall then extended to the special guests a most cordial welcome to this, the fourth Annual Old People's service. He said that already some of those present at the earlier services have passed on, and each year makes changes. Taking as his theme, "The evening of life's day," his text was "I am this day four score years old." II Samuel, 19; 35.

It is an old saying but true, that much water runs under the bridge in a year, and time goes on. Age is a privilege, not a trouble. In earlier days, and in heathen lands, age was a burden, and old people were starved to death, or buried alive, or taken out and left to the mercy of wild beasts, but Christianity changes all this. The elder people are respected and cared for. Old age brings pleasure, (sometimes pain) as old days are recalled and old stories told of earlier years. Age is a matter of feeling, not appearance. Our spirits must not be allowed to grow old. There is light for each step, grace for each day, and each hour of each day.

The speaker went on, quoting all three verses of "Lord, for tomorrow and its needs, I do not pray, Let me be kind in word and deed, Just for today." He said, an aged saint is one of the Community's greatest assets. The peace on that brow is not the light of earlier years, but the light of sins forgiven, debts paid, and peace with the world and with God. Our duty to them is one of respect, support, comfort and succor. They are in God's best land, because nearer Home. "Swift to its close ebbs out life's little day, Earth's joys grows dim, its glories pass away."

This most beautiful and comforting service closed by the singing of "God Be with You, Till We Meet Again", and the benediction.

Church Services

Trinity United Church the Sunday School and Bible Classes met at 10 o'clock, followed by morning service at 11, with the minister, Rev. T. G. Rivers, in charge. In the morning the subject was "Poverty that Makes Rich." The subject for the evening was "Jesus and the Common People".

At the Anglican Church of St. John the Baptist, there was Evensong and sermon.

Is your Baby Thriving?

A Marquis, Sask., Mother's Experience

Little Joyce Taylor's mother writes: "The first three months of her life Joyce had a hard time finding a suitable food. Nothing seemed to agree with her. Then we put her on Eagle Brand and from her very first feed she came right along. I went by the directions on the can. Now at 13 months she is a sweet, happy child in perfect health all the time."

And from Saint John, N.B. Mrs. Gourley writes:

"One after another different foods were tried for our baby, but Una couldn't digest them. At birth she weighed 14 lbs. but she dropped to 10 lbs. at 3 months. Then we tried Eagle Brand and she began to thrive almost immediately. At 2½ years she weighed 40 lbs."

Most babies show normal progress. That is quite natural. If your baby is not steadily gaining consult your doctor. If it is a food problem, we suggest that you and your doctor consider Eagle Brand. For bottle-fed babies, Eagle Brand has been the standby of mothers for three generations. It is especially valuable in difficult feeding cases, being such a safe food—pure, uniform, easily digested. You will be pleased to see your baby begin to thrive immediately when placed on a carefully prepared Eagle Brand diet. It is highly endorsed by doctors and nurses.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE OFTEN HELPFUL.

You learn of a friend who has just had a stroke of apoplexy, and as you know he had a high blood pressure,' you may be of the opinion that it is high blood pressure that brings on the paralytic stroke.

Now it is only too true, that most cases of stroke do have a high blood pressure, but as a matter of fact the high blood pressure has really been of help to them, rather than the cause of the stroke.

The real cause of the stroke is that the elastic coat of the blood vessel has lost some of its elasticity, owing to the fact that mineral deposits have taken the place of some of the elastic tissue. You can easily see how blood can distend or stretch a tube made of elastic tissue, but will have a hard time trying to push blood through a tube that has become hardened.

Thus in order to pump blood through these hardened blood vessels, it has to use a great deal of force, and thus we have the high blood pressure.

It is then a serious matter to have hardened arteries, arterio sclerosis, as it is called, because there is such a liability of a stroke.

However, the point I want to make is that all cases of high blood pressure are not due to hardened arteries, because thousands of individuals have a high blood pressure all the time, without any harmful effect, and others have a high blood pressure only at times.

This condition may be caused by the heart actually pumping more blood than usual within a certain time, or because the heart is trying to pump blood into vessels which at times will not open as widely as at other times.

As a matter of fact then the blood pressure in health may often be high because some condition or need in the body requires that it be high.

For instance your blood pressure may be 110 when you get up in the morning and by the time you finish five or ten minutes exercise it may be up to 140.

Work or play, or emotional disturbances, can send the pressure away up.

On the other hand, a little infection, when it first takes hold of you, can likewise send the pressure up.

When you are at rest mentally and physically, the blood pressure will come down again.

My point then is that high blood pressure, doesn't always mean hardening of the arteries, but simply Nature's way of giving you the extra pressure when neeced anywhere.

OUR CHILDREN

THE OPEN GATE

Blessed be all people who keep open gates for childhood. They will be remembered long after those who locked and padlocked the gates, who put up "No trespass" signs on the windows, "no thoroughgare" on the inviting paths.

Close by a schoolhouse there lives a wee old Irishwoman, pink cheeked, blue-eyed and gay. Laughter lurks in the wrinkles about her eyes and mouth. The hands that smooth the folds of her blue gingham apron are bent and brown, but there is in them a feeling of gentleness, of welcome. You know that long ago they tended little children with love and patience and humility. An adorable old lady, that is what she is.

Her garden is very big though her house is very small. The white picket fence that goes all the way around it travels far before it gets to the corner. That makes a long trudge for little legs that ache in their haste to reach home and mother and the good things that are waiting to be eaten. And what do you suppose the old lady does about that? She keeps the gate open so that those "wee ones" can short-cut through her garden.

"Sure they do no harm and I'm always glad to see them go by. Morning, noon and night they pass my window and they smile at me and I at them. No trouble at all, at all. Let the childer be. I keep the gate open for them apurpose."

Blessed be all such whoever and wherever they may be. The mother who makes telling her things easy, who is never too busy to stop, to listen, who always has a comforting word, an inspiring word, for the little one at her side. She is keeping the gate open and will never know the tragedy of having it shut against herself. Children never forget.

And the teacher who is gentle and understanding. She keeps the gate wide open and the way clear for the young travelers who come by her door. When a hard lesson seems to block the way she halts in her course and takes that knotty question all apart, lets the children see what it is made of, what it is supposed to do for them and how it is going to do it. Patiently she smoothes their difficulties, gently she herds them along the pleasant way, with strength and courage she tends them over the rough places. Always she keeps the gate open to them lest one turn aside in discouragement and lose his way.

There is none of us but tends some gate for some child. Often in our heedlessness we shut it in his face. A hard word, a frown of impatience, a reasonable request refused, an unsympathetic spirit turned upon their aspirations. Silence when a word might have helped. The cherishing of some irritation long forgotten by the child. Such little things close the gates against the children. We do not mean to do it, but we forget.

Next time a childish face is lifted in anxiety to your own remember the little woman who keeps her gate open that a whole schoolful may trudge by her window, scattering her chickens, rousing her dog, setting her petunias awry as they pass. She finds it a joy to tend that gate.

Congregation Honors Hiawatha Minister

Presentation Made and Address Read to Rev. Rufus and Mrs. Garrett.

At the farewell dinner and social given by the people of the United church at Hiawatha Monday evening to their minister, the Rev. Rufus Garrett, and Mrs. Garrett, a purse and an address were presented to the Rev. and Mrs. Garrett, who, after four years in their present charge, are leaving for Wellington, Ontario.

Deep regret at the departure of their minister and his wife and sincere appreciation of their work during the past four years were expressed in the address, delivered by Hanlon Howard of Hiawatha.

"There are none here, I believe," said Mr. Howard, "who have not been impressed by the sincerity of purpose, broadmindedness, and good will of our pastor. I am asked by our people to tell you, Mr. Garrett, that your service and personality are going to be missed in this community."

Mr. and Mrs. Garrett were wished success and joy in their new field, and the hope was expressed that they would return often to Hiawatha to visit their friends.

The purse was presented by Mrs. Robert Cowie. Miss Daisy Parker of Beaverton was the featured artist on the program.

LINDSAY WATER IN BETTER CONDITION

Government Board of Water Commissioners Issue Report Regarding Filtration.

LINDSAY, June 25—Lindsay water which has been in an unsatisfactory condition for some time, is improving, but must improve still more before it can be declared safely free from pollution, according to the latest report from the Board of Water Commissioners at the Government Laboratories in Toronto. Four of the town filters are reported in perfect condition, but the condition of the fifth is said to be still far from satisfactory. The chance of contracting disease, however, is now reported to be slight.

The height of the jet on the public drinking fountain has for some time been taken as indication of the condition of the water. When the water was at its worst the jet was turned down completely. At times people refrained from using town water at all unless dogs and horses were seen to be using the fountain.

Recent discolorations in the water are explained by the fact that the men at the pump house have been cleaning out the settling basin.

WILL NAME QUEEN'S PRINCIPAL TO-DAY

J. Hamilton-Fyfe of Christ Hospital School, Langham, England, Likely Choice.

KINGSTON, June 26 (Special to The Examiner).—There is every evidence that Principal J. Hamilton Fyfe of Christ Hospital School, Langsham, Eng., will be made Principal of Queen's University at a meeting of the trustees to-day. The recommendation will be made by the special committee appointed to consider and investigate on suitable persons for the the position. It was first felt that, if possible, a Canadian should be selected, but a wide examination disclosed few men who would consider the proposition. There were men qualified, but the salary offered was below what they already had. The special committee seriously considered one person, an easterner, of outstanding qualifications, but he, after due consideration and consultation with friends was persuaded to decline the flattering offer.

It was quite interesting, the way the suggested selection of Dr. Fyfe came about. The British headmasters toured Canada in April and May and as the visitors moved about, Queen's friends were impressed at various points with Dr. Fyfe's characteristics. In the west he was favorably endorsed. At Toronto, Queen's men were struck with his qualities of mind and his geniality of temperament. At Kingston, he was heard by the men whom he would have to work with and they were enthusiastic about him. On the other hand Dr. Fyfe was enamored with Queen's, its fine buildings, its splendid outlook. He went back to England and the sub-committee which went over ahead of him were told of the feeling there was among Queen's men regarding Dr. Fyfe. The sub-commitee sought him out, discussed the principalship with him and came back very favorably impressed and submitted their conclusions to the commitee. Then by some means the proposal got known in London, Eng., and a cable announced his selection, even before it was settled here.

The salary to be paid is $15,000 and house. This is above what was heretofore paid, but is not greater than the other leading university principals receive.

MODERN "SHORT-BOIL" METHOD

for making Jams and Jellies

Saves time and money—Insures perfect jams and jellies

THE Certo "short-boil" method is now accepted as the most efficient, economical way to make all your jams and jellies. Millions of women use it!

With Certo, anyone can make perfect jams and jellies, quickly and easily, from any fruit or fruit juice, even those delicious fruits that never before would jell.

The experiences of Mrs. A. and Mrs. B., as outlined on this page, make clear not only the genuine economy, but also the wonderful simplicity and ease of the Certo method.

1 Mrs. A. had two quarts of ripe strawberries to be made into jam. After hulling her berries, she was ready to start making her jam at nine o'clock.

3 The dark band on the kettle indicates the amount of fruit and juice from Mrs. A.'s berries (4 cups). The strawberries cost 20c. a quart—2 quarts 40c.

5 Mrs. A. added 2 lbs. of sugar to her berries. The sugar cost 7c. per lb.—2 lbs. 14c.

7 Following the old "pound for pound" standard recipe, Mrs. A. had to boil the fruit and sugar about 30 minutes before the jam thickened to the desired consistency. This long boiling evaporated one-half of the original weight of the berries and carried off most of the natural fresh fruit flavour as fragrant steam.

9 When Mrs. A. poured her jam she found she had 6 8-oz. glasses.
The cost: Berries.....40c.
Sugar.....14c.
6)54c.
9c.
The 6 glasses cost an average of 9c. per glass.

11 It took Mrs. A. 45 minutes to make her 6 glasses. It was nine forty-five when she finished.

2 Mrs. B. also had two quarts of ripe strawberries and she was ready to start her jam-making at nine o'clock, too.

4 Mrs. B., using the same quantity of strawberries, (2 quarts), got the same amount of fruit and juice (4 cups). Her berries also cost 20c. a quart—2 quarts 40c.

6 Mrs. B. added 3 lbs. of sugar to her berries. The sugar cost 7c. per lb.—3 lbs. 21c. (The next step explains this larger quantity of sugar.)

8 Mrs. B. simply brought her fruit and sugar to a tumbling boil, and boiled them for a few minutes, then added ½ bottle (½ cup) of Certo. The fruit flavour and colour were saved and the juice didn't boil away. That is why extra sugar was needed—simply to jell the juice that would have boiled away by the "long boil" method. The jam will contain no more sugar per glass than by the old method.

10 Mrs. B. got 10 8-oz. glasses of jam from her berries.
The cost: Berries.....40c.
Sugar.....21c.
½ bottle Certo @ 35c....18c.
10)79c.

12 Mrs. B.'s 10 glasses of jam were made in 15 minutes. She was all through at nine fifteen.

This same comparison holds true with all fruits. With Certo, by saving the fruit juice formerly boiled away, you get half again more jam or jelly from a given amount of fruit. You save the delicate colour, the delicious flavour of the fresh fruit. You save time, effort, and fuel, and get a perfect jam or jelly every time at a saving of from one to three cents per glass.

Mrs. G. Nimmons and her daughter, Miss Peggy Taylor of 267 Park Street were hostesses Tuesday evening at a miscellaneous shower held for Mrs. Norman Moffatt (formerly Miss Mary Hemphill of this city), and a bride of last Saturday, who was married in Detroit. The evening was pleasantly spent in the enjoyment of music and contests, after which the hostesses, assisted by Miss A. Dunlop, served dainty refreshments. The winners of the contests, who received beautiful prizes, were Miss A. Dunlop and Mr. N. Moffatt, the bridegroom. Many beautiful gifts were received by Mrs. Moffatt, indicating the popularity of the young couple. Noticeable among the presents was a tea-set of fine china. The shower was distributed in novel fashion, as from the ceiling multi-colored streamers were hung. On the ends of these, clever verses indicated where each present would be found. The bridegroom read the directions, and the bride had to go all over the house to find the gifts. Among those present were: Mesdames Hemphill, R. Young, H. Taylor, J. Reid, E. Latimer, J. Wyllie, D. MacGregor, D. Anderson, W. Petrie, R. Gilmour, Lister, R. Ralston, and Misses E. Hemphill, M. Ralston and A. Dunlop. Mrs. Moffatt graciously thanked her friends for their kindness. Just Between Us Women

JUST A FEW DAYS ago you read, perhaps, in the paper where a small child was drowned in a bathtub, having turned on the faucet when his parents were absent in another room.

• • • • • • •

So because such accidents, and ones similar, are becoming more numerous, I thought I would devote the column to-day to rules one must follow in order to make the bathroom safe for the smaller children.

• • • • • • •

For instance, there are certain articles that should be within the easy reach of little folks and others that should be far out of their grasp.

Because of this, many mothers are confronted with perplexing problems, some of which are very hard indeed to solve.

• • • • • • •

A child should have a low towel rack well supplied with towels and face cloths. It has been found that it is advisable to put these out fresh daily, rather than to have any extras, as it is customary on towel racks for adults.

• • • • • • •

Although it is not absolutely necessary to have a special bath mat for a child, there are so many attractive ones for children that they are very often provided with individual ones.

• • • • • • •

It takes a very short time to make one of these mats entirely by hand and still less when the quilted foundation is bought and the birds and water line appliqued after the mat is bound.

• • • • • • •

A low stool for the child to stand upon is a great convenience, for by it, he or she can be at the correct height to wash face and hands. The soap should be in easy reach and the toothbrush rack, in which a small tooth brush, is suspended, ready for use.

• • • • • • •

Then when the child's wants have been supplied, and similar wants for adults, there comes the necessity of seeing that all medicines, lotions, etc., that could in any way be harmful to the the youngster, are out of reach.

• • • • • • •

If the medicine closet can be opened when the child stands on the stool, a seat or chair, be sure that the bottles and boxes on the first shelf or any one higher up that can be reached, contain such lotions and remedies that are perfectly harmless.

• • • • • • •

There are certain remedies that are labelled "poison" and others that are known to have distressing and uncomfortable effects, even though they are not actually poisonous. All these should be high above the child's grasp, even though he stands on the highest available chair or stool.

• • • • • • •

ways, and she should also teach the child not to touch the articles, bot-

• • • • • • •

Give the child reasons. They appeal to a youngster's good sense. If he realizes that the things in the bottles, etc., will taste horrid, and will probably make him feel sick, and perhaps become very ill, the fascination will be impaired.

MUSIC PUPILS GIVE PROGRAM

IN ALL SAINTS' HALL.

The program in All Saints' parish hall presented by violin pupils of Roy Rome, assisted by two senior pupils from the studio of G. F. Liddle, Miss Olive Prest, A.T.C.M. and Delbert Lucas, was listened to with manifest pleasure by the audience, numbering nearly two hundred people.

Commencing at half past eight o'clock, the first violin number was Rubenstein's Melody in F, played by Frank Frost. Hearty applause was given this number. Special mention might be made of the performance of the younger pupils, all of whom were received with much enthusiasm. These included Frank Frost, Dorothy Cunningham, the latter just seven years of age, who played her first number, Greenwald's Zamaretta March, with fine style and good tone. She responded with an encore in Ducelle's Queen of Drowsyland.

Alice Kay, Ruth Fisher and Earl Allen were three other small musicians who received much applause and played splendidly in every instance. Alice Kay played Harris' Blue Bells of Scotland; Ruth Fisher's number was Offenbach's Barcarolle, and Earl Allen's contribution was Handel's Bourree.

Other well-played violin solos were Krogmann's Evening Song, played by Carl Liddle with perfect intonation and fine rhythm; Borowski's Adoration, played by Bert McFadden with good tone and careful interpretation; Toselli's Serenade, with fine tone and expression brought out by Ray Parnell; the Angel's Serenade, Jack Skitch's selection, rendered with much expressive, sweet melody, and The Swan, by Saint Saens, played by Robert Huffman.

Vera Downes showed much interpretive ability in rendering The Perfect Melody, by Geoffrey O'Hara, while Kenneth Gadd played with splendid technique and brilliant execution. His pizzicato effects were audible in every note and he played with fine tone and free bow. A great deal of applause greeted his execution of Wieniawski's Kujawiak Mazurka.

The violin duets and quartettes were well received and were finely played. In duets, with the second violin part arranged by Roy Rome, Krogmann's The Little Prince was given by Carl Liddle and Frank Frost. The quartette played Beethoven's Rondino and Gossec's Gavotte. Its personnel included Kenneth Gadd, Bert McFadden, Vera Downes and Ray Parnell.

The assisting artists were Miss Olive Prest, A.T.C.M., pianiste, and Delbert Lucas, baritone singer.

Miss Prest played with much brilliancy and finished technique and received plenty of appreciative applause for her rendition of Reinhold's Impromptu and Godard's Valse Chromatique. For the first number, she responded with an encore in Bohm's The Fountain, and the encore to the second pianoforte selection was Moszkowski's Serenata.

Delbert Lucas' first number was the difficult song, given with splendid tone and expression, Cowan's Border Ballad. Later, with violin obligato played by Mr. Rome, he sang O'Hara's "I Love a Little Cottage." His encore number was The Pirate Bold.

The accompaniments were played carefully and well throughout by Miss Marguerite Rome, to whom much of the credit of the recital was due. At the conclusion, Miss Rome received a lovely bouquet of flowers, presented by Alice Kay, and Miss Olive Prest was also the recipient of a floral tribute, presented by Ruth Fisher.

KIWANIS PICNIC TO FLOWER CITY IS HUGE SUCCESS

Many People From This District Take Part in Enjoyable Event.

KINSMEN LEND AID.

Outing Held in Aid of Kiwanis Pre-Tubercular Child Welfare Work.

Arrangements for the Kiwanis Picnic, so capably engineered by the Peterborough Kiwanians, in aid of their Pre-Tubercular Child Welfare work, were consummated by the Peterborough Kinsmen Club yesterday. The excursion, possibly one of the most successful of recent years, was participated in by 350 people from Peterborough, Cobourg, Belleville, Trenton, Lindsay, Millbrook and Pork Hope.

All arrangements were concluded without a hitch of any kind. The only cloud on the horizon being the lamented and untimely passing of Joseph John, ex-president of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club. To enable Kiwanians to pay their respects at the funeral which was held yesterday, the Kinsmen supervised the picnic; their president, Alex Elliott, with a committee composed of Rod Davies, Dr. E. M. Crough and Clifford Carruthers attending most conscientiously to the arranging of a program which ensured the maximum amount of comfort and enjoyment for everybody concerned.

The preliminary arrangements in the hands of the Kiwanians, were made by C. S. Browne, president of the club; Al. Sharpe, J. J. Turner and J. A. McKone in conjunction with G. H. Jackson, special representative Canadian National Railways, Cobourg-Rochester Steamship route. For their part the railway and steamship companies excelled their usual splendid service, trains ran to schedule and transfers were made with expedition and promptness.

Steamer Decorated

The steamer Ontario I, gaily decorated with flags for the occasion, left her berth at Cobourg sharply at nine o'clock D.S.T. and headed for Genesee Dock. The four-and-a-half hours' water journey being completed under the most delightful weather conditions. The water, which was considered calm on the outward trip was even more placid on the return journey, and passengers suiting their own inclinations either lounged on the breeze-swept decks or indulged in dancing, in the cosy little ballroom amidships. Rick Roberts and his Melody Men provided the music and added in no small measure to the success of the outing.

The cuisine in the ship's dining room of the very highest order, was well patronized by the passengers, whose appetites were keyed up by the bracing weather conditions.

As the steamer glided along the land-locked entrance to the Genesee dock, the ship's officers were most attentive to any questions made concerning the surroundings and pointed out the numerous speedy craft of the U. S. Coastguard Patrol, fitted with a small gun carried in the bow which is quite effective in dealing with rum runners. A fine nautical sight was also made by the U. S. Navy training schooner, which lay at anchor, her crew with their labors for the day completed, lounged on the decks, a happy throng with their songs and laughter, and music gaily strummed from an old guitar.

Many Yachts in Dock

Many yachts under a full spread of canvas, also made an irresistible picture, as they put out into the bay.

On arrival at Rochester special buses met the train and whirled the majority of the excursionists off on a sightseeing trip of the "Flower City," the remained filled in the brief hours of their visit in a manner which most appealed to them as individuals and despite the attractions which Rochester holds, it was with some relief that train time arrived; the heat was so intense as to make a tour of the metropolis something of an ordeal.

It was a very tired but happy and contented crowd which sighted the lights of Cobourg towards which the bow of the steamer pointed unswervingly and finally nosed into the harbor. Waiting trains conveyed the excursionists back to their respective towns and brought to a finale a day which will have occasion to live long in memory as one of the most happy and auspicous of the 1930 summer season by all who participated in the outing.

NEW SERIAL STORY STARTS SATURDAY

The Gingo Privateer By Peter B. Kyne Will Appear in The Examiner.

Cattle thieves, broncbos, a proud cattle baron, a fairy-tale princess, and a gallant D'Artagnan of the saddle—these are the thrilling elements of Peter B. Kyne's stirring new romance, "The Gringo Privateer", which commences in The Examiner on Saturday.

This swift-moving yarn of the cow country tells how Ken Burney, scion of proud house which has fallen on evil days, goes to work for the all-powerful cattle king, and succeeds not only in foiling the cattle rustlers but in winning the hand of the monarch's lovely daughter. When Ken tries, in turn, to gain the upper hand on the wiley old king, he finds he is up against a tougher proposition. From this point the story moves rapidly to a breath-taking conclusion.

Peter B. Kyne, considered to be one of the foremost writers of western fiction, has just completed "The Gringo Privateer", which will be published in The Examiner complete in thirty-six installments, especially illustrated by J. Clinton Shepherd.

Cote Scores Only Tally For Toronto Leafs

O'NEILLS LOSE TO BALTIMORE IN THIRD GAME

KEYS LOSE TO BISONS.

Wings Score Seven Runs in Ninth and Tenth to Defeat Skeeters 9-8.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 26. — A great piece of relief pitching by Jim Weaver, tall Baltimore right-hander, stood out like a beacon light in downing the Toronto Leafs, 3-1 here today. This victory gave the Orioles two victories in the three games played here so far in the series.

Big Weaver, who stands six feet, seven inches in height, strutted his long legs to the hillock in the seventh inning, relieving Luther Roy. There were three men on the sacks and the total of put-outs at that time was just one. Weaver's first pitch to Richardson, the batter, was a strike. On the next ball, Weaver kicked his right foot high into the air and Richardson backed away and knocked the sphere down the third base line. Stroner came in fast, scooped the pellet up and sent it winging to McMullen to force O'Neill at the plate and the catcher relayed the ball to first to engineer a double play. It was a neat play all around for Baltimore.

Burke was the only batter to reach first base on big Jim during the eighth and ninth innings.

Incidentally, it marked the seventh victory of the season for J. Weaver, and every one of the victories were put to his credit as the result of relief work.

Kyle Graham pitched the entire game for the Leafs, and was touched for ten hits. Taking his work throughout the game, Graham can be given credit for a fine hurled tilt, as he got out of some difficult spots. The only really bad inning was the seventh when the Orioles connected for three hits with a base on balls in between to push over the two runs which were the margin of victory.

WINGS RALLY TO WIN.

JERSEY CITY, June 26. — The Rochester Red Wings staged a fierce rally in their final turn at bat in the ninth inning here yesterday, bunched six runs to tie the score and went out in the tenth and pushed across another run to win after a great uphill fight by a score of 9 to 8.

NEED POLICE PROTECTION.

NEWARK, June 26.—Newark Bears broke even in a twin bill with the Montreal Royals here yesterday, winning the first game 5 to 2 and losing the nightcap 7 to 5. The last game went into extra innings, the Royals tying the score at 5-all in the seventh. The contest was originally scheduled for seven innings. The Royals won out in the eighth with two counts coming across the plate.

KEYS LOSE TO BISONS.

READING, June 26.—Reading lost the second game of the series to Buffalo yesterday 8 to 4, although the Keys outhit the Bisons by 12 to 9. Herrmann's wildness in the early innings gave Buffalo its margin of victory.

ERRORS FEATURE ALDERVILLE WIN

Indians Score Five Runs in Third Inning to Defeat Bailieboro 15-6.

EARLY FRAMES CLOSE.

Costly errors helped the Alderville baseball team to a 15-6 victory over Bailieboro at the latter's grounds down the highway last night. The first two innings were close, but the Indians cut loose with five runs in the third and gradually lengthened the margin.

The score was as follows:

Bailieboro .....000 020 031— 6
Alderville .....015 010 143—15

The teams were: Bailieboro—Barnard, 3b; Harris, 1b; Dawson, cf; Johnston, 2b; Woods, lf; Watt, lf; Lord, c; Butters, rf; Deyell, p; Dean, ss.

Alderville—Crowe, c; Marsden, 1b; A. Lucas, lf; W. Smoke, p; J. Simpson, 3b; Bigwind, ss; A. Marsden, rf; B. Crowe, lf; F. Lucas, 2b.

Alderville had 16 hits to Bailieboro's 7. Deyell struck out 4, and Smoke 6. The umpires were Bates and Williams.

ROSENBLOOM WINS LIGHT-HEAVY TITLE

Jimmy Slattery Outpointed in Fifteen Round Bout at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Bison Stadium, June 26.—After ten long years of milling, mostly up and down the back roads of Fastiana, Maxie Rosenbloom, the Clown Prince of Harlem, came into his own last night and stripped dancing Jimmy Slattery of the world's light heavyweight championship.

The slapstick star of the prize ring, most unorthodox gladiator since the days of the late Harry Greb, won the decision over Slattery after 15 rounds of hard, but often slow battling in the tall Irishman's own bailiwick, and did it to the satisfaction of most of the crowd of 13,500 that all but filled the International League ball park. The boos of the minority when the decision was announced found backing in the difference of opinion among the judges and referee.

Young Suffers Defeat At Hands of Floridian

TORONTO, Ont., June 26.—(C.P.)—Once again George Young, Toronto swimmer of International fame, has been forced to taste defeat in the first test of a come-back campaign.

Last night at Sunnyside Beach the youthful Canadian who trounced the best swimmers on the continent in the first Wrigley marathon, finished far back of Samuel A. Shields, Miami, Fla., in a three mile match race. The Florida sensation beat Young by more than 300 yards when he swam the three miles in one hour, 20 minutes and 49½ seconds.

Softball Notes.

C.G.E. and Harrison's will do battle at Central School Grounds tonight. This is the third consecutive game for Harrison's. C.G.E. are sailing along at top speed right now and hope to chalk up another win at Harrison's expense. Last night's lost hurt the Sunoco boys and they will be out tonight to get it back by trimming the Electrics. A good game should be the result.

Tomorrow night Belmont Club and Westclox will meet. Both games start at 6.30.

8-5 WIN FOR SUGAR BOWL.

Scoring five runs in the ninth inning Belmont Club defeated Harrison's 12-11 in a softball fixture at Central School Grounds last night. It was a great finish to a game that had the fans on their toes every minute. Plenty of hard hitting and sparkling fielding features provided the crowd with lots of thrills.

Galbraith, making his first start in years, twirled good ball far the Belmonts. With better support from his teammates the score would have been less.

Montgomery did the gunning for Harrison's and pitched well till the ninth when he weakened and allowed five runs to be scored. This was Montgomery's second game in two days.

Johnny Ward was the fielding star of the game, having nine putouts in centre field. Willshaw played good ball at third.

Brintons made a bid for victory in the last inning when J. Corbett hit a home run, followed by Charlie Shaughnessy with a single and V. Rose with another homer, giving them three runs but they were still a few short to win.

The crops in this district are looking well, the recent rains having done much good. Sweet clover has been cut by John Condon and James Hawthorne. While fall wheat is thin in some places, the quality is good and oats and barley look well.

Potatoes now have a good start, while some can be seen in blossom. It is likely that the apple crop, with the exception of early apples, will be short.

SUPERIOR PLAY IS FEATURE OF THE FINAL SET

Victors Take Early Lead By Scoring Three Points in Second End.

FINAL SCORE 9-7.

William Delaney of Cobourg, Defeats M. Bredin in Consolation Play-off.

Defeating Skip A. M. Smale and his Warkworth bowlers after battling all day through yesterday's grand opening tournament at the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club, Edward Goodman and his rink from Oshawa rolled their way to victory in the Canadian Department Stores Trophy competition at an early hour this morning. The score of the final match was 9-7.

Despite the weariness of the sunburned bowlers the final was the occasion for a display of some high-class bowling. Goodman's rink was composed of T. Kaiser, lead; J. Hefferman, second and T. Johns, vice-skip. W. B. Baker, lead; Dr. H. E. Allan, second; and J. E. Neill, vice-skip, made up the rink skipped by Smale.

Smale opened the match with a point on the first end but by some clever rolling Goodman got three points in the second end. Smale won the next end with one point but Goodman got a point on each of the fourth, fifth and sixth ends. Scoring a 3-end in the seventh, Smale brought the count to 7-6 but Goodman made it nine with a 2-end and a point on the ninth end. Smale brought his count to 7 scoring a 2-end on the tenth end, the last played.

Score by ends was as follows:

Oshawa:
Goodman ... x 3 x 1 1 1 x 2 1 x—9
Smale ... 1 x 1 x x x x 3 x x 2—7

Winner in Play-off

Skip William DeLaney of Cobourg defeated M. Bredin in a consolation play-off for third and fourth prizes in the Canadian Department Stores Trophy competition. The count was 11-9, after a hard-fought match.

To win the place in the final Goodman put out Bredin of Peterborough in a 14-9 match and Smale put out DeLaney, 14-7.

Leads in Fourth

In the Cullen-Howden final in the Stratton Trophy competition last night Cullen got his first substantial lead when he scored a 5-end in the fourth after leading off with 2 points and 1 point in the third. Cullen's score jumped to fifteen with a 4-end and a 3-end in the sixth and seventh. At this point Howden was 12 down but his rink rallied for 4 on the eighth end and 4 on the 10 end. Cullen and his men continued with their steady rolling to the 19-13 victory.

The score by ends was as follows:

Peterborough:
Cullen .....21x5x43x1xx1x2—19
Howden .....xx2x1xx4x4x1x1x—13

FIGHTING FAIR AND FOUL

ONE FIGHT THAT WON'T END IN A FOUL

The big fight thunder about the Sharkey-Schmeling bout is almost ancient history, but the aftermath and the results are still seething. This is the first time in the history of the heavyweight crown it has been won on a foul. Now the Gardens don't want to give the 'Hambourg Hammerer' the silverware, well how much ice does that cut with the boxing fans. Schmeling couldnt exactly help being floored by a foul blow, not only that, he is willing to give the boastful Boston Sailor his chance for revenge. And what could be fairer? Some say give a boxer just so many fouls and then run him out of the game forever, this they believe would put an end to these doubtful low punches. True, there is a certain amount of good in the idea but on the other hand, how many fights are fought in which there isn't some sort of foul committed either by holding or using the head. These are distinct fouls but that is what makes up a fight in the long run. Yet there is one thing that most boxing fans will agree on and that is that the boxing game took a wollop on the chin that wasn't a foul blow and unless there is a stop to this sort of thing the old boxing sport is going to take the count.

PACKERS WIN SOCCER GAME FROM BRINTON

BRINTON MISSED PENALTY.

Andy Beggs Scores From Close Range—Custodians Brilliant Against Clever Attack.

After being a goal down for a while, the Packers last evening came through with a win against the Brinton team by the score of two goals to one in a league game that awarded them two valuable points and puts them in a favorable position in the local league. The fans considered it one of the best contests this season and nothing detrimental took place to mar the proceedings, while the players fought it out to the finish. These two teams meet again Saturday in the final of the Spalding Cup.

First Half

Captain Westwood won the toss and compelled the Packers to face the sun. From the kick-off, the Packers made a bee-line for the Brinton citadel where Curtis saved a low grounder from Beggs, who shot on the run. He diverted the sphere against the cross bar to allow him a chance to make a clearance, to concede a fruitless flag kick. As play rolled on, the contestants endeavored to find out the tactics of one another; sometimes close passing prevailed, then an outburst of long swinging passes that had the halves running all over the field. On mid-field play, the Brinton gained a foothold when Westwood concentrated on a movement that allowed James a first time shot that the Packers' custodian kicked clear in time. This was followed on a quick return by Brinton's front rank who had settled down to the battle, but were shooting the ball at the goal-keeper instead of looking for the opening. At the other end the Packers did likewise, to gain two unproductive flag-kicks that were placed in front of goal awaiting a timely touch. Exchanges continued on an even basis for a while with both goal-keepers getting all they could handle; in fact, Griffin bringing out two spectacular saves when a goal seemed to be in the horizon. Time and again, James would make openings for his wing men, who seemed ever ready to accept the long pass forward. He repeatedly broke through the defense to be relieved of the ball as he was in the act of shooting. The full backs of the Packers kept a close tab on him every time he had possession of the ball and it was well they did because James was right on the job to gain a decision worth while.

Brinton Opened Scoring

At last the break went against the Packers, when Hotson drew the full backs away from their charge, to slip the ball across to James, who had a try but the ball carooned back to Tait. He sent in a weak shot into the far post that bewildered Griffin as it rolled past his arm over the line. With the loss of the counter, the Packers opened up at a terrific pace to find the Brinton eleven ready for them and the battle produced football of the highest quality by all the contestants. Newt. Downer held the prominent place of being the most dangerous man against the Brinton defence. His greatest achievement being the lightning drive from twenty yards out that Curtis saved away up in the corner of the goal. It fell back to Willshaw, who header it back in below the bar, again the custodian saver but he startled the fans when he jumped up again to hold his charge from disaster when Preston headed in below the crossbar. With seven minutes to finish the first half, Bromley dribbled the ball along the wing until he saw an opening on the front line, then touched it forward to Willshaw, who made no mistake with the equalizer.

Half Time

On resuming, both elevens concentrated on gaining a decision quickly but they were disappointed because the half backs tackled closely to prevent the forwards making inroads on the defence that had a gruelling time in the first half. Both custodians had a busy time holding the forwards' shots ranged at them, although it looked like that Curtis had the most to do. Many a time he defeated their intention with clever anticipational work by judging the movement of attack while it hung in the vicinity of the goal. Eventually he had to concede the leading counter when Downer, on the extreme wing, rapped a hot drive in below the bar. The custodian saved with outstretched arms but he did not recover quick enough to offset Beggs slipping a low grounder into the net from close range to put the Packers in the ascendency. It was pleasing to witness the gentlemanly conduct of the players as the battle went to the limit and all divulging all they knew so as to defeat any plan instituted by the attack.

Missed Penalty

On a raid on the Packers' goal, Wade handled inside the dreaded area and Tommy Westwood failed to score from the spot kick with his rising shot that Charlie Griffin saved with one hand to award a flag kick that brought nought. There never was an idle moment for the rest of the game because one team would raise a seige then the other, and it was anybody's game until the final whistle announced the Packers winners by the score of two goals to one. OMEMEE WINS FROM N. EMILY

FINAL COUNT 7-6.

The Maple Leaf League game with North Emily visiting at Omemee on Monday was close and snappy all the way through, and Omemee won 7-6. Parsons and Wes Smith, pitchers for Omemee and North Emily respectively, hurled a nice game and deserve credit for keeping the score down. They were given real support too, so the game was good from the spectators' view point.

Omemee had a three-run lead at the end of the second but North Emily took it from them and took the lead in the third. Omemee took the lead back n the fourth and added to it in the fifth. Hard fighting by North Emily kept the Omemee score down but did not give them enough to equalize.

BOUSSUS BEATEN BY JOHNNY DOEG

Cochet and Borotra Still in Wimbledon Singles Running.

IN THIRD ROUND.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 26.—Today at Wimbledon saw the two Anglo-Saxon nations emerge from the third round of the British tennis championships play with thirteen representatives in the last sixteen; the two French aces, Henri Cochet and Jean Borotra, still in the lists, and the sixteenth position taken by Jan Kozeluh of Czechoslovakia.

The day saw the disappearance of the three Japanese contenders, the veteran Miki, Harada and Abe, and the vanquishing of Prenn and Kleinschroth of Germany. Two Americans bowed in defeat, namely, Berkeley Bell, who put up a great fight against the redoubtable Cochet and Johnny Van Wyn, whom "Big Bill" Tilden eliminated in three sets of an all-American match.

CLASSICS DEFEAT DARE DEVILS 32-5

Leading until the fourth innings, the Dare Devils blew up in the succeeding frames in their game last evening with the Classics and were defeated to the gigantic score of 32 to 5. Every defence the Devils had went to the winds toward the end of the contest and the spectators lost count as the Classics speeded around the bases.

Lesurf pitching for the losers deserved a better score. In fact he twirled winning ball striking out nine in the first four innings and 15 in the whole game. Iyatt his opposition had seven strikeouts to his credit, but his support was solid.

The Devils will practice at James Stevenson Park on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and as Rube Brady says, "They need the practice."

CAMPBELLFORD INTERMEDIATES BOW BEFORE MOTOR CITY SQUAD

JACK SCORES LONE TALLY.

OSHAWA, June 26.— The Oshawa Shamrocks defeated the Campbellford intermediates here last night in the first game of a double-header, 2—1, while in the nightcap, Brampton Juniors proved too clever for the General Motors Juniors, and took a good game 7—2. In the opening tilt, bad feeling was evident throughout the game, and husky applications of hickory kept tempers at a boiling point and one or two fights that threatened to become serious broke out over the field. Oshawa got the verdict, due chiefly to their better finish around the nets, while from a pugnacious angle they were the decided aggressors. Daniels and Bovin scored for Oshawa, while Jack got Campbellford's lone tally.

In the second game a particularly clever junior team turned up from the town made famous for its Excelsiors, and their ability was enough to carry them to a victory. Oshawa tried hard throughout, and at times flashed form that was equal to that of the visitors, but they were not consistent enough. Clever playing and deadly shooting by Fleming got three of the visitors' goals, while Anthony netted a couple on some nice work. For Oshawa Bovin and Armour did the scoring, while Leyden was outstanding on the defense.

CALLADINE SETS CITY LOOP MARK

Strikes Out Twenty-two Batters in Leaf-Kiwanis Bantam Battle.

CITY LEAGUE PROGRAM.

Twenty-two strikeouts was the record hung up the other evening at James Stevenson Park by Calladine, twirler for the Maple Leaf bantam team. Aided by the great pitching of the speedy Calladine the Leafs turned back their old enemy the Kiwanis 13 to 1. Three hits were secured by the losers, two of them coming in the eighth when they chased over their lone tally. The Leafs were faced by Wrigley and Lebarr in the box, and although both youngsters pitched nicely they could not control the ringing hits from the winners' bats.

The teams:

Kiwanis—Anderson, 2b.; English, 3b.; Weir, c.; Seabrook, 1b.; Watson ss.; Lebarr, ss.; Creighton, cf.; DePellaro, lf.; Fisher, rf.; Wrigley, rf.

Leafs—Dogerty, rf.; Kingdon, rf.; Starr, c.; Dickson, cf.; Calladine p.; Murdock, ss.; Gardiner 3b.; McCarthy, 1b.; Williams, 2b.; Burton, lf.

This week will see a big bill of baseball in the City League with all the teams striving hard to better their place in the league race. Tonight the Kiwanis and Holy Name teams hook up in a big junior battle at Exhibition Park. This should furnish fans with a real opportunity to view the snappy brand of ball the teams play in this league.

At Riverside Park to-morrow night the Brownton Royals and Kiwanis cross bats in a Juvenile setto.

Landis Continues His Iron Ball Rule

CHICAGO, Ills. June 26. (C.P.)—Kenesaw Mountain Landis may be faced with a rebellion within the ranks, but he keeps right on waving his big stick.

The latest decision of the baseball commissioner is to declare Edwin Mooer's suspended second baseman for the Baltimore Orioles a free agent.

Mooers was suspended when he refused to report to Buffalo of the International League on a player deal. He complained to Landis, exhibiting a signed contract in which the Orioles agreed to make him a free agent if they did not send him to a club of higher classification. Despite much protesting by Baltimore, the commissioner held for Mooers.

Champs And Leaders Open Series To-Day

The Brooklyn Robins, current leaders of the National League and the Chicago Cubs, who won the championship last year, are all set for what may be the most important series of the first half of the National league campaign separated by only one game in the standing, the Robins and Cubs open in Chicago to-day for a series of four games which probably will decide which will reach July 4, the traditional turning point of the season, on top.

Brooklyn has held first place for about a month with a crippled Cub team hanging right onto the next rung of the ladder, waiting for the slip that seems about due. The Robins did a little sliding yesterday as they lost their final game before invading Wrigley field to the Pittsburgh Pirates, remaining but one game ahead of the Cubs. They can lose again to-day and still remain ahead but only by a few percentage points.

Simmons Slips Back In Big Six Standing

The order of the Big Six was changed again yesterday, but no new members came in, as the current sextet continued to show the way to most of its major league batting rivals. Al Simmons fell off a bit in batting, hitting but once in seven times at bat, and went into second place in the American League and fourth in the Big Six, just a half point behind his teammate, Mickey Cochrane, who hit three times in six tries. Paul Waner's average also dropped, but only one point with one hit in three times up. Bill Terry gained ground, hitting two out of three and moved into third place at .398. The marks of "Babe" Ruth and "Chuck" Klein remained unchanged. The "Babe" hit two home runs and one lesser hit in eight times up, while Klein hit two out of five.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S GIANT LETTUCE

Once upon a time Baby Bunty, the little orphan rabbit child, was hopping around in the clover grass, singing a song like this:

"Uncle Wiggily, joggily jiggily,
How does your garden grow?
Your carrots and beans,
Your parsley and greens,
And lettuce heads all in a row?"

Of course Bunty made that song up out of her Mother Goose book where it tells about Mistress Mary, quite contrary, and her garden.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily as he heard Bunty's song. "That's very good! Sing me another verse, Bunty," and the old gentleman rabbit hopped out from behind a pieplant where he had been sitting in the shade.

"I can't sing another verse," answered Bunty, hopping close to Uncle Wiggily in the shade of the pieplant, "for there aren't any more verses."

"Well, then come along with me and I'll give you a nice lettuce leaf to nibble as you hop to school," said Mr. Longears.

Now you might have thought, because Uncle Wiggily and Bunty were near a pieplant, that the old rabbit gentleman would have reached up and picked off a nice apple, cherry or cocoanut pie from the plant in the shade of which he had been hiding. Or at least he might have given the little orphan bunny a tart from the pieplant.

But nothing like this happened, for the pieplant was the rhubarb bush, and though pies can be made from rhubarb, and very good pies, too, still it takes a little time and they must be baked in the oven.

So, instead of a pie or tart, Baby Bunty was given a nice, green leaf of curly lettuce to nibble as she hopped to school. And Uncle Wiggily then hopped along the rows in his garden to see how the plants were growing.

"My! My! What have we here!" suddenly exclaimed Uncle Wiggily as he reached a sunny corner of his garden, which was down a little hill away from the beds of carrots, parsnips, parsley and cabbages. "Such a fine, large head of lettuce!" said the rabbit gentleman. "I never saw one so big, and it hasn't stopped growing yet, either. Why, if it keeps on it will be a giant!"

Well might the rabbit gentleman say this, for the head of lettuce was even now as big as some of his cabbages and the summer was not half gone, which meant that there were still many days more for the plant to grow.

"How did you happen to get so big?" asked Uncle Wiggily of the lettuce head which was nodding in the wind.

"I guess I'm just lucky, that's all," the lettuce answered for it could speak in a way Uncle Wiggily understood. "You see the ground here is just right for me to grow in. The sun shines on me all day long and when it rains little streams of water run down the hill, here and wet my roots. Lettuce, or anything else that grows, needs air, sunshine and water and then it is happy. But if you want me to grow larger. Uncle Wiggily, you should gently dig around me every day to loosen the earth near my roots."

"Why?" asked the rabbit.

"So the night dew can keep me moist in case there is no rain during the day," was the answer. "Also when you dig around me, and loosen the hard earth, it lets the warm air get close to me and that helps me to grow larger."

"It shall be done as you wish," said the rabbit. "I'll make you the largest giant of a head of lettuce that ever grew in my garden!"

Each day, after that, Uncle Wiggily worked around this special head of lettuce just to see how large it would grow. When there had been no rain for a long time Uncle Wiggily carried water from his bungalow in his tall, silk hat, and carefully poured it around the roots of the lettuce. So that, in a few weeks, the head was as large as a small dog house. Animal friends of Uncle Wiggily came from all over Woodland to see the giant lettuce.

"It is wonderful!" they said.

"If it keeps on growing," bleated Uncle Butter, the goat, "you won't be able to get it in your bungalow, Wiggily."

"I hardly think it will grow much larger," said the rabbit, for by now the lettuce was as large as two dog houses. The big, green head waved its outer leaves in the air and was happy, for Mr. Longears had treated it well, hoeing around it every day and giving it water when it was dry.

One day Uncle Wiggily took Baby Bunty with him to have another look at the giant head of lettuce. The outer leaves flipped and flopped in the wind. Uncle Wiggily hopped all around his prize plant, leaving Bunty for a moment. And when he came back, to where he had last seen the little orphan rabbit, lo and behold! She was gone! Yes, gone!

"Bunty! Bunty! Where are you?" called Uncle Wiggily.

But no Bunty answered. Something very queer and jolly had happened.

ADVANCE PARTY LEAVES FOR CAMP

Making Arrangements For Annual Encampment of Local Militia Unit.

The advance party for the Peterborough Rangers' week-end camp proceeded to the Ranges on the Norwood Road this morning, in charge of Quartermaster-Lieutenant F. Hart. Most of the canvass has been spread and by Friday evening, when the Battalion marches to camp, everything will be in order to carry out the regular routine.

All members of the Battalion who did not draw equipment at the Tuesday parade will be able to get it on Friday at 7 p.m. before the Battalion departure.

Capt. Edwards, M.C., ditrict weapon training officer, assisted by Sergeant-Major Turner, will be at the camp to superintend the musketry practices during the camp period.

An addition to the musketry training of the Battalion this year will be an attack practice to be carried out on the morning of Tuesday, July 1. This part of the field training work will be inspected by Major G. Whitelaw, general staff officer of Military District No. 3.

An explanation of a special demonstration by the Battalion as an entertainment for the citizens of Peterborough to be carried out on the evening of Monday, June 30, will appear in an early issue.

A SIMPLE WAY TO LEARN MUSIC

The simplest way to learn the scales is to consider them as little fairy ladders up and down which the little gnomes play and leap. The little gnomes all have names. Some are called Do, Re, Mi, Fa, Sol, La, Ti and some are called Do. But they are mischievous little devils and all have stirred up riots and discords for which they are being sought by the police people. So they have aliases such as F, A, C, E, B, G, etc. They are cleff dwellers, making their homes high in the cleffs. One of these is called G cleff because it is hewn out from G-wiz, a peculiar rock found only in a place called The-lips-of-the-naive. Some dance in a peculiar way. They are called sharpies. A man named McFadden has trained some more who are known as McFadden's Flats. The remainder all have a total of seven little freckles on their white faces and are called "naturals."

When called upon to guide a musician they arrange their fairy ladder in front of him and play tag up and down. Some chin themselves on the bars; others leap high above, causing the musician to strain up to reach the pitch and win the key to their city.

The best way to play music is to stuff the little fellows full of Allegro cheese from Stacatto, Italy. After luring them to a trunk, lock them in and "fake" the damn' stuff.

Doubling the Income for the Growing Family

Announcing

an entirely new plan of life assurance

THE IMPERIAL LIFE
DOUBLE INCOME POLICY

This very unusual type of policy is now being introduced in Canada by The Imperial Life Assurance Company of Canada. Its unique feature is that it guarantees to your family while your children are growing up twice as much income as a similar amount of insurance under any other plan would provide.

12% Income on any capital sum you select

Should a policy of the ordinary type for say $10,000 become a claim, the largest return that could be expected from the proceeds if invested in safe securities, would not likely exceed 6% or say $500 to $600 per annum. This would prove a meager income should there be a family of small children who must be educated and cared for until they become self-supporting.

The Imperial Double Income Policy provides, however, that from the day it becomes a claim until the youngest child becomes of age—which may be almost 20 years—an income equal to 12% on the capital sum would be paid. On $10,000 this would mean a guaranteed income of $1,200 per annum, instead of $500 or $600 which ordinarily could be secured. The larger income would make a vast difference in meeting the family requirements.

An income that won't go around.

Doubled income when the needs are greatest.

Doubles the Family Income while the need is greatest

Ask any widow what this doubling of her income from her insurance money would mean to her during her years of struggle. How often it would save the principal sum itself from being quickly used up.

When the youngest child becomes self-supporting the full face value of the policy, say $10,000, would be paid to the beneficiary. After that time the ordinary income from this sum would probably suffice.

The Imperial Double Income policy offers a choice of three income periods—10 years, 15 years or 20 years. The income commences immediately upon the death of the insured and continues for the balance of the income period selected. For example, if the period selected is 20 years and the insured dies 8 years after the issue of the policy, the income will be paid for the remaining 12 years of the period and at the expiration of such 12 years the face value of the policy will be paid in full.

The ages of your children will determine which income period will best fit your needs. With the proper period selected, you will feel certain that should the policy become a claim you are providing double the ordinary income one could reasonably hope to secure, until your youngest child becomes self-supporting.

PAIR INJURED IN CAR CRASH

VEHICLE OVERTURNS.

Injured at 1.30 this morning when their car turned over on the Hastings-Norwood road, two young men, Ross Shaw, of Norwood, and Merenus Carter, of Colborne were rushed to Nicholls Hospital. Carter is the more seriously injured, suffering from a slight brain concussion, scalp wounds and injuries to his back. He is still in the hospital, while Shaw, who suffered a crushed left arm and shock, was allowed to go home at noon.

Shaw was unable to tell a coherent story of the accident. The young men were returning from a bridal shower when it is believed their car left the road. It turned completely over in the ditch, being almost totally wrecked in the crash. Dr. Carleton, of Norwood, was called and after first aid they were conveyed to hospital here.

OBITUARY

MRS. WATSON CARTER.

Mrs. Watson Carter of Smith Township passed away at the age of 74 in this city last night. She was born in Belleville, daughter of the late John Kennedy.

Her husband predeceased her nine years ago. Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. J. A. Sutherland of Vancouver, B.C.; three sons: Francis J. Carter of 650 Stewart Street, Robert Watson Carter of Smith Township, Albert Roland Carter of Smith Township, and two brothers: John Kennedy of Smith and Arnott Kennedy of Peterborough.

Mrs. Carter had for many years been a member of the Baptist Church, Lakefield.

The funeral will be held on Friday at 2 o'clock, standard time, from the residence of her son, Albert R. Carter, 8th Concession, Smith, to the Lakefield Cemetery. Rev. McCormick of Lakefield will conduct the services.

VERNON P LEWIS

After a short illness, Vernon P. Lewis, formerly of this city, passed away yesterday at Syracuse, N. Y. The late Mr. Lewis was born in Peterborough forty years ago, the son of William Lewis. He was educated here and moved to the United States eight years ago. He was a draftsman with the Studebaker Corporation at South Bend, Indianna, U. S.

He is survived by one brother, Norman, of the staff of the local Post Office, and one sister, Alma, a nurse at Syracuse.

The funeral service will be held at Comstock's Funeral Home on Saturday at 1:30 o'clock. Rev. David Wren, of Trinity United Church officiating. Interment will be in the Little Lake cemetery.

In Police Court

Fifteen days in jail was the sentence handed out by Police Magistrate Langley this morning to Trevor Turner, Otonabee farmer, for driving a car yesterday afternoon on Simcoe street while intoxicated. Turner pleaded guilty to the charge and urged that he be allowed to go home to arrange the work about his farm before he went "up." His record did not meet with the court's approval and his request was disallowed.

Two sad-looking vagrants, one young and the other old, came before the magistrate and pleaded guilty. The old man, according to Chief Newhall, is a master at the art of obtaining a living without work. He obtained board at several places in the city, "taking in" the boarding mistress with the same little play in each place. He played the role of a hard-working employee of the paving company and each morning left with his dinner pail, to return in the evening tired out and ready for a meal. However, the Chief stated, that the man did not work but spent the time between the morning and evening meal in chasing butterflies in the fields and sleeping blissfully in shady nooks in the woods. He never paid his board, and will have fifteen days in jail to consider some way to find a job.

WEDDING BELLS

DOUGLAS—GROOMBRIDGE.

St. John's Church, with its velvety green lawns, was the scene to-day of a pretty wedding when Lillian May, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Groombridge, of 461 Bolivar Street, became the bride of Joseph William Douglas of Peterborough, eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Douglas of Nottingham, England. The interior of the church was decorated with palms and ferns, peonies and roses. The ceremony was performed at two o'clock by the Rev. R. C. Blagrave, D.D., in the presence of the relatives and friends of the contracting parties.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march played by F. G. Mann, L.Mus.

She wore a lovely frock of white flat crepe, made in two-piece style, with brief jacket. Her veil of white tulle was caught with orange blossoms. She wore white slippers and silk hose and carried a bouquet of white roses. Her only ornament was the gift of the bridegroom, a necklace of pearls.

There were five attendants: the bridesmaid, Miss Sheila Keown of this city, and four small flower girls, nieces of the bride. They were little Peggy Bassett and Doreen Groombridge of Peterborough and Audrey and Jean Thompson of Toronto.

Miss Keown was in orchid chiffon with orchid hat, white slippers and hose. She carried a bouquet of red and white roses.

The little flower girls were frocked alike in dainty gowns of georgette, with matching poke bonnets and carrying baskets of small roses. Little Peggy Bassett and Doreen Groombridge were in green and the small Thompson sisters wore orchid.

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding luncheon was served in buffet style at the home of the bride's parents, from a table centred by the bride's cake and arranged with peonies and roses.

Mr. Douglas and his bride left on the afternoon C.P.R. train for a trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls, the bride travelling in a dress of green crepe, white hat, shoes and hose, and carrying a green coat. On their return, they will reside at 461 Bolivar Street.

A large number of useful and pretty gifts were received by the young people. The gift of the bridegroom to the bridesmaid was a necklace, to the flower girls signet rings and to the best man a pair of cuff links.

DIED.

KEARNS—Wm. J. Kearns, of 492 Elm street, Peterborough. The funeral took place Wednesday morning from St. Peter's Catherdal at 9 o'clock. The interment was in St. Peter's Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM.

WEST.—In loving memory of our darling daughter, Thelma Pearl, who fell asleep in Jesus June 25, 1929, aged 7 months.

"She, like a little faded flower,
Was lying quiet and still;
Her sweet grey eyes were closing
And her little hands were chilled.
When on that day the Master came,
And from among His flowers
He came to gather lilies
The day He gathered ours."

—Sadly missed by Mother and Father and Aunt Pearl.

30 Perish As Bolt Strikes Drill Boat

Dynamite Explodes, Ship Is Demolished, Only 12 Are Saved

Of the Night Watch Sleeping Below, on the J. B. King, Working Off Brockville, All But One Are Believed to Have Perished—Only One Body Found.

U. S. COASTGUARD SHIP RUSHES TO SCENE OF TRAGEDY PICKING DAZED SURVIVORS FROM BITS OF WRECKAGE

Flash of Lightning in Sudden Storm Connects Current as Boat Stands Over Drill Holes Plugged With Dynamite—Terrific Blast Seen and Heard For Miles.

By J. F. Sanderson, Canadian Press Staff Writer.

BROCKVILLE, June 27. — Thirty men perished late yesterday when a bolt of lightning discharged dynamite waiting detonation and utterly wrecked their vessel, the drill boat J. B. King.

Of the crew of 42 aboard, only 12 escaped. Of the night watch sleeping below all but one, it is believed, perished. Only one body has been recovered.

The first flash of lightning of a sudden thunderstorm caused the disaster. An hour sooner and there would have been no tragedy. The dynamite had only been placed in position below the 12 drill holes of the vessel. A few minutes later and the vessel would have backed away to a safe distance to discharge the heavy charges. The electric wires were placed in position. The thunderbolt provided the fatal current.

The flash from the sky was followed by a deafening report heard for miles. People on shore saw a sheet of flame. Fragments were hurled high in the air. The drill boat, the largest of its kind in Canada, vanished completely.

Boat Blown to Atoms.

Literally the boat was blown to atoms. The men were caught like rats. Those who were not killed instantly by the force of the explosion were blown out into the St. Lawrence in such a dazed condition that they sank before help could reach them.

The J. B. King was owned by J. P. Porter and Son, St. Catharines, Ont. It was working on a Federal government contract blasting out the ship channel off this river port. Lying off Cockburn Island, on the eastern fringe of the Thousand Island group the boat was engaged in drilling a shoal late yesterday afternoon.

Heroic rescue work was carried out by the United States Coastguard Cutter 211 in command of Captain G. B. Lok of Olcott, N.Y., and carrying M. R. Rasmussen, chief inspector of the Buffalo district. This boat was proceeding east along the shipping channel about half a mile west of Cockburn Island when the J. B. King was struck. Full steam ahead was ordered and she plowed her way through the debris strewn water.

Two or three tenders belonging to the drill boat also rushed to the scene but between them only 12 survivors were rescued. A few men hanging to drift wood, scattered debris, tangled and twisted spars, that was all that remained of $1000,000 drill boat and her crew of 42 men.

Gloom Cast Over City.

The catastrophe, one of the worst in the recent history of Canadian inland shipping, cast a pall of gloom over this city. One body had been recovered at midnight and practically all hope for the missing men had gone.

But hope springs eternal. Groups of relatives, sad-eyed and weary, trooped about the hospitals, gathered at the docks and communicated constantly with the local office of the Porter firm. To each query the answer was always the same "We have no further word."

CONVENTION OF TYPOGRAPHICAL UNIONS OPENED

Mayor Denne Officially Welcomes Delegates to Peterborough.

REPORTS ARE HEARD.

Trip Over Lift Locks and Motor Tour of City is Made.

The nineteenth annual convention of the Ontario and Quebec Conference of Typographical Unions opened its two-day sessions in the Paragon Tea Rooms here this morning, with a full representation of the larger cities of the two provinces.

The delegates were officially welcomed to Peterborough by Mayor Denne, E. A. Peck, M. P., R. M. Glover, managing-director of The Examiner, and M. J. Swanston, president of the local union. In a few words Mayor Denne gave a brief survey of the city's industrial, educational and recreational advantages and promised the city's every assistance to the convention.

Emphasizing the importance of the printer's work, Mr. Peck told the delegates that without printers all business would be paralyzed and the forward movement of industry and education would be halted.

Fine Type of Men

Speaking as an employer, Mr. Glover congratulated the Typographical Unions on the fine type of men they now have in their unions and in the

SUDBURY FLOOD VICTIMS BEING SAVED IN BOATS

Merchants Abandon Stores, Residents Flee as Waters Rise.

SIX BRIDGES SWEPT AWAY.

Worst Downpour in City's History—Expect Loss Over $100,000.

SUDBURY, Ont., June 27.—(CP)—Thousands of dollars damage was done here last night by floods which followed the torrential rains of yesterday. It is impossible to make any estimate yet of the actual property loss, but it will certainly be in excess of $1,000,000. According to the City Water and Light Department, flood water rose two feet higher than it has ever been in the history of the town. Police were called on at 2 o'clock this morning to rescue residents in the Mountain Street section of the city when water threatened to carry away many of the frame houses tenanted by miners of the Frood Mine.

6 Bridges Out

At least six bridges have been carried away in the city, and it is possible that others have succumbed, but the majority of them are covered with a couple feet of water, and no attempt is being made to use them for fear the flooring has been carried away. The C. P. R. trestle at Queen Street has proven a boom for catching runaway garages, three having stuck there when carried away from their moorings. Other garages and outhouses that have struck on shallow areas dot the creeks and flooded areas.

Memorial Park, which has been landscaped at considerable expense this spring is under two feet of water. All flower beds and newly planted areas have been washed out. The bank of the creek which had been riprapped with rock through the park is slowly being eaten away.

Residents on Drinkwater Street are working frantically to save the foundations of their houses. Twenty-five feet along the bank of Junction Creek has caved in, leaving less than five feet separating the floods from foundations of the houses. The timbering along the side of the creek there was washed away and a force of men are now attempting to retimber the banks to keep back the approaching waters.

Store Stock Damaged

A large portion of Elgin Street is under six feet of water and the damage to stock in stores is very severe. Michaud's Pharmacy on Durham Street estimates that the loss to stock is at least $12,000. At 3:30 this morning water was over the top of showcases and all drugs stored in the basement were ruined. Water rose over the tops of the pool tables in the Mackey building pool room and it is feared the tables are all ruined.

Doctors Levesque and Tanguay were forced to call on the aid of police with boats to rescue them from their offices. The current pouring down Elgin Street was so strong ropes had

PARTY LEADERS UNITE TO SOLVE INDIAN QUESTION

Premier MacDonald Calls Meeting of Three Great Party Leaders.

CONFERENCE IN FALL.

Simon Commission Unanimous Report Given as Example of Party Unity.

LONDON, Eng., June 27.—(C.P.) — An effort to have Britain as a whole, rather than the governing party, face the Indian problem in the approaching round table conference here in October was seen to-day in a meeting of all party leaders with the Prime Minister last evening.

Premier MacDonald, Rt. Hon. Wedgwood Benn, Secretary of State for India, Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader and former Premier; Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, Liberal leader and former Premier, Sir Austin Chamberlain, and the Earl of Reading, a former Viceroy of India, attended the meeting which was held in the Prime Minister's room in the House of Commons.

There was no official statement of the proceedings which were understood to be concerned principally with preliminary arangements for the Indian conference, the Government being anxious to insure that the British attitude would be based on national non-party lines.

Premier MacDonald was said to have urged that all parties give the Government unanimous support in the negotiations. He buttressed this by re-calling unanimity of the report of the Simon Commission, whose members were drawn from all parties.

BOATS WRECKED BY EXPLOSIONS

Clearing of Shoals From Brockville Narrows Alarms Residents.

MONUMENTS DISTURBED.

BROCKVILLE, Ont — For some weeks prior to yesterday's fatal blast when the drill boat J. B. King was totally destroyed with the loss of 30 lives, residents of Brockville and district have been alarmed by the force of the explosions as the various shoals of the river were removed by the drill boat. Just yesterday morning, two large frame boat houses situated at Fernbank, near the scene of the fatality, were completely wrecked from the effects of blasting carried out at Needles Bay, in the Brockville Narrows.

Finest in District.

The boat houses were owned by the estate of the late Mrs. Daniel Stewart of Indianapolis, Ind., and Fred Carling, Ottawa. Both were considered among the finest buildings at the summer resort of Fernbank and were practically flattened through the concussion. They were located 150 yards from the scene of the blasting early yesterday.

Last week, too, the caretaker at a cemetery situated a quarter mile from the river bank, noticed that a statue on top of the Oddfellows' monument had been turned almost completely around. He attributed this, too, to the blasting operations.

For months mariners have been warned to keep a close watch when in this vicinity for rock which had been shifted from its normal location into the channel by explosives.

SUDDEN BLAST GAVE CREW NO CHANCE AT ALL

FELT NO EXPLOSION.

Rescued Man Claims Ship Just Ready to Move Away From Charges.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., June 27 (By Jack Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent). — A dramatic story of his fight for life below the swirling waters of the St. Lawrence River, amid the debris of the explosion wrecked drill boat J. B. King yesterday was told by William McNeill, of Craigmore, Nova Scotia, driller on the vessel, in an exclusive interview this morning. McNeill was in his cot at the St. Vincent De Paul Hospital, recovering from shock and injuries.

Found Himself in River.

"I started out on deck from below," he said. "It was raining and I stopped to put on my slicker. Four men, who I have since learned are believed dead, were standing nearby. We laughed and joked. Suddenly, I found myself trying to swim to the surface of the river. I have never been able to swim, but I seemed to be fighting and splashing, although I know now that I was far down. I remember looking up towards the top of the river, and struggling to shove aside planks and wreckage from the King. I pulled myself along somehow, searching for a place to get through the wreckage. After what seemed hours, I saw the light shine through a small hole in the planks. Somehow I reached it, and came out in the air. I grabbed a large timber and hung on. The cutter (C. G. 21.1, United States Government) picked me up fully three-quarters of a mile from the explosion. I don't know whether I drifted that far or whether the impact threw me a long way. I didn't hear the explosion at all. I remember I had stepped out and was standing by the rail, and then the next thing I was fighting, fighting to get to the air. The four fellows with whom I had been talking are gone. It is terrible.

"I wish you could let my parents at Craigmore, Nova Scotia, know that everything is all right. They must be worrying. I am so glad that my brother, R. A. McNeill, foreman on the boat, is getting along all right.

"My back and legs are very sore, and my arms are cut quite a bit, but I'm lucky when I think of those other poor fellows."

According to McNeill, preparations to "shoot" the charges of dynamites in the already loaded drill holes were almost complete.

3 Tons Dynamite in Holes.

"We had perhaps three tons of dynamite in the holes, and not more than a case on board. I am not just sure about the amounts, but it would be approximately that much. We had drilled forty-five or fifty holes, and

FOUR CHILDREN ARE DROWNED WHEN COLONISTS CAR AND DAY COACHES PLUNGE INTO VERMILLION RIVER

Six Hoboes Are Found Dead in a Box Car Following Wreck of a Freight Train in a Washout 16 Miles East of Capreol—Traffic is Completely Tied Up.

Toronto, June 27. C.P. — Floods within an area of twenty miles in the district of Sudbury and Capreol took a death toll of eleven lives in three train wrecks on the Canadian National Railways last night, according to an official statement issued at noon to-day. Four children were drowned when the colonist day coaches, engine, tender and baggage car of train No. 4 bound from Winnipeg to Toronto, were partly submerged in the Vermillion River, when seven of the train's nine cars were derailed.

The engineer of freight train No. 404, from North Bay, was fatally injured when the train ran into a washout 16 miles east of Capreol, and the bodies of six trespassers, presumably riding on the freight train, were found near the scene of the accident.

Train No. 3, from Toronto to Winnipeg also was derailed near Capreol, but nobody was injured.

Twenty-one persons suffered from injury or shock in the derailment of Train No. 4, while the engineer of Freight Train No. 401 also was injured.

The Dead Are.

Helen Nedderburn, aged 3, travelling with her mother, Mrs. M. A. Nedderburn, who was injured. They were travelling from Saskatoon to Toronto.

Gisley Brussiere, aged 7 months, child of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Brussiere, who are suffering from shock. They were travelling from Essas to Sturgeon Falls, Ont.

Lenore Gilbert, aged 7 years, and Arthur Gilbert, aged 4 years, children of Mr. and Mrs. P. T. Gilbert, Fairmount, Sask., who apparently were uninjured.

The bodies of the six trespassers have not been identified.

The Injured Are.

Persons on Train No. 4 slightly injured or suffering from shock are:

George B. Brussiere and wife, Essas to Sturgeon Falls.

Mrs. W. Bennett, Calgary, Alta., to Toronto.

E. D. Wilkins, Poleyet to Sudbury.

Engineer J. McDonald was pinned underneath the wreckage of the locomotive of Train No. 401 and seriously injured.

The cause of the derailment of train No. 4 according to an official statement issued by W. A. Kingland, general manager, central region Canadian National Railways, has not yet been definitely determined, but it is thought to have been due to the high water conditions which prevailed last night in the district surrounding Capreol. The derailment occurred at 10.30 p.m. four miles

GANGLAND AID IS SOUGHT TO CLEAR LINGLE MYSTERY

State's Attorney Wishes to Know Who Made Loans to Reporter.

POLICE CASHED CHEQUE.

Raid on Gambling Club Embarrassed Lingle Newspaper Learns.

CHICAGO, Ills., June 27 (C.P.).—The law looked to-day to the lawless for help in solving Jake Lingle's murder.

Into the inquiry of the Tribune reporter's murder had come information of large loans made to Lingle by gambling house keepers. The State's Attorney wants to know who made the loans and why.

The borrowing of Lingle, the investigators said, also included sums from Major Carlos Ames, President of the City Civil Service Commission and Republican nominee for Sheriff; Alderman Bert Cronson, nephew of Corporation Counsel Samuel Ettelson, and from Ettelson himself. There was also the matter of a cancelled cheque for $500 written by Lingle and cashed by Police Captain Dan Gilbert, in charge of the central police detail.

What the Newspaper Found Out.

The Herald and Examiner said today that authorities had learned that:

"Three days before Lingle was killed, police of the State's Attorney's office raided and closed the Baltimore Athletic Club, a gambling resort that State's Attorney Swanson had personally raided a year ago. The next day Lingle called upon an official of the State's Attorney's office and complained that the raid had embarrassed him "because I told them to go ahead and run."

U.S. IMMIGRATION TANGLE CLEARED

Woman Sick in Bed After Long Ordeal of Red Tape Following Move.

FOUR YEAR FIGHT.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 27.—Ken (By Ken Clark, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)—Mrs. Elizabeth Schneider is in bed, but she and the little Schneiders who were born in Saskatchewan have emerged from the bundle of immigration red tape and may now live in peace on their farm in Collingwood, Maryland.

Mrs. Schneider was exhausted by the trip the family made to Niagara Falls, Ontario, to get visas to enter the United States. The odd part of the story is that Mrs. Schneider was born in Maryland. She married Joseph Schneider, who in the first place was a German citizen, but through long residence in Canada had become a Canadian citizen. She married him while he was a German living in the United States. Three children were born here. If a child is born on United States' soil he cannot be kept out of this country. The family moved to Saskatchewan and six more children were born Canadians. Then the whole clan without bothering about visas moved to Maryland. For four years they have fought the necessity of returning to Canada to obtain proper papers but the immigration authorities were firm.

We do not feel that he is far from us."

This was part of an address delivered in tribute to the late Joseph John, who was a member and a past-president of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club by Rev. J. D. Paterson at the regular club luncheon in the Empress Hotel to-day. The luncheon was dedicated to the memory of the departed member.

The Premier stated a system of recommendation by teachers, based on the entire year's work, is being considered by a special committee, with his approval, and they not only have reported in favor of such a scheme for the pupils obtaining 66 per cent. during examinations of the school year, but their report is receiving favorable consideration by the principals of the schools concerned.

Liberals Name Madoc Engineer

F. AYLSWORTH IS NOMINATED IN THE EAST RIDING

Madoc Engineer Accepts Liberal Nomination in Peterborough-Hastings Riding.

FIVE PROPOSED.

Enthusiastic Addresses Are Delivered By Several of the Speakers.

(By A Staff Reporter)

MARMORA, June 27.—The Liberals of Hastings-Peterborough yesterday nominated Fraser Aylsworth, civil engineer of Madoc, as their candidate against Dr. A. T. Embury, the Bancroft doctor, whom the Conservatives on Wednesday again sent into the fray as their standard bearer.

The convention, which was held here in the same hall where the Tories had perspired in the midsummer heat of the previous day, undoubtedly presented a comparative deficiency in numbers, but it lacked nothing in enthusiasm. The Conservatives had filled the hall; yesterday it was only two-thirds full, but an affecting factor was the heavy rain that began around the dinner hour and continued until evening. With bright, favorable weather it is probable that there would not have been the same disparity in attendance at the successive conventions.

Among those on the platform were Fraser Aylsworth, Dr. Donald Munro, Warsaw; Warden James Hawthorne of Warsaw; Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, Warden of Hastings county; W. A. Richardson, Norwood; W. N. Gilroy, Coe Hill; F. A. Bapty, Deloro; John Darling of Dummer township; Duncan Brown of Apsley; Mrs. Vanderwater and Miss Floretta Pritchard of Toronto.

Mr. Bapty, an executive of the Deloro Smelting Company in proposing Mr. Aylsworth said: "Let this riding send a man to Ottawa who will sit in the sunlight of the Mackenzie King government and not in the cold shades of the Opposition where Dr. Embury has sat."

Col. Vanderwater

Col. Vanderwater said he had known Mr. Aylsworth for many years and had always found him a staunch Liberal. The government led by Mackenzie King had given the people of Canada relief from taxation in such a way that every man, woman and child had felt the effect of this financial improvement. Col. Vanderwater also spoke of the Old Age Pensions Act, saying that no province should have imposed 20 per cent. of its part of the cost upon the people of that province as had been done in Ontario.

Warden Hawthorne

Warden Hawthorne stated that the King government deserved the support of the rural section of Canada. "As far back as I can remember the Liberal administrations have always been the friend of the farmers. In 1911 under Sir Wilfrid Laurier the Liberal party gave the farmers a great chance to increase trade, but the people were stampeded by the Conservative party, and that opportunity was lost. As for Mr. Bennett he says a lot of things, but when you try to get down to facts it is hard to tell where he stands. Personally, I don't see how he can work out any of the things he is promising. In the Peterborough part of the riding we will do our best to elect Mr. Aylsworth and have a representative on the government side of the House."

Dr. Munroe

Dr. Munroe said in part: "I think there was never a time in our country when an appeal was made to the people on lines of real patriotism than in the present election and the questions that are before them. To-day we want to trade more with Great Britain and to help our own country. The Liberal party is appealing to the electors to establish Canada in closer relations of trade with the Mother Country than ever before. Don't you feel proud to support the party that offers us that opportunity? Canada has been doing better than any other country in the world except the United States. No government had anything to do with the conditions of the last six months, with the collapse of the stock market and the state of affairs in the wheat market. Any party that tries to make capital out of those conditions is simply not playing the game."

Nomination Proceedings

In the unavoidable absence of the secretary of the Association Frank

WOMAN SETS OUT TO SAVE HUSBAND AFTER EXPLOSION

Unknown Man Aids Foreman's Wife to Launch Boat in Heavy Waves.

MEETS RESCUE CRAFT.

Five McNeil Children Tell Vivid Tale of Seeing Ship Blow Up.

BROCKVILLE, June 27. (C.P.)—There was both sorrow and joy in a little brown thatched dwelling on a back street of this city to-day. There was joy that the father of a family of five was alive, but there was deep sorrow for the 30 men who went down to their death when lightning struck the drill boat J. B. King in the shipping channel off here yesterday.

The father, R. A. McNeill, was foreman on the boat and occupied what normally would be the position of captain. He was in a delirious condition last night and kept shouting out irrational details of the catastrophe. Doctors were in constant attendance, and late to-day his condition was reported much improved. He is a native of St. Catharines.

The five children, three boys and two girls, were playing about the house when the writer called. They had a most expressive story to relate, for all five of them, together with their mother, were eye-witnesses of the catastrophe. Not only that, but the mother, when the lightning bolt struck the ship, put off from shore in a rickety rowboat and searched among the debris for her husband.

The McNeill family, that is the mother and children, went for a picnic yesterday afternoon at McDonald's Point, right opposite Cockburn island, where the drill boat was anchored blasting out the shipping channel.

Suddenly a storm came up and they took refuge on the verandah of a nearby summer cottage. A terrific blast of lightning, attended by a shattering echo, denoting that

MODEL TOWNSITE BEING PLANNED

Private Syndicate to Spend $2,800,000 Four Miles East of Prescott.

800 ACRES PURCHASED.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 27.—(CP)—Tributary to the port developments and erection of grain elevators at Prescott, a model townsite which will eventually represent an investment of at least $2,800,000 is being planned on 800 acres of land purchased by a private syndicate four miles east of Prescott.

An Ottawa firm of architects are reported to have been given the task of supervising all plans for structures to be erected within the townsite and they are already drawing plans for a large garage.

Already 200 acres of the 800 acquired have been sub-divided into building lots with streets marked out and in some places already cut through. It is estimated that at least 100 houses will be put up on the townsite in due course, along with commercial buildings, churches and other structures common to a self-contained community.

The new townsite has already been given the name of Port Prescott.

NEW YORK MOB TENDERS FLIERS WARM WELCOME

Police and Notables Swept Aside as Southern Cross Lands.

CREW WANT SLEEP.

Triumphant Finish to 3,000 Mile Flight From Irish Shores.

NEW YORK, June 27. (C.P.) — Conqueror of Pacific and Atlantic, and just 2,500 miles from a complete circumnavigation of the globe Major Kingsford-Smith and the crew of the monoplane Southern Cross to-day were honored guests of the City of New York.

At dusk last night, 6.30 Standard time, the Australian flyer set his big black monoplane down at Roosevelt Field, completing a 3,000 mile flight from Port Marnock, Ireland—an epic journey interrupted only by a 24 hour stop for fuel at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland.

Police Get Control.

Finally the three hundred county police won their way through to the plane and escorted the flyers to field headquarters office, where they were photographed by still, motion and sound news men, and interviewed between bursts of cheering, by the press.

An hour after they had landed the party was in open automobiles bound for New York City, a bath, a meal and sleep.

Crowds, attracted by the screaming sirens of the motorcycle escort, lined the streets of the many Long Island towns and cheered as the motor cavalcade swept past at 60 miles an hour.

Another enthusiastic crowd waited in the lobby and on the steps of the Hotel Roosevelt, driven inside by a light drizzle which turned into a downpour five minutes after the flyers had arrived.

Kingsford-Smith immediately put through a long distance call for his fiancee in Australia.

Plan Huge Parade

A parade up to the harbor to pier and then up Broadway to the City Hall had been planned for the flyers to-day, but Kingsford-Smith asked that a less ambitious programme be adopted.

The plans then were changed for a police escorted ride to the City Hall from their hotel, a welcome from Mayor Walker and a luncheon at the Advertising Club. The programme at the City Hall is to be broadcast.

At least ten thousand persons waited through the hot afternoon at Roosevelt Field for the arrival of the 'Southern Cross,' and when it appeared just at sunset, threw restrain aside and risked limbs and clothes in a mad dash for the plane and the flyers.

Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador who had flown from Washington to greet his co-patriots; Grover Whalen, high hat and all; Herbert Brookes, Commissioner-General for Australia in the United States and the other dignitaries in the welcoming party were swept aside in the human sea.

SUDBURY FLOODS TIE UP TRAFFIC EVERY DIRECTION

Four Trains Stalled as Unprecedented Rains Wash Out Tracks.

HIGHWAYS UNDER WATER.

Hundreds of Men Patrol C.P.R. Division to Prevent Disasters.

SUDBURY, Ont., June 27. —(Canadian Press). — Following fourteen hours of incessant rain, Sudbury and district is in the grip of unprecedented flood conditions which have reached alarming proportions. Swollen creeks and rivers, the result of heavy rains for the past two weeks, are now raging torrents, tieing up traffic on railways and highways in every direction. The Canadian Pacific Imperial Limited train leaving Sudbury last night at seven o'clock, proceeded cautiously owing to a washout and landslide near Warren.

Relief Train Sent Out.

The local C. P. R. train from North Bay to Sudbury is held up by the same washout. A relief train having been despatched to transfer the passengers and bring them to Sudbury. The crack TransCanada train and the Vancouver Express are stalled a mile and a quarter west of Sudbury, owing to a washout at that point. Hundreds of men have been patrolling the entire Sudbury division of the C. P. R. during the last 24 hours for washouts and landslides, as a safety measure.

The C.P.R. Imperial Limited was despatched to Montreal via Capreol Division of the Canadian National to North Bay, leaving Sudbury five hours late.

Washouts and landslides are reported at half a dozen points on the Sudbury North Bay highway, a huge bank of clay having completely swamped the road for several hundred yards west of Markstay, while the same road is under three to four feet of water for the best part of a mile east of Markstay. It is feared many motorists are marooned.

Several reached Markstay only after the most thrilling experiences.

STRATFORD, Ont., June 27 (C.P.)—An auto accident on Monday night nine miles south of St. Mary's has claimed two lives. Mrs. Walter Ohswikin, resident of the Brantford Indian Reserve, died in general hospital here last night, and her year-old son died in St. Mary's this morning.

16 YEAR OLD BOY STRUCK BY TRAIN

GOING FOR THE COWS.

PORT HOPE, June 27.—Instantly killed when struck by a Canadian National passenger train at a subway one mile east of Port Hope, Morley Moore, aged 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Moore of Hope Township, was found dead by a search party instituted when his prolonged absence caused uneasiness yesterday afternoon.

The boy had been instructed to bring the cows home from pasture half a mile from the house, and it is thought that in the heavy fog which prevailed yesterday afternoon, he had failed to notice the westbound train when he stepped across the tracks after the passing of an eastbound freight. A post-mortem was conducted here last night, and an inquest will be held. The victim's parents, one sister and four brothers survive him.

SCHOOL TERM ENDS TO-DAY

Boredom of Study and Discipline Over Until Next September.

SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

To-day just another day to most adults but to the school population of the city it was the long-awaited day—a day of release, a day of celebration.

Close to four thousand healthy, happy public and separate school children in this city were freed from the boredom of study and discipline of school life at noon. Out of the ten schools they surged in a joyous stampede, shouting like young Comanches, all enthusiastic over the long weeks of joyous holidays that stretch far before them.

Great days lie just ahead for Young Peterborough. School books were cast aside to be carefully packed away by thoughtful mothers. The youngsters were jubilant and carefree.

Memories of examinations were all forgotten this morning in the hurried leave-taking from the confines of school. But a few weeks hence, echoes of the success or failure of their written efforts will come to haunt them. Many a youngster will stop to wonder nervously, "Did I, or didn't I." Then the unhappy doubts will be chased by a swim to return at some other quiet moment.

Successful Year

It is estimated that 98 percent of Peterborough's school children are successful at examinations, so the number who may have cause to mourn when the results are out will be comparatively small. The youngsters can take it with a philosophical trend of mind. It's the dads and mothers who are ambitious and cause the sorrow.

Meanwhile, Young Peterborough is on holiday, and the best days of the year are here.

Manufacturers of children's shoes in France are planning to combine.

A REPRESENTATIVE of a leading Canadian manufacturer called at one of our offices and made use of our customers' room for canvassing the surrounding territory by telephone. He placed 22 calls at a cost of $8.25 and sold 171½ carloads of merchandise, amounting to approximately $22,200.

This is the modern way of covering a territory quickly, frequently and at low cost. The salesman goes to certain key towns and gets in contact with customers and prospects in surrounding towns by telephone, selling goods, answering questions, adjusting complaints, quoting prices and specifications, developing new business. At longer intervals he covers the whole territory in person.

Many companies are using this plan to maintain close customer contact, and offset competition.

We have prepared a booklet containing maps of these key-town zones in Ontario and Quebec. Copies are available at any of our offices.

Every Bell Telephone is a Long Distance Station and the service to points near and far is better and quicker than ever before.

HONOR IS PAID TO NEW PRIEST

Rev. Father Scully Sang His First Mass in St. Luke's Church, Downeyville.

BANQUET AFTERWARDS

DOWNEYILLE, June 27.—Surrounded by all the splendor and dignity of rite with which the Roman Catholic church invests her functions, Rev. Father Scully sang his first solemn high mass in St. Luke's church at 10.30 a.m. Sunday. The church was crowded with members of the congregation and with relatives and friends from far and near.

Father Scully was assisted at the holy sacrifice by Rev. Father McAuley, of Ennismore, acting as deacon; Rev. Father Guiry, Port Hope, as sub-deacon; Clemet Scully and Ray Morrissey as acolytes; Parnell Scully as censer-bearer; Claude Scully and Donald Lucas as torch bearers and Mr. John Killen, Lindsay, as master of ceremonies; Rev. Father Cloran, C.S.S.R., and Rev. Father Galvin were also present in the sanctuary. Clemett, Parnell and Claude Scully are brothers of Father Scully.

Rev. Father Galvin, parish priest, delivered the sermon for the occasion, taking as his text: "Render, therefore, honor to whom honor is due" (Romans 13:7). Speaking with eloquence, sincerity and kindly force, characteristics of his utterances, the reverend speaker paid his tribute of heart-felt esteemed to the newly-ordained, whom he has known since a mere child and whose piety and manliness of character he always noticed. He congratulated the parents, brothers and sisters and indeed the parishioners, one and all, as an event of such importance was attended by blessings for all.

"I have never seen so much confidence among Liberals" declared Mr Aylsworth in opening the proceedings, "as in this election. The prospects of success are very bright and I hope you will all be prepared to go to work and support your candidate if you nominate one."

F. A. Bapty in proposing Mr. Aylsworth for nomination, referred to him as a great worker and an energetic Liberal, who if elected to represent the constituency at Ottawa could be relied upon to make a splendid representative and if nominated a man who would put up a good fight.

Other nominees were W. N. Gilroy of Coe Hill, F. A. Bapty of Deloro, John Marshall of Toronto and Dr. Donald Munroe of Warsaw.

Mr. Aylsworth was the unanimous choice of the convention.

Each of the nominees was given an opportunity of addressing the convention. Mr. Gilroy in withdrawing said he would get behind whosoever was nominated as candidate in the campaign if he would come out fair and square and stand behind the Dunning budget.

Speaking on behalf of John Marshall who was unavoidably absent, Dr. Munroe said, "John Marshall told me he would stand if the majority of the people would stand behind him."

Mr. Bapty, the nominee's proposer, in withdrawing stated that the Liberal policy is one of the most business-like ever presented to the country. Mackenzie King he considered to be one of the greatest of Canada's statesmen. "We have had no previous Government to compare with the present" he said, adding that during their term off office the Government has had seven surpluses.

Speaking of the country's trade depression as a temporary state of affairs, he thought that there are too many opportunities ahead to keep the country in that state for long.

"Mr. Bennett is making too much of this matter" the speaker contended, "and while he admitted that conditions are bad at present, he asked his listeners not to forget the fact that conditions are considerably better now than they were in 1921 when Mackenzie King took office. The ratio of unemployed in Canada is only 8 per cent. as against Great Britain's 14 per cent. The United States, which is always set forth as an example of a country with high tariff, has a ratio of 21 per cent. Unemployment conditions are world-wide and in Canada as elsewhere are due to conditions over which the Government has no control.

Increasing Trade

To get the trade we are going to lose in the United States by the counter-availing duties, the Liberal Government has adopted measures of British Preference, a measure which also came in for considerable criticism from the Hon. Mr. Bennett. The speaker called to mind the fact that the reduction of the tariff on fruit and vegetables was a decided asset in fostering British trade, despite arguments to the contrary by the opposition. He pointed out that many tropical fruits which can be obtained from the States are now being shipped here from the West Indies.

He considered that Great Britain will be more ready to concede to Canada under a Liberal policy than under Bennett's policy of 'blasting his way to foreign trade'.

"You will hear lots of questions discussed during this campaign" said Mr. Bapty in conclusion, "but many of them do not amount to a hill of beans. The greatest of them all is the question of Imperial trade while the main issue is to decide who is to represent the people at the Imperial Conference."

Mr. Aylsworth

Criticising certain remarks which have been made during the course of the campaign, about the Dunning budget, Mr. Aylsworth said, "They do not tell you that three Conservatives voted for the budget and that since the dissolution of Parliament several members have withdrawn from the Conservative ranks.

Revealing his own policy, the nominee said, "sometimes I vote Liberal, sometimes 'grit' and sometimes reform."

"Who is talking 'hard times'" asked the speaker, "we have 100 per cent. better times here than in the States or Great Britain."

Nelson Parliament

"The Liberal party stands to-day where it has always stood" said Nelson Parliament. "We stand for the maintenance of the British connection and also for a greater Canadianism.

Which of the two leaders has the greater conception of the future of Canada—Mr. Bennett who declares that he doesn't want the British preference unless he makes a bargain for it; Mr. Bennett the man who doesn't want Canada to send representatives to the great nations of the world as the Liberal government has done to represent our interests and especially to assist in promoting and facilitating trade relations, or Mackenzie King who has shown his faith in Canada and Canadian citizenship and the enlargement of our relations with the Mother Country.

"What would you think of Mackenzie King if he had kept the government in session, as Mr. Bennett had urged, to wait and see what the United States was going to do about tariffs? Mr. Bennett seems to have a greater desire for the success of the Conervative party than of the Dominion of Canada. That has been proved at Cobourg, and everywhere he has spoken.

Mr. Bennett tells the country that he holds to the same policy as that Sir John A. Macdonald held in 1879. Do you thing that old John A. would hold the same views to-day that he held fifty years ago? (Voices, No, No). The Conservatives say we have stolen their tariff clothes. The fact is that their old tarif clothes are worn out, and no longer suitable for the needs of this young country.

Tariff Development

The first tariff was written in 1878 by an American. In 1879 the late Mr. Fielding went about the country to see what was needed. That was the starting point of the British preference. Trade treaties were made when Laurier was in power. But from 1883 to 1896 under the national policy, which Mr. Bennett and the Conservative party still cling to, we got deeply into debt and people left here in thousands."

Mr. Parliament traced the trade history of Canada during recent years, pointing out that the growth of the country depends upon the markets Canada finds for her products.

Speaking of the Conservative emphasis upon the importance of the home market, Mr. Parliament said "How would we ever get rich if we simply traded coats with one another? No; we've got to sell our surplus products of all kinds in the markets of the world."

"Mackenzie King and the late James Robb, whose budgets will be a monument to his memory, saw the trend of the United States tariff changes two years ago" Mr. Parliament continued. "They set to work to find out the effect of those expected changes, and how they could be met, but in the midst of their work Mr. Robb died.

The conferences continued, and Hon. Mr. Dunning said to the Tariff Board: 'I want you to look into the industries of the country and tell me how they will be effected by changes in the tariff and what rearrangements can we make.'

The chairman of the Tariff Board engaged three eminent engineers to investigate the conditions of the iron industry and see what could be done for it, without taking any toll from the people of Canada. After that he called in eleven executives of the industry who pooled their facts, and later met with the engineers at a public enquiry before the Tariff Board. And that is the way the Liberal government prepared the way for its budget features affecting the great iron industry.

Got Tariff Facts

We are not following the old way of having a manufacturer get to Ottawa and find the inner door of the Ministry of Finance closed, and have him asking around, "What are you going to do to help me?" The Minister of Finance gets the facts from the Tariff Board, and it is on these facts that the tariff is based, so that we know whether or not they will be an advantage to farmers and others as well as to manufacturers."

"Canada has been taking its rightful place among the nations of the world since the war" Mr. Parliament remarked. Mackenzie King and his Ministers, however, have not only a world outlook, but they have an inter-Empire outlook. The Liberal party says to the Motherland: "We know you are having great difficulties; we know the stringency you have passed through. We know the sacrifices you have made. We want to see if we can build up our trade with you greater than ever." That has always been a principle of the Liberal party. Doesn't it make you feel proud.

British Institutions

The very institutions we enjoy as a free Canadian people of the British race were bought in blood on British soil. The Liberal party has never faltered in maintaining those institutions. We did not falter in 1837 at the time of the Family Compact in this country when the Liberal party was formed in this country to establish here the principles that came from the Mother Country. And we will not falter now in this great opportunity. Can we take our full responsibility among the British peoples if we are to be led by a Canadian with such small views as those the Hon. R. B. Bennett proclaims?"

Mr. Parliament, in closing his address, said he hoped Hasting-Peterborough would send a man to Parliament to assist in carrying on the policies which the Liberal party was offering to Canada.

When a Gum-Dipped cord is immersed in an acid solution it remains intact because it is completely insulated with rubber on which the acid has no effect.

An ordinary cord immersed in the same solution is immediately eaten by the acid, showing that these ordinary cords are inferior to those in Firestone tires.

Gum-Dipped Cords Stand the Acid Test

Even though Firestone cords are of superior strength and elasticity before they are built into Firestone Tires, they go through the Gum-Dipping process for added strength and endurance.

Gum-Dipping—exclusive to Firestone Tires—saturates and insulates every fibre of every cord in the tire. This prevents the cords from chafing against each other and eliminates internal friction and heat—the greatest enemy to tire life.

Thus Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have double reasons for their toughness, ruggedness and unequalled mileage—by actual test they hold all world's records for mileage and endurance! Specify Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires on your car. See your nearest Firestone Dealer today.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, June 27. —Influenced by the advance in Chicago and Winnipeg wheat prices on the local cash market advanced two cents per bushel yesterday.

With the exception of cheese, which was reduced 1-4 cent per pound the dairy and produce market were dull and featureless.

Cheese receipts were 9,414 boxes; butter, 2,092 boxes, and eggs, 2,013 cases.

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, June 27. — The poor weather yesterday prevented receipts of fruit from becoming very heavy on the local market, and prices for strawberries and cherries were a little better than on Wednesday. Strawberries were selling at 15c to 20c a quart, and 12c and 15c a pint, though pints were not very plentiful. The spread in prices was, of course, for quality, but the demand was good, and dealers were able to get the prices stated for wood quality fruit. Sweet cherries were offered at 40c to $1.25 per six-quart basket, and sour cheeries ranged from 40c to 65c for six quarts. Gooseberries held firm at $1 to $1.25 per six quart basket, as the quality has been getting better.

Radishes and beets were 15c to 20c per dozen bunches; cumumbers $1.25 to $1.50 per 11-quart basket; cabbage sold at 50c to 75c a dozen; carrots were still at $3 per bag; cauliflower was offered at 75c to $1.50 per hamper; parsley 15c to 30c a dozen; green onions, 10c to 15c a dozen bunches; peas, 40c to 50c for six quarts, and 75c to $1 for 11 quarts.

For other prices see table on this page.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 27. — Active buying that was largely credited to sources Northwest brought about brisk upturns in wheat values yesterday. Renewal of drought reports from important sections of Alberta and Saskatchewan were a stimulating factor, and so, too, were reports of big sales of flour to Eastern baking concerns. Much talk was also current regarding efforts to have the Federal Farm Board extend stabilization operations to include this season's crop.

After a maximum rise of 4½c a bushel, wheat closed unsettled 2 1-2c to 3 1-2c higher than yesterday's finish. Corn opened 3-8c to 1c up; oats unchanged to 1-3c advance, and provisions showing 7c to 32c gain.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, June 27.—Livestock receipts received at the market yesterday were 6 cattle, 4 calves, 286 hogs, 63 sheep and lamb.

There were about 100 stale cattle in addition to the fresh receipts. Killers consisted mostly of cows and sold from 4 1-2 to 7 cents a pound. Closing prices were steady at Monday's decline of 50 cents a hundredweight. There were some springer cows and a few bulls in the carry over. Receipts for the week were 1,300 less than last week, and both killers and store cattle were a very slow trade. A few calves off the road brought the offering up to one dozen head. Prices closed steady for the week at 8 to 8¾ cents a pound for choice veals and downward to 5½ cents for common.

Lambs sold at 11½ cents a pound for choice or down $2 a cwt. for the week. Receipts for the week were 3,000 head heavier than those of the week previous. Cull lambs sold at a range of 6½ to 10 cents a pound. Sheep closed at 4 cents a pound for the best, with culls selling as low as 1 cent a pound. The cut in price of Buck lambs amounting to 2 cents a pound, goes into effect on Monday.

The hog market is unsettled, with packers bids at 10½ cents f.o.b. and 11½ cents w.o.c. for bacon.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Winnipeg, June 27. (C.P.) — Wheat prices revolted from serfdom under the bear operators yesterday, and marked up gains of 3c to 3¼c. The climb, aided by strength at Liverpool and bullish reports from Western Canada lifted two of the three futures from below the dollar mark. The overnight exports were light.

Pit trade was characterized as purely local. Cash business in wheat and coarse grains was small.

THE DRUNKEN DRIVER.

The problem of the drunken driver has apparently been effectively tackled in Quebec, for a bulletin issued by the Highways Department of that Province shows that the number of accidents due to intoxication in Quebec dropped from 505 in 1928 to 208 in 1929.

A decrease of 297 in one year is a record that indicates that the Quebec authorities have been displaying the proper vigor and severity in dealing with men who attempt to combine the two operations of drinking and driving.

"If there is one thing that must not be tolerated on the highways it is the drunken driver," says the Quebec department.

"The Minister of Highways," the bulletin goes on, "has decided to deal with these cases with the utmost vigor and to apply every sanction the law places at his disposal. In consequence he has given the necessary instructions to all traffic officers, and it is well understood that there will be no tolerance or leniency in the case of a drunken driver."

Quebec is right: with a menace of that kind half measures are of no avail, leniency is mistaken kindness.

Drunken drivers will have to go, and Quebec has seemingly found the way to do it.

AN EXAMINER WINNER.

Coincident with the holding here of the convention of the Typographical Unions of Ontario and Quebec is the announcement that a member of The Examiner newsroom staff, Harold F. Dormer, has had the distinction of winning the senior competition for newsroom apprentices, promoted by the conference.

Mr. Dormer, starting his fifth year as an apprentice on The Examiner staff, by his splendid success in this competition, open to the unions of the two Provinces, wins the handsome trophy donated by The Toronto Star; a gold watch and chain, the personal gift of J. E. Atkinson of that paper; a copy of "Modern Type Display," the gift of the Inland Printer, and a special prize presented by R. M. Glover, managing director of The Examiner.

His fine showing in this competition reflects the greatest credit upon his own ability and upon the training he has received in The Examiner plant, under the supervision of Walter Barringer, newsroom forman.

This is the first occasion upon which such a prize has been won by a Peterborough entrant, and when it is considered that it has been won in competition with other apprentices who have the advantage in some cases of technical school training as well as shop experience, Mr. Dormer's feat is all the more creditable.

UNIFORM TRAFFIC LAWS.

The demand of the Canadian Good Roads Association for uniformity of traffic laws throughout the various Provinces of the Dominion is a common-sense request that will have behind it the support of a very large share of popular opinion.

The present haphazard system with different speed limits in different sections of the country and with traffic laws varying as provincial boundaries are passed should be replaced by a code of traffic regulations that will be the same in every part of Canada.

Uniform traffic laws, as the Good Roads Association points out, would tend to reduce the number of motor accidents, to generally improve traffic conditions, and to promote a greater observance of law and order.

There is no reason why the Provinces should not get together and place the regulation of motor traffic on a business basis, nor why a scientifically planned and well considered code could not be evolved.

In this connection it is gratifying to learn that the Chief Constables' Association, which has been active in seeking for uniformity of traffic laws, has been notified by the Canadian Bar Association that progress is being made in that direction, and that by next year the desired results may be accomplished, surely a consummation devoutly to be wished.

Both the safety and the comfort of the public demand a betterment of the present system.

WE'RE GLAD TO SEE YOU.

The Examiner is delighted to say a word of welcome to the delegates who are here to-day attending the nineteenth annual convention of the Typographical Union of Ontario and Quebec.

It is a pleasure and a honor, we know, for local members of the Typographical Union to have their fellow craftsmen from the two Provinces as their guests on this, the first occasion on which it has been possible to extend local hospitality to the representatives of the union.

Citizens of Peterborough generally will share in this feeling, because, in the first place, they are hospitable folks who are always happy to say, "Glad to see you," to their visitors and, secondly, because their association with local members of the Typographical Union has thoroughly sold them on the idea that printers are a progressive, lively and successful class of craftsmen who make good citizens and play an important part in the community.

For The Examiner itself, we can only say that, in common with local members of the Typographical Union and the citizens generally, we are delighted to greet the delegates one and all and to hope that their visit here will be so enjoyable and their impressions of Peterborough so favorable that there will be another opportunity in the not too distant future of again welcoming them.

AN EMPIRE'S "PARISH CHURCH."

Within the hallowed walls of St. Paul's Cathedral yesterday, the King, the Queen, the Prince of Wales and other members of the Royal family attended a service of thanksgiving marking the reopening of the cathedral following restoration work that has been going on for five years. A vast congregation filled the grand old church, and an unusual feature of the occasion was that special space was reserved for the 200 men who have been engaged in the work of repair and alteration.

The exterior of St. Paul's has not been altered, and, to the casual observer, there is little change to be noted even in the interior. Such is the magnitude of this famous place of worship that the work of 200 men over a period of five years leaves little impress on its general appearance. There had been fear that deep excavations for new buildings in the neighborhood might endanger the foundations of the cathedral, and no doubt most of the work done has been of a protective and precautionary nature.

The British people have a knack of giving to their great institutions—and to their great men for that matter—pet names that become familiar to all. Thus, St. Paul's has been styled "the Empire's parish church"; a fitting title. Its roots strike deeply into British history. As long ago as the year 610, a church, also named St. Paul's, was built on the site of the present cathedral. This was ruined by fire in 1087, and then arose the precursor of the present edifice, which in 1139 also suffered from fire. After being restored, with increased magnificence, the disastrous London conflagration of 1666 again laid the structure in ruins. Shortly afterward, under the directing genius of Sir Christopher Wren, famous architect whose name is inseparably associated with St. Paul's, the erection of the present magnificent cathedral was begun. Within its ancient walls are interred the remains of many of Britain's famous men, soldiers, sailors, statesmen, including those of the great architect himself—"If you would see his monument, look about you."

This historic church, reopened, with added beauty and increased security, again takes its place as a centre of worship at the heart of the Empire, and it was fitting that their Majesties and the Prince of Wales should be present at an impressive service of thanksgiving for so notable an event. It may be that Macaulay's hypothetical "traveller from New Zealand" will not be disappointed in finding a broken arch of London Bridge, but there is little immediate prospect of his being able to "sketch the ruins of St. Paul's."—The Globe.

THE BUSINESS PROSPECTS.

The Bank of Montreal in its June statement on conditions in Canada states that it is improbable that the state of trade will undergo any marked change until the extent of the harvest is definitely known. Bountiful crops will infuse activity into many branches of business now somewhat sluggish, even though prices remain relatively low; especially is this true of transportation agencies whose traffics have suffered a serious relapse from short crops and retarded shipments. Brisk business conditions have not yet arrived. There is still an abnormal degree of unemployment, commodity prices slowly decline, buyers operate cautiously and less money is in circulation than last year. Exports are reduced by slow foreign markets and imports by quiet domestic demand, all of which adverse conditions react unfavorably upon manufacturing countries. The tourist traffic has, however, begun in considerable volume, and prospects appear excellent for the best season in this respect yet experienced.

Tariff changes will make an impression on Canadian trade, both external and domestic. The new duties in the United States affect that market for Canadian products as livestock, meats, milk, cream, hay, hides and leather. The aim of the recent tariff revision by the Dominion Government is to stimulate imports of Empire products, and the full effect of these important fiscal changes will not be ascertainable for some time yet.

Wheat has moved more freely since the opening of navigation, but not in quantity sufficient to relieve the congestion nor to ensure a moderate carry-over into the next year crop. Shipments of grain from Montreal to June 18th, were 22,128,000 bushels, being 13,830,000 bushels less than in the corresponding period last year. On June 6th the stock of wheat in store in Canada was 142,115,000 bushels, or 9,000,000 bushels more than at the same date a year ago. Bank clearings indicate the recession in trade from the high-water mark of 1929 to be continuing the country over, only two of twenty-eight reporting points showing an increase in clearings in May over the year before, but it is noteworthy that the comparison for the first two weeks of June is more favorable. The newsprint industry keeps on an even keel in point of production. Careful buying by wholesalers and retailers restricts manufacturing output generally, and this condition will not change while the downward trend of commodity prices continues. Ocean passenger traffic is of satisfactory volume, but cargoes are on the light side, inward and outward, and rates low. Tramp ships are not to be expected in number until wheat exports become active; when that occurs coal imports from Great Britain promise to be large. Despite the quiet state of trade, the output of electrical energy steadily increases, and some large projects are in hand for developments of new water powers. In May, 170,750 tons of British coal were landed at the port of Montreal, being more than double the importation last year. Generally speaking, a mark-time period is likely to be experienced during the summer months.

External trade returns for May are again unfavorable, both imports and exports showing substantial decline from the corresponding month last year, the former decreasing $23,846,000 and the latter $30,212,000. Lower prices of principal commodities account for some of the decrease. Taking the two elapsed months of the current fiscal year, the decline in domestic exports has been $45,200,000 and in imports $50,000,000 or 13.6 per cent. from last year in total trade.

Car loadings and traffic earnings of Canadian railways continue to present unfavorable comparison with last year. Of all grouped commodities, coke and pulpwood alone show an increase. The decrease in grain loadings has now reached 70,479 cars, although since May 3 the grain movement has been on a parity with last year; ore loadings have run below last year for several recent weeks, and lumber loadings have not increased. The heaviest traffic is made up of merchandise and miscellaneous, and in these classes the decline has not been large relatively; in the aggregate, in the last five weeks the movement has been slightly better than in the same period of 1928.—The Financial Post.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Southern Cross was lost in the fog, and some of the politicians down that way are likely to experience the same fate.

Mr. Baldwin does well to make it plain that there is a joint responsibility in managing the affairs of the Empire—a point that Dominion statesmen seem to overlook.

Lord Derby says that the chief topic of conversation in the United States is "prohibition and how best to avoid it."

If there is not a great deal of excitement among the electors generally, the nominating conventions seem to be trying to furnish their share.

Latest reports from Toronto indicate that Tommy Church is still going strong.

With nearly all the returns in, the Farmer Government will have at least 40 seats out of a Legislature of 63. That should provide a comfortable working margin.

A Thought

GOOD-WILL

There is no duty we so much under-rate as the duty of being happy. By being happy we sow anonymous benefits upon the world, which, remain unknown even to ourselves, or when they are disclosed, surprise nobody so much as the benefactor.

A happy man or woman is a better thing to find than a five-pound note. He or she is a radiating focus of good will; and their entrance into a room is as though another candle had been lighted. We need not care whether they could prove the forty-seventh proposition; they do a better thing than that, they practically demonstrate the great Theorem of the Livableness of Life.—R. L. Stevenson.

What To-day Means To You

"CANCER."

If June 27th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a.m., to 9:15 a.m., from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. and 11 p.m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 4:30 a.m. to 5:30 a.m., and 4 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Astrological influences on this date will be mild in character, and there will be poor records for the day's history. Trouble in family affairs. Tantalizing setbacks due to effect of Saturn at this time of year.

The child bornon this June 27th will have a very assimilative mind, and will be quick to apprehend things. It will have gentle manners, and a hopeful nature. It will have ability along business lines, will be quick at figures, and will seek independence.

You are a delightful and an attractive person under proper conditions and surroundings, but you are a different being without your sustaining props. Your morale is soon shattered when failure stares you in the face, and the bubbles of your enthusiasm soon burst when thrown against offending rocks. You lose hope and give up altogether too easily. You allow yourself to become paralyzed by false fears, and you run away from harmless shadows. In the game of life as in a game of bridge, there is no more certain loser than he who is afraid of taking risks. Your attitude courts disaster.

You are inclined to be so dominated by stronger personalities which may surround you, that you do not know your own mind. You are not developing your latent ego to the fullest. History is packed with examples of men and women who by sheer self-development, have made striking personalities of themselves. You can do the same!

The signs indicate that there will be an unusual attachment and close association between a June 25 subject and his or her mother. Your greatest benefits will come directly or indirectly through her. You are extremely fond of home and home comforts, and you will always cling to your childhood associations. You will not have many changes of residences. You should not shun society, as the association with the right sort of people will help to bring you out. Music has great charms for you.

Famous Reproduction Recovered

VISITS CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, June 27.—By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—A veteran of the newspaper game, and an old Hastings county boy, Albert Dickenson, of Utica, N.Y., was a visitor to Campbellford this week, when he was the guest of his cousin, Mrs. Lima Attwood.

Mr. Dickenson, who for thirty-nine years was managing editor of the Utica Saturday Globe, looked hale and hearty when he visited The Examiner Branch Office here to enquire after old friends he knew many years ago.

Born in Hastings county, a few miles out of Belleville in 1861, he was educated at Newburg Academy, and Napanee High School, graduating in 1878. He commenced his career by teaching school, which he did for three years in Lennox county, holding two positions in that time. In 1881 he commenced with the Newburg Reporter, a paper now defunct, as a typesetter. After a very short while he left for America, settling in Utica, N.Y., and associating himself with the staff of the Morning Herald.

In 1882 he again changed, and helped to start the Utica Press. The same year he made another move, throwing his energies into the building up of the Utica Saturday Globe, a journal of which he very shortly afterward became the editor. He held this office until 1922, when he retired from the field of journalism, and devoted his time to politics. For the last six years he has held the office of treasurer of Oneida County, N.Y.

Looking Up Friends.

Mr. Dickenson came to Canada on June 6th, especially to look up old school friends and relatives. Many he found, but some have passed on, and as he said, "There is a touch of sadness in my visit". His ancestral tree is rooted deep in the soil of Canada. On his mother's side he is from old United Empire Loyalist stock, and on his father's side, American stock, who originally belonged to Canada, but left the country at the time of the War of Independence.

It is fourteen years since Mr. Dickenson has been to Campbellford, and he expressed surprise and pleasure at the advance made by the town. He spoke of the paved highway and the paved streets as some of the greatest assets to a town, and was pleased that Campbellford had progressed along this line. Of Canada as a whole as he had seen it in this part of the country, he said that he saw nothing but the spirit of progress everywhere he went.

Mr. Dickenson was one of the outstanding figures in the journalistic world of America. A feature writer, he travelled all over the Federation, and covered many of the bigger events of newspaper history in that country, among which was the great tidal wave at Galveston, Texas, some years ago. He started with the Utica Saturday Globe when he had a box for a desk and a box for a chair, and when he retired he had a staff of fifteen reporters. He saw that paper grow and helped to rear it, but now, as he remarked, "It's time I left the work to the young men."

Mr. Dickenson is making the trip by car, and expects to return to his home in the States before the end of the month.

BENNETT SLOGAN AT MONTREAL IS CANADIANS FIRST

TALK ON WAR IN INDIA.

Tory Leader Sharply Censures King's Remarks on Old Age Pensions.

By Thomas Green, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.

MONTREAL, Que., June 27.—From thousands of lusty throats, Hon. R. B. Bennet received acclaim in Montreal last night, starting at Champ de Mars the Conservative Leader was the central figure in a parade of hundreds of automobiles which accompanied him to Maisonneuve market garden in East Montreal.

Forceful Speech

There the Opposition Leader made an earnest and forceful speech. "Our prime object within the Empire" he said at one stage in reference to remarks of Premier King" is to develop Canada first and to that end we will bend every energy. I come not to pander to anyone's views, not to indicate the viewpoint, I honestly hold. I do not forego my principle honestly held, for votes and power, my views are based upon conviction upon political efficiency.

Mr. Bennett had sharp strictures for the remarks of Premier King in Nova Scotia on old age pensions". We say" he exclaimed, "that the Federal Government could provide the other half without wrecking the constitution."

"The Prime Minister," he went on, "had advocated a conference while in one of the Provinces which could not very well afford to enter into the present scheme. "His conferences," Mr. Bennett declared, "are so many that they are becoming world known."

Rumors of Indian War

Again, the Conservative Chieftain spoke of the rumors in Quebec Province of war with India. "There is an effort" he declared, "to induce people to think and to talk about a possible war in India. Let us consider what we are going to do about Canada. Oh, men and women, why this backyard canvass? Why this talk. In 1926, it was war with Turkey. This election, it is suggestions about war with India. Canadians are concerned about looking after the peace, order and good Goverment of India, and their police will take care of the situation there."

He continued, "Why is it that Canada to-day has one and one quarter million people less than she should have men and women; why is it that taking our immigration and births, and deducting the loss through deaths, that we have slightly over 9 000,000 people when we should have at least 11,000 people."

PRICE CHANGES REMAIN SMALL

Attempts to Push Stocks Into Higher Ground Receive Little Support From Speculators.

OILS UNCHANGED.

TORONTO, June 27 (CP).—Both the operators for the decline and those for the advance were reluctant to take up a position this morning and, consequently, price changes were small. Trading slowed down almost to a minimum. The market appears to have met a good resistance at present level but on the other hand any attempt to push stocks into higher ground receive little or no support.

Nickel and Brazilian, prominent with an advance before the close Thursday, came out even higher at the opening but they soon began to slip off from their highs and at mid-day were back below last night. Massey-Harris, Ford of Canada, Consolidated Bakeries, Walkers, Standard Paving and the oils were unchanged. F. N. Burt picked up a point as did Bell Telephone, while C. P. R., down to a new low of 184 yesterday, sold at 188 to-day.

The volume was on the same slow scale as Thursday.

EXPANSION NEEDED FOR BIGGER TRADE

W. G. Gillett Says Dominions Should Advertise Products in England.

LONDON, Eng., June 27 (Canadian Press Cable).—While the British Empire does almost thirty per cent. of the world's total trade this is not enough business to ensure the prosperity of the Empire nations and expansion is now vitally needed, declared W. G. Gillett, secretary of the Department of Overseas Trade, in addressing the Imperial Press conference to-day.

Mr. Gillett took the place of the Rt. Hon. William Graham, president of the Board of Trade, who was scheduled to speak but was unable to do so owing to an important cabinet meeting. He expressed the view that the dominions would be helping the mother country considerably if they established bodies similar to the Empire Marketing Board which advertises Empire products in England.

The secretary of the Department of Overseas Trade believed exhibitions of Empire-wide products were much more effective than those merely of one country. He explained that his department was seeking to build up for the use of British merchants and manufacturers a system providing information regarding markets and also about individual firms in the dominions.

ARTICLE LVI.

Q.—(a) What are chief points to be considered in the selection of Urban Street Railway securities?

A.—In the selection of Urban Street Railway securities there are several important points to be considered.

A railway is preferable that is subject to least competition. It should preferably be operating in a city having a population of 25,000 at least—(the larger the better). Its capitalization should be less than its replacement value. Earnings are very important, and should compare favorably with other similar companies. The company should have a good record of earnings over good and bad years. If net earnings after allowance for depreciation are equal to twice the bond interest, the company is probably on a good earning basis.

Earnings however, are useless if the franchise is doubtful. This should be unlimited and give the company the right to operate busses in connection with their service, if necessary. It should not be restricted. There should be a good feeling existing between the city and railway.

The railway should preferably be operating in a densely populated area, that shows signs of prosperity and growth. The earning power varies directly as the density of the population, and the investment per capita varies indirectly as the density of the population. It is a disadvantage if the railway is located in a hilly district as operating expenses would thus be greater.

Maintenance and depreciation charges should be generous. Twenty-two per cent of gross earnings for maintenance and depreciation is considered quite conservative. Depreciation on property should average around 2½ to 3 per cent.

The company should preferably be locally owned and, of course, under capable management.

There is one more point concerning the franchise. It should be carefully noted that the franchise does not expire before the bonds mature.

(b) Why are the securities of Street Railways operating in cities usually a more attractive investment than those in interurban companies?

A.—Securities of urban railways are more attractive than interurbans for several reasons.

The operating costs of the latter are lower due to the more compact district in which it operates. It serves a more densely populated area. Distances are shorter, less speed is required and less wear and tear on equipment is the result. The cost of power for the shorter distances is also less, and especially where interurbans operate in hilly districts.

Competition from outside companies is less liable to be allowed in the cities where it would necessitate the tearing up of streets.

Franchises of city lines generally mature at various times. Interurban companies usually have but one franchise which is not so secure.

HEAVY DECLINE IN MANY ISSUES

Huge Decrease in Brokers' Loans Fails to Stimulate Considerable Short Covering.

NEW YORK, N.Y., June 27. (C.P.)—The latest glimmer of speculative optimism in Wall Street was very nearly extinguished by still another bear drive in to-day's stock market. Prices sagged substantially, but trading was dull. The market had been permitted to close higher two successive days for the first time this month, which in the opinion of professional traders, was about the best that could be expected with speculative enthusiasm so close to the vanishing point.

The huge decrease of $371,000,000 in brokers' loans failed to stimulate any considerable short covering.

With brokerage loans at their present low levels, Wall Street has been more interested in bank loans on securities and these loans have tended to increase.

Security loans of New York member banks showed a decrease of about $20,000,000, while their loans to brokers were cut $96,000,000 possibly indicating further shift of loans from brokerage accounts directly to the banks.

Bears singled out Southern Railway and North American for their especial attention. Southern was sent down more than 7 points to another new low, reflecting further uneasiness over the fact that earnings are running behind dividend requirements, although the road appears to have made provisions for this year's payments at least. North American was sent down more than 6 points to a new 1930 low under 90. Shares losing 5 points or more included Allied Chemical, Northern Pacific, Goodyear and Eastman. U. S. Stell, Radio General Motors, American Can, General Electric, American Telephone, New Haven, Westinghouse, American Tobacco "B" and Dupont lost 2 to 4 points or more. Among the more volatile issues, Auburn and Case tumbled more than 10.

The commodity markets were agian inclined to sag.

AGED BANKER PASSES AWAY

P. Howland, Former Office Boy, Rises to Presidency of Imperial Bank of Canada.

73 YEARS OF AGE.

TORONTO, Ont., June 27 (C.P.).—Pelel Howland, president of the Imperial Bank of Canada, and one of Canada's most prominent business executives, died suddenly at his family residence here last night after a brief illness at the age of 73. His family were present when he died.

Mr. Howland's career rivals that of the most romantic. Starting as an office boy at the age of 16, he became one of the most powerful figures in the financial and business life of the country, carrying on his business activities almost up to the time of his death.

He is survived by his widow and one daughter, Mrs. Arthur B. Cayley, of this city. The funeral will be held on Saturday.

St. Joseph's hospital can only be reached by a foot bridge. The vehicular bridge at Fir Street having been washed away. Water rose two feet in the lower floor of the city hall and completely covered the road graders and wagons in the yard. Never before in the history of the city has water entered the lower floor of the hall. The entire lower floor of Jubilee Hall was covered with two feet of water. In one apartment house a rush call was sent out last night for the plumbing inspector to come and punch holes in the floor as the pressure of the water in the basement was heaving the floor. The caretaker sleeping in the Burroughs block was awakened about 3 o'clock when the mattress of the bed started to float away. He jumped into a packing case which was floating and was rescued there this morning when one of the tenants arrived about 8 o'clock.

Power House Keeps Going

It was feared for a while that the power would have to be shut off the water was rising so rapidly in the power house but that did not prove necessary. Workmen at the sewage pumping station were flooded out, however, though the pumps were kept in operation.

More than 400 telephones in the business district were out of commission for several hours due to a split cable and were not put in operation again until about 10 o'clock.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

It is with a sense of personal loss that the financial community learns of the death of P. Howland, president of the Imperial Bank of Canada. Although retiring in nature and for that reason not one whom could be termed a national figure, he nevertheless exerted a strong influence over Canadian financial affairs and his opinions have always carried weight with the banking community. The Imperial Bank was founded by his father and he entered the service as a clerk while still in his 'teens, eventually rising to the position of president. He was president of H. S. Howland and Sons, wholesale hardware merchants, President the Confederation Life Association of Canada and was connected with other companies as well.

Oils Progressing.

One business in Canada that appears this year to be running ahead of last year is that of the oil group. While there is a tendency to curtail expenditures at the present time, this does not appear to have had much influence on the demand from the service stations and good increase in the sales for the first five months are reported. Another factor of growing importance is motor boating. Never before has this form of amusement been so popular in Canada as it is to-day. Women and boys still in their 'teens are reported to be mainly responsible for the present popularity of boating. The producers of outboard motors are doing a record business and as a result thousands of these engines are in use to-day with a substantial demand for gas and oil. To meet the demand of the motor boat communities the gas companies are installing filling stations around the different lakes. Another growing form of gas consumption comes from the aviators, whose employment is spreading rapidly for pleasure as well as business.

Market Holding Own.

Locally the market has been holding its own this week, gains and losses counterbalancing one another and the general average of prices remaining about the same. There has been no concerted attempt to depress prices further but on the other hand efforts to work the leaders upward meet with scant success. At the opening this morning both Brazilian and Nickel were pushed further above the close of last night, but these gains were shortlived and at midday these leaders were back to the same level or else fractionally below where they had left off Thursday. The action of the remainder of the list could be dismissed with the colorless report "no change."

Wall Street writers are still cautious in their use of words regarding the market. Laidlaw and company state that there seems still little basis for projecting the immediate course of the market and add they would rather await further indications from the market before suggesting that the trend has been definitely reversed. The Wall Street Mirror is more outspoken, claiming that with the market in the midst of its most sustained rally since the latter part of May it can safely be said that better things can be expected of it. While it is still too early to say definitely that the bottom has been seen, it can safely be presumed that the support levels seen on Wednesday will play a big part in all committments made in the market from now on. "It was learned on good authority several big shorts had begun to take in their lines but that others were going to give the market another test on the downside before running to cover. In this connection also, it can be stated that some of those who have been most bearish on the market are looking about for long pull purchases."

Public Holidays.

Trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange and on the Wall Street Market will be interrupted next week by holidays. The local markets will observe Tuesday, July 1, while Wall Street closes for July 4, which falls upon Friday and in consequence will also remain closed Saturday. It is not likely any action will be taken towards closing Toronto on Monday, but with the market falling on dull days it would not be surprising if Toronto were to follow New York's lead and close next Saturday morning. The committee of the Exchange has given the matter no consideration as yet, however.

Honor Matriculation For Varsity Entrance

First Year in Pass Course in Faculty of Arts is Abolished.

TORONTO, Ont., June 27. (CP)—The senate of the University of Toronto has announced details in connection with the abolition for the first year in the pass course in the faculty of arts by prescribing honor matriculation for admission.

The effect of this will be to require all students wishing to enter the pass course to have honor matriculation in certain defined subjects and to allow these students to take the pass Bachelor of Arts degree on the satisfactory completion of a three-year course.

This change will come into effect for the session of 1931-32 and no student will be admitted in that session or thereafter who has not obtained the necessary honor matriculation standing with the exception of certain mature students for whom special provision will be made.

Eight members of the vessel's crew are in St. Vincent's De Paul Hospital. All were recovering from the terrific shock early to-day, although every one of them showed signs of the explosion. One man had both eyes blackened and his face badly cut by the flying fragments as the ship disintegrated. All eight were as cheerful as could be expected under the circumstances. It was, they felt, a terrible experience, but to them it might have been very much worse.

SOUTHERN FRANCE LOSES HEAVILY DURING STORMS

PARIS, France, June 27 (C.P.).—Southern France, particularly the lower Rhone valley and the Departments of Gard and Ardeche, suffered heavily from violent storms yesterday. Towns were inundated, buildings wrecked, crops ruined, and railway and highways put out of order. The extent of the damage has not been determined.

SUDBURY FLOODS HALT OPERATIONS

Trading Remains Quiet With Prices Irregular on Standard Exchange.

TORONTO, June 27. (Special to Examiner.)—There was nothing really new on the mining market in early trading to-day. The market followed much the same course as that of presiding days with trading very quiet and price changes irregular.

Floods at Sudbury and the shutting down of the power plant may mean the mines of the district will have to stop operations for a few days. As is usual, all sorts of stories are to be heard of flooding of properties, but officials of the companies concerned know of no such mishap and those able to raise the properties on the phone say the loss of power is the greatest damage the mines themselves will suffer. The street is looking for mill announcement from Columario at least this is said to be what has been behind the market appreciation in this stock. Property development of late is reported.

Talk now has it that officials of International Nickel will possibly delay the time for the subscribing of the new stock under the offering of rights to shareholders. All details will be announced at the special general meeting here next month and the gossip is that the financing will be undertaken as planned, but that the rights will not expire for some months and thus give the market a chance to improve.

The bogus Ajax certificates are all understood to have come from the one source in Montreal. All unearthed so far have had similar numbers. It is an old trick and the parties pulling it are said to have got away withsomething like $17,000.

Acme's well near Tillsonburg, has been shot and is reported flowing 480,000 cubic feet of gas the well cost only $6,000 to complete. Acme has 2,000 acres in this section which will allow for drilling of many other wells.

man in the public life of our community. His generous attitude towards life made him brother to every man and friend to every woman."

"The child life of the community was his interest and called out the best efforts of his genius," Rev. Mr. Paterson said, in another portion of his address. "In the Sunday school he had his boys, many of whom he led into the communion fellowship of Christ's Church here on earth. Through the Kiwanis Club there were the underprivileged who were dear to his heart and who called forth all the best he had to give. In the Boy Scout organization he took hold at a time when the cause was difficult, and a less courageous heart might have hesitated."

Tribute was also paid to the late Mr. John by J. R. Marshall, past-president of the club, and a close associate of Mr. John in Kiwanis work in past years.

Charter Member.

"Joe was one of the original members—one of those who withstood the heat and toil of the day in establishing Kiwanis in Peterborough," Mr. Marshall said in an address. He has occupied at various times nearly every important office in our club, including those of district trustee and president and at his death was treasurer of our organization.

"Joseph John came to Peterborough 23 years ago, a young man in the prime of life, bringing with him his bride, and during this 23 years he has endeared himself to all classes. No matter where he went his sunny smile and bright cheerful nature secured for him a welcome. His continual thought was for others, no labor was too hard or sacrifice too great if a ray of sunshine or hope was obtained for others."

John J. Turner read a number of messages from other Kiwanis Clubs of Ontario expressing their deep sympathy in regard to the passing of Mr. John, and also an expression of condolence from District Governor Lewis of the Kiwanis.

At the close of the meeting, "Blessed be the Tie that Binds," and "O Canada," were sung by the members.

Aileen: I met my husband on the street today.
Elaine: Yes, it's a pretty small world after all.

"Broken Dishes," Great Comedy, at Canadian Chautauqua

SCENE FROM "BROKEN DISHES"

"He who cannot laugh at the play had better see his physician," says the New York Sun of "Broken Dishes," the popular comedy which will be presented at the coming Canadian Chautauqua here by the Martin Erwin Players of Canada. "Broken Dishes" is replete with hilarious laughter, tense drama and vivid depiction of the very real sort of people we meet in our daily life. The play unfolds an appealing love story between Elaine, the baby of the family, and the village grocery boy, whom Ma treats with icy scorn. But Pa and Elaine conspire together with surprising and dramatic results.

After the First Twenty-five Thousand Miles

THE value of sound design, good materials, and careful construction is especially apparent in the new Ford after the first twenty-five thousand miles.

Long, continuous service emphasizes the mechanical reliability of the car and its economy of operation and up-keep. The passing months and years bring a growing pride in its appearance and an increasing respect for the substantial worth that has been built into it.

From every standpoint—in everything that goes to make a good automobile—you know you have made a far-seeing, satisfactory purchase. Throughout the Ford you will find many reasons for its alert, capable performance and many instances of value far above the price you pay.

Prominent among these are the four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, shatterless glass windshield, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, five steel-spoke wheels, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves, chrome alloy transmission gears and shafts, torque-tube drive, three-quarter floating rear axle, more than twenty ball and roller bearings, and bright, enduring Rustless Steel for many exterior parts.

"THE CANADIAN CAR"

THE NEW FORD CABRIOLET

THE beauty of the new Ford, so apparent in line and color, extends also to the upholstery and appointments. You note it as you open the doors and see the attractive interiors. You find it also in those important little details of trim and finish which a woman's practiced eye is quick to catch. There is about the car a distinctive style or tone which reflects the quality that has been built into it. In external things, as in mechanical construction, the new Ford has been made to endure.

ADVANCEMENT OF PRINTING IS MAIN OBJECT OF I. T. U.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS MANY

Establishment of Amicable Relations With Employer One of Many Objects.

(By A. H. Wheatley, Secretary-Treasurer of Ontario and Quebec Conference of Typographical Unions)

The Ontario and Quebec Conference of Typographical Unions, in annual session in this city is one of the twenty-seven district organizations of the International Typographical Union covering the United States and Canada, and is composed of the membership of the typographical unions of the cities and towns of the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, its allotted jurisdiction.

Activities Numerous

Its activities are not only confined to the promotion of all movements for the improvement of the conditions ofemployment of the union printer and his allied tradesman, the establishment of amicable relations and lasting good-will of the employer, but to the advancement of the printing industry in general.

Among its many accomplishments, may be mentioned the many improvements in ventilation and lighting effected through Inspector Burke, of the provincial factory inspection branch; the amendment of the Copyright Act at the solicitation of the Conference and Toronto Union; the Union Label (Marking Act) was recognized through the efforts of the Conference as meeting the requirements of the Canadian customs authorities re country of origin of printed matter; the Conference was responsible for the inclusion of a fifteen per cent. retaining clause, for Canadian publishers, in all timber contracts made by the provincial government; took an active part in the movement to have the federal government put an impost on American publications coming into Canada, in order to bring about the printing of their Canadian circulation in this country, thereby placing Canadian publishers in a better position to compete for national advertising, etc.

The Conference has assisted in appealing decisions of Compensation Board; presented an immense Union Jack to ex-President James M. Lynch, to be flown over headquarters to symbolize the international aspect of the organization; also a framed flag, suitably engraved, to hang in the international building as a permanent commemoration of the gift.

44-hour Week

As a result of the action taken at the eighth annual convention, held in Ottawa, in 1919, London Typographical Union, with the co-operation of the publishers, established the 44-hour week for afternoon newspapers, the first instance on the North American continent and away previous to the coming of the 44-hour week for the commercial printer, for whom negotiations had been carried on for some months with the employers' associations by the International Typographical Union.

While the Conference meets in session but once a year, its activities do not begin and end there. The Executive Council, composed of the President, 1st and 2nd vice presidents and secretary treasurer, are actively engaged throughout the interim in advancing the interests of printerdom of the provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

Inquiries from employers seeking skilled help are welcomed and given personal attention, and craftsmen seeking change of venue or employment may list their addresses with the secretary treasurer at London and be assured of proper attention and information at hand.

PRINTERS' HOME OPENED IN 1892

250 ACRES OF LAND

The Union Printers Home at Colorado Springs, Colorado, is the most widely known humanitarian activity of the International Typographical Union. It has been developed into one of the best known institutions of its kind in the world, and for thirty-eight years has stood as a haven of refuge for the sick and the aged.

The first unit of the institution was erected upon a barren piece of prairie donated by the board of trade of Colorado Springs in 1892. The original cost was approximately $70,000, of which $10,000 had been provided by George W. Childs and Anthony J. Drexel, Philadelphia philanthropists. Additional funds were made available by each union printer contributing the price he received for 1,000 ems of type at hand composition, which approximated an hour's wage.

Hauled the Water

At the time the first unit was constructed the site upon which the Home is located was eighty acres of semi-arid desert. Necessary water for construction purposes and to grow vegetation was hauled several miles, and the land was wrested from sagebrush, jack rabbits and rattlesnakes.

At present the Home grounds comprise more than 250 acres of land that has been made fertile by scientific methods. The group of buildings which go to make up the institution are located in the centre of a beautiful and expansive park, abounding with flower gardens. The grounds are beautifully landscaped. Artistic walks traverse green lawns, and comfortable seats and resting places are to be found in shady nooks and spots secluded by trees and flowering shrubs.

The Printer's Towel

The poem printed below is believed to have been written many years ago by "Bob" Burdette, though its parentage has been attributed to others. Several versions have appeared in print from time to time, but the one reproduced here is thought the most authentic. It so aptly describes the printer's towel of old handset days that repetition at this time may be of interest:

When I think of the towel,
The old-fashioned towel,
That hung by the printing house door,
I think that nobody,
In these days of shoddy,
Could hammer out iron to wear as it wore.

The tramp who abused it,
The devil who used it,
The comp who got at it when these two were gone.
The makeup and foreman,
The editor, poor man.

In, over and under,
'Twas blacker than thunder;
'Twas harder than poverty, rougher than sin.
From the roller suspended,
It never was bended,
And it flapped on the wall like a banner of tin.

It grew thicker and rougher,
And harder and tougher,
And daily put on a more inkier hue;
Till one windy morning,
Without any warning,
It fell on the floor and was broken in two

Capital is condensed labor. It is nothing until labor takes hold of it. The living laborer sets free the condensed labor and makes it assume some form of utility or beauty. HOME CONDUCTED FOR THE STRICKEN AND AGED PRINTER

I. T. U. Provides Splendid Pension Fund For Its Members.

APPRENTICESHIP SCHOOLS

Training is Being Given the Young Apprentice in Technical Schools.

By Hugh S. Bentley, Second Vice-President (Chairman of Apprentices) Ontario and Quebec Conference of Typographical Unions.

In view of the fact that the general public is of the opinion that all a labor union exists for is to negotiate for wages and conditions from the employers, it might not be amiss to outline a few of the activities of the International Typographical Union and its subordinate units.

Home for the Stricken.

For many years the I. T. U. has conducted a home for stricken and aged printers at Colorado Springs, Col., where every known remedy to science is used in an effort to bring back to health those who have become afflicted while working at the trade; where every care and comfort is provided for the aged member in the twilight of his life.

Then there is the pension fund, which provides $32.00 every twenty-eight days to help sustain the pensioner when he is forced to retire. And when "30" is sounded the I. T. U. is still able to further assist by providing funds up to $500.00 to help the beneficiaries in trying times.

Bearing in mind the activities of the union in behalf of its senior members, let us review for a few moments what is being done for the apprentice members. The I. T. U. for many years has insisted that a boy should be at least 16 years of age and have at least secondary school standing. It further stipulates that a boy must pass a medical examination shortly after entering his apprenticeship in order that his health be not impaired and five years wasted owing to his being unsound constitutionally.

Technical Education.

In the city of Hamilton, the "Home of Technical Education" in Ontario, much has been done in the printing trade to help the apprentice secure a trade training which approximates that of the old apprenticeship system. For many years there has been close co-operation between the Board of Education, the employing printers and the local union, with the result that apprentices in the Ambitious City are now receiving an all-round training in the fundamentals of their chosen trade. Approximately 95 per cent. of the apprentices employed in the printing offices of the city are second and third-year specials of the local Technical Institute; further, the boys continue their attendance at school for 20 half days a year and 36 nights a year for five years after their entrance into the trade, and at the completion of their apprenticeship they write their final examination at the school.

When an apprentice has been two full years at the trade, he is compelled by law to subscribe to and complete a correspondence course in printing. This course is designed to help the boy acquire a general knowledge of the printing trade, provision for which may be lacking in the office in which he works owing to the great degree of specialization pursued in this day and age. When there is a printing department in the local Technical Institute the youth is enabled to complete the practical part of the course at no inconvenience to the routine of the office in which he is employed.

Standard Examination.

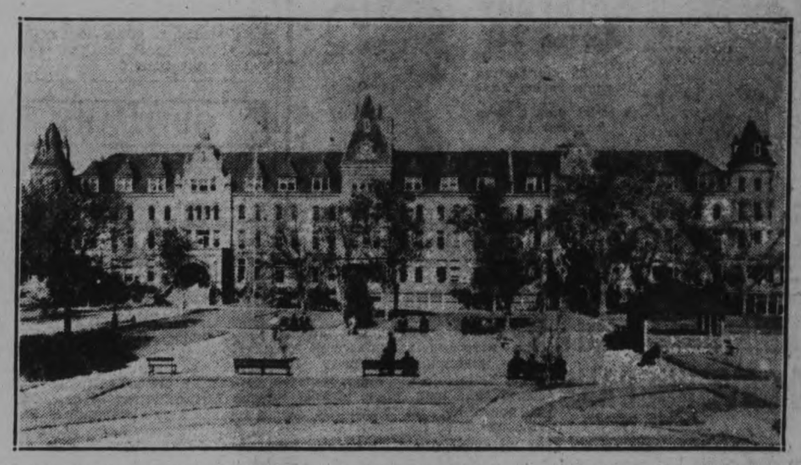
At the conclusion of the course and upon his entrance into the trade, as a full-fledged journeyman, the apprentice must write a fifth-year examination which is standardized all over the North American Continent. On the successful completion of the course, the apprentice receives a diploma, the possession of which entitles him to be recognized as a well-trained craftsman.

As a further evidence of the interest taken to the work and welfare of the apprentices, mention is made of the Annual Apprentice Competition held by the Ontario and Quebec Conference of Typographical Unions, now closing its seventh year. The contest also serves to show the close co-operation existing between printing employers, supply houses, trade publications and local unions. Among the prizes offered for annual competition are five large silver cups, carrying with them individual prizes of gold watches.

The results of the seventh Annual Apprentice Competition will be announced during the sessions of the Conference.

The habits of our whole species fall into three great classes: Useful labor, useless labor and idleness. Of course, the first only is meritorious, and to it all the products of labor rightfully belong; but the two latter, while they exist, are heavy pensioners upon the first, robbing it of a large portion of its just rights. The only remedy is, as far as possible, to drive useless labor and idleness out of existence.—Abraham Lincoln.

Union Printers Home at Colorado Springs



This fine home was erected and is maintained by the International Typographical Union for the aged and stricken printer, and has been developed into one of the best known institutions of its kind in the world. The home grounds comprise of more than 250 acres of land that has been made fertile by scientific methods and the group of buildings are located in the center of a beautiful and expansive park abounding with flower gardens.

HEALTH FACTOR PLAYS BIG PART

SANITARY WORKROOMS

The International Typographical Union began a determined campaign for sanitary workrooms in the early part of the present century. Filthy, poorly lighted and poorly ventilated printing shops were the rule in those days, and the health of the printers suffered immeasurably because of this inexcusable condition. To-day it is considered a disgrace for an employer to neglect any improvement in sanitation, and workrooms throughout the trade serve as models for many other industries.

The health campaign of the union deserves a place beside the Union Printers Home and tuberculosis sanatorium as a factor in practically eliminating turberculosis from the trade.

Clean-Up of Insanitary Conditions

Local unions are working through sanitary committees to clean up insanitary conditions that may arise in composing rooms. In some communities these committees have the co-operation of state and city health bureaus. Employers have learned, largely through the efforts of their organized employees, that it is poor economy to reduce efficiency of workmen by permitting surroundings that jeopardize health. The result has been a sweeping reform, and healthy, pleasant and comfortable working quarters are the rule where union workers are employed.

The outstanding result of the campaign for the healthful working surroundings, combined with the other activities fostered by this organization and so vital in the making of better citizens, both morally and physically, is attested to by the fact that the average life of the union printer has been more than doubled in seventy-eight years.

And all this was accomplished in the face of most vicious organized opposition from the very beginning. What organization has done as much for humanity?

Old Manager Speaks

(By Berton Braley.)

I've handled a pick and shovel,
I've sat at a bench in my time,
I've done heavy work in the heat and the murk,
I've known all the sweat and the grime;
And so, when some frosty-eyed expert
Talks "Labor" as if it were coal,
"A commodity"—well, I just choke for a spell
Before I regain my control.

Plague take all this dope economic
That plans human toil in its charts,
I tell you that "Labor's" your friends and your neighbors,
It's Folks that have bodies and hearts.
It's fathers and brothers and husbands,
With mothers and sweethearts and wives,
Who love and who hate and who dream and who wait,
It's people living their lives.

Now, maybe I'm moss-backed and rusty,
But here's how it lines up to me:
Statistics will aid in the plan you have made,
They're useful to quite a degree.
But all of your lore scientific
Will fall down again and again,
Unless in your brain this one fact you retain,
That "Labor" means flesh-and-blood Men.

In brief, it's a problem that's Human,
No soulless "Commodity" stuff,
And the very best plan I have happended to scan
Is just to be human enough;
And when it is finally settled
(I fear I won't be here by then),
It won't be by art of a book or a chart,
But by Men dealing fairly with Men.

DEATH BENEFITS ARE MAINTAINED

Benefits To-day Are Paid on Graduating Scale, Ranging From $75 to $500.

BROTHERLY LOVE

A system of death benefits has been maintained by the International Typographical Union for more than thirty-eight years, or since October, 1892. The first law on the subject was enacted about the time the Union Printers Home was established. In the beginning the union paid a burial benefit of $50. To-day it pays benefits on a graduated scale ranging from $75 to $500.

Once more the true spirit of brotherly love was thoroughly demonstrated when the membership of the union, still in the throes of the gigantic eight-hour struggle, began consideration of the present death-benefit laws. At that time the amount paid was $75 flat, but the members, eager that the beneficiaries of their loved ones might have something left after meeting the actual cost of burial, began a movement in 1908 to increase the mortuary benefit.

Four years later the membership approved the present graduated rate, and payments under the new schedule were started on April 1, 1912, as follows:

For a continuous membership of one year or less	$ 75
For a continuous membership of more than one year and less than two years	100
For a continuous membership of two years and less than three years	125
For a continuous membership of three years and less than four years	200
For a continuous membership of four years and less than five years	300
For a continuous membership of five years and less than fifteen years	400
For a continuous membership of fifteen years or over	500

$300,000 FIRE HAILED BY TOLEDO DAILY

The most unusual head and lead ever used on a disaster story in Toledo were carried in the Toledo Blade last week on the fire which destroyed the ancient Toledo Union station.

The 96-point streamer said, "Thousands Cheer as Union Station Burns" and the lead ran: "The main section of th Union station, Toledo's oldest joke, was destroyed in a spectacular $300,000 fire Tuesday night, while thousands cheered and jeered. Each puff of destructive flame, each billow of acrid smoke was greeted with ringing applause."

Newspapers and civic organizations have worked for years to have the old station, built in 1885, replaced. The day after the fire the Blade, News-Bee and Times al. carried editorials demanding the New York Central railroad, owner of the station, build a new one.

COP WANTS $25.00 FOR MISPLACED ASTERISK

Patrolman Lon Powers, of the Asheville, N.C., police department, wants $25.000 for an asterisk.

He has filed suit in the county court at Asheville against the Commercial Service Inc., the Piedmont Directory Company and the Miller Press, Inc., promoters and publishers of the Asheville city directory, for $12,500 punitive and $12,500 compensatory damages.

In the directory, the policeman said, his name was made with an asterisk, the sign employed to denote citizens of the Negro race.

No wage earner is doing his full duty if he fails to identify his own interests with those of his fellow workmen. The obvious way to make common cause with them is to join a trade union.—Ernest Howard Crosby, president Social Reform Club, New York.

Printer Is Making Big Contribution To Civilization

Solution For Problems of Mankind Depends on Knowledge, to Gain Knowledge People Must Read, and to be Able to Read Printer Must Perform His Craftsman Duties.

INTERNATIONAL TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION COMPOSED OF APPROXIMATELY 80,000 MEN AND WOMEN

Organization Offers Protection in Those Matters Which Contribute to the Health, Happiness and Longevity of Its Members—Also Educational Advantages Along Craft Lines.

(By Chas. P. Howard, President of the International Typographical Union)

The men and women who devote their lives to printing have made an essential contribution to the progress of civilization. A few centuries ago human life was upon a plane but one step above the beasts of the field. Inventions and discoveries of self-sacrificing individuals have served to lift the human race to its present day standards. The benefits of these inventions and discoveries would be limited indeed were it not possible to disseminate information with the printed word.

A solution for the problems of mankind depends upon knowledge. To gain knowledge people must think. To think they must read. To afford opportunity to read the printer must perform his duties as a craftsman.

It has been the experience of the world that men with common interest and cause provide for their own protection and well-being. To meet this need printers have builded the great organization which has functioned in their interest for more than three-quarters of a century.

The International Typographical Union is composed of approximately 80,000 men and women who are devoting their lives to printing. Through co-operative effort they have established an organization patterned after the biggest ideals that could inspire the hearts and minds of men.

Protects Health of Members.

During the productive period of its members this organization affords protection in those essentials which establish the living standards of those engaged in a most essential work. It offers protection in those matters which contribute to health, happiness and longevity.

For those who would excel in that to which they devote their energy this organization offers educational advantages along craft lines which could be made available only through co-operative effort upon an extensive scale. When a fickle world turns aside because passing time has dimmed the eye, palsied the hand and silvered the hair this great organization offers a haven of refuge in the glorious sunshine near the summit of Mount Desire, or extends a helping hand to lighten the load upon shoulders bent with the burdens of life. As a benediction for loyalty and faithfulness in the work of the Master the International Typographical Union places a wreath at the tomb and a candle beside the bier that the glow of its flickering flame may hallow the memory of one who has contributed service to all mankind.

During the past 30 years the International Typographical Union has expended $22,761,901.50 to reduce the hours of labor. It was the first labor union to establish upon a national basis 48 hours as the maximum work-week and one days rest in seven. In the commercial industry the Saturday half-holiday has become generally operative as a result of the activities of this Union. No organization of workers in the world has enjoyed as much in the way of reduced hours through the efforts of their union as do members of the International Typographical Union.

In 21 years $10,984,763.00 has been paid as old age pensions to those members who needed a helping hand. At the present time there are approximately 3,000 members receiving this support from their organization. Each individual receives $416 per year, making an aggregate annual expenditure for pensions in excess of $1,200,000.

More than $6,455,396.14 has been paid to beneficiaries of deceased members during the time the graduated mortuary benefit plan has been in existence. And $4,797,992.80 has been expended in establishment and maintenance of the Union Printers' Home, whose bounty is unpurchasable and its charity without price. This institution cares for approximately 300 members who seek it as a haven of refuge in their declining years, and those incapacitated by disease. It is recognized as one of the finest institutions of its kind in all the world. Located at Colorado Springs, in the land of sunshine and nature's rugged shrines this institution is visited by thousands of persons each year.

For the future of the craft to which the members of this great Union have dedicated their lives we have expended more than a quarter of a million dollars in education of our apprentices. These benefits have come as a result of co-operative genius of our members and the entire cost has been willingly contributed from the pay envelopes of Union Printers.

PENSION SCHEME IS 21 YEARS OLD

$10,984,763.00 Have Been Paid in Pensions to Members.

FOR AGED AND INFIRM

For years prior to 1908 old-age pension plans had been proposed at annual conventions of the International Typographical Union, or by other methods were spasmodically brought to the attention of the membership. The necessity of providing succor for the aged and infirm was a long recognized responsibility that no one wished to shirk, yet not until March of that year was it to become a reality through the payment of the first pension.

Never in the history of the organization was the true metal of the members tested to better advantage than when the old-age pension proposition was submitted to a referendum vote of the membership. The union was in the midst of the eight-hour struggle and assessments as high as ten per cent of their incomes had been paid for a long time. Regardless of this and the fact that the end of that fight was not yet in sight, there was ample sympathy in the hearts of the members to give favorable consideration to those of their fellows who were in need because of infirmities or old age.

Originally the law carried a pension of $4 weekly for members 60 years of age and over, having a continuous membership of twenty years and unable to earn more than $4 a week. It also provided for the payment of the pension to "members who are totally incapacitated for work and who have been continuous active members for twenty years and whose aplications for admission to the Union Printers Home have been disapproved because their afflictions are of such a nature as to render them ineligible." The last provision covered members less than sixty years of age.

A FEW FOR THE READER.

A top may spin that has been spun,
But a grin is never called a grun.
The words you speak have been spoken,
Still a nose is tweaked, but never twoken;
What you seek is never soken,
And things that are wet are never wotten,
Nor can houses let ever be lotten.
The boy who swims may say he's swum,
Yet milk is skimmed and is not skum.
Nails may be trimmed, but never trum,
Fears may be dispelled, but never dispold,
While what you sell is therefore sold,
Even though what you smell is not smoled.

Presentation and Address Read to Pastor of St. James' Church.

AT SOCIAL EVENING.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Van Ness, North Monaghan, was the scene of a very successful social affair held Wednesday under the auspices of the Cheerful Workers' Bible Class and the Brotherhood of St. James' United church.

After enjoying a pleasant hour on the lawns and verandahs, a varied musical program was provided which proved very entertaining. Rev. J. H. Dudgeon was asked to take the chair, this being the last occasion at which he will officiate in this capacity as pastor of the two classes. The program was as follows:

Piano solo, "March of the Uhlans," with a whistling solo as encore—Mr. H. Hotston.

Reading, "Making Faces," "He Was There and So Was I"—Miss Eileen Schoales.

Vocal duet, "Juanita" — Mrs. H. Turner and Miss Hall.

Reading, "Tompkins' First Visit to the Theatre"—Mrs. T. Byers.

Reading, "Practising Time" and "I'd Like to be a Boy"—Miss Eileen Schoales.

Solo, "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses," "The Voices in the Woods"—Master Kenneth Gibson. Miss Dorothy Gibson accompanist.

Banjo solo— "The Park Crescent March"— Mr. Hotston. Mr. Davey accompanying.

Several members of the Brotherhood, including Joseph Lee, the oldest member of the class, made short addresses, paying high tribute to the work and influence of their teacher and pastor, Rev. Mr. Dudgeon.

Mr. A. R. Church, being called upon for a reading, invited Mr. Dudgeon and Mr. Spence to also come forward. His reading proved to be an address of appreciation, accompanying the presentation of a beautiful ebony desk set to Mr. Dudgeon, who leaves early next week for his new pastorate in London.

Address Read.

Dear Mr. Dudgeon—We men of St. James' Brotherhood have met tonight that we may once more enjoy your companionship and the interchange of thought which has come to mean so much to us.

If it were possible we should like to express our appreciation of what your life in Peterborough has given to our church, our Brotherhood and our homes.

In the short three years of your ministry here, you have exerted such a profound influence upon our church and community that it will live on all through the years. The amazing growth in our membership attests the soundness of your leadership and tells a story that we are proud to be able to trace directly to your efforts. Most of all we are grateful that you knew the men of this Brotherhood. That you understood our aspirations and hopes and entered into them, not only as our teacher, but as man with man, and as a friend, making your church the vehicle to help us in every problem. From the very first you established a confidence with our members which can never be broken. Your whole influence has been an inspiration for good to each one of us. Though our relationship with you is soon to be severed and you will not be here in your bodily presence, still your spirit will remain for as long as we live to cheer and comfort and encourage us.

The picture of you we will all carry in our hearts is told in this little verse by Edgar Guest:

"His was the friendly life and brave,
Unto this world himself he gave;
His dreams were lofty and his creed
Found utterance in many a deed,
Clean, manly, upright to the end,
He taught us how to be a friend."

That you may often be reminded of St. James' Brotherhood, we bring as a parting gift this desk set, asking you to remember as you use it, that you have our sincerest friendship, our good wishes and our prayers.

Signed on behalf of St. James' Brotherhood— A. R. Church, president, Thomas Littlefair, secretary, J. H. Spence, past president.

In a few sincere words, Rev. Mr. Dudgeon thanked the men for this token of their good wishes, and said that though he was leaving them he would still follow their work with his interest and prayers. He also bespoke for his successor, the Rev. A. E. Moorehouse, the same co-operation and loyalty which they had given him.

A contest on Biblical names drew the assembly into friendly groups, after which refreshments were served by the joint classes.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Van Ness, which was endorsed by a hearty clap, bringing the evening's amusement to a happy conclusion.

DYNAMITE EXPLODES

announced late last night that an inquest would be opened to-day to determine the cause of the catastrophe.

"There will be the fullest possible investigation of the entire circumstances," the Canadian Press was informed. The question of whether or not there was dynamite aboard the drill boat will be one of the points probed. Captain Lok and Commander Rasmussen of the coastguard cutter will present their evidence to-day. It is probable that the hearing will then be adjourned.

The boat, which was 150 feet long and had a beam of 50 feet, was equipped with 12 drills, each operated by a steam engine. Each drill would sink a hole in the rock or shoal 6 1-2 inches in diameter. When it had reached the desired depth, the channel is being sunk to a minimum depth of 27 feet, the casing would be packed with dynamite. When sufficient holes had been bored to remove the obstruction to shipping the boat would move off about 1,000 feet and the dynamite would be exploded.

The Rescued.

Those rescued are:—
Joseph Marohnick, a Jugoslav.
William McNeill of St. Catharines.

WOMAN SETS OUT TO SAVE HUSBAND

As Joseph, aged eight, described it: "There was a great ball of fire and a big noise. Then the boat split in two." Nothing but a sea of scattered debris remained of the boat.

Woman Undaunted

Undaunted by the raging storm, thinking only of her husband out there in the waters, possibly dead, possibly badly injured and clinging to a piece of wreckage, Mrs. McNeill seized a rowboat that was close by. While attempting to move the heavy crate into the water, she was joined by a man, whose identity is unknown, but whose courage and resourcefulness has been established by his actions.

Out into the stream the pair went, the wife and the stranger. But meantime, a tender belonging to the drill boat approached from an opposite direction. It was in charge of Murdock Chisholm of St. Catharines, a close friend of both Mr. and Mrs. McNeill. It was Murdock who came across McNeill, clinging to a piece of wreckage. He was lifted into the tender and while it was making its way to shore, the rowboat manned by the Spartan-like wife was encountered.

A retreat then was made to the bank of the stream, where wife, husband and family were reunited. McNeill ,then was taken to a local hospital, but he refused to remain there and was transported to his home. Overwrought by her harrowing experience, Mrs. McNeill took to her bed. The children, not realizing the extent of the catastrophe, continued to gambol about the house quite willing to speak to any person of the "great big ball of fire and the big noise."

POLICE DOG HERO AMONG MISSING

"King" Believed to Have Perished With Man He Rescued Last Spring.

AWARDED GOLD MEDAL.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., June 27. —(C.P.)—"King," a large police dog that was the pet of the crew of the drill boat, J. B. King, and that was only this week awarded a gold medal under Spratt's Dog Hero Award for heroism displayed off the Government breakwater at Brockville last spring, is numbered among the victims of yesterday's disaster off Cockburn Island.

As the drill boat was undergoing repairs off the breakwater here one day last spring, when ice conditions were treacherous, Jack Wylie, of Brockville, one of her crew, went through the ice as machinery was being moved across it from the shore. "King," who was playing about the craft and who was as devoted to the crew as they were to him, immediately jumped into the icy water and heroically brought Wylie to the surface after he had become unconscious and was about to drown. His exploit was given widespread publicity at the time, with the result that word reached a local newspaper office only yesterday of the award to him of the gold medal for a display of "unusual canine intelligence."

"King" was on or near the drill boat at the time of the explosion, and has not since been seen or heard. He and Wylie, the rescuer and the rescued of a few months ago, are now posted as "missing."

LOSS OF DRILL BOAT MAY DELAY SHOAL DEEPENING

OTTAWA, Ont., June 27. (C.P.) — Work of widening Brockville Narrows will probably be seriously delayed on account of yesterday's disaster, J. B. Hunter, Deputy Minister of Public Works, said last night. The expectation was that the removal of the shoals would be completed in September. Dr. Hunter explained that the contractor might have difficulty in obtaining another drill boat, as most of these vessels were now in use at various points on contracts. It is possible, he said, that the work may be interrupted until next year.

GOV'T INSPECTOR BLOWN INTO AIR

WAS NEARLY DROWNED.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., June 27.—(CP)—Belief that the drill boat contained a considerable quantity of dynamite was expressed last night by Leo Marion, Government inspector of the Public Works Department at Ottawa. Mr. Marion was blown into the air when the explosion occurred and was nearly drowned after he came down into the St. Lawrence river. Failure of a freighter or tug boat that was in the neighborhood to come to the aid of the men in the water was the subject of condemnation by the Ottawa Official.

"The lightning struck the wires which were connected to the charges of dynamite", Mr. Marion said. "There must have been altogether nearly three tons of dynamite in the drill holes and I also think that there was a considerable quantity of the explosive on the boat itself.

"I was in the cook house when a blinding flash of lightning lit up everything around," Mr. Marion said. "A terrific roar followed and the next thing I knew I was high in the air with the debris of the boat and rocks beneath.

"Although I was only in the air for a second it seemed hours. The next thing I knew I was scrambling beneath the waters of the St. Lawrence river in an attempt to bring myself to the surface. I must have been underneath the boatt for my lungs were bursting and I could hardly swim I felt so weak. I finally saw daylight, but timbers obstructed my efforts to get to the surface. Pushing them aside I finally found myself in open air."

Nearly 100,000 motorcycles were registered in Italy in the last 12 months.

GOV'T REFUSES SCOTTISH LANDS IN PAYMENT OF DEATH DUTIES

IN FAMILY 5 CENTURIES.

LONDON, Eng., June 27. — (By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)—Head of one of the most ancient families in Scotland, and owner of some of the most fruitful areas within her borders, the Duke of Montrose, like other large land owners, has to face the problem of the death duties upon his estate when he is called hence.

Among his possessions are fair islands of Loch Lomond, Ben Lomond and Inversnaid—isles which have been owned by the Duke's family for more than five centuries and which are permeated with the atmosphere of romance.

In view of the death duties, however, the Duke is arranging for the sale of these and other properties. He is willing to sell to the farmers upon his land but the farmers are unable to buy. In order to peserve such a countryside for the country at large the Duke has proposed to the Government that, instead of taking the death duties, the Government should accept the land itself.

Too Many Difficulties.

The Government possesses the power to accept land on this understanding but the Exchequer believes, apparently, that there are too many difficulties, financial and administrative, in the way of adopting such a course. Probably the Government, like other parties, prefers hard cash; at any rate it professes its inability to accept the Ducal proposal.

Opponents of the Government point out how often Socialists, when in opposition, have expressed their belief in the public ownership of land. Here it is asserted, is an excellent opportunity to put their principles into practice and to prove by definite experiment that the nationalization of land is desirable.

The present and sixth Duke of Montrose owns 115,000 acres. He is 83 years of age. An ancestor was created Earl of Montrose in 1503. The Dukedom was created in 1707.

In a recent week 873,671 British National Savings certificates were sold.

CONGREGATION ENJOYS ANNUAL PICNIC OF GEORGE ST. CHURCH

ATTENDANCE PRIZES.

A large attendance of parents and children, and beautiful weather, together with plenty of fun, mirth and jollity made the annual congregational picnic of George street United Church held at Nicholls Oval on Wednesday afternoon, an outstanding success. The committee in charge had planned well, and the motto was, "Something for everyone and everybody at it." As a result there were few idle moments for either adults or children.

The early afternoon was marked by a tennis tournament for the young folk. The winners were Miss Irene Cox and Homer Borland, with Miss Lilian Naish and Elmer Tretheway runners-up.

Good Race Program.

A long list of races kept a crowd of boys and girls vieing with each other in an endeavor to win some of the coveted prizes which were distributed as each event was completed. The following is the list of prize-winners:

Boys' Races.

3 years—Kenneth Lee, Don Allison, James Webb.

5 years—Jack Warne, T. Wellwood, Ken Burnham.

10 to 11 years—Douglas Elphick, Edmond Downey, Wm. McEwan.

12 to 13 years—Arthur Roberts, Lloyd Rutherford, Arthur Stinson.

Adult Races.

Teachers and officers' race—Miss Mary Elliott and Dr. Middleton; Mrs. Cecil Buck and Geo. Robertson.

Much merriment resulted from a pillow race. About 80 men and women were arranged in two rows, each side being provided with a feather pillow and pillow case. Each individual had to put the pillow in the pillow case, take it out, and pass it to the next one. The struggles of some of the men to get the recalcitorant pillow safely stowed within the case were extremely mirth-provoking. The contest was keenly contested and the winning side presented with all-day suckers as a reward for their prowess.

Supper brought a halt to the games for a brief period, and the groaning tables were quickly and effectively cleared by the hungry mob. The supper committee, under the direction of Mrs. J. Tinney, deserves much credit for the efficient way in which the supper was handled.

During the supper a brass band under the direction of W. H. Cunningham rendered excellent music. It was a feature that added much to the pleasure of the occasion.

Attendance Contest.

Following supper came a brief community sing-song, then an attendance contest for Sunday school classes, the results of which were as follows:

Junior Department— Miss M[illegible] class, Russell Lewis class.

Intermediate Department—Miss E. Higgins' class.

Senior Department—Onward Bible class (Mrs. Stubbs), Unity Club (Mrs. McHoull).

A treasure hunt for the "kiddies" 11 years and under, created great enthusiasm in that quarter. The children were divided into three groups, according to ages, and were led to sections of the grounds where many good things were hidden. Finders were keepers and competition was keen. It was a great sight to see. Messrs. J. E. Middleton, Charles Saunders and C. S. Thompson chasing wildly across the grounds hotly followed by excited groups of youngsters for the hidden booty.

Baseball Series.

The feature event of the afternoon was the baseball series for the boys, the older girls, and the men. These were divided into two series, those in the intermediate school and those in the senior division. Four teams were entered in each group with Homer Borland and J. W. Kenmure in charge of the intermediate series in which the teams were entered from the classes of Miss H[illegible], J. W. Kenmure, V. Delahaye, and H. Borland. Trevor Miller and Cecil Wasson handled the senior series. A great deal of fun, and very considerable skill was developed in both series. The results in the intermediate group gave Homer Borland's team first prizes, with a score of 34 runs, with J. W. Kenmure's team second with 22 runs. In the senior division the teams consisted of the Excelsiors, Tuxis Boys and two teams from the Men's Club of the church. This series was very keenly contested, and brought out a lot of clever plays, wild errors, and stiff muscles. The Tuxis Boys were too good for the other three teams and came through with a score of 39 runs in the series. The Men's Club second grade team were next with 27 runs, with the Men's Cluub first line team with 24 runs. The Excelsior Club failed to excel, but secured a lot of fun and 16 runs. Handkerchiefs were given as prizes to the winning team in each series, with ice cream treats for the seconds.

While the soft ball was in progress the children were gathered in groups by some of the teachers and entertained by group games.

The general committee in charge consisted of representatives of a number of organizations in the church. Those in charge of the various activities were as follows:

Chairman, C. S. Thompson; Vice-chairman, Dr. J. E. Middleton; secretary, Miss Helen Burns; sub-committes: Reception, Dr. A. I. Brown, chairman; sports, J. E. Smith, chairman; tennis, Russel Lewis; horseshoes, J. W. Meyers; races, C. H. Saunders; softball, senior, Trevor Miller; intermediate, Homer Borland; children's surprise, Dr. J. E. WAGE CAMPAIGN AGAINST WEEDS

Property Owners Asked to Clear Up Vacant Lots in the City.

ACTION NEEDED.

Weeds are not wanted in Peterborough and the police have orders to see to it that the citizens rid their property of these unsightly plants. Property owners are asked to sally forth with sickles and lawnmowers to clean up their lots of weeds. If this is not done within a few days, the city will send out men to do the neglected job and the respective property owners will be forced to pay the bill for their tardiness.

This is especially aimed at empty lots which have become a garden of weeds. It is further meant to protect the citizen who takes a pride in his property from his careless neighbor's weeds.

"Action is what we want and action is what we demand on the anti-weed campaign," is the mood of the City Council.

LARGE PARADE AT HAVELOCK

Oddfellows From Belleville and Trenton Observe Annual Decoration Day.

COLORFUL AFFAIR

HAVELOCK, June 27 (Examiner Correspondence) — The Havelock Oddfellows' annual decoration day was observed here on Sunday last, when almost every citizen was present at Maple Grove cemetery to honor the memory of the departed brethren. Three units were officially represented in the parade, Belleville and Trenton, as well as the canton. Trenton Oddfellows were in full regalia, and Campbellford band furnished the marching music, and also played the hymns sung during the service at the cemetery. Davis Forde Past Grand, acted as Marshal, led the parade and was followed immediately by the Trenton Canton, the band, Belleville lodge, and Havelock lodge each member bearing a large bouquet to place on the grave of a departed member. Havelock Dorcas Rebeckhas were in waiting at the cemetery gate and joined the Oddfellows in the service.

Rev. P. C. Howard spoke of the splendid spirit shown by the local organizations, which had contributed to the funds for the improvement of the cemetery grounds. Three men employed for a whole week cutting grass, removing dead shrubbery and trimming trees as well as filling in graves and otherwise improving the appearance of the whole grounds.

Rev. J. Lennox of Knox Presbyterian Church gave a splendid address on Immortality. This was followed by an instrumental selection and an address by Ernest Seeney, acting Noble Grand.

Mission Service

The opening service on Sunday last of a two weeks mission being conducted by Messrs. Garner and O'Neill, two pilgrims from the Faith Mission of Great Britain and Ireland, brought such a large number of people to the Mission Hall at Havelock, that it was filled to its utmost capacity. Mr. Garner delivered a very inspiring and instructive address which held his audience interested until the end. He explained the origin of the Mission, and its foundation by the late G. J. Govan of Glasgow 43 years ago. Mr. Govan gave up a remunerative business to devote his full time to preaching and spreading the Gospel in rural and isolated parts of Scotland. The simple beginning flourished, and soon calls came from England and Ireland to send Pilgrims there.

To-day these Pilgrims are known and welcomed in almost every country.

His account of the progress of the Faith Mission was heartily endorsed by Rev. J. Lennox of Knox Presbyterian Church, who came to the Mission Hall immediately after the conclusion of the service in his own church.

Mr. Lennox stated that he was well acquainted with the founder of the Faith Mission, whose work was entirely undenominational. He stated that every denomination is benefitted by the result of their labor.

He also encouraged the two Missionaries, by inviting them to hold their service in his church next Sunday evening at eight o'clock after the regular church service was over. This was because he was aware that the Mission Hall is too small to accommodate the crowds who wish to hear their message. This kind invitation was much appreciated and thankfully accepte dby Messrs. Garner and O'Neill and the Mission Hall workers.

OBITUARY

GEORGE HOARD

STIRLING, June 27.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The sudden death of George Hoard at his sister's, Mrs. Sam Hatton, on Sunday was a shock to relatives and acquaintances. Since the death of his wife which occurred about a year ago. He came from Hoard's Station and made his home with his brother, Branch, in Sidney township, about one and a half miles from the village. Mr. Hoard started alone in his car in his usual health but when nearing the village and not feeling right he drove to his sister's home. A doctor was summoned but nothing could be done. For many years deceased was employed as a section man on the railway and lived at Hoard's. He was 64 years of age, was a Presbyterian in religion and a Conservative in politics. No immediate family survive, but deceased leaves four brothers and two sisters to mourn. A short service was held at Mr. Hatton's on Monday afternoon by Rev. A. N. Reid and Rev. E. W. Rowland. The funeral cortege then proceeded to St. Andrew's Presbyterian church at Burnbrae where a service was held, deceased's pastor, Rev. A. D. Mackenzie being in charge, assisted by Rev. A. N. Reid of St. Andrew's, Stirling, and Rev. J. Shaw of Menie. Interment in Burnbrae cemetery.

KNOWS HIS CATTLE

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, (U.P.)—Difficulties of cattle rustling have become enhanced by the discovery that it is best to examine the animals for identification marks before removing them from their owners' premises. William Woods, of West Jordan, missed two heifers one morning. One of the animals, born during sub-zero weather last winter, had had its ears frozen off. Woods, accompanied by a deputy sheriff, started a tour of inspection, looking for a calf that boasted of no ears. The calf was found, and Arthur Cook, in whose corral the animal was frisking, was escorted to jail and charged with grand larceny.

SCHOOL FAIRS ARE DISCUSSED

STRESSES STOCK EXHIBIT

(Examiner Correspondence)

FLINTON, June 27—Mr. Runions, of Napanee, agricultural representative for the county of Lennox and Addington held a meeting in the Town Hall here on Tuesday evening. The meeting was well attended the hall being filled to overflowing. A large number of children were present as the meeting was held in the interests of Rural School Fair work. Mr. Runions spoke on the fair work in general giving out a good deal of information about the different classes in which entries could be made. He laid special emphasis on the live stock exhibit. He also explained how that ten young men from each county in the Province were being given a trip to Toronto each year to the Royal Winter Fair and said that this year there were 64 entries from this county the largest of any year to date. In the survey made for this work he had discovered that there were 899 young men in the county between sixteen and twenty-five years and 600 between the age of sixteen and twenty. Sixty-four out of the latter group have entered the competition and are now keeping records on some farm operations and out of this number the ten receiving the highest number of marks will be given a free trip to the Ropal Winter Fair to be held in Toronto next winter.

After the address a number of moving pictures were shown and these were much appreciated. The pictures shown were on the following subjects, "Weeds as Food," "Reforestation," Sugar making from the Beet Plant," "Paper manufacturing from Pulp Wood." The last few reels were a bit of humour which the children present enjoyed supremely. The meeting closed with singing the National Anthem.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

WHY WORRY ABOUT THE HEART?

One of the unfortunate things that frequently happens is when a chap goes up for an insurance examination and the doctor seems to spend considerable time in the examination of the heart. He has him stand, sit, lie down, take some exercise, rest for awhile, lie down again during which time he again strikes him with his fingers over the heart.

Perhaps he asks him to come back and he does the whole thing over again.

Now notwithstanding that the company gives him his insurance, which should be reassuring, he immediately begins to worry about his heart.

He may begin to have all sorts of symptoms in regard to the heart. He thinks he feels a soreness, pain, or pressure over the heart region.

Perhaps he begins to count the heart beats and finds that it is beating faster than what is considered normal.

Sometimes the heart seems to stop or miss a beat, and then go on for a time and the same thing occurs again.

Now the whole point in the matter is that a heart is really sound or it is not, and the only way to get the matter settled is to go to your family doctor or to a heart specialist and have the heart examined.

To my mind the well trained doctor is best because knowing the individual and his family he recognizes that he has more than the heart to examine and treat. He has also the mind of the patient to straighten out.

And the first thing the family doctor will do will be to show him how fear anger, apprehension, worry or other emotional disturbance can upset the whole machinery of the body, the heart included.

It is unfair to the patient, and really not true to tell him that he just imagines he has pain, soreness, pressure, missed beats, fast beats and so forth, because as a matter of fact he does have them.

But the point is that it is his own fears, his own emotions that are causing them, not any trouble with the heart itself.

By putting him through a thorough examination and by showing him by work or exercise that his heart is doing its work well, and will continue to do so if he'll stop thinking and worrying about it, the doctor is able to bring about a cure.

A little of this same type of exercise—walking, or slow running—is the best form of treatment to steady the heart beat.

OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

PLUS AND -MINUS.

"That is the very worst child that ever lived. I don't know how I came to have such a dreadful child. I'm surely not as bad as all that."

Well, he had been pretty bad. He had neglected to do his school work and rather than face the teacher who had the reputation, not unearned, for being a tartar, he played truant. Then he stayed away from home. How could he go home when he had not been at school? He slept all night in a vacant house and somebody had him arrested for vagrancy.

Now it isn't very nice to have your son arrested for vagrancy. Although you know well that he isn't a vagrant the idea is very painful. It angers you. It makes you want to do something to somebody if only you knew who and what. You can't do anything but appear in court and claim your vagrant so you explode on him.

It isn't as bad as you think. He isn't a bad boy at all. You can see how it happened. Take things easy. Wait until you can collect your thoughts and count your pulse before you speak. Wait until you can sit down with a pencil and paper and plus and minus your child before you condemn him as the worst in the town, or even on the block.

Let's see. He is intelligent. Plus for that. He is healthy. Plus for that. He is cheerful and kind and people like him a lot. He never forgets to carry his grandmother's cup of coffee to her room in the morning. Plus that with an extra. He tells the truth most of the time. That's a great plus in his favor. If he doesn't, most of the time, then you have to minus him for it, but make certain. Go over him carefully and then balance those plus and minus signs and see how good he really is.

You know you don't half remember what you did when you were a boy or a girl. You think you do but your mother and father could tell you things that would astonish you. You hated to remember them so you pushed them down deep into the depths of your unconscious mind and there they lie buried. But you can remember enough to make you consider a little. Maybe the child isn't so bad after all. Maybe he isn't a vagrant, or a bad boy, or an unmitigated nuisance, or a pest, after all. It is easy to label an annoying child but the label needn't stick, you know.

There is a good side to every child. There are times when it is hard struggling to get a glimpse of it. I know. But it is always there. Sometimes it is submerged temporarily by the flotsam and jetsam of growth but you can pull it topside up by getting out your pencil and setting down the plus and minus accounts, every time.

Goodness needs an audience. When the children are good nobody seems to see them. Let them do the least thing out of the way and the whole village is looking on at once and speaking their minds about it. Who could be good for any length of time when by being bad, one is elevated above the crowd? Give audience to goodness and make use of the plus and minus signs once in a while and you will find things looking up again.

MUSICAL EVENT INTERESTING

W. A. Newcourt Gives Organ Recital at Campbellford—Pupils Assist.

MRS. C. J. WINDRIM SOLOIST

CAMPBELLFORD, June 27.—(By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—An interesting feature in the musical life of Campbellford was staged on Tuesday evening, when William A. Newcourt, L.C.C.M., A.L.C.M., organist of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, was heard in recital, assisted by two of his pupils, Miss Mary McGregor, organ, and Miss Rena Thomson, piano, and Mrs. C. J Windrim, soprano soloist.

The audience which gathered in St. Andrew's church, listened with interest to many compositions played by Mr. Newcourt, covering a wide range of interpretation and expression.

Mrs. Windrim, who is a gold medalist, was in her usual fine voice. She sang a wide range of numbers, from Negro Spiritual to the classic renditions that are among the songs that people love, and was accorded hearty encores.

Miss McGregor, who is a pupil of Mr. Newcourt's, showed her ability as an organist. Her perfect control of the instrument and her sympathetic interpretation was appreciated by the audience. Miss Thomson, at the piano, was also a delight to the listeners. Also a pupil of Mr. Newcourt's, she had a delightful touch, and played with the deep understanding of one to whom music is an urge.

The program was as follows:

Mr. W. A. Newcourt, 'Sonata in Eb Minor", the first three movements (a) "Preludio" (b) "Intermezzo", (c) "Marcia Religious", Joseph Rheinberger; "Priere," Cesar Franch; "Prayer", (b) "March and Chorus from the Tannhauser", Richard Wagner. Mrs. C. J. Windrim—"Goin' Home", Negro Spiritual, Anton Dvorak; "The Princess," E. C. Greig; "God Remembers When the World Forgets," Carrie Jacobs Bond; "Sleepy Old Street in a Sleepy Old Town," Mary Nightingale. Miss Mary McGregor—Chorale, "So Fervently I Long For Thee", I. S. Bach; "Offortorie in A, op 39, No. 2, Alexander Guilmart; "An Evening Meditation," C. Demarest. Miss Rena Thomson—'Sonatino in C", Clementi; "Consolation", F. Mendelssohn; "Solfegietto", Philip E. Bach.

APPRECIATIVE WORDS act like a tonic!

• • • • • • •

They tone up the system of a worker and anyone who does a gracious service, and make them feel light-hearted. And when one is light-hearted tasks are easier to do!

• • • • • •

Hard work becomes less arduous, more can be accomplished in a short time by a person so buoyed up, and with less fatgue, than when the worker is depressed, or when she feels her efforts are not satisfying to her family or her employer.

• • • • • •

The stimuulant of approbation for good work is a delight to get, and it is scarcely less of a joy to speak the cheerful words that are well-merited!

• • • • • •

If the words are to do the most good it is not enough to say them to the person who is faithfully performing a task in a pleasant manner.

• • • • • •

There is another way that the praise can be given that may react to the benefit of the worker. So do not stop with saying a kind word to the person but also express your satisfaction to the one higher up who is the supervisor or employer.

• • • • • •

Every employer is glad to hear good words about his employees. Such praise may mean a raise to a higher position, an increase in salary, and perhaps, both!

• • • • • •

Such words are valuable! They bring the person praised to the mind of the one higher up, and let him know he has a worker who is giving such good satisfaction to customers that attention is called to some especially meritorious act or courtesy.

• • • • • •

It is impossible to estimate the value of appreciative words said to the right person. Fulsome praise, extravagant expressions or approbation, and anything that savors of flattery makes little or no impression on either the person herself, or on an employer.

• • • • • •

The words, written or spoken, must ring true!

• • • • • •

They must be sincere for then only do they carry weight. It is when good service is rendered and is called to the attention of the right person higher up, as well as spoken of to the one who does it, that a double value results.

At Notikewin, Alberta, where a survey discloses three hundred homesteads occupied by families and bachelors, the United Church's home missionary board is dedicating this church and manse on July 6th, with Dr. R. B. Cochrane, Secretary of the Board, preaching. The new community is located seventy-five miles north of Peace River, nearest station on the Northern Alberta Railways. The buildings are on skids, to be easily moved if the railway should pass to either side of the present townsite.

MUSIC RECITAL IS CREDIT TO PUPILS

Large Audience Listens to Program Provided By Students of R. Gliddon.

(By Jeanette).

An interesting recital by the piano pupils of R. Gliddon, director of the Conservatory of Music, was given in the hall of the Conservatory last evening, when a very appreciative audience listened to a program of lovely music. The selections were of the graceful type that Mr. Gliddon chooses for his pupils and were played with the soft, melodious tone and delicate interpretation that he imparts to his students.

Several of the pupils were of junior years, and all played from memory with easy composure and confident technique. They displayed a free wrist movement that made their music facile and smooth and all had a well-developed round, rich tone.

The major effort of the evening was the playing of a Mendelssohn Concerto by Miss Musa Cox, with Miss Elizabeth Webber providing a fine background at the second piano.

This was beautifully rendered. Full of the emotional feeling that the great composer interjected into his compositions, with its clear design never obscured by chromatic interruptions, with its florid yet rich harmony and melody, it was adequately interpreted by Miss Cox, who plays with a largeness in execution, a free, individual and sweeping mode and a brilliant spontaneity that makes her music charming and holding. The smooth andante, the dreamy adagio and the brisk presto movements flowed with ease from the skilful fingers.

As solo numbers, Miss Cox played later two fetching morceaux in the French manner: Esprit du Soir, by Dennee, and Foldini's March Mignonne. These were bright, fanciful cameos of sparkling tone and vivacious atmosphere.

Pleasing Program.

The program opened with a pretty rendition of a Dussex Sonatina in G Major, played very skilfully by Margaret Corkery. A gracefully sweet composition by Godowski, a transcription of "Last Hope," with a rolling, smooth bass against a rippling treble, was a fascinating bit of music, played by Ann Donoghue.

Russell Rowan, whose careful and interesting interpretation of pianoforte music makes his playing most attractive, had two very pleasing numbers: Grainger's Country Garden, with its light, descriptive tone, and Mendelssohn's lovely composition, "On Wings of Song," soft, dreamy, expressive melody.

Hazel Whitred played very nicely the well-known composition, Two Larks of Leschetizky, and Ruth McQuade's number was Liszt's Cantique d'Amour, both attractive and well-rendered selections.

A cornet solo by Harold Wilson was an attractive addition to the pianoforte program. With soft, smooth, round tone, he played Rollinson's Song of the Roses, accompanied by Miss E. Webber.

Other pupils who were unable to be present were Miss Mildred Morphet, Barbara Dawson, Janet Wright and Arnold Bates.

The stage was prettily arranged with tall lighted floor lamps and large bowls filled with peonies and mock orange blossoms.

Peplum Motif Lend Distinction to This Afternoon Frock

The peplum motif receives unusual treatment in this afternoon frock in bright blue tulle. The border of red and white beads on the full peplum holds it out away from the body as effectively as if it were wired, and gives a most charming effect. A tassel of beads appears on the loose ends of the collar and also of the girdle.

MONS DOGS ARE NOMINATED FOR HERO AWARD

Other Awards Are Announced By Spratt's Dog Hero Committee.

FIVE FROM ONTARIO.

Simmons' Dogs Awakened the Sleeping Family When Home Was Burning.

NEW YORK, June 27.—Two pet dogs of Peterborough, Ontario, who sacrificed their lives in warning William Simmons of that city and six members of his family of the flames which were sweeping through the house, were included in the list of those eligible for the national gold medal award for canine heroism by the Spratt's Dog Hero Award Committee here yesterday. The committee, composed of Frank P. Dole, dog expert of the New York Herald-Tribune; William A. Bruette, editor of Forest and Stream; and Frank B Rutherford, operative manager of the Pennsylvania, S.P.C.A., will announce the winner of the medal on July 1.

In addition to Peterborough's dog heroes, three other Ontario dogs are included in the list, comprised of scores of dogs in the U. S. and Canada who have distinguished themselves during the six months covered by the present award.

"King", a large police dog, mascot of a Brockville drillboat crew, displayed unusual canine intelligence when he dived beneath the surface of the St. Lawrence to bring up Jack Wylie who was drowning.

Mrs. Frank Cogan of Windsor owes her life and that of her two children to "Pat", an airedale terrier, who scratched on his mistress's bedroom door to warn her of the blasts of flame which were issuing from the lower part of the house. In Toronto, the white Pomeranian of Mrs. F. Warren sounded the fire alarm in the New Grange Apartments by barking. The occupants of the building owe their lives to the dog, whose insistence resulted in the timely arrival of firemen to extinguish the blaze.

Returning For Sunday's Services

Ensign and Mrs. Green, who will conduct the services in the Salvation Army Temple on Sunday. Ensign Green, who is now Adjutant, was in charge of the Peterboro Corps for several years.

Chief Warns Against Playing With Matches

Children playing with matches caused a fire in a clothes-closet at 328 Downing street yesterday afternoon at 5.06. The alarm was turned in from box 115 and the prompt arrival of the firemen prevented serious damage.

Chief Gimblett called attention to the parents of the community to the necessity of keeping matches out of the reach of yourg children. Not only because of possible damage to property but because of the danger of actual physical harm to the children themselves must this be observed, pointed out Chief Gimblett.

"Good, now she'll have something to wear."

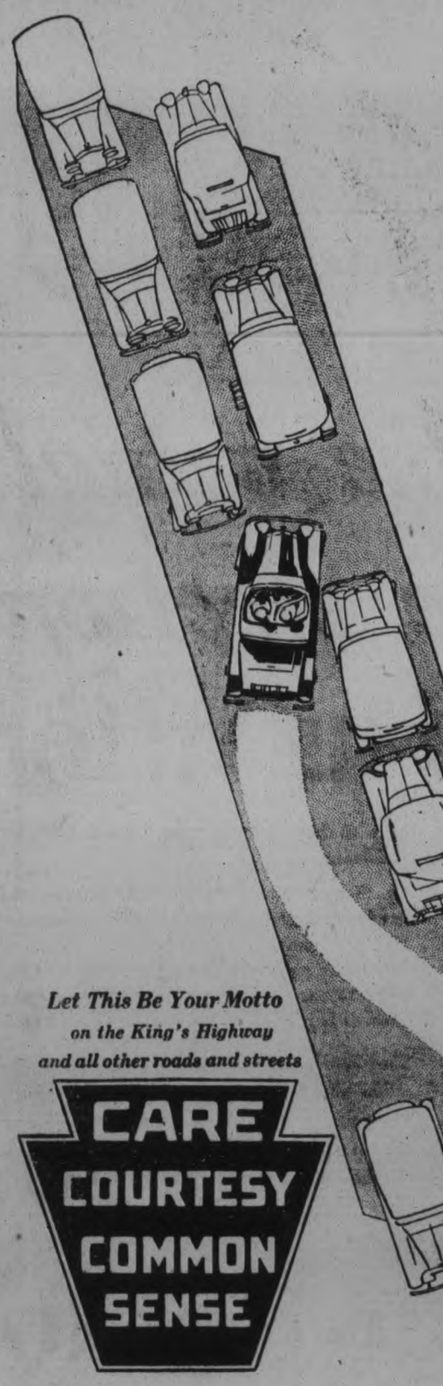
Don't "Cut in"!

Avoid this dangerous practice on the highway. It's an offence and a frequent cause of accidents.



YOU needn't be travelling at an excessive speed to be classed as a reckless driver. "Cutting in" when the road ahead is not clear is reckless, even though you are driving below the speed limit.

A fundamental of safe driving is never to pass another car unless the road ahead is clear, and there is a space in the traffic line which you can easily reach before you meet on-coming cars. If you ignore this, sooner or later you will have an accident. Traffic officers are particularly vigilant for this class of offender.

Passing the car ahead on a curve, near the crest of a steep grade, or at any other place where the view ahead is partially obscured, may result in a "side swipe" . . . one of the most serious of motor accidents.

If another driver tries to pass you, LET HIM PASS. Don't race. That's against the law, too. You may squeeze him out of a place in the traffic line. He may be caught by a car approaching in the opposite direction. If he is, you are as much to blame as the driver who tried to pass you.

The Highway Safety Committee appeals to you, and every other user of the highway at all times to do the utmost in your power to avoid accidents. During this week-end traffic will be heavier. Do not let your holiday enthusiasm over-ride your sense of caution.

Let This Be Your Motto on the King's Highway and all other roads and streets

Seven Rules for Safe Driving...

You must observe them and ALL other precautions ALL the time

1. Have your car in perfect mechanical condition—particularly BRAKES, STEERING GEAR and HEADLIGHTS.
2. GIVE YOUR UNDIVIDED ATTENTION TO YOUR DRIVING. In passing traffic, be sure there is a place for you in the traffic line ahead.
3. Never attempt to pass on curves or steep grades.
4. In entering main streets or highways, or in approaching a railway crossing where a full view of the track is obscured—STOP and LOOK.
5. When other vehicles try to pass you—LET THEM PASS.
6. When making a right turn, keep to the right of the highway; when making a left turn, keep to the centre.
7. Always SIGNAL before you slow down, stop, or change your course, and never BACK UP before ascertaining that the road behind is clear.

DUTY OF CANADIAN YOUNG MEN PROTECT FORESTS SAYS R. R. HALL

Kinsmen Club Holds Last Dinner Meeting of Season.

FINE ADDRESS GIVEN.

"We must see to it that there is an educated public opinion to insure the preservation of our forest wealth" declared R. R. Hall, K.C., addressing the season's final dinner of the Kinsmen Club at the Emmpress Hotel last night.

Mr. Hall stated that it was peculiarly the duty of the young men of the nation to see that the tremendous annual loss due to forest fires to wasteful cutting, and faulty pruning was curbed. Declaring that one million three hundred thousand acres of forest land were destroyed by fire in Canada every year and that it took a hundred years or more to recover this in the case of hard timber. Mr. Hall said: "A generation's waste may take four generations to recover. We in North America have not taken care of our trees as they have in Europe, where 500 years of lumbering have left fine forests."

The beauty of Peterborough, Mr. Hall pointed out, had been declared by visitors to lie very largely in the city's fine ornamental shade trees. Yet, observed the speaker, the results of faulty pruning and the hacking of limbs could be seen througout the city to-day. Cancer was attacking and killing trees which, if properly cared for, would have stood as things of beauty and utility for years to come.

Take Warning From U.S.

The provinces of Canada, taking warning from the plight of the United States, was carrying on vast reforestation schemes, continued Mr. Hall. A hundred and fifty years ago the forest resources of the U.S. had been termed "almost inexhaustable." To-day three-fifths of the original timber in that country were gone. the nation was using timber four times as fast as it could be produced, and looking to Canada for the bulk of its supply. Six hundred million dollars a year was Canada's revenue from her forest wealth. Her newsprint production alone was equal to that of twelve of the world's leading nations.

In such districts as Manvers and Cavan it was imperative that the pine forests be preserved. "The land is not fit for farming, unless a man wants to work all day and then starve" declared Mr. Hall. Reforestation here was a necessity. Our province was doing excellent work in planting seven million trees a year. Quebec was planting ten million. The pulp and paper companies were more than performing their share in keeping the supply constant.

"The place of the tree in the happiness and prosperity of mankind is one of history's most striking lessons" concluded Mr. Hall.

The speaker was introduced by G. Wilson Craw, who stressed the fine public service Mr. Hall had rendered the people of Peterborough, whom he had served so long and faithfully in a public capacity. Alex. L. Elliott, President of the Kinsmen Club presided.

Empire Bank Note Is Suggested By Amery

LONDON, England, June 27.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—The suggestion that an Empire bank note issue might be made to obviate the use of gold as a medium of inter-Empire trade, thus conserving the yellow metal for the Empire's external trade was made in the House of Commons yesterday by the Rt. Hon. L. C. S. Amery, formerly Secretary of State for the Dominions. Mr. Amery was speaking on behalf of the Conservatives in the debate arising out of submission for the estimates for the Dominion office.

Ex-Czar Returns

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

Mr. Gordon's "exposure". of the President of the local Liberal-Conservative Association is of such a character that either Mr. Matthews must resign or Mr. Gordon go to gaol. The law of defamation at election time is now as strict as it was formerly loose.

There is no way of bluffing this thing off. It is either true or not true and surely comes under the Criminal Code. It undoubtedly amounts to a charge of fraud. The Conservative party must also clear its skirts. It has been drifting a bit of late.

When Mr. Peck called a meeting and announced his coming candidature to head off anybody else his reputation for modesty fell away several points. It began to look as if he could look after himself and say a few words for himself but not for his constituency or for the country. To be popular of course, it is better to let everything else go to pot than make an enemy for oneself. But if what Mr. Gordon says is true, Mr. P. will have to look to his laurels.

Cantrell Triumphs Over Orioles for 7-3 Victory

EVEN BREAK FOR TORONTO BIRD SERIES

Defeat Sends Orioles Into Half Game Lead Over Rochester.

GET SEVENTEEN HITS.

Home Run By Collins Wins 2-1 Victory For Wings From Skeeters.

BALTIMORE, June 27.—Guy Cantrell's right-handed slants proved too puzzling for the Baltimore Orioles, and Toronto scored a 7-3 victory here yesterday to even the series. The defeat sent the Orioles into a half-game lead over Rochester, which club downed Jersey City. In scoring his third straight victory over Baltimore in as many starts this season, Cantrell, a former Baltimore hurler, kept 12 hits well scattered. In every inning except the sixth was Cantrell in trouble. The Leafs moundsman showed his best in the pinches and he sent eight back via the strike-out route.

Toronto pounded the offerings of three Oriole pitchers—Foster Edwards, Monte Weaver and Fritz Coumbe—for 17 safe blows. Edwards lasted three and Weaver was driven out in the sixth. The veteran Coumbe stopped the scoring after he ascended the peak.

There was a number of happenings throughout the contest.

First, Joe Rabbitt was ejected from the Toronto dugout by Manager Steeve O'Neill for fighting with Pitcher "Hoot" Gibson when the latter remarked about Rabbitt being replaced by Petrie to start the fourth inning after fanning.

Second, Umpire Westervelt was over come by the heat and went out in the sixth inning, which forced Umpire Derr to handle the balls and strikes and also the bases.

Third, the removal of Catcher Hugh McMullen of Baltimore by Umpire Derr for protesting over his decision in calling the batter out on strikes. Anything was liable to happen so hot was it during the contest.

3 OUT OF 4 FOR WINGS.

JERSEY CITY, June 27. — The Rochester Red Wings made it three out of four by taking the final game of the series from the Jersey City Skeeters here yesterday by a score of 2 to 1.

Pitcher Berly, on the mound for the Red Wings allowed the Skeeters but five hits. "Rip" Collins hit his seventeenth home run of the season over the right field fence in the seventh inning, and the drive proved to be the winning margin, the Pests getting to Berly for a run in their half of the same inning.

BEARS DEMORALIZED.

NEWARK, June 27.— Montreal Royals defeated the Newark Bears here this afternoon by a 10 to 5 score The Bears apparently demoralized by the resignation of their manager, Tris Speaker, played listless ball, and were easy victims of the Royals. Jack Onslow, who has been acting as coach under the regime of Speaker, was appointed acting manager by President Sinnott just before the game. Griffin and Buckalew pitched for the Royals, while Parmelee, Petty and Harvin bent them over for the Bears.

LIPTON HAS GOOD CHANCE OF LIFTING CUP

The feeling is growing among yachtsmen that this time Sir Thomas Lipton has a real chance to lift the America's Cup with his latest Shamrock. True enough, Sir Tom has only one boat to back up his challenge to America, and she has to face the pick of four new ones by the best in America, but the Nicholson boat has been showing her heels consistently to White Heather, Cambria, and other smart English flyers that he must be conceded a chance this year. The photo above shows Shamrock V. passing the lightship off Cork going out to one of her trials. Of course, the inset is of the famous tea merchant and sportsman.

BILL CLYMER MAY SUCCEED SPEAKER AS NEWARK PILOT

CHANGE NEEDED.

NEWARK, N.J., June 27.—With the resignation of Tris Speaker Wednesday as manager of the Newark Bears, Bill Clymer loomed to-day as his successor. It is understood that Paul Block, owner of the Newark club, who demanded Speaker's resignation, has approved of Clymer, and it will be necessary to reach a salary agreement. Clymer, who recently resigned as manager of the Buffalo club, is still drawing salary and will continue to do so for the remainder of the season, but he probably would be willing to release the Buffalo officials from the obligations of the contract if he can get a two-year contract with Newark.

"I had a conference with the officials of the club to-day, and we decided that a change in the management might be beneficial to the club. After having made a satisfactory settlement, I am leaving to make room for the change, although I could have continued until the end of the season if I had desired."

Speaker seemed jubilant, and, while he has no plans for the future, he says he does not intend to quit baseball. He and Mrs. Speaker intend to take a vacation, golfing around the country.

It is understood that Speaker received a salary of $20,000 a year as manager of the Bears, and in effecting a settlement he was paid in full. Until his successor is named, Coach Jack Onslow will have charge of the team.

DOEG AND LOTT WIN TWO HARD MATCHES

U. S. Doubles Champions Encounter Stiff Opposition at Wimbledon.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 27.—(CP Cable)—While the men's singles, which provide the most spectacular of the Wimbledon tennis fare, were missing from the courts yesterday, the men's doubles furnished some close and thrilling matches. There was a good gallery including some notables of the nobility, who are growing more interested in the tournament as the players begin to be weeded out.

Johnny Doeg and George Lott, United States doubles champions, played two matches. They defeated V. A. Cazalet and J. C. Masterman of Britain, 8—6, 13—11, 7—5. Later in the day they had a real battle on their hands when they met the Indian team, F. R. L. Crawford and G. E. M. de St. Croix. The score in this case was 6—0, 1—6, 6—4, 5—7, 6—3.

Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn opened the defence of their Wimbledon title by beating E. C. Metcalfe and A. W. Vinall, 6—2, 6—3, 6—0. Berkeley Bell and Gregory Mangin, also of the U. S., defeated Count Salm von Hoegstraten of Austria, and Burr, England, 6—4, 7—5, 6—4. "Big Bill" Tilden won two doubles matches. In each case he was paired with a European, and won both easily.

FOULING FRISCOES HAVE JUST ABOUT FINISHED BOXING GAME

New York Sports Writer Says Heavyweights Not Classed as Boxers.

MORE PRIZE FIGHTERS.

NEW YORK, June 27.—The dear old boxing business was tottering again yesterday.

Writers were "viewing with alarm," promoters were looking concerned, and the jolly little managers were wondering if there are any other kind of rackets that would make the same maximum of return for the same minimum of effort.

It seems that the fouling of Primo Carnera by George Godfrey is regarded as about the last straw. Every big heavyweight bout this year has ended in a foul or a claim of foul. There is a general feeling that something should be done about it, and the first thing that comes to mind is a major operation.

Cut out the whole business, and let the boys go back to their trucks or their wheelbarrows or whatever it is they used to do before they became prominent personages and examples for the youth of the land.

Heavies Not Boxers.

With rare exception, heavyweights are not boxers. There is nothing faintly reminiscent of boxing in seeing two huge brutes smash at each other until one or the other falls. Spider Kelly, the greatest of all seconds, used to say that the chief requisite of a good heavyweight was the ability to take a punch. In the average heavyweight fight, the first man that lands solidly generally wins.

Boxing is an exhibition of skill and grace and courage. The first requisite of a boxer is speed. He must be able to move fast with legs and arms. That eliminates the heavyweights without going any further, their size and weight making boxing a physical impossibility.

There have been exceptions. James J. Corbett was a world's heavyweight champion who could really box. Gene Tunney could box. The rest of them are chiefly noted for their ability to hit.

On the face of it, heavyweight matches should be advertised as prize fights, and not exhibitions of boxing. It is an admitted fact that people who attend heavyweight matches are disappointed if they fail to end in knock outs, and knockouts are few and far between in the smaller divisions.

There is no complaint about the smaller fighters. Now and then something goes wrong, but in the main the little fellows give the public a run for its money.

There are two solutions of the problem. One is to abolish heavyweights entirely, and the other is to insert clauses in every heavyweight contract calling for rest periods in the event of low punching.

CITY LEAGUE GAMES OVER THE WEEK-END

Junior Battle in Exhibition Park To-morrow Afternoon— Juvenile Tilt To-night.

Junior baseball fans are promised a good treat here to-morrow afternoon when the Kiwanis juniors and East City H.N. tangle in a city league at Exhibition grounds at 2.30.

Deannard has worked in some good practices this week and both teams are on their toes for to cop this victory.

Weather permitting the Kiwanis juveniles and Browntown Royals mix it to-night in what promises to be a sterling battle in James Stevenson Park at 6.30 sharp.

FAVORITES FAIL AT POUGHKEEPSIE

Cornell, Syracuse and M. I. T. Finish in That Order in College Regatta.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 27.—A gallant Cornell Varsity crew rowed to victory over eight rivals in the Inter-collegiate regatta yesterday, driving the dope of the experts deeper into the gleaming river with each decisive bite of eight hard-swung oars. Three lengths behind, while the whistles of hundreds of river craft and the cheers of some 100,000 spectators on the high banks acclaimed the victors, came Syracuse, another dark horse, with Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the darkest of them all, third, five lengths away.

Thus, three outsiders, rowing with a rare combination of skill and courage into the teeth of a brisk wind and through choppy, silver spray, completely outclassed the vaunted Varsity eights which had been favored to sweep the river.

Seldom, if ever, has an Intercollegiate regatta been featured by such complete disaster to the favorites. The Navy Varsity crew was favored to win and sank before reaching the finish, after rowing in the last division almost all the way. California finished fourth, ahead of the two other favorites, Columbia and Washington, which were fifth and sixth respectively.

Cornell's winning time was 21 minutes 42 seconds, as compared with the record of 18 minutes 35 4-5 seconds established by California in 1928.

Miss Sharp has come to Canada to compete in the C.N.E. marathon at Toronto.

SPALDING FINAL ON SATURDAY

IMPORTANT BATTLE.

One of the most important soccer finals will be played on Saturday afternoon between the Canadian Packing and the Brinton Athletic for possession of the Spalding Trophy, on Brinton grounds, opposite the works. Kick off at three o'clock. Alexander McKinley has kindly consented to act in the capacity of referee for this match.

In all probability the Packers will rely on the same eleven that came through the stiff encounter on Wednesday, and it reads thus: C. Griffin, goal; J. Cross and R. Downer, full backs; J. Wade, J. Buchans, and A. Bromley, halves; N. Downer, A. Beggs R. Preston, J. Willshaw and T. Foster, forwards. Reserves: W. Rickard, W. McCracken, T. Williams.

A few changes will take place in the composition of the Brinton team and they expect to strengthen the forward line, where a weakness was shown the other night: W. Curtis, goal; F. Lucas and D. Green, full backs; A. E. Baylis, T. Westwood and J. Sharman, halves; W. Mayette or A. Robertson, H. Hotson, W. James, J. Anderson and A. Boon, forwards. Reserves: J. Tait and R. Taylor.

At the conclusion of the game, the president will present the cup to the captain of the winning eleven. Also the prizes that will be awarded for the final of this trophy will be settled according to the arrangements made by the executive. First prize, an Axminster Mat; second prize, an Automobile Rug; third prize, Quarter Ton Coal.

The referee has full jurisdiction over the following rules, and players must abide by them. He has full power of ordering a player off the field without previous caution.

This match is on Brinton grounds, not King Edward park.

DUKE OF YORK ATTENDS MATCH

HOBBS IN POOR FORM.

LONDON, June 27. (C.P.) — With a great crowd looking on, including the Duke of York, the second cricket test match between England and Australia got under way here to-day at Lord's. England batted first and at the lunch interval had lost three wickets for 129 runs, men out being Jack Hobbs, Frank Woolley and Wally Hammond. Hobbs was not in his best form to-day, scoring only a single, though Woolley, who made 41, and Hammond 38, kept the Australian batsmen in check after their early success in beating Hobbs so easily.

New York Fans Pulling For Gotham Favorites

Bob Shawkey's New York Yankees have found themselves in about as touch a spot as any club could hope to avoid at the present stage of the American League peninant race, but a lot of New York fans still feel that their old pitching favorite will pilot the team to the championship or something very close to it.

The Yanks are staggering along in third place, having a lot of trouble winning some games and romping through others, and they find they must keep on winning one way or another or they will be left behind in the race. Their most important rivals, the Philadelphia Athletics and Washington Senators, are going at a pace that will permit no letdowns. The New Yorkers have won seven out of their last ten games without improving their position a bit for in the same time, Washington and Philadelphia have each won eight out of ten. The current state of the struggle is that the Athletics are a game and one-half ahead of the Senators with the Yankees another half game back.

FIERY ADDRESS FINISHES KING'S MARITIME TOUR

Liberals Given Credit For Old Age Pension Measure.

BOOSTED INDIES TRADE.

Increased Prosperity Direct Cause of New Zealand Butter Importation.

ST. John, N.B., June 27.—(By Ray Brown, C. P. Correspondent.)— Old age pensions, development of trade with the West Indies, and the Australian and New Zealand treaties found prominent place in Premier Mackenzie King's final Maritime Province speech here last night. It was a fighting speech.

Declaring that already there had been misrepresentation of imposition on old age pensions, the Prime Minister summarized the Government's accomplishment in this regard.

Liberals Responsible.

"It was a Liberal Government that brought in old age pensions," asserted Mr. King with emphasis, while his audience cheered. "It was a Liberal Government that passed the old age pensinon legislation. It was a Conservative majority in the Senate that threw it out. It was a Liberal Government which passed it through Parliament and under which it becomes effective.

Mr. King asserted that Conservative speakers should not "deceive the old people." This declaration drew a round of applause. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Opposition leader, knew perfectly well that he could not bring in Federal old age pension without an amendment to the Canadian constition, continued the Premier. The Government of Canada stood ready to contribute dollar for dollar to every province which passed an old age pension law.

"I was much amused and a little surprised," continued Mr. King, "to read in the newspaper that Premier Rhodes said that if the Federal Government could contribute fifty per cent of the cost of Old Age Pensions, it should give ninety-nine per cent. The Nova Scotia Premier was a lawyer, and for that reason he had not said that the Federal Government should contribute 100 per cent," added Mr. King. "He (Mr. Rhodes) knew that if the Federal Government gave one hundred per cent. that meant Federal administration, which was unconstitutional.

New Ships Foster Trade

Out of the port of Saint John sailed the fine, new steamers which the Government had placed on the seas to develop and foster new trade with the West Indies, Mr. King told his great audience. The establishment of this line of steamships was just one of the things which had been done to promote West Indian-Canadian Trade. And the policy of the Government had resulted in a great increase of trade with these islands. Trade valued at $27,868,000 in the fiscal year 1921-22 had grown to $41,000,000 last year. Provisions of the Budget, taking fruit from the West Indies free under the British preference had established a friendly feeling for Canada in the islands. Already Bermuda had responded in a practical manner, and the other islands would probably follow suit.

Increased prosperity in Canada was the direct cause of New Zealand butter importations, Mr. King asserted. He said that Canada had derived great benefit from the Australia treaty, and that exports of goods under that agreement had resulted in more work for Canadian workmen.

A BEDTIME STORY

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S HIDE OUT.

"Bunty! Bunty! Where are you, Baby Bunty?"

Uncle Wiggily was hopping around his garden looking for the little orphan rabbit child. He had taken her with him to look at the giant head of lettuce growing on a sunny hill at the far end of the garden. After he had hopped in a sort of ring around the rosie all about his big, green giant lettuce, Mr. Longears came back to where he had left Baby Bunty, but she was gone.

He couldn't see her anywhere. And, what is more, Baby Bunty didn't answer when he called her name.

"I'll try once more!" thought the Uncle bunny. He looked at the loose, outer leaves of his big head of lettuce. They were waving and nodding in the wind and Uncle Wiggily thought he heard a sound like laughter.

"Bunty! Bunty!" called Uncle Wiggily "Where are you?"

Then, all of a sudden, a voice answered. "Here I am, Unkie Wig!" and out from inside the nest of green lettuce leaves hopped the little orphan rabbit. "Ha! Ha!" she laughed. "Didn't I have a nice hide out, Unkie Wig?"

"A hide out—what do you mean?" asked Mr. Longears.

"Oh, when we play games," said Bunty, "we look for places to hide and that's a hide out. I was hiding inside the loose, outside leaves of your giant head of lettuce. Didn't you see me peeking at you?"

"No," said Uncle Wiggily with a smile that made his pink nose twinkle, "I didn't see you, and I was afraid you were lost, Bunty."

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the little orphan bunny, "I was only hiding out in your giant head of lettuce; wasn't I?" she asked the big, green vegetable.

"I was very glad to let you hide in my big leaves, Bunty. I hope you don't mind the little joke, Uncle Wiggily," the lettuce answered. "You have been so kind to me, loosening the earth around my roots and bringing me water when I was dry, so I could grow into a giant, that I would feel sorry if you thought you didn't like Bunty's trick that I helped her play on you."

"Oh, I don't mind in the least," chuckled Mr. Longears. "And I'm glad I have such a giant lettuce in my garden that a rabbit can hide among the leaves. Now, Bunty, it's time you hopped on to school."

"All right, Unkie Wig!" said Bunty as she kissed him before she skipped away. "This is the last week of school before the summer vacation and I'm glad. After Friday I can come and hide in your big lettuce any time I want, can't I?"

"If you don't break off the leaves," Uncle Wiggily said.

So Uncle Wiggily waved his paw to Bunty, who hopped off to school. The rabbit gentleman then went to look for an adventure and the big head of lettuce kept on growing larger and larger.

Every day Uncle Wiggily hopped down to the end of his garden to see if his vegetable needed any water and, if it did, he brought it in his tall, silk hat which was like a sprinkling can.

One day, just after Mr. Longears had watered his giant lettuce, he heard a rustling noise in the bed of carrots back of him, and out hopped the Fuzzy Fox.

"Ah, ha!" barked the Fox. "I am in luck to-day! I've got you now, Unlie Wiggily! You must come with me to my den!"

"Ah! Must I go?" sadly asked the rabbit.

"Yes, you must!" said the Fox. "I am bigger and stronger than you and if you don't come I'll drag you!"

"Alas! Alas!" sighed Uncle Wiggily. "This will be the end of me, I know. Once the Fox gets me to his den he and his friends, the Bob Cat and Wolf, will nibble me all up—all up!" Then Uncle Wiggily thought of how Baby Bunty had hid out, for fun, inside the big head of lettuce.

"If Bunty did that in fun I can do it in earnest," thought the rabbit. So he said to the Fox: "Before you take me away will you let me hop around my big head of lettuce to bid it good-by?"

"Yes, you may do that," growled the Fox. "Be quick about it!"

Uncle Wiggily hopped around to the other side of the lettuce, where the Bad Chap could not see him.

"Quick now! Jump inside me!" whispered the lettuce, opening wide its leaves. Uncle Wiggily jumped in, the lettuce closed its leaves over the bunny gentleman, hiding him from sight and Mr. Longears kept still.

"Where are you! I'm waiting!" barked the Fox. Unlie Wiggily did not answer. "I'm coming to get you!" howled the Fox. Uncle Wiggily, in his queer hide out, never said a word. Around the lettuce ran the Fox. Around and around. But he couldn't find the rabbit so well was he hidden.

"Bah! Fooled again!" growled the Fox as he ran to his den and the rabbit then hopped safely out from inside his giant head of lettuce that had so cleverly hidden him.

FLOOD DANGER SLIGHT

HELENA, Mont., (U.P.)—Flood danger in Montana virtually has passed and unless unforeseen weather develops, the state will be free from serious inundations this year, according to W. A. Lamb, chief engineer of the United States Geological survey. Authorities do not anticipate any floods comparable with the disastrous inundation that caused heavy damage and loss of life at Wibaux, Mont. last June.

TRAINS WRECKED BY HEAVY FLOOD

Engine No. Derailed

The engineer ran his engine which had not been derailed, into Capreol where he reported the accident and a relief train carrying the superintendent and assistant superintendent, two doctors, all available nurses and employees with first aid experience was despatched to the scene.

The relief train returned to Capreol at 1.15 a.m., the statement said, and the injured are being cared for in the hospital quarters of the railway Y.M.C.A. The uninjured passengers also were taken to Capreol and are being cared for by the company.

A relief train consisting of day coaches, sleeping cars and dining car was despatched from Toronto at about 2 a.m. but because of the derailment of train No. 3 at Sudbury Junction, it will not be able to reach Capreol until No. 3 has been rerailed, the statement said. Inquiry was then made by officials of the company to see if it would be possible to bring the passengers from Capreol by busses to Sudbury, but it was reported the highways are impassable with water three feet deep over the roads at a number of points.

Ran Into Washout

Train No. 401 was derailed at 4.15 this morning when it ran into a washout at a point 16 miles east of Capreol, derailing the engine and nine cars. Firemen McLeod died from injuries, while engineer McDonald, after being released from the wreckage was taken to Capreol.

Auxiliaries were immediately despatched from Capreol, Hornepayne and North Bay and it is expected by railway officials that at least one of these lines will be open some time to-day. Meantime Winnipeg-Toronto trains on the C.N.R. are being routed via North Bay and Cochrane.

One Body Recovered

According to dispatches from North Bay, the engine, baggage car and observation car were the only units of Train No. 4 to escape being carried into the flood waters. Only one body has been recovered from the tourist car in which the four children lost their lives, and has been taken to Capreol.

Little Helen Nedderburn was on the way to Toronto to visit her grandmother, Mrs. C. Joyce and her aunt, who is dying.

The Canadian Pacific Railway and Temiskaming and Northern Ontario railroads are also in difficulties in the flood area, but no mishaps other than track destruction have occurred on these lines. Railway traffic is at a standstill on all three lines, but the C.P.R. and T.N.O. expect to have things moving within a few hours, reports from North Bay state.

C.P.R. Train No. 2 is stranded at Capreol. Supposed to make a circuit to North Bay by way of Capreol the train was caught when washouts occurred east and west of that point of the C.N.R. line.

The officials of the T. and N. O. report a washout at Nixon's Creek, a little north of Halleybury, and a landslide at Mile 112, near New Liskeard, both due to floods which followed. It is expected it will take several hours to repair the damage. In the meantime traffic is being broken between Halleybury and New Liskeard, both due to floods which followed a constant and torrential rainfall since yesterday morning. It is expected it will take several hours to repair the damage.

THE WORLD AT ITS WORST

By GLUYAS WILLIAMS

(Copyright, 1930, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

DESIRE OF QUEBEC TO BE INDEPENDENT

Last Night's Rally For Mr. Bennett is Interpreted By J. H. Burnham.

Mr. J. H. Burnham told The Examiner to-day that the reception of Mr. Bennett by the French in Montreal last night, was the spontaneous outburst on a huge scale of the desire of Quebec to be independent. The vast audience wept with emotion, when, standing, they sang in French, "O Canada," and when the French chairman introduced in French Mr. Bennett and "Canada First." His advices from Montreal are that the prospect of an independent Quebec has roused the French almost to madness.—Advt.

Opposition Leaders Welcome If Dominions Are Willing

Thomas Answers Amery in Regard to Imperial Conference

LONDON, England, June 27 (C.P.) —"If the Dominions agree to the suggestion that the opposition parties, as well as Governments, should be represented at the Imperial Conference, this Government would welcome the innovation, but it would be absurd to seek to impose such a condition should the other parts of the Empire not be agreeable."

In these words the Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas(Secretary of State for the Dominions, replied in the House of Commons to a suggestion by the Rt. Hon. L.C.M.S. Amery, who was Secretary for the Dominions in the last Conservative Government.

His tentative acceptance of the idea that the oppositions might be represented came during debate on the estimates for the Dominions Office.

WIND DAMAGE IS EVERYONE'S CONCERN

Second only to fire in capacity for destructiveness, high winds wreak damage almost everywhere, at almost any time.

June, "Month of Roses," has a bad record for windstorms. And there is no insurance against such destruction as may be wrought by gales and tornadoes except a specific Windstorm Policy. However, the cost is very moderate, as we'll be glad to prove.

President's Report

Presenting his report, G. Wm. Schmitt, retiring president, touched upon some of problems of the Unions.

"The unemployment situation, not only in the printing, but in every other activity, is a serious menace and should be carefully considered," he reported. He mentioned open shops and unrestricted apprentices as one of the direct causes of these undesired conditions. "It would help other industries materially if we were to adopt the slogan; 'Acquire the Union Label Habit'" he continued. "Universal demand for the label on every article and commodity used in the home or for the members of the family would create additional jobs for many members of organized labor at present unemployed because of the lack of that demand. You must remember that the problem of unemployment applies to us all. The employed today may be the unemployed of tomorrow. the provision of an unemployment fund might bear investigation."

Mr. Schmitt also expressed strong favor for the five-day week as another solution of labor problems and urged better co-operation between the allied printing trades.

W. McGowan, first vice-president, reported on the conditions of the trade in the field. A. H. Wheatley, secretary-treasurer, gave a detailed report on the finances of the Conference.

P. M. Draper, secretary-treasurer of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, forwarded regrets for the non-attendance of President Tom Moore, who owing to his absence in Geneva at the Labor Congress was unable to attend.

IN MEMORIAM.

McILMOYLE. — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. W. J. McIlmoyle, who passed away June 26, 1929:

What would we give her hand to clasp,
Her dear loving face to see;
To hear her voice, and see her smile,
That meant so much to us?
She bade no one a last farewell,
She said good-bye to none;
The heavenly gates were opened wide—
A loving voice said, Come.
Our thoughts now often wander
To a grave not far away,
Where they laid our darling mother,
Just a year ago to-day.

—Sadly missed by her family, Eva, Margaret and Harry.

NORTH RECOVERS GRADUALLY FROM FLOOD EFFECTS

Trains Pick Way Slowly Through District That Claimed 13 Lives.

SUDBURY TRAFFIC MOVING.

Road Crews Work Feverishly to Complete Repairs—T. & N. O. Tied Up.

SUDBURY, Ont., June 28 (CP) — Sudbury and district inundated Thursday and Friday by one of the worst floods in recent years, the result of heavy rainfall which caused its normal condition today as the waters receded to their normal course although still high.

Railway traffic tied up for more than 24 hours because of washouts which resulted in three derailments on the Canadian National Railways and the loss of the lives of four infant passengers, a locomotive fireman, and eight "tramps" riding on a freight train, was moving this morning trains picking their way slowly through the flooded district.

Residents Return Home

Residents of Sudbury who sought shelter from the flood waters which rendered their homes temporarily inhabitable, had returned to their houses today, motor-traffic was moving freely and street cars, which suspendened operations until the waters receded, were again operating on their normal schedule.

Although railway traffic is moving slowly over the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific lines, trouble is reported from the North, where the train schedule of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway is still disrupted by flood conditions.

In addition to the thirteen lives lost in railway accidents, a man was drowned northwest of New Liskeard when he was swept away while riding a horse.

The rivers, creeks and other water courses in this district were already at high water mark when a torrential rain started at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, pouring down incessently for 14 hours to add to the heavy precipitation of the past two weeks.

No Privation Suffered

Railway rights-of-way, Provincial highways and township roads, together with property damage in the city accounts for the major portion of the loss. When the water was at its height, people driven from their homes suffered no privation, all the resources of the district having been mobilized for the emergency.

Both transcontinental railways were working hard to-day repairing their roadbeds, work crews with hundreds of men laboring at half a dozen points to replace the tracks washed away by landslides. Auxiliaries, pile drivers, cars of piles and timber, train loads of rock and ballast were rushed east and west on both main lines.

PRINCE APPLAUDS MOUNTIES' RIDING

Sends For Whole Contingent of Canadian Policemen to Shake Hands.

IN ROYAL BOX.

LONDON, England, June 28. (C. P. Cable).—The Prince of Wales followed with the closest interest the evolutions of the Canadian "Mounties" in their musical ride when he visited the International Horse Show at Olympia to see the competition for jumping presented by himself.

After their ride the Prince sent for the Royal Canadian Mounted Policemen, and the whole contingent went to the ante-room of the Royal Box where the Prince shook hands with each man.

The Prince told Major Dann how much he appreciated their display, and then returned to see the jumping in teams of three for the Prince's cup, in which Great Britain, Chili, Germany, France and Irish Free Free State participated. The British team won with Germany second. The Prince shook hands with each member of the winning team and the Germans as runners-up.

NEW YORK, N. Y., June 28.—(CP)—For 55 minutes—with a few interruptions—Squadron Leader Charles Kingsford-Smith talked from his hotel room here last night with his fiancee, Miss Mary Powell 15,000 miles away in Australia. The conversation was carried on by radio telephone.

"I'm going to dispose of the Southern Cross in San Francisco", he said. "I'm going back to England as fast as train and boat will carry me—and that date for September stands good, Oh. I'll teach you to fly oceans".

HAROLD DORMER WINS 1ST PLACE IN NEWS CONTEST

ON STAFF 4 YEARS.

Contest is Conducted By Ontario and Quebec Typographical Unions.

Harold F. Dormer, of The Examiner Typographical Staff, has brought a signal honor to Peterborough by winning first prize in the Senior News Contest of the seventh annual Apprentice Competition of the Ontario and Quebec Conference of Typographical Unions. Entries were submitted in this contest from many cities in the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, and Mr. Dormer's feat in winning the highest honors was announced this morning by Hugh S. Bentley, second vice-president of the Ontario and Quebec Typographical Union, at the nineteenth annual convention of that body now in session here.

Wins Three Prizes

For winning the highest award in this competition Harold Dormer will received The Toronto Star Trophy, a gold watch and chain; the Inland Printer special prize, "Modern Type Display," and a special prize presented by R. M. Glover, Managing Director of The Examiner. The presenation will be made at the big banquet of the Typographical Convention at South Beach this evening.

This contest was organized by the Ontario and Quebec Conference of Typographical Unions to improve and encourage the best efforts of the apprentices, and to win it is the highest goal of all the apprentices in the two provinces. This is the first time since its founding that the first prize has been won outside of the larger cities and is further proof of the fine training the apprentices receive in The Examiner.

No little credit for the perfection of Mr. Dormer's work in this competion is deserved by Robert N. Pearse, advertising compositor on The Examiner staff, and chairman of the Apprentice Committee of the Peterborough Typographical Union, who trained the winner, and Walter Barringer, News Room Foreman of The Examiner.

Chicago Editor Was Judge

The work of the apprentices in the competition was judged by J. L. Frazier, of Chicago, editor of The Inland Printer. Mr. Frazier is without doubt the leading authority on printing in North America.

Harold Dormer has been an apprentice on The Examiner staff for a little more than four years and is now learning the operation of the linotype machine in the final year of his apprenticeship. Besides giving Second prize went to Mrs. William Tinker of 266 Burnham street and third to Miss Helen Rogers, 6 Aberdeen Avenue. This week's contest was by far the most successful of any held yet and more than a dozen splendid photos were sent in by entrants in the city of Peterborough and the three adjacent counties.

The contest closes next week with the subject "Flower Gardens". Entries for this must be in by July 1st and the Contest editor has received several already.

Atlantic Fliers Endeavor to Complete Round the World Flight

Now that Captain Kingsford-Smith and his comrades have conquered the Atlantic Ocean in an east to west flight, they have decided to fly from New York to San Francisco in order to make a complete flight round the world. Two years ago Kingsford-Smith flew from San Francisco to Australia, being the first man to fly over the Pacific Ocean. Early this year the intrepid Australian hopped from Australia to the British Isles, and last week conquered the Atlantic, so that the flight across the American continent is all that is needed to set up a most enviable record. Above is a picture of the trusty old plane "Southern Cross," which has carried the Australian on all his long journeys, while inset are, left: E. van Dyk, Dutch relief pilot, and W. S. Stannage, English wireless operator. Right: Capt. Saul, Irish navigator, and Captain Kingsford-Smith, Australian pilot.

EIGHT CANADIAN MARTYRS WILL BE CANONIZED IN ROME ON SUNDAY

Will Be the First Saints Ever to be Chosen From North America.

INDIAN MISSIONARIES.

VATICAN CITY, June 28 (C.P.).—The first saints ever to be chosen from the North American continent, Blessed Jean de Brebeuf and his seven companions, who suffered martyrdom at the hands of Indians in Canada in the first half of the 17th century, will to-morrow morning have their apotheosis in St. Peter's basilica, largest church in the Christian world.

Pope Pius XI. in person will preside at the solemnities, entering the great structure in state, borne aloft on the "sedia gestatoria" or portable throne. Before him will move, with measured tread, one of the most colorful processions imaginable, composed of representatives of all the men's religious orders of the Catholic Church.

Naturally the sternly black-clad Jesuits will have the place of honor, for it was to their famous missionary and teaching organization that the eight Canadian martyrs belonged. Another noted member of the Society of Jesus will be raised to sainthood tomorrow, Blessed Cardinal Robert Bellermine, distinguished theologian, who in a series of tracts refuted the contentions of King James I. of England.

Indian Missionaries.

But the day will be that of the eight martyrs, victims of the red-skinned natives they endeavored to convert, all of them shining examples of missionary zeal, abnegation, fortitude and courage under torture and in face of death. Their canonization comes as a response to the ardent wish of all Canadian Catholics, who have long held them in veneration and invoked their intercession in time of distress.

Father Jean de Brebeuf, a sturdy Norman, is commonly taken as their leader. Though stoned, beaten with clubs, slashed with knives, scalded with boiling water and burned with red-hot beads, he had the strength at the end to kiss the stake to which the Indians were preparing to tie him, as he saw his martyrdom approaching. He was burned to death near Georgian Bay, Canada, in 1649.

Father Isaac Jogues, the first Catholic priest who ever set foot on Manhattan Island, is another of the band. Explorer as well as missionary, he went with his companion, Father Charles Garnier, as far west as Sault Ste. Marie to preach to the heathen. They were the first two white men ever to reach the outlet of Lake Superior. He was killed by the Iroquois, after horrible torture with knives and tomahawks, near Lake George. Father Garnier fell a victim to the Hurons in the course of a massacre at St. John's village.

Another of the eight, Father Antoine Daniel, native of Dieppe, Normandy, was the first missionary to the Huron nation. He was killed by

At this stage the flyers are up to Bert Hinkler's record of 15 days from England to Australia, although two days behind Amy Johnson's mark here. The girl's difficulties which arose after she left Karachi, prevented her from breaking Hinkler's record.

TEAR GAS BOMBS AND FIRE HOSE PREVENT TEXAS LYNCHING PARTY

Women in Cars Encourage Men in Storm on Jail For Negro.

ASSAULTED 8 WHITE WOMEN

BEAUMONT, Tex., June 28.—(CP)—A mob which included several women early today failed in an attempt to storm the Jefferson County jail and seize Rainey Williams 30, Negro who has confessed eight attacks on Port Arthur white women in the past thirty days.

Williams was brought to Beaumont from Port Arthur for safe keeping after an attempt to lynch him yesterday had been thwarted by peace officers and firemen.

Grapple With Sheriff

Arriving from Port Arthur by motor at 1 a.m. today the mob a hundred strong served notice it intended to storm the jail. Surging forward leaders grappled with the Sheriff who stood outside the building facing the mob.

Deputies stationed in windows warned the Sheriff's attackers they were prepared to open fire. Tear gas bombs were hurled into the ranks of the mob to stem a second attempt to enter the jail. A heavy stream of water was poured on the attackers but firemen were soon overpowered and the hose cut in bits.

The women in the crowd for the most part remained in automobiles and shouted encouragement to the men.

"Go in there men" one girl shouted, "Go on in the jail, where are your guns"?

Two hours after their first assault on the jail the mob admitted its efforts futile and withdrew a rope trailing from one of the automobiles.

Divers Work Vainly Below St. Lawrence Trying to Find Wreck Victims' Bodies

BROCKVILLE, Ont., June 28.—(CP)—Renewed diving operations at the scene of the wreck and further dragging of the waters of the St. Lawrence failed this morning to bring to light any of the bodies of the 29 of the 31 men missing since the drill boat John B. King of St. Catharines was blown to atoms in the shipping channel off this port on Thursday.

Three divers working together in relays went below the surface to examine the broken and twisted hull this morning. Although much information was obtained on the condition and position of the wreck. No bodies were found. This bore out the prediction made yesterday by Edward Boucher of Ogdensburg, N. Y., a diver who made two unsuccessful trips below water level, that few if any of the bodies of the men would be discovered among the submerged wreckage. He believed that the force of the explosion would blow the men utterly to pieces or bury them under tons of rock, twisted steel and machinery lying on the floor of the St. Lawrence.

HOME INTERESTS BEING NEGLECTED

Charge Against Liberals Laid By Bennett in Cornwall Meeting.

INDUSTRIAL STAGNATION.

CORNWALL, Ont., June 28. (By Thomas Green, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)—Charging the Government with causing industrial stagnation and neglect of Canadian interests, Hon. R. B. Bennett spoke here last night on the shores of the St. Lawrence, wedging in a visit to industrial plants in the district, between the rally and an earlier meeting at Alexandria, the Conservative Chieftain directed attention to the tariff.

"Due to the tariff changes of the Government" Mr. Bennett exclaimed, "woollen factories have been compelled to close down.

"They changed the tariff on cotton and our cotton spindles became idle or only working part time in some cases. Is your cotton mill working five, or six or seven days a week; are your men working, go to the rayon industry, we have as good rayon in this country as there is in the world. Yet this country is flooded with product of other countries. Canadian industries are languishing."

Free Traders Referred to

Speaking in the adjoining constituencies of Glengarry and Stormont, the Opposition Leader spoke along similar lines.

Touching upon countervailing duties Mr. Bennett spoke of the free trade tendencies of Premier King and the "self-styled free traders, Mr. Dunning, (Minister of Finance) and Mr. Crerar, (Minister of Railways," eggs in shell, cut flowers and cast-iron pipe, he ironically remarked, were among the 16 countervailing items in a tariff schedule totallying 1188. "There is the heroic effort of the noble trio, Mr. Bennett asserted while his audience laughed and applauded. "That is their answer in looking after the interst of Canadian people."

He contrasted the "changing attitudes of the Liberals for place and power" with the policy of the Conservative Party. "We propose" Mr. Bennett stated, "at the first session of Parliament to enact such legislation as will give Canadians fair opportunity in competition with any other country in the world."

ITALY TO BOOST MILITARY BUDGET

Il Duce Expects to Raise Half Billion Lire By Tax on Exchange Deals.

TAKE UP DEFENSE ISSUES.

ROME, Italy, June 28.— (A.P.) — The Council of Ministers, with Premier Mussolini presiding, to-day took up national defense problems and issued a statement saying the action was taken because of France's preparations for fortifying her Italian frontier.

"Several problems inherent to the national defense," were taken up, according to the official communication.

In order to raise more money for defense the ministers on the Duce's recommendation decided to raise the tax on exchange transactions and to work out a method of exacting the taxes from firms afefeted by it.

In this way, the statement said, it will be possible to increase the budgets of the armed forces of Italy by a half billion lire (more than $26,000,000) at the beginning of the 1930-31 fiscal year and with the sum for later years to be determined.

For the next year the army will receive 300,000,000 lire more, the navy 100,000,000, aviation 80,000,000 and the Black Shirt militia 20,000,000 for equipping and arming.

God knows all and cares. He sees all and understands.

As the Evangelist Uttered His Closing Prayer and Stepped From the Platform Ross Rushed Forward and Fired Single Shot Into Minister's Body.

MISSION SERVICE

NIAGARA—FALLS, N. Y., June 28.—(CP)—Police at frontier cities today were searching for Frank Ross 37 years old, alleged to have shot to death the Rev. Edgar R. Wood and wounded two members of his congregation here last night.

The other victims were Ross' wife, Mildred, wounded in the left side near the heart and Leonard Towe, shot in both legs.

The tragedy occurred at the close of services in a small Tenth Street Mission which the Rev. Mr. Wood has conducted for several years.

As the Evangelist uttered his closing prayer and stepped down from the platform, Ross, according to witnesses, rushed forward and fired a single shot into the minister's body— He fell to the floor dead.

Fired at His Wife

Wheeling about, Ross fired point blank at Mrs. Ross, who was sitting in a front pew.

Then Ross without uttering a word, but flourishing his revolver backed down the aisle toward the exit.

Towe, sitting in a rear seat in the hall, attempted to stop Ross and was shot twice, bullets inflicting flesh wounds in both legs. Ross ran out of the door and disappeared.

Mrs. Ross and a sister, Leona Kuhn had been attending the mission services for several months. Ross objected, and, it is said, became particularly bitter because on several occasions Towe called at his home to drive Mrs. Ross and Miss Kuhn to the mission in his automobile.

Arrested on April 4

On April 4 Towe had Ross arrested for punching him when he stopped at the Ross home for Miss Kuhn. A few days later Ross was arrested on the complaint of the Rev. Mr. Wood for having broken up his services.

Ross was brought into court, but the charges against him were dismissed after he had been warned by the Judge to stay away from the mission. Ross disappeared from his home after this trouble and Mrs. Ross said today that up to the time of the tragedy she had not seen him in several weeks.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., June 28.—(CP)—Frank Ross, 37, wanted for the fatal shooting of the Rev. Edgar R. Wood and the wounding of two members of his congregation last night, was arrested today by Patrolman Fiori Costanzo. The man was packed up in Porter Road on the outskirts of the city as he was walking along the road. He had a .32 calibre automatic pistol in his possession, but offered no resistance to addest.

NIPISSING SPLIT IS PATCHED UP

Two Liberal Candidates Withdraw in Favor of R. H. Hurtibise, Sudbury.

LONG DISPUTE.

TORONTO, June 28. (C.P.) — Theo Legault and E. A. Lapierre, who had both announced their intention of running as Liberal candidates in Nipissing, have withdrawn in favor of R. H. Hurtibise of Sudbury, Ont., according to a statement made here yesterday by W. R. P. Parker, chairman of the Ontario Liberal Association Campaign Committee.

The agreement to consolidate the Liberal forces in Nipissing was reached after a conference between Mr. Parker, Mr. Legault, former member of the Legislature, and Mr. Lapierre, who represented Nipissing in the last House of Commons.

The dispute between the two followed the Liberal convention's action in choosing Mr. Legault in preference to the former member, who, with his supporters, refused to admit the validity of the choice. Sectional differences played a large part in the split as Mr. Lapierre drew much of his support from Sudbury and Mr. Legault was backed by the Liberals of Sturgeon Falls.

Premier King Takes Issue With Opposition Leader in Sherbrooke Speech.

ON IMPORT QUESTION.

SHERBROOKE, Que., June 28.—(CP)—Direct issue with Hon. R. B. Bennett, leader of the opposition, was taken by Premier Mackenzie King here last night.

The prime minister denied that the boys and girls of Canada were going to the United States instead, he stated, "The tide has changed and our people are coming back more and more to this side and going less and less to the other."

He met the complaint of the Conservative leader that Canada is exporting her raw materials, by the positive declaration that Canada exports less of her raw materials to the United States than the republic exports to Canada If a country was to export goods it must import them also, he asserted.

"Does Mr. Bennett want us to stop importing cotton and close our cotton factories"? Mr. King asked. "Does he want us to cease importing rubber and close our factories which use rubber"?

Finally the prime minister asserted that he proposed to hold Mr. Bennett to the issue which the Conservative leader had raised at the opening of the last session of parliament, the issue of which party should represent Canada at the Imperial conference and the Imperial economic conference; the government was content that this be the issue, said Premier King, but he declared that Mr. Bennett should tell the people who would go to London if the Conservatives were returned to power, there was nothing unconstitutional about doing that, he said.

The meeting was the final one which Premier King will address in Eastern Canada at present.

(C.P.) — With the finding of two more bodies believed to be those of trespassers on Canadian National Railways freight train No. 401, derailed yesterday by a wash out 16 miles east of Capreol, the toll of deaths taken as result of unprecedented floods extending over a wide area in northern Ontario, was brought to thirteen.

Three Derailments.

Three derailments were reported on the C.N.R. yesterday, with nine deaths resulting from the wreck of the freight and four as a result of two coaches of passanger train No. 4 bound from Winnipeg to Toronto, being hurled into the flooded Vermillion River, near Capreol Train No. 3 from Toronto to Winnipeg also left the track in the same region, but no persons were injured.

The firemen and eight men secretly riding on the freight, lost their lives when the engine and nine cars left the rails, while the condition of J. McDonald of Capreol, the engineer, was reported as precarious.

Latest reports indicate that four children lost their lives when the colonist and day coaches of the Toronto-bound express plunged into the waters of the Vermillion River, but 21 persons were injured, one seriously, and are now being cared for in a Capreol railway hospital

SECOND INDIAN FLIGHT PLANNED

Two Cabin Planes Will Distribute $25,000 to Northern Ontario Tribes.

TRIP OF 35 DAYS.

TORONTO, June 28. (C.P.) — A second epic Indian flight throughout the vast reaches of Northern Ontario to Hudson and James Bay is to commence from Ottawa on July 2. The flight is to be made by W. C. Cain, deputy minister of Lands and Forests in the Ontario Government, and H. Awreyof the Indian Department, Ottawa, who took part in last year's flight.

Provided the present plans of the flight are completed, the two Commissioners, their two cabin Bellanco planes, two pilots, and two mechanics, will traverse 2,500 miles over a period of thirty-five days. The flight is planned in connection with Treaty No. 9, involving practically all that portion of Ontario lying north of the Albany River, containing 1,200,000 square miles, which is being cited to the Crown by the Indians, largely of the Ojibway and Cree tribes. Deputy Minister Cain and Mr. Awrey are Commissioners to further negotiations with the remaining Indians to acquire all the Indians' rights under reasonable conditions.

Approximately $25,000 will be distributed to these tribes, which permanently makes them wards of the Crown.

BOLIVIAN REVOLT BELIEVED ENDED

Expect Rebel Chiefs to Take Charge of Government Affairs.

AREQUIPA, Peru, June 28 (C.P.)—Additional revolting troops, staging a brilliant military action on the heights above the city of La Paz, were believed here to-day to have ended the Bolivian insurgent movement in virtural victory.

Information from La Paz, proceeding by way of Huaqui, Bolivian fort on the banks of Lake Titicaca, said that Dr. Heranando Siles, President-resigned, against whom the revolt has been directed, has taken refuge in the quarters of the Papal Nuncio.

While there has been no direct communication with La Paz since 12.30 p.m. yesterday, it was believed here that the military directorate appointed by the revolting chiefs at Oruro would take charge of the Government, and that actual fighting probably is ended.

TUNNEL SECTIONS MEET FAR BELOW DETROIT RIVER

Final Connection Made With Working Margin of Few Inches.

9 STEEL TUBES LAID.

Paving, Machinery Installation to do Before Opening Late This Fall.

WINDSOR, June 28. — American and Canadian units of the Detroit and Windsor tunnel met yesterday beneath the Detroit river, approximately 300 feet from the Canadian shore. With a working margin of only a few inches, the shield that had been pushed out from the Canadian side was slipped to the bell-mouth of the last tube section laid from the United States side without a hitch.

Nine steel tubes 35 feet in diameter and from 220 to 250 feet in length were laid one after another in the river bed from the American side. Meanwhile, from the terminal point in Windsor, a steel mole began eating its way beneath Windsor. Bit by bit it was edged along, the 32-foot shield being forced forward by hydraulic jacks exerting tremendous pressure.

Constant sightings and calculations taken by the engineers, enabled the slowly moving mole to creep into the end of the last tube section.

Several feet of muck remain to be removed, also the welding of the shield and the last section, before there will be an open continuous passage between the terminals of the tunnel. Paving, the installation of machinery and other work remain to be done before the expected opening of the tunnel to traffic late this fall.

COBALT DELUGE CLAIMS VICTIM

Terrific Downpour Washes Out Tracks, Roads, Mines and Crops.

COBALT, Ont., June 28. (C.P.) — A deluge unprecedented in the annals of this district has taken toll of one human life and has caused material damage that cannot yet be calculated. Over a part of the north extending from Redwater, 47 miles south of here, to Swastika, a terrific rainfall that began in earnest Thursday following a preliminary outburst in certain local areas the previous afternoon and concluded before noon Friday, flooded fields, drowned out crops, swept away portions of railway track and of the Trunk Highway and other roads, hent water pouring into mine workings and completely severed the country north of Haileybury from the territory south.

The fiercest part of the storm centered on the section between Cobalt and New Liskeard, with the result that there is no comunication by road or railway beyond Haileybury. The main line of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway and the Ferguson Highway alike having been washed out three miles south of New Liskeard.

The one victim of the storm has not yet been identified here. It is stated that the unknown man was riding horseback and leading a number of other animals, and nearly all were swept away in a washout on the road.

Six Thousand Feet of Basswood Lumber Destroyed in Yard of J. Corneill.

EAST OF HAVELOCK.

HAVELOCK, June 28 (Examiner Correspondence).—Six thousand feet of basswood lumber valued at approximately $250 was destroyed by a fire which started in the lumber yard of J. Corneil, east of Havelock, at 6 o'clock last night. The lumber belonged to Alfred Spencer of Havelock.

The blaze started from a small rubbish fire which Mr. Corneil started at one corner of his property. He left the fire unguarded for a moment and on returning found nearby lumber piles a mass of flames. During the four hours which the conflagration lasted a large crowd was attracted to the spectacle. A fire engine from Havelock was used in fighting the lames, but to no avail.

HAMILTON, June 28. (C.P.) — Unless word is received to the contraary from the Minister of Justice, Mike Smith, condemned for the murder of John Iwantz, will be hanged at the city jail on July 8, George Ballard, Crown Attorney, stated this morning. Some doubt as to whether the sentence would be carried out as set by Judge Jeffreys arose when it was announced that Martin Shawira would be given a new trial in the fall. It was thought that Smith might be reprieved in order to testify at the hearing but the Crown has decided that his testimony was not required.

Fliers Are Nearing New Flight Record

CHICAGO, Ills., June 28 (C.P.) A new world's record for sustained flight by refueling will be written, if all goes well, against the background of to-morrow's sunrise.

Fighting their two coaxing enemies—sleep and motor trouble—John and Kenneth Hunter, the pilots of the "City of Chicago" had been aloft 395 hours at 3:40 a.m. (C.E.T.) to-day—only 25 hours, 21 minutes and 30 seconds away from the record of 430:21:30 set by Forest O'Brine and Dale S. Jackson last year in "St. Louis Robin."

If all continues well aboard the Stinson Detroiter cabin monoplane, the record will be equalled at 5:01:21 (C.E.T.) to-morrow morning Another hour must be droned out, however, before an official record is made.

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

So De Valera is coming quietly to Canada to help (unknown to them) the Bennett people. If Canada can break away on a vote and do as she likes so will the Irish Free State, he says, whose constitution was modelled by Britain on that of Canada.

Australia is declaring not for "Australia First" but for the "Empire First". South Africa wound up the fight between Hertzog and Smuts the other day by giving Smuts not one but all its members for his "Empire First" policy. The "South Africa First" cry of the Africanders was squashed. Are we for "Canada First" or the "Empire First?" De Valera knows which side Bennett is really on. Perhaps some of his Protestant fellow-electors and sympathisers will receive him at the station.

An Empire is a stock company and a shareholder in it, as in any other company, does all he can for the benefit of the company first, knowing that what is for the company's benefit is also for his own. But if he said that his own interest was "first" and the company's only after that he would not be allowed in the company at all as he might wreck it in his own selfish interests.

All our great banks and other companies are carried on in this shareholder way, just as the Empire will be. The "Canada First" man, like Bennett and Mr. Peck, thinks, however, that Canada can do better by consulting her own interests first and dealing with the Empire only for all we can get out of it, as with strangers.

Are you in this great Empire company or are you going to run a little "Canada First" show of your own? That's the issue of this election, Empire first or Canada first.

If we do not agree to form an empire as the others do we "must" be left out of it We must become independent. We can't have altogether our own way. Bennett's policy means separation, necessarily.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

IT happened about eight years ago—yet it seems but yesterday! Whether it was a dream or not I am unable to say. The day had been an unusually busy one! The hour was late, and not a person was to be seen nor a step heard on the street. Quietness within and without seemed almost tangible. While I sat and mused or dreamed, one whom I seemed to have seen before came and talked to me in the most intimate manner. He was traveled-stained; and gave me the impression of having come a long way. The burden of his conversation I here set down in the hope that it may prove to be as helpful to others as it has been to me.

The Look That Incapacitates.

A better name could not have been found for that memorable message which seemed to come to me from another world. As he seemed to look into my very soul, he said: A great deal of the failure in the Christian life is traceable to a wrong outlook. Peter failed in one of life's great moments through a changed look. He began by looking at the Lord. "Lord, if it be Thou bid me come to Thee on the water." It was the Lord who filled his vision then, and his one desire was to be near Him. Evidently he changed the angle of his vision and became more conscious of the winds and waves than of his wonderful Master, and immediately he was afraid and began to sink. This is the inevitable result of a changed vision. Fear where there ought to be faith, failure where there ought to be success.

The life that wins is the life where Christ is the focal centre, and the winds and the waves become the secondary detail in the picture. When this attitude is maintained the impossible becomes the possible, and the adverse things become the pathway to closer fellowship with the Lord.

Not Your Responsibility.

Another illustration of the look that incapacitates is to be found in Exodus 3:11. There we note that Moses' eyes became fixed on himself, and the great call of God is viewed not in the light of the Divine resources but in the light of the human. "Who am I that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt?" His eyes were fixed on himself and immediately he begins to assume responsibilities that God alone could carry. Here you have the cause of the frequent breakdown among Christian workers Self has become the focal centre of their work instead of God, and they assume responsibilities that are beyond their power to carry, failing to recognize that God is the worker and they are the instruments He uses.

The self-centred look is fatal to enterprise in the work of God. All great advance in Christian enterprise has been on the principle of faith, and the ability of God rather than the sufficiency of man. Beware of the selfward look. It incapacitates.

Fatal Looks.

In Exodus 4:1, you have another fatal look. Here Moses got his eyes on the people. "They will not believe me, they will say." The people became more prominent than the Lord.

The look where the people have become the focal centre is a very fruitful cause of incapacity among Christian workers. It is this look that leads to the preaching of a mutulated Gospel to please the crowd. This look cuts the nerve of personal evangelism. Afraid of the people. The fear of man that bringeth a snare.

If you will look at Exodus 4:10 you will find the record of another look that robs the worker of his crown. There Moses is occupied with his lack of ability. "I am not eloquent, I am slow as speech." This look makes the worker so conscious of his lack that he fails to enter into life's great opportunities and what God has planned for him goes to another. So many Christians are accomplishing less for God in the world to-day, because at a moment when God proposed to do larger things through them they refused through this look at their lack of ability. When God calls He enables. Our sufficiency is of God.

Where The Dynamic Is.

Had the Master gone on the principle of human ability, He never would have chosen a group of fishermen as His pioneer workers. The choice of those simple men, without influence, wealth or learning, teaches us that we must look elsewhere for the dynamic that has created a church, whose teaching and influence is shaping the destinies of nations to-day.

The advance of the church does not depend on the ability of man, but on the ability and power of God through men.

The measure of your yieldness to the Master is the measure of God's opportunity through you. To look at your own ability spells defeat, to look at His opens vistas of Divine possibility.

A Disastrous Look.

Now, if you will look at 1 Kings 19:1-3, you will find the record of another disastrous look, the look at the things that threaten. "When he saw this . . ." Elijah allowed his mind to dwell on Jezebel's threat until it shadowed his life and stained his ministry. How possible it is to allow the shadow of the thing that never happens to wreck our testimony and service for the Master! How many are held in bondage by the threat of the enemy, forgetting that no shaft can hit till God permit. Jezebel may threaten, but can never touch the soul that moves in the circle of the Divine will. How many threatening things there are around us in these days, and how great the need that you should keep your eyes on the Master lest the things that threaten out-proportion in your estimation the Divine provision and protection.

Absolutely tender,
Absolutely true,
Understanding all things,
Understanding you.

Infinitely loving,
Exquisitely near,
This is God our Father,
What have we to fear?

A Wonderful Picture.

You will find that the threatening things fail to move when you keep your eyes on Him who is absolutely true. David Livingstone when tried and tempted used to turn to that great Scripture in Matt. 28:19, and putting his finger on the text would say, "It is the word of a gentleman of the most strict and sacred honor, so there's an end of it." On that pledge he hazarded his all, and it did not fail. He refused to let the threatening thing turn him aside from the doing of God's will. He was away up among the bogs and marshes, near Chitambo's village. Save only for his native helpers he is all alone and at the end of everything. He walked as long as he could walk; rode as long as he could ride; and was carried on a litter as long as he could bear it. But now, with his feet too ulcerated to bear the touch of the ground, with his frame so emaciated that it frightens him when he sees it in the glass, and with a horrible inward hemorrhage draining away his scanty remnant of vitality, he can go no further. "Knocked up quite!" he says, in the last indistinct entry in his journal. . . . Two of the black boys, almost as tired as their master, go to rest, appointing a third to watch the sick man's bed. But he, too, sleeps. And when he awakes in the cold grey of the dawn, the vision that confronts him fills him with terror. The white man is not in bed, but on his knees beside it! He runs and awakens his two companions. They creep timidly to the kneeling figure. It is cold and stiff! Their great master is dead! No white man near! . . . No Comrade to fortify his faith with the deathless words of everlasting comfort and everlasting hope!

He refused to let the threatening things by which he was surrounded turn him aside from his great call. Beware of the look that incapacitates!

My very best wishes accompany this, my last article! I have greatly enjoyed this ministry of the printed page. To the men in the office, especially those on the mechanical end of the work, I extend my sincere thanks for all their interest and helpfulness. And to the many friends whom I have met through the medium of this page, I say farewell! May long life, good health, and as much wealth as you are capable of spending wisely, be your portion!

Yours in happy service,

Allan Fairbairn.

What a Church May Be

A CHURCH under the influence of veneration, merely, is a court house; and the judge sits there, and cold officers are standing by him, and men are waiting to receive their sentence. God's church is God's house; and God's house is our home; and a Christian home ought to be bright, cheerful and happy. When God is the entertainer of his people, he thanks no man for "dim, religious light," or for casting forth the flowers, and extinguishing the lamps of hope and joy in the sanctuary.

GREAT GAIN.

IF blasts of ridicule and showers of abuse dash in the face of the Christian, he is to take it as silently as the bronze figure takes the tempest. That which cuts him off from man joins him more closely to the Lord.

GEMS FROM SPURGEON

HAVE Christians a crown? Oh, yes; but they do not wear it every day. They have a crown, but their coronation-day is not yet arrived; they have been anointed monarchs; they have some of the authority and dignity of monarchs, only they are not crowned monarchs yet. But the crown is made. God will not have to order heaven's goldsmiths to fashion it in after-time; it is made already, hanging up in glory. God hath "laid up for me a crown of righteousness."

• • •

THE best moment of a Christian's life is his last one, because it is the one which is nearest heaven; and then it is that he begins to strike the keynote of the song which he shall sing to all eternity. Oh! what a song that will be.

The Hour Of Prayer

GOD of grace and of the graces, give to us faith and love for to-day and a double portion of hope for the morrow, for we are resolved that, though we do not understand Thy ways, we shall not condemn; though we cannot see, we shall not close the shutters saying there is nothing to see; though the mountains be wrapped in fog, we shall not shiver the glass which alone, in the cloudless days, can reveal their beauty; we shall trust in the Lord and stay upon our God; we shall keep open towards heaven a window to catch the light that cometh in such an hour as we think not. With a consciousness of our unworthiness we present this prayer in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

HANDFULS OF PURPOSE

"Oh, that I might have my request; and that God would grant me the thing I long for."—Job 6:8.

WHAT a selfish, worshipless thing religion may be! God no longer approached as God, but as an omnipotent convenience, as the Almighty slave of the whim of His creatures, as the full stream whose stay or flow is at their order, as the light whose coming or going is at the touch of their hand! We call Him "All-Wise," but our prayers claim greater wisdom for ourselves. Only His kindly patience saves our lives from the wreck we should make of them. "He gave them their request, but sent leanness into their soul," is the historic warning. Through fire and through water He led Job, but led him to better things than those of his own election.

Communion Every Day

A MAN who should sit down to the communion table, having bitterness against a brother in his heart, would he not be wrong? "Yes," you answer at once. But it is communion every day. The body of Christ is wherever human bodies are, and he who has any bitterness against his brother is always committing sacrilege.

CRITICISM

T'S easy enough to pick out flaws
In the work that others have done,
To point out errors that others have made
When your own task you haven't begun;
It's easy enough to fuss and find fault
When others are doing their best,
To sneer at the little they have achieved,
When you have done nothing but rest.

It's easy enough to cavil and carp,
To criticise, scoff and deride,
For few of us ever have done perfect work,
No matter how hard we have tried;
It's easy enough not to speak of the best
And to dwell all the time on the worst,
And perhaps it is proper sometimes to find fault,
But be sure that you've done something first.

From An Aged Saint

MUCH of the honest striving of sincere souls to live the Christian life is strained, irksome, non-successful — and, as a consequence, unsatisfactory.

Those who have utterly abandoned themselves to the guidance of the Holy Spirit, live a natural, normal Christian life.

As many as received Jesus, to them He gave the right to become children of God.—John 1:12.

As many as are led by the Spirit, these are the sons of God.—Rom. 8:14.

Receiving Jesus and continuing obediently to learn of Him, and walking in obedience to the Spirit are one and the same thing. This learning of Jesus or walking in obedience to the Spirit brings rest into our life.—Matt. 11:28-30. It frees from condemnation.—Rom. 8:1.

—M. T. B.

Afterward

IN the divine providence nothing comes a moment too soon or too late, but everything comes in its own true time. God's clock is never too slow. Every link of the chain of God's providences fits into its own place. We do not see the providence at the time. Not until afterward will you see that your disappointments, hardships, trials, and the wrongs inflicted on you by others are parts of God's providence toward you, full of blessing. Not until afterward will you see it, but the "afterward" is sure if you firmly and faithfully follow Christ and cleave to him. The "afterward" of every disappointment or sorrow is blessing and good. We need only to learn to wait in patience.

The World's Opinion

BLAME not the world, if outward show
Gives strange account of thee;
The few will judge by what they know,
The many by what they see.

And if a king the streets should walk,
Dressed like a chimney-sweeper,
Of Chimney-sweeps the crowd will talk,
And think of nothing deeper.

The Cross

IF you consecrate your cross to the Lord Jesus, He will use it, and He will make it one of your best friends. He will make it to you, as He did to Samuel Rutherford—"WINGS." He will use the way you bear your cross to cheer others who are staggering despairingly under their crosses.

Grasp This

OF nothing may we be more sure than this, that if we cannot sanctify our present lot, we could sanctify no other. Our heaven and our Almighty Father are there or nowhere.

• • •

CHRIST, when He blesses, blesses not in word only, but in deed. The lips of truth cannot promise more than the hands of love will surely give.

Lies

A lie always needs a truth for a handle to it, else the hand would cut itself which sought to drive it home upon another. The worst lies, therefore, are those whose blade is false, but whose handle is true.

A Noble Life

A famous Boston preacher once said: It seems to me there is no maxim for a noble life like this: Count always your highest moments your truest moments Believe that in the time when you were the greatest and most spiritual man, then you were your truest self.

Try Laughing

THE sense of humor is the oil of life's engine. Without it, the machinery creaks and groans. No lot is so hard, no aspect of things is so grim, but it relaxes before a hearty laugh.

Why have we taken our religious life so much away from the fields on which Christ expended His?

God And The Ploughman

"Doth the ploughman plough all day to sow? Doth he open and break the clods of his ground? . . . For his God doth instruct him to discretion, and doth teach him."—Isa. 28:24-26.

WHAT! God instructing the ploughman and teaching him how to farm! The thought rather startles us. We are accustomed to the idea that God instructs the preacher in the things that relate to the sanctuary; but we are not so accustomed to the idea that He likewise instructs the ploughman in the things that relate to the field. Yet that is the idea conceived in the text.

We need to become accustomed to this idea. It is a mistake to suppose that God is any more interested in the man behind the pulpit than He is in the man behind the plough. It is a mistake to suppose that God has locked Himself up with the painters in their studios, or with the scientists in their museums and observatories, or with the poets and scholars in their libraries, and that He has no concern about the man in the field, the man in the factory, the man in the shop, the man in the store. God is not only the God of painters and poets and philosophers and priests and prophets, but He is the God of the ploughman, the man at the work-bench, the man behind the counter, the man at the desk, the common everyday man. He is the God of all, even the humblest toiler, and waits upon him to instruct him and give him insight into what relates to his calling.

God is not to be confined to the ecclesiastical sphere, and shut out from the sphere of our everyday life and everyday affairs. He is equally present in every sphere. And in every sphere His help is needed. You need His help, His instruction and guidance, whether you are a preacher or ploughman, a poet or a prophet, a priest or a painted. And wherever your calling takes you, whether to the field or sanctuary, the shop or library, the cloister or studio, you will find Him there ready to instruct you to discretion. Then wait for His teaching and prompting, follow His direction in every situation, even in the most trivial matters, and you will soon find a new and satisfying joy in your work, whatever your work may be.—A three-minute sermon by J. R. G.

He that brings sunshine into the lives of others cannot keep it from himself.

SATURDAY, JUNE 28, 1930

MRS. WRIGHT PASSES.

The sudden passing of Mrs. Gordon Wright, who only a few days ago addressed a meeting in this district, will be regretted by many Canadians who appreciated the fact that Mrs. Wright gave unsparingly of herself to the cause of temperance.

Even those who did not agree with all the views of the national president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union always gave her credit for the sincerity of the opinions she expressed and the vigor and enthusiasm with which she fought for those opinions on all possible occasions.

As a social reformer Mrs. Wright earned a place in the country's history.

She at various times occupied very prominent places in women's organizations, having been vice-president of the Canadian Council of Women and of the Social Service of Canada, having served throughout the war as first vice-president of the Western Ontario Red Cross, and holding at the time of her death a position as one of the vice-presidents of the World's League against Alcoholism.

An inveterate battler for the temperance cause, Mrs. Wright was a familiar figure throughout the Dominion, her temperance addresses having been heard by thousands of Canadians.

PETERBOROUGH IS FORTUNATE.

In the Y.W.C.A. camp for girls and the Rotary camp for boys, both of which are actively preparing for the activities of the summer, Peterborough offers unique opportunities for the young people of both sexes to enjoy a real holiday under careful supervision and at a minimum of expense.

Few centres of this size indeed are in such a happy position, and it is to be hoped that both camps this year will report a maximum attendance during the summer.

A vacation in camp with its spirit of good fellowship and the opportunities offered for healthful recreation and wholesome fun is the best possible holiday; it is fortunate indeed then that the city's proximity to one of the finest outing waterways in the country and the enterprise of two social service organizations, splendidly supported by the public, have made it possible for Peterborough's young people to experience all the pleasure as well as all the benefits of an ideal vacation.

The two camps will soon be open, and families without summer homes of their own should see that their children are given, if possible, the benefit of a sojourn at Inglestane or at Kawartha boys' camp.

THE "CUTTING IN" DANGER.

The Department of Highways does well to bring to the attention of motorists the danger involved in the operation commonly referred to as "cutting in," which is recognized as one of the most prolific causes of highway accidents.

In its latest advertisement the department stresses the fact that to attempt to pass another car without making sure that the way is clear in front and that there will be ample time to get over on the right side of the road again is to invite disaster, and it also calls attention to the fact that the driver who refuses to allow another car to pass is creating a dangerous situation that may lead to a bad accident.

These would seem to be fundamental principles of motoring, facts that every driver should be thoroughly familiar with, and yet the record of highway smashes caused by ignoring these simple principles is so extensive that it would seem to be necessary to continuously impress the danger upon the minds of motorists in the hope that eventually an improvement in conditions may be brought about.

The persistent "cutter in" who weaves in and out of traffic regardless of the number of cars on the road or their position is perhaps the greatest menace on the highways.

MODEST HEROES.

Those who listened in to the speeches made by the crew of the Southern Cross at the reception tendered them in New York yesterday had no trouble in coming to the conclusion that Major Kingsford-Smith and his three gallant companions are not only skilful airmen and navigators but that they are made of the right stuff in other respects.

Nothing could have been finer than the modesty with which the leader of the flight referred to his exploit which he characterized merely as "a piece of work," nor could anything have been more generous than Major Kingsford-Smith's remark that it was "a four-man job and four men were entitled to the credit for it."

The other members of the Southern Cross party were equally happy in their remarks, modest, deprecating, each anxious to pass the credit to the others.

It was no wonder indeed that the personality of the flyers seemed to make as much impression upon their hosts of yesterday as did the success of their adventure, nor that the chairman of the gathering was constained to say, "I feel as if I have known these fellows all their lives."

Kingsford-Smith and his companions added a fine page to British flying history by their hop over the Atlantic, and they contributed immeasurably to a better understanding between the Empire and the United States by the modesty of their bearing at yesterday's function.

WATCH FOR THE GANGSTER.

Mayor Thompson of Chicago has called upon Acting Police Commissioner Alcock to drive the crooks and gangsters out of the city. Of course, it is easy to give such instructions, but it will not be nearly so easy to carry them out. The gangsters have become very strongly entrenched in Chicago and the Thompson administration has done very little to dislodge them; in fact, the laxity of this administration has resulted in the criminals tightening their tentacles upon the life of the city. Now when the public demand for war on the gangster has become so pronounced, following the slaying of Alfred Lingle, that it even makes an impression on "Big Bill's" ears, which have not been very responsive to such demands in the past, he issues instructions to Alcock to drive the crooks and gangsters out of the city. He promises the co-operation of the administration, but we imagine that the majority of the citizens will be inclined to discount this promise until the Mayor and his cohorts show, by their actions, that they mean business.

The mayor apparently does not care what happens to other cities so long as the gangsters and crooks are driven from Chicago. Provided such a miracle can be accomplished, it merely means that the ousted bad men will take up quarters in other cities. This, however, seems to be no concern of Chicago's chief magistrate. His one idea is to get them out of the city, go where they may. This, it must be admitted, is not a very neighborly thought on the part of William Hale Thompson. He would be displaying more real neighborliness were he resolved to catch and punish those who have committed the many murders and other outrages which have given Chicago an unenviable reputation among the cities of the world. Never mind about driving the murderers and kidnappers and racketeers from the city, but drive them in—into the courts, into the prisons, or, where most of them should wind up, onto the scaffold.

While we do not anticipate that many of the worst criminals will be driven out, it is possible that some will scatter, at least until the present hue and cry dies down. These exiles may be tempted to try their luck in other cities as they are huge spenders and their criminal earnings are soon gone. It is easily conceivable that were they to gain a foothold they would soon create a reign of terror in those cities in which they may operate. In view, therefore, of the driving-out process, which Mayor Thompson has ordered, other cities, and this applies to Canada as well as to the United States, should be on the constant lookout for any stragglers from Chicago gangland. If these are not kept on the run, they are likely to cause plenty of trouble. Once they settle and find "business" good it will not be so easy to get rid of them. Watch for the gangster.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

RED ENEMIES OF LABOR.

"Where does the money come from" to promote the world activities of the Communists? Mr. Edgar P. McGrady, legislative agent of the American Federation of Labor, told the special committee of the House of Representatives at Washington investigating communism he had information that 3 per cent. of the moneys received for Russian concessions was set apart for propaganda purposes. That the money is plentiful appears evident. There are more than a dozen Red newspapers published in the United States, none of them profitable. Organizers are numerous. Mr. McGrady said he knew Communists spent $1,000,000 in England during the coal strike, and they have "equipped a Red army in China."

Both President Green and Mr. McGrady have appeared before the committee to show how great a menace the Communists have become in the United States and to explain the efforts of the Federation to combat them. In view of the fact that the Communists claim to be trying to improve working-class organization, Mr. Green's evidence is timely. He told the committee his organization was clashing with communistic philosophy in both the States and Canada. They were so directly opposed that there could be no basis of understanding between the two groups. He explained that the Federation stands for evolution, and not revolution; it favors wage agreements and their observance. It opposes with all its might dictatorship of any character, whether by capital or labor. The Communists, on the other hand, scoff at wage agreements and their observance. "They attack and ridicule our institutions," he said, "and picture the American Federation of Labor and its officials as traitors because of their espousal of co-operation in industry. A radical minority is to sow discord and strife wherever possible, and is to utilize all possible means to secure mass action in its desire to achieve revolution and the dictatorship of the proletariat." Among the organizations maintained for the promotion of Red propaganda, President Green mentioned the Workers' (Communist) Party of America, the Trade Union Educational League, the Trade Union Unity League, the Pioneer Youth Movement, and the American Negro Labor Congress.

If Mr. McGrady's information is correct, it is clear that nations which seek to encourage trade with Russia and aid in the securing of concessions are only working against their own interests. Their money is used to undermine them. When the inquiry is completed it is probable Washington will have considerable authentic—and perhaps startling—information as to what the Reds are doing on this continent.—The Globe.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

25,000 people cheered Mr. Bennett in Montreal. But they used to cheer Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Toronto, too.

With the advent of the game fish season on Tuesday, a notable increase in the tourist invasion should make itself prominent next week.

News of Our Own Village

Main St. is being ripped to pieces by the paving company, this being a brake for the village storekeepers as it gives them somebody to look at.

Ed. Peck and other Tory stalwarts motored down to Cobourg, south east of here, Tues. nite, to hear Dick Bennett from Calgary, to the west of us, and Howie Ferguson of Queen's Park, Toronto, speake their piece.

The villager bowlers was at home to rinks from near and far Wed., some of the lads getting home just before the letter carriers started their rounds Thurs. a.m.

Your scribe is glad to say "Glad to meet ya," to the printers from Ontario and Quebec, which is convening in our midst. They has been bigger gatherings but no better looking I say we.

There was an outboard motor endurance test at Clear Lake, north of us, last Sun., and some of the folks what summers in that vicinity asks us to give fair warning that if they's any more test their endurance won't last no longer.

Ham Burnham was seen on Main St. wearing khaki pants this week, making this here political fight look like a war-time election.

If Joe Duffus and Ed. Peck starts attending all the picnics in this district it looks like the man with the best digestion may be the winner on the 28th of next July.

To avoid traffic congestion villagers is respectfully asked not to holler "Whoa" during the horse parade in the village next Tues. (Dominion Day) a.m.

Sam Newhall, our vigilant chief constable, announces his finely trained force is going to start a weed campaign. What could be more timely with a political fight on? asks we.

Geo. Gordon of this village went up to a meeting in Toronto, west of here, last Mon., and told Howie Ferguson where to get off at. So Howie got off at Cobourg the next nite and made another speech.

The game fish season starts in these parts Tues. nite. Anglers please note that your scribe is still living at the same address.—Advt.

A Thought

Herbert Kaufman says that "Life's just a matter of farming—of finding fertile soil in a good field—of breaking ground and being patient. The harvesting comes last—the main work must be done while the least results are showing. Many a man has lost out just because he wasn't patient enough to wait until well-planted endeavour had time to sprout."

What To-day Means To You

"CANCER."

If June 28th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6 a.m. to 7:40 a.m., 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., and 9 p.m. to 10:15 p.m. The danger periods are from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Fortune smiles upon those who have vision on this date; opportunities will be concealed by clouds of uncertainty. "Action withouth forthought may result in disaster; forthought without action will not result at all." Avoid evening disputes.

Children born on this June 28th will have jealous dispositions, and will wish to be "babied." Parents should not pamper them, nor encourage selfish tendencies. They will love approbation, and will blossom forth under proper influences. Most of their faults may ve overcome and outgrown. They will be warmly affectionate. Animal pets should be encouraged, from whom many lessons may be learned.

The sky is the limit as far as your possibilities are concerned, but your lack of desire may keep you down. Nature has thrown her seeds of genius on unfertile ground in your case. It is a pity that you are satisfied to do your half-best. Your best is something of which anyone could be proud. Your mind turns over too quickly; your intellectual attainments come too easily to be appreciated. If you were less clever, you would probably be more ambitious. It is only when your pride prods you on, that the world is allowed to glimpse your usually sleeping talents. You are a steady traveller on the road of least resistance, although your mind is your pass to much more beautiful and worth-while pathways.

You have a very peaceful nature and are usually content with things. Your vibrations are harmonious ones, and you make a most delightful companion. You take a "why worry?" attitude towards life, and you not only do not worry yourself, but you do not worry others. You are generous hearted, warmly sympathetic, and as a rule "understanding." You like beautiful surroundings, if you can have them without too much effort on your part, but environment plays only a small part in your life. You seldom lose your temper, but when you do, the sparks fly thick and fast. You do not easily forget injuries and seldom renew broken friendships. You are very loyal to those who deserve it.

(Copyright 1930, by the Bell Syn., Inc.)

"CANCER."

If June 29th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a.m. to 10:30 a.m., 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. The danger periods are from 5:30 a.m. to 6:45 a.m. tand 5 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Active, but peaceful, influences will be in force on this date; a much needed rest may be expected after the rather disturbing influences of the past week. Good will comes from a new acquaintance. Be careful of courtships!

The child born on this June 29th will be bright, brilliant and cheerful, which will make it loved as well as fortunate in life. It will love the "flesh pots," but will have a serious side to its nature also. It will meet with many adventures, will travel near and far, and will not have a boring life.

There are two somewhat contradictory sides to your character; one enterprising, active, bold, and domineering, and the other sensitive, domestic and homely. One never knows by which mood you will be dominated, and it greatly depends upon the people with whom you are. Your friends are of all types, and from every walk in life. You are very sensitive to your surroundings, and environment is everything to you. The duality of your nature is sometimes trying, and makes you appear as though you do not know your own mind.

Your emotional nature is easily excited especially in matters connected with your home life. At times you are overly anxious about people or things, which leads to "nerves," or irritability. As a parent you would be very hovering, very sacrificing and indulgent. If necessary, you know how to be very economical, and you could at no time be called extravagant. You will go without things for yourself in order to do for others. You are very cautious in some respects, and very daring in others. You will risk your life and reputation, but you will never take money chances.

Your parents will affect your life very considerably—probably stepping between you and some precious desire. You have a great deal of respect for them, and you will probably listen to their pleas when it would be better for you not to do so. Your successes will come through independence of thought, and action.

PLAYERS WILL PRESENT TWO POPULAR PLAYS

Distinguished Actors, Lecturers and Musicians With Chautauqua This Year.

LIGHT OPERA FESTIVAL.

Canadian Company Playing Here From July 2 to Monday, July 7th.

Two great plays, "Broken Dishes," popular Broadway comedy, and "Pollyanna," one of the most notable comedy-dramas ever written; Tom Skeyhill, distinguished Australian writer and lecturer; Vierra's Hawaiians in their spectacular musical production, "An Evening in Hawaii"; The Light Opera Festival, a galaxy of brilliant singers featuring unique productions of operettas — these are among the many big features of the forthcoming Canadian Chautauqua here, which opens Wednesday, July 2nd, and continues for five days, Thursday, July 3; Friday, July 5th; Saturday, July 6, and Monday, July 7th.

"Broken Dishes," the outstanding comedy which will open the Chautauqua on the first night, is a singularly human story woven about the lovable character of Pa Bumpstead. The play sparkles with laughter as Pa Bumpstead, the meek, emulates the turning worm, to his own surprise and the consternation of the Bumpstead family. There is a delightful love story in this appealing comedy. "Broken Dishes" will be presented here by the Martin Erwin Players, featuring Robert W. Strauss, noted Shakespearean actor, in the role of Pa Bumpstead.

On the second afternoon Dr. Owen Rowe O'Neill brings to Chautauqua his extraordinary lecture, "Adventures in Swaziland," a tale as vivid and thrilling as any found in the Arabian Nights, yet a true story of his own remarkable experiences in the heart of South Africa. Doctor O'Neil was born in Africa, whither his ancestors had come from Ireland several generations ago. His accounts of his experiences among the savage Swazis, by whom he was given the title of "The White King of Swaziland," are not only uncommonly entertaining, but paint a vivid picture of the African scene. Preceding Doctor O'Neil's lecture, the Metropolitan Artists, a company of noted singers, will appear in concert.

The Light Opera Festival is the big musical feature of the second night. Superb productions of scenes from "Rose Marie," "The Desert Song," "The Chocolate Soldier" and "The Student Prince," replete with gorgeous costumes and scenery, are featured by this splendid company.

The Garay Sisters, amazing artists on the violin and violoncello who will appear in concert on the third afternoon of Chautauqua, come from Budapest, Hungary. European music critics have been lavish in their praises of the remarkable artistry with which these young musicians interpret the music of the greatest masters. The Garays have made triumphant tours of Italy, Holland, Sweden, Denmark, Norway and the American continent, winning the highest acclaim.

At night, following a concert by the Garay Sisters, Tom Skeyhill, whom the London Times chronicles as "one of the greatest living orators," will give his great lecture, "With Mussolini and the Blackshirts." Here is an unusual opportunity to learn the real facts about Italy's mighty "Il Duce," whom many believe to be the greatest political force in the world since Napoleon Bonaparte, for Tom Skeyhill has lived in Italy with the Blackshirts, attended their secret meetings, marched in their torchlight processions. He knows the meaning and purpose of the Fascisti, and he tells with gripping dramatic power of Mussolini's meteoric rise to world-eminence.

The fourth afternoon is the children's afternoon at Chautauqua, though many a grown-up will be fascinated by the delightful entertainment to be presented. Sue Hastings and her marionettes have arranged a personally conducted trip to fairyland for all those who have the magic gift of make-believe. For sheer charm, a marionette production can scarcely be surpassed, and Miss Hastings' enchanting little wooden actors on their miniature stage, seem able to do almost everything a real actor can do upon a real stage.

"'Pollyanna,'" says a well-known critic of the notable play which will be presented on the fourth night of Chautauqua, "is one of those rare plays which are likely to become institutions of the stage like 'Peter Pan.'" Based on Eleanor Porter's famous novel of the same name, this captivating comedy-drama possesses a certain whimsical charm that reminds one of Barrie' beautiful plays. "Pollyanna" abounds in fun and humor. There is not a dull moment in the four acts through which the appealing little heroine pursues her way, spreading her philosophy of gladness and winning the hearts of all whom she meets. It will be presented here by the Martin Erwin Players.

Elliott James, noted scientist and lecturer, will fascinate Chautauqua audiences on the fifth afternoon with his lecture-demonstration, "Liquid Air." Mr. James makes startling demonstrations upon the platform of the marvels of liquid air, which are as entertaining as they are informative.

On the closing night of Chautauqua, Vierra's Hawaiians will present the spectacular musical production, "An Evening in Hawaii." Vierra's Hawaiians is one of the most popular entertainment companies before the public, and the appearance here of this fine attraction will be one of the high-lights of the entire Chautauqua program. Featuring the glamorous music of Hawaii, interpreted by native musicians, "An Evening in Hawaii" gives a colorful impression of life in Hawaii—the Paradise of the Pacific.

Vierra's Hawaiians will also appear in concert on the fifth afternoon, preceding the lecture-demonstration to be given by Mr. Elliott James.

NO TROUBLE AT ALL NOW

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Has Benefited This Woman

Millions today are eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation.

The cause of constipation is the lack of roughage in food. Add sufficient roughage and constipation disappears. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is nearly all roughage.

Here is a letter from Mrs. H. Gilbert (address on request), which will be interesting to many sufferers:

"I had a very serious operation in October and when I came from the hospital my main trouble was constipation. One day I said to the doctor, 'I am going to eat ALL-BRAN,' and since I started I have no trouble whatever. So you see I can't praise it enough and am always telling my friends what it did for me."

You will enjoy the nut-like flavor of this delicious, ready-to-eat cereal. It is rich in iron, and when eaten with milk or fruit juices, adds important vitamins to the diet.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is an essential in any reducing diet. It means every-day health to people all over the world. Your grocer has it in the red-and-green package. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Improved in Texture and Taste

One thousand children attended a recent memorial service at the cenotaph at Glasgow, Scotland.

Dr. Yokobori, discoverer of the alluvial gold deposits in Formosa, believes the yield will be $2,000,000,000.

STURDY CHILDHOOD

The sturdy child—the bright, active little chap is the one everybody loves. It is only the sickly, fretful child who is not attractive. It is the birthright of every child to be sturdy and well—to be able to make everyone admire him. Therefore, mothers, if yours is not attractive it's your fault, not his. He must be ailing and it is up to you to see that he gets relief—that he is given a medicine that will quickly make him well and keep him well.

Baby's Own Tablets are especially designed for infants and young children. There is nothing to equal them for correcting the irregularities of the stomach and bowels—the cause of most of the ills from which little ones suffer. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL WELCOMES PRINTERS TO CITY

Urging of Extension of Union Label Discussed at Convention.

CHAIN STORE ADS.

To the representatives of the men who make up the daily newspapers of the provinces of Ontario and Quebec greetings were extended this morning from the Trades and Labor Council through its President, Thos. McMurray, who remarked that membership in local union bodies had been affected of late by a decline in employment.

G. W. Schmitt, president of the Typographical Conference, asknowledged the welcome from the Peterborough Trades council and also expressed the delegates' appreciation of the kindly reception that had been generally extended by the labor bodies of Peterborough and the citizens in general.

A resolution passed this morning expressed the opinion that chain store advertising should be classed as retail advertising and should be reset, and also that all local unions are recommended to include a clause to this effect in future contracts with the newspaper owners.

Union Label

Discussion of a proposal urging the extension of the union label and its recognition elicited several comments that little or no effort is being made by union label interests to place their products before the people.

Ed. Teague, Montreal, said the union cigar makers of that city apparently wanted union men to hunt around the tobacco stores for union made cigars, instead of informing the public where these goods were stocked.

W. S. McGowan remarked that the average labor man wouldn't know where to buy a union made shirt.

Mr. Teague declared that the unions should give the utmost publicity to the retailing of their products in order that working men and women everywhere could easily obtain these goods.

The Conference declared itself in favor of the five-day week. It was stated that contracts have already been signed in San Francisco, Chatanooga and New York, for this advance, although they do not take effect until 1933.

Congratulate Winner

Hugh Bentley, of Hamilton, responsible for the apprentice competition, spoke extensively on his praise of the work showing the interest taken in it, as 65 entries were received from Montreal to Niagara Falls, the winners coming from various centres. The competition was now internally known. The donors of the valuable prizes were heartily thanked and congratulations were said to the local cup winner, H. F. Dormer.

The president's report which was unanimously endorsed included the following clause on unemployment:

"The unemployment situation, not only in the printing industry, but in every other activity is a serious menace and should be carefully considered. We have a problem of non-union men, open shops, unrestricted apprentices and unorganized areas in our jurisdiction. It is a safe assertion that if we could remedy these conditions a large number of our members would be in permanent situations. It would help our industries materially if we were to adopt the slogan "Acquire the Union Label Habit". Universal demand of the label on every article used in the home would create additional pobs for many members of organized labor at present unemployed because of the lack of that demand. You must remember that the problem of unemployment applies to all. The employed of today may be the unemployed of tomorrow. The provision of an unemployment fund might bear consideration".

A resolution was passed that to combat opposition to the Union movement from a small body of the newspaper section, a permanent organizer should be placed in Ontario and Quebec territory and local unions should be financially assisted in their own field.

Another resolution requested that the general office render special assistance to the Ottawa as a focal point of the movement.

ARTICLE LVIII.

Q.—What are the advantages and disadvantages of traction company securities?

A.—The advantages of traction company securities are as follows:

1. Traction companies supply a necessary service.
2. Their earnings do not fluctuate over good and bad years.
3. Their operating ratio is good and also their margin of earnings.
4. The securities are a first lien on tangible property that one can estimate the value of.
5. The automobile can not replace the street-car in crowded centres.
6. Companies operate on a cash basis involving no collection expense.
7. Better average yield than on railroad securities.

Disadvantages.

1. Danger of overcapitalization.
2. Danger of opposition from the city due to franchise being unfavorable. Foreign management may result in this.
3. The building of the railway in the first place may have been due to misjudgment.
4. The city may be too small and stagnant.
5. Population may be spread out.
6. Company may be operating in a hilly or otherwise naturally unfavorable district.
7. There is too much uncertainty due to management, labor troubles, or weather conditions such as storms.
8. Competition from privately owned automobiles in some cases serious—also from companies operating busses.
9. Franchise may fall due before the bonds mature.
10. It is hard to estimate true amounts for depreciation.
11. The railway may be located in a distant city where the investor has little opportunity of acquainting himself with the franchise rights or of the condition of the railway and its earnings.
12. The company's accounting principles may be faulty. Maintenance charges may be skimped to show false earning power.
13. The population of the town may be transient or dependent upon one industry for its existence, the future of which is uncertain.
14. The bonds are usually inactive and have poor marketability, and are therefore, not good for a short hold.
15. There is a poor chance of appreciation in the bonds due to the stability of the earnings.
16. It is difficult to analyze securities of such companies because of their lack of standardization.

PRODUCE PLENTIFUL ON LOCAL MARKET

Strawberries Sell From 20 to 25 Cents a Quart—Garden Produce Also Cheaper.

The local market this morning was slightly heavier in quantity of produce, with the buying fairly brisk. Strawberries were prominent, fetching as much as 25 cents a quart for fine ones, with many at 20 and 22 cents. Eggs were getting 30 and 32 cents a dozen, while butter was selling at 30 cents a pound. Potatoes did not appear to be very plentiful, and were commanding 45 cents a peck.

Among the garden produce, beets were selling at 10 cents a bunch, or 3 for a quarter. Radishes, onions, parsley and rhubarb were fetching 5 cents a bunch. Lettuce was also at 5 cents, with fine head lettuce getting 10 cents the head. Cabbage was ranging anywhere from 15 to 25 cents. Cauliflower was getting 20 and 25 cents. Cucumbers were selling at 15 cents apiece for fine ones, while peas were slow at 10 cents a quart, and asparagus was getting 10 cents a bunch.

One producer offered a novelty in gooseberries at 10 cents a pint.

Young pigs were plentiful, but fetching 15 and 16 dollars a pair, although the demand was not very great. One producer offered two lots of freshly hatched chicks which went early.

Hens were getting 25 cents a pound, with broilers commanding 38 cents a pound.

In the fish market, Lake Ontario white fish, sea salmon and pickerel were selling at 20 cents a pound. Lake Ontario trout was getting 25, haddock 15, and fresh filet of haddock 20.

Small boys with pigeons and the usual patent medicine hawkers were in evidence. Two youngsters with a couple of fine Angora rabbits in a box hailed the Examiner reporter with earnest entreaties.

"Wanna buy mister? A dollar fifty the pair, and we'll deliver 'em to your house."

"No thanks. But you'll sell 'em all right."

"Howja know, mister?"

"Gotta hunch."

"Thanks, mister."

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 28. (C. P.) — James Macdonald, a local veteran of the Great War who demanded that his name be covered with a sticker on the civic roll of honor in the city hall, has not paid his municipal income tax after all.

He was sued but proved that he lived outside the city, and won the case in the Division Court. Angry because the city demanded income tax from a war veteran he ordered his name erased from the roll of honor.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

Nickel.

Firmness in Nickel shares is causing surprise. President Stanley's statement that present output will continue for months and that there is no excessive inventory of nickel was somewhat reassuring, but in face of conditions and the intimation that already some nickel is unsold, has led some to wonder what will be done when new plant gets going full blast. Montreal is said to be concerned over Nickel control and fears that if stock goes below $20, New York will then get the bulk of rights issue, over 800,000 shares, as they will be unattractive to the thousands of small holders, bulk of whom live in Canada.

Acme Oil and Gas.

Acme's well near Tillsonburg has been shot and is reported flowing 480,000 cubic feet of gas. This is a fair sized well, costing only $6,000 to complete. Company has 2,000 acres in this section, which will allow for drilling many other wells.

Bidgood.

Reorganization of Bidgood is said to be definitely under way. Market has indicated for some time that something was under way. Suggested reorganization is for $3,500,000 company, which will give old shareholders one new for five old, and which would take just under one million of new, leaving 2,500,000 for financing purposes. Bidgood owes about $60,000 to president and directors, who made advances to keep property open.

Pend Oreille.

Balance-sheet of Pend Oreille shows liquid assets $211,652 and current liabilities $14,512.

Smelters-Abana.

Talk is Smelters wants Abana so as to make sure of getting zinc concentrates for refinery which it and Ventures will build in East. Smelters recently made an examination of property and it is now suggested that deal may be made for stock held by Vickers Mines treasury.

Calumario.

Columario shares have jumped 20 cents recently to 60 cents, presumably in expectation of mill plans announcement. This has been under consideration for some time now and should soon crystalize into action. Property developments have been quite good of late.

Looking for Turn.

Gossip from New York is that bears are tiring of their market dominance and its inactivity. They have evidently been thwarted in efforts to get U. S. Steel below 150, which would have undoubtedly paid handsome dividends across the board. Just as soon as there is a steady strong market for a couple of sessions, look for an upswing, suggests one big house. Canadian issues will undoubtedly play follow the leader.

Home Oil.

Accumulation of cheap Home stock would tend to support reports going round that a pool is getting ready in this issue. Last week's trading totalled 20,000 shares and buying has been heavy every day this week.

Central Manitoba.

Central Manitoba report for year ending April 30 is about ready and directors will soon meet to pass upon it and fix meeting date. Refinancing of further exploratory work is one of problems to be faced.

Bunker Hill Extension.

Information imparted a few days ago re Bunker Hill Extension provided a good opportunity in a penny issue. Price has moved up over 4 cents since, and heavy trading marked Thursday's 2½c jump. Expected news in regard this operation will not be available for week.

Granada.

Production started at Granada Mines, Rouyn, Thursday. Proposal is that mill will handle 50 tons daily when tuned up.

Brokers' Loans.

Brokers' loans for week down $371,000,000. Decline previous week $211,000,000. Total loans now $3,416,000,000.

Anaconda.

Canconda Copper cut dividend in two to $3.50 annual basis. Two subsidiaries also made cuts. Greene Cananea from $8 to $3 basis and Andes Copper from $3 to $1.50.

Nordon.

Reports that New York deal on Nordon was disrupted are denied. Rumor was doubtless part of bear raid which carried stock down to $1. Reliably informed that original deal will be proceeded with and this involves carrying stock to much higher levels to take care of certain options.

McColl-Frontenac.

Sales of McColl-Frontenac are up 25 per cent. this year over last.

PROSPECT OF A NEW INDUSTRY

Information Asked From Town Regarding Establishment of Canning Factory.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 28 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—What portends to be the beginning of the establishment of a canning factory in this town has occurred here, with the receipt of a letter by the town clerk from the Associated Quality Canners Ltd., Toronto.

This communication states that for some months past, W. A. Fraser, of Trenton, a director of the company, has been advocating the possibility of the production of canning factory products in the vicinity of Campbellford, with a view of the company establishing a factory in that town.

The letter furthermore states that it has been decided to make a survey of the district with this in view, and has asked for particulars. The company want a site of not less than one acre, up to two acres, which must be on the Canadian National Railways. A building is also required, and siding connections are necessary.

Other information that the company requires from the town includes free site if possible, fixed rate of assessment, cost of electric power and lighting, labor conditions (male and female), proximity of proposed site to section of the town where the labor will live, and a base rate of wages for male and female. As soon as this information is forthcoming, a survey of the farming district around Campbellford will be made.

J. R. Battisby has been the chief advocate in promoting this scheme. For many months past he has done his best to interest the canning industry in the possibilities of that concern in the Campbellford district. It is estimated that if the factory is located in this town, it will employ from 50 to 75 hands.

It is understood that the town has a very desirable site near the old paper mill, which covers two acres of land, and although there are no buildings, it is on the Canadian National Railway, and has a siding.

TENDERS ARE LET FOR LINDSAY ROAD

Chemong Turn to Fowler's Corners Stretch Awarded to A. E. Jupp Construction Company.

Concrete paving will be laid this summer from the Chemong turn to Fowler's Corners on King's Highway No. 7, according to a contract awarded the A. E. Jupp Construction Company yesterday by Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Public Works and Highways.

This contract is included in the Highway Department's third letting of the season, which brings the total of new highway to be laid this years to more than 200 miles, representing an expenditure of well over $6,000,000.

"During the past few years," declared the Hon. Mr. Henry, "we have been laying pavements at the rate of approximately 230 miles a year, so that we have now over 2,000 miles of hard-surfaced road in the King's Highway system, in addition to 500 miles of gravel."

The Hon. Mr. Henry stressed the economy of hard pavement as against gravel. If the present mileage total represented gravel alone, he said, "the annual expenditure for upkeep would be very heavy". The construction of pavements lessened maintenance costs, he stated.

C.N.R. ENGINEER SUCCUMBS RAISING WRECK TOTAL TO 15

HUGE COFFER DAM WRECKED BY TIDE

Breach 150 Feet Long Made at New St. John Terminal Docks.

THREE ESCAPE INJURY.

ST. JOHN'S, N. B., June 28. (C.P.)—A section of the coffer dam surrounding the area in which excavation for the new Saint John terminal docks had already been commenced, collapsed early to-day under pressure of the highest tide recorded here since April 14, flooding the entire basin, submerging a pumping lighter and an excavating machine at work within the recently sealed and drained area.

The breach was some 150 feet in length. Within a few minutes the inrush of water made a mass of wrecked and twisted timbers; steel sheathing and a clean cut channel through the exterior ballasting.

Despite the large hole torn in the retaining wall, the break was effected with comparatively little disturbance. Half an hour before the structure gave way one of the pump men on night duty, James H. Pitt, had crossed the portion of the dam which was destroyed.

Three pump men were on duty in and about the dam at the time. A young man named Horgan, was forced to kick himself free of his heavy rubber boots and swim from the tossing pump scow on which he was engaged.

CARS WRECKED IN SMASH-UP

Passenger Automobiles and Delivery Truck Collide on Lakefield Road.

MILE NORTH OF NASSAU.

Two passenger automobiles belonging to Roland Coons of Lakefield and Fred Bradget of Toronto were wrecked and a delivery truck belonging to the Nut-Krust Company of this city and driven by W. R. Chapin was seriously damaged in a smash-up on the Lakefield road, one mile north of Nassau yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Drivers and passengers escaped with minor wounds and bruises.

The Nut-Krust truck was proceeding north on the highway followed by Bradget who was driving a Ford. When the truck made a turn to go onto a sideroad to the left, Coons, who was approaching from Lakefield, tried to avoid it by passing on the right side of the truck, unaware of the presence of the Bradget car behind, it is claimed by police. Coons struck the truck on the right side and then collided with the Ford.

UNEMPLOYMENT NOT BAD HERE

Gordon Matthews Tells Utilities Commission at Regular Meeting.

PLANS READJUSTMENT.

"The unemployment situation is not as bad here as elsewhere, but it is not good by any means," stated Gordon Matthews, chairman of the Utilities Commission yesterday afternoon. Remarking that the municipal authorities seemed to be the people to keep the men working these days, he said: "We are looking at this situation as another case of readjustment such as we had in 1921."

The business of the meeting consisted largely in the acceptance of the accounts as submitted.

Application for 3-inch gas mains 100 feet north on Monaghan road, 900 feet west on Frank street, and 400 feet on Cotteamore avenue at an estimated cost of $1038.086 was received and the expenditure approved.

Incident to a discussion of street lighting rates, Howard Clegg declared that if any increase in the rates were to take place, it should be directed against the 60-watt lamps, "so we can get them off the streets." He stated that there were still 600 of them in use within the city.

Ross Dobbin was directed to make the most generous arrangement with the Lawn Bowling Club regarding water rates.

NATIONALISTS HERE FOR DOMINION DAY

The many ball fans who have been crying for a more classy brand of the game here should turn out at Exhibition Park on the afternoon of July 1 to see the C.C.E. team tangle with the Belleville Nationals. Art Primeau's Electric squad has shown great strength in their every start in the E.P.L., and are roosted way up in top place without having lost a single game.

The C.G.E. club is strong in every position. For its infield it has the whole quartet of the Peterborough Central League team of last year with Ash at first base, Rose at second, Hollingsworth at short, and Johnson on guard at the hot corner. Its pitching staff includes Jack Crary, Vin Utronki, Bun Frost and Osterland. The outer gardens are well patrolled.

In bringing the Nationals here the C.G.E. is incurring heavy expense and it will require the support of every fan to keep them on the right side of the ledger. The Belleville squad consists of all its old huskies and the game should be one of the big events of the ball season.

LONDON, Eng., June 28 (C. P. Cable)—On the success and decision of the expedition which will set out, under Captain Q. R. Watkins next month, to investigate the possibilities of an air route from London to Winnipeg, via Greenland, will depend a matter of great importance to the British Empire, said Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the noted Arctic explorer, today. Mr. Stefansson is here to address the British Polar Congress on the economic aspects of the Arctic.

The explorer believed the route from Britain to America by way of the Faroe Island, Iceland, Greenland, and the Baffin Islands was the only practical route by which Europe could be linked with America by air.

Jumps 300 Miles

"There is not a single jump of more than 300 miles along this road," declared Mr. Stefansson, "and it will not be a cold journey for the Watkins party as the temperature of the south coast of Iceland, even in Winter, is only the same as that of the east coast of Scotland at the same period of year."

There would, however, he added, be one cold section over Greenland, where a plane would have to fly at about two miles above the sea level in Trjaa, to escape the mountains. The only possible alternative to this route, the explorer explained, was that planned by an American Company, which proposed to place a floating island in the ocean half-way between New York and Bermuda.

Three Prizes Listed Garden Competition

Every working man who has a garden is asked to enter this contest. There are three prizes: First, $3.00; second, $2.00, and third, membership in the Peterborough Horticultural Society for 1931.

This contest is not so much for the prize money as for encouraging good gardening. You will be in a position to know just what the other fellow is doing as compared with what you are doing. You will receive many pointers from the judges which will be worth while. If desired you will have an opportunity of visiting the prize gardens and it may be a help to you in planning for other contests.

No entry fee. Entries close on June 30th.

...LMOUR CHURCH MISSION CIRCLE CELEBRATES 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Paul Homestead on Fourth Line of Smith Scene of Happy Gathering.

VARIED PROGRAM.

The Paul homestead on the fourth line of Smith was the scene of a very happy event on Wednesday afternoon, June 25, on the occasion of the golden jubilee of Gilmour Memorial Baptist Mission Circle.

The spacious house and grounds made an admirable setting for so auspicious occasion and the weather was that proverbial 'day in June.' About one hundred and fifty ladies came to celebrate the fiftieth birthday, guests being present from societies at Murray Street, Peterborough; Park Street, Peterborough; Lakefield, Bridgenorth United and Lakevale Presbyterian.

The president, Mrs. J. Gordon Mann, had charge of the devotional exercises, after which a varied program was presented consisting of greetings from the sister societies, voval selections by Mrs. L. H. Ingram, Peterborough, and Mrs. C. Telford, Bridgenorth; readings by Misses Phyllis Moore, Hazel Telford, and Mrs. G. Raymore Scott, of Peterborough. There was also an interesting history of the circle read by Mrs. James Young. During the program an address to Miss Mabel Paul was read by the president and a life membership certificate and pin was presented by Mrs. Joseph Mann, as a gift of the circle.

The guests repaired to the lawns or to the exhibition of antiques which were on display. This collection contained many very interesting keepsakes of great variety—china dating abck 150 and 175 years; crockery, metal work, books and letters treasured one hundred years, and all manner of articles, the products of the arts and crafts of the early settlers, shawls of silk and of cashmere which graced the brides of seventy and eighty years ago and last but not least the pulpit and chair from the original Gilmour Church of nearly a hundred years back.

Tea was poured by Mrs. C. E. Moore, Mrs. Alexander McGregor, Mrs. S. Blewett, and Mrs. J. Gordon Mann. A beautiful birthday cake with its fifty golden candles occupied the place of honor on the dining-table which was prettily decorated with golden flowers, which were also placed about the house.

History of the Circle.

The following is the history of the circle which was read by Mrs. James Young:

"Fifty years ago Gilmour Memorial women organized a mission circle. Fifty years! What a world of significance is in these words and what a blessed ministry these years have witnessed!

"Fifty years of loving service, if written in detail, would fill several volumes, but it is not the writer's intention to describe in detail the splendid loyalty of a small group of women towards their organization, nor the golden opportunities of service that have been embraced in a spirit of self-sacrifice and devotion that had actuated all the loving gifts and services bestowed upon God's needy ones in many lands.

"This circle wasorganized in the summer of 1880, the officers being chosen and the inaugural meeting being planned for September. The first president was Mrs. Ratcliffe; the first treasurer, Mrs. Aaron Mann, whose granddaughter, Miss Bessie Turnbull, is now a missionary in India; and the first secretary, Miss Annie Walton, whom we are delighted to welcome to-day. We have also with us one of the first members, Mrs. T. R. Mann. To these ladies we pay special homage as we recall their faithfulness throughout the years. To Miss Walton we owe the gratification of having minutes in complete form, from the first meeting and continuing in painstaking detail for many years. To Mrs. Mann we offer our heartfelt thanks for the sympathetic interest and helpful support that she had always contributed to the circle.

"In reading the minutes of the past fifty years several points pertaining to the life and character of the circle stand out prominently. Whether these are salient features of a live missionary organization will be left to your judgment.

"The first point noticeable is the orderly manner in which the business has been invariably carried out. The faithful attendance of officers at the meetings has been remarkable, very few instances of substitutes being recorded. Definite objections have been set before the circle from the spring of 1882 when a special offering was taken to help defray the expenses of an outgoing missionary, Miss Frith, even to the present time when the members united in hearty co-operation to make this happy celebration of our golden jubilee an unqualified success.

"Another feature noticed is the long periods of office held by different members. It must be observed that this is rendered almost a necessity where the membership is small but it is a matter of joy and thanksgiving to us that these sisters have served in these offices so acceptably and whole-heartedly. Miss Walton was secretary for thirty-five years and her interesting minute-books are a monument to her regularity and her devotion to the cause of missions. Mrs. Bewett has served for ten years. The late Mrs. Percy Edmison was home mission treasurer for twenty-eight years serving with conscientious care and a zealous heart for the growth of the kingdom of God in our home land. Mrs. Telford has filled this office for ten years Mrs. Joseph Mann has been foreign mission treasurer for twenty years and efficient medium between the circle and the foreign board. Mrs. T. R. Mann had filled this office for twelve years previously, and our president, Mrs. J. Gordon Mann, has presided at all meetings but four or five ever since she was elected in 1914. In thinking of these offices we are reminded of our Master's words, 'He that is faithful in little is faithful also in much.

"Early in the circle's history we find them seeking to identify themselves with the larger organization of which they formed a part. In October, 1886, it was arranged to send a delegate to Hamilton to the annual convention of the Women's Baptist Missionary Society, a social being held to help defray the expenses. In 1887 the first mention made of sending a delegate from the circle to the association of Eastern Ontario at Colborne. Miss Walton was the delegate and so through the years we have been brought in close touch with the doings and plans of the boards of the society through the reports of regularly appointed delegates.

"It is also noticeable that early in its history the organization subscribed to the official magazine, the Missionary Link, program material from this source being used for the meeting of May, 1882. They also realized the power and inspiration of meeting with returned missionaries. We have recorded that in 1886 an address on India was given by a missionary, the Rev. Mr. Hann, and brought great encouragement to the members. Needless to say, the returned missionary is still a highly honored and much-beloved guest at Gilmour Memorial.

"As each new cause arose, an appeal would find response in a special effort. It was thus with the ten-cent offering from the women of the church since 1889 for Grand Ligne and a similar special for work among the North American Indians in 1901. These two are now combined in a twenty-five-cent offering. Still another worthy activity of this circle was the organization of a mission band in 1888 which has had the privilege of training many band and circle workers of the present day and has contributed more than nine hundred dollars to the funds of the society.

"And what is there to say of the enterprises undertaken by this small group of women? No call from the boards has ever been ignored. Figures for the first few years are not given definitely in the directors' books, but a total of almost three thousand dollars is recorded for home and foreign missions. This does not include gifts of money, clothing, bedding, Christmas toys and hospital supplies, sent direct to the field in India, Bolivia, or our own fair Canada.

"And what is the goal that is set before us on this, our golden jubilee? We may take as our motto the well-known words, 'Speak to the children of Israel that they go forward.' It is our earnest wish that we may go forward, not only financially but also in communion with our Heavenly Father and in spiritual living. These graces will blossom and bear fruit in prayerful thought, in loving words and deeds of unselfish devotion toward those to whom the Saviour referred as 'the least of these.' We live in deeds not years, in thoughts, not breaths, in feelings, not in figures on a dial. We should count time by heart-throbs. He most lives who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best. Life is but a means unto an end and that end beginning means an end to all things—God."

CHEESE MAKERS MEET ON FRIDAY

Campbellford District Association Have Interest in Discussion—Good Attendance Registered.

COOL ROOMS NECESSARY.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 28. (Examiner Staff Correspondent. — A meeting of the Campbellford Cheese Makers' Association was held last night at the Grading Station, Campbellford, when a good attendance was registered. The president, W. V. Drewry, of Warkworth, occupied the chair.

In opening the meeting, the chairman stated that he hoped that this season would be a hundred percent year for the makers. Of the cheese itself, he said that he was impressed with the simularity of the flavor in certain districts, this being especialy noticeable with the factories on the English line.

Of the Herd Competition, he drew attention to the fact that the success of the entries rested with the makers themselves. It was up to them to see that their patrons signed up and to encourage them to do so. He also stated that the County Council had given a grant of $100 for prizes, which would be split up among the counties.

J. A. Murry, addressing the meeting, told the makers not to be too anxious about their cheese. Although this was not the best time of the year for good results, they had not lost too heavy. He impressed upon them to watch the flavor, as there was a tendency to drift to acid, and not to let the cheese run too long.

Hard Work Necessary

In regard to the competition, he said that there was a good chance for a high score if the makers worked hard. As to the prizes, the Bank of Montreal had promised them a cup which made three in all, as well as many other awards, several of which consisted of money, and he hoped that these would be all worked out on a different bases to avoid the same competitor winning more than one of the chief awards.

Mr. Murry, referring to the grading of the cheese, said that only pick-outs had gone down, and not whole shipments, but deplored the fact that four 100% makers had lost a vat of cheese.

The grading showed some acid cheese, was the report of J. J. Irwin, Dominion Cheese Grader, but he advised the makers to make no radical change.

Cheese makers take TWO

He thought that few places were doing better than Campbellford, Prince Edward County and Belleville were doing well but there was trouble in the Napanee section. He advised the makers not to get discouraged, as the best makers encountered set backs at times.

Mr. Irwin stressed the fact that men who score high in their grading generally had cool rooms. This he had noticed all over, and was of the opinion that cool rooms were necessary to produce good cheese.

Of the Herd Competition the speaker said that the entries were coming in good, but stressed the fact that the success of the contest rested to a great extent upon the makers.

Wes. Remington lead a discussion on cheese making in all its different phases, which was entered into by the meeting and proved very helpful and instructive from the angle of comparisons.

It is believed that the next meeting will be held at one of the factories if the weather is favorable.

BUTTER AND EGGS

TORONTO, June 28.—The local butter market could be called steady for the week, with prices ranging from 27c to 27¼c for Ontario No. 1, and 26c to 26¼c for Ontario No. 2. Sales were made at these prices during the week, and yesterday the market was firm with unchanged prices. The extra ¼c was obtained for good No. 1 in large lots, but some small lots were sold at various times at 27¼c also. Business was draggy on some days and fairly good on others this week, but the fact that the market did not go lower was encouraging.

The English market has started to have a bearing on local conditions, and if it continues in strength the way it has lately a better market can be expected, locally, in the near future. With British prices 2½c to 3c higher than Montreal prices, cargoes of New Zealand butter that are shipped on consignment to Canada will be sent on to the Old Country, thereby leaving a greater opening for our Ontario product.

Country shippers were quoted yesterday 27c to 27¼c for No. 1, and 26c to 26¼c for No. 2. Retailers were asked 31c for No. 1 prints, and 32c for No. 2.

Cheese

The cheese market had its ups and downs this week, but finally settled back to nearly normal, due to the weaker market in Montreal. New large was up as high as 16½c from a low at the first of the week of 16c. But yesterday shippers were quoted 16¼c to 16½c, delivered, Toronto, for new large, 16½c to 16¾c for twins, and 16¾c to 17c for triplets.

Eggs

The egg market was dull all week, with buyers reported as being well supplied with eggs purchased some time back. But the prices to shippers and for graded eggs remained steady until the latter part of the week, when dealers were forced to make a reduction, and shippers were quoted 1c less. Yesterday dealers were offering country shippers 27c for extras, 25c for firsts, and 21c to 23c for seconds, ungraded, delivered, cases returned. Graded eggs, free cases, were quoted at 29c for extras, 27c for firsts, and 24c for seconds. Retailers were offered supplies at 34c for extras in cartons, 32c for extras loose, 30c for firsts loose, and 26c to 27c for seconds loose.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, June 28. — Reports of black rust in the Northwest and of farmers holding their wheat in the Southwest gave wheat buyers an advantage yesterday. A Chicago crop authority telegraphing from Mitchell, S.D., said that on a 200-mile drive he had found black rust in all wheat fields inspected, and that the rust ranged from the lower to the top sheath of the plants. Meanwhile, Kansas dispatches were also at hand telling of farmers piling their wheat on the ground and making few deliveries except for storage to await higher prices.

WINNIPEG WHEAT

WINNIPEG, June 28.—Wheat averaged fractionally better at the close, but only after a nervous, erratic session on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Trading was not in large volume, and spreading operations comprised the bulk of the pit trade. Fair overnight exports were reported, but not confirmed.

October and December showed ¾c gains, while July was up 5-8c and still 2 cents below the dollar. Cash wheat demand was indifferent, and a few sales of oats and barley marked the only cash grain transactions.

EIGHT MARTYRS TO BE CANONIZED

a shower of Iroquois arrows near Hillsdale, Simcoe County, Ontario, while he was trying to help his new charges organize their resistance.

A master of the Algonquin language and bound by a self-imposed vow never to leave the Indian mission field, Father Noel Chabanel, a native of Toulouse, was killed by a renegade Huron's tomahawk in 1649. Father Gabriel Lalement, a Parisian, died beside his chief, de Brebeuf, being slowly burnt from six o'clock in the evening until nine the next morning.

Of the two lay brothers in the martyr company, Rene Goupil, from Anjou, had perhaps the most atrocious sufferings. Dragged on a three days' journey without food or water, after his nails had been torn out and his finger joints subsequently cut off, his wounds festering and swarming with vermin, he was almost beaten to death by the clubs of 200 braves. Though he could have escaped, he stayed by the side of Father Jogues, and was finally tomahawked.

Brother Jean de la Lande was another companion of Father Jogues, and suffered much the same treatment. He was killed the day after his leader, being beheaded by the Iroquois after his skull had been split open.

All eight were beatified with imposing ceremonies on June 21, 1925, in the presence of numerous Canadian pilgrims. That meant that they were recommended for the veneration of the faithful in the region in which they suffered for their belief, and throughout Canada generally. Tomorrow, however, with their elevation to sainthood, they will be held up for the veneration of the entire Catholic world.

The Examiner's New Serial Story "The Gringo Privateer"

Beginning a stirring new romance of the cow country, in which a D'Artagnan of the plains goes to war for his king.

CHAPTER I.

His Majesty owned ranches in New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada, California and Oregon and was not at all certain how many cows, horses and mules he owned, but roughly estimated the number at about two hundred thousand. His headquarters were in San Francisco, where he had a packing plant, and to a considerable extent dominated the wholesale meat trade. Consequently, since in the West the leaders in any industry are known as kings, old Bradley Bardin was known as the Cattle King, and a small army of retainers always referred to him as His Majesty, a tribute doubtless, to his ability to rule his vast empire, wisely, justly and profitably.

Of all his ranches, the New Mexico ranch was the largest—approximately a million acres—hence, in a moment of that whimsical irony which so frequently tinges Western humor, he had elected to call it El Ranchito—the Little Ranch. And El Ranchito the king loved best of all, perhaps because it required more expert management to wring a profit from it, and hence was productive of slightly more worry than the others. Perhaps, too, His Majesty loved it because it was grandly, ruggedly., brutally beautiful, with its green hidden valleys, its desert mesas, its multi-colored, fantastically eroded sandstone peaks and lava scarps that sunrise and sunset tinged with glory.

There is bound to be a strain of repressed poesy in the soul of an empire builder, and whenever His Majesty commenced to feel the down-hill pull, whenever the city, which he hated but to which of late years he was bound, got on his nerves, El Ranchito always called to him and he always answered. He had built himself there an adobo hacienda, with every modern convenience, and a wide, deep, cool veranda that completely encircled the house.

The beauty the peace and the silence at El Ranchito were, to His Majesty, as stimulants to clear, concise thinking. On that veranda he ironed out the many problems that were forever confronting him; decisions made here were never altered. As he grew older he formed the habit of holding at El Ranchito a yearly conference of all his ranch managers; one by one they came, spent a day or two with him on the veranda and returned to their jobs to think over his praise, his condemnation or his suggestions, but not his orders, for he never gave any. His Majesty cared not how his inferiors managed their domains, provided the figures of his traveling auditor proved satisfactory. If his managers could explain to his satisfaction the reasons for red ink in their annual reports, he was tolerant and forgiving: if they could not do this he dismissed them without mercy and without rancor and searched for a man who could.

This evening His Majesty was considering the management of El Ranchito. Art Graydon, who managed its destinies, His Majesty considered as good a cattleman as the West had ever produced Graydon knew men; he could manage them and lead them to be industrious, loyal and devoted, but—he was getting old and with the years had developed a tendency to avoid battle, to argue rather than go to the assault, to close his eyes to conditions he would have attacked valiantly a decade ago.

In particular His Majesty was perturbed over a situation existing in a portion of El Ranchito that lapped over into Old Mexico, a grant of some hundred and fifty thousand acres in a valley known as El Cajon Bonita. There was a saddle-colored rowdy there by the name of Miguel Gallegos, a fellow of mixed ancestry. His Majesty suspected that one of those ancestors had been known as Michael Gallegher and he desired to make war upon the man Gallegos without bringing the State Department into the imbroglio.

Yes, Art Graydon was too cautious. He talked too much of international complications. And there was that grizzled old wolf, Martin Bruce, of the Triangle B outfit, his neighbor to the west. Brother Bruce His Majesty suspected of collusion with Miguel Gallegos, for some of Martin Bruce's cattle also ranged below the Line. His Majesty could not rid himself of a belief that the Triangle B herd was being built up at the expense of the Double B, which was His Majesty's brand, for he had known Martin Bruce for thirty years and had never known anything good of him.

"I need a young man on El Ranchito," the king decided. 'A young man who does not think too long or too deeply. An ambitious young man with notches on his gun. Yes, I must cast about for some bold, brave bucko who can see a hole in a ladder. But I can't dismiss Graydon. He's too valuable, he's been too long on the payroll and has made too fine a record to be retired now. I'll promote him. He shall have an easier job and a better salary."

He glanced off toward the flaming Santa Lucias and over a knoll a mile away a horseman showed, silhouetted against the sunset. The man bestrode a pinto horse, so the king knew him for a stranger, for on El Ranchito there was not one pinto horse such as this once Lazily he watched the horseman ride up to a five-foot gate that led into th. irrigated horse pasture. A hundred yards from the gate the pinto broke into a canter, then a gallop; he rose to the gate, cleared it neatly, settled to a jog on the farther side and headed straight across the pasture toward the king's cattle. Down the eastern boundary of this pasture ran a four-rail fence, which the stranger leaped before jogging up to the edge of the lawn in front of the veranda upon which the king sat in contemplation.

The rider and the king exchanged long penetrating glances. The king was thinking: "What a direct fellow this pilgrim is! Goes straight across country to his objective. Wonder who he is and where he came from. Horse is up on his toes, so he must be a neighbor."

The king was more interested in that horse than he was in the man who bestrode him. He judged the horse might weight twelve hundred pounds. In color he was a blend of large patches of white and deep brown, almost a mahogany color, and where the brown and the white met there was a faint tinge of blue. He stood with upraised head, small ears pricked forward, eyes on the low roof of the hacienda, tail slightly arched. A regal pinto, this, with a fine chest, straight legs, wide action, a full barrel and powerful haunches.

The kind's appraisal of the rider was less lingering, for he was not interested in wandering cowboys, and had sensed intuitively, that the young man on the pinto horse was calling at El Ranchito for the purpose of locating a riding job, and this was out of the king's department. So His Majesty mreely removed the cigar from his lips and waved his arm in a wide circle, to indicate that somewhere to the north of the hacienda the stranger would find headquarters and the riding boss, who might or might not place him on the payroll, The stranger evidently understood, for he answered with a half-perceptible nod, but stood his ground.

"If you hustle right along, son," His Majesty assured the young man, "you'll find the boys just about finishing supper. Some of the boys will show you the corral where you can put your horse. There's hay in the rack there, but if you've come far, say so and somebody'll give you grain for him."

The horseman lifted his hat with Castilian courtliness and bowed low in his saddle. "Gracias, senor," he replied. "Am I by any chance addressing the general manager of El Ranchito, Senor Art Graydon?"

"No, son. I just work for Art.' And he smiled a little at his little jest, for indeed the kind did labor hard to keep his good men on the payroll. It was one of the great privileges of his kingship!

"Ah," the stranger murmured, "Mr. Bradley Bardin himself. I had no idea you were in the country. Well, a king can only be concerned with affairs of state and I'm looking for a riding job, as Your Majesty discerns. I'll call upon the Grand Vizier."

"You're a gorgeous young son-o--a-gun," the king replied interestedly. "Better let me look you over before you present yourself before the riding boss. He has a grudge against mail-order cowboys."

His Majesty came down off the veranda, crossed the lawn and looked the stranger over. And the better to aid this appraisal,but acting also under the stimulus of instinctive good manners when addressing a superior, the stranger dismounted and stood to horse, holding his bridle reins.

"White calfskin chaps with deep brown leather borders, silver conchos tied in with buckskin thongs, two fancy pockets and your initials on the belt. Those chaps must have cost you fifty dollars son. Where's your cartridge belt and pearl-handled pistol?"

"In my bedding roll, on a foot-sore pack horse, tied to a pine tree just over the hill, sir. He quit on me there, so I left him and hurried on here before your cook could clean up the supper dishes."

"Your boots cost twenty-seven dollars made to order and your pants are made of light English whipcord. Very expensive, but perhaps they'll outlast many pairs of denim overalls. Your spurs man, somebody will kill you for this outfit, sure. Win it at a rodeo?"

"No, sir. Where I came from we're rather partial to very nobby outfits."

"Hum-m! Center-fire rig and a rawhide riata. You're from California!"

"Yes, sir. Does Your Majesty like my sombrero? I won that in a poker game from a man whose head was the same size as mine, but not quite so well furnished. He assured me he paid a hundred dollars for it."

"Yes, it's wonderful." The king resumed his appraisal. "Gray French flannel shirt and black silk necktie. How long you been on the road, man?"

"Two days, sir."

"And you shaved to-day! You are a dude. Who ever told you you were a cowboy?"

"Formerly my avocation, sir, but now my vocation."

"I see. Well, you might make a hand, although I doubt it. What's the breeding of that horse?"

"By a pure-bred Arab out of a Steel dust mare, sir."

"Ought to be all horse."

"He is, sir."

"And what's your name, young man?"

"Permit me, sir," the stranger replied. He drew a small black walrushide card case from his breast pocket and handed the king a card. The latter read:

Mr. Kenneth Burney
Santa Inez Rancho
Tres Pineos, California.

"What has happened to the Santa Inez Rancho?" the king inquired. "I know that ranch. Forty two thousand eight hundred and forty acres, well watered and one of the best fattening ranges in California."

"Your Royal Highness took over its cattle on a chattel mortgage loan a year ago," Kenneth Burney replied.

The king was momentarily nonplussed.

"The hell I did," he blurted unbelievingly. "I don't remember giving orders to close out Felix Burney."

CHAPTER 2.

"Well, you didn't close him out—not exactly. He got a dirty letter from your attorneys and figured the jig was up. You had a plaster on the cattle for seventy per cent of their value, the beef market was low and very unsteady, and the doctors recently had told the old man that he had a bad heart and if he wanted to live a few years longer he had better avoid excitement, work and worry. He knew he couldn't pay the chattel mortgage, so he sent your office a bill of sale for all the cattle and retired. He had enough money to last him as long as his heart will last him, what with the salvage on the cattle and the lease money for the ranch."

"Who are you?"

"I'm his son. I used to be ostensibly his riding boss, but mostly I played polo at Santa Barbara. My dad was very indulgent."

"That's why he went broke," His Majesty charged. "Strain of Spanish in his blood. Always the Hidalgo." His Majesty was distressed. "He might have known I wouldn't have crowded him, son," he went on. "That letter my attorneys sent him was just a routine letter. He hadn't paid his interest and they thought a jacking-up might produce it. I'm sorry."

Suddenly he turned almost fiercely upon Kenneth Burney. "You all washed up on the fine gentleman business?' he demanded.

"Seguro, senor. No more polo for Ken Burney."

"That pinto a polo pony?"

"No sir. That's my top cow horse."

"What are dou doing in this country?"

"Looking for excitement and a job. I thought I might find both on El Ranchito. It's a handicap to have been born the heir to a small cattle business, you know. The only boys who amount to a hoot are those that start at the bottom and grow up with it. And I concluded that since the cow business was to be my life work and that life work had to be done for somebody else, now that my father has been cleaned, I'd pick the biggest and best cattleman in the world and go to work for him."

His Majesty looked at his watch. "Too late to eat at the mess hall now," he observed. "I'll telephone Art Graydon to send one of the boys over the hill for your pack pony before it gets too dark, and also have another man come for you horse. Come in, Mr. Burney."

The recent arrival bowed graciously murmured his thanks, dropped his reins and left the pinto tied to a zephyr, while he followed the king into his spacious living-room. Here he kicked off his gorgeous chaps and tossed them and his hundred-dollar sombrero on a divan while the king was fussing at a sideboard.

"Drink?'" said His Majesty prevently.

"What have you got?" Ken Burney inquired politely.

"Anything you want, son."

"Bourbon whiskey, the drink of gentlemen, sir. I'll have it neat."

The king handed him bottle and glass and he helped himself. "Have another,' His Majesty suggested hospitably.

"Thank you, sir, but two reasonable drinks are my limit."

The king telephoned instructions for the care of his guest's horses, summoned his butler and ordered an extra place set. Then personally he escorted Ken Burney to a guest chamber with a bath opening off it. At the sight of this Mr. Burney commenced shedding his raiment frantally. "I'll be out and dressed in time for dinner," he called.

His Majesty smiled paternally and retired to his living-room, where he sat before the open fire and did some serious thinking. "He's young," the king decided. "About twenty-eight. College man, I imagine. His English is perfect Santa Clara University, doubtless. The dons all send their boys there. And Old Man Burney taught him his manners. The trouble with Felix Burney is that he's too fine a gentleman and not quite fine enough as a business man, although he was a good cattleman. This boy Ken is direct, frank, cheerful, clean and intelligent and in him the old Hidalgo strain must be about washed out. He's no hand-shaker. If he had been he'd have refused the drinks I offered him and told himself that an acceptance might prejudice me against giving him a job. The plain fact of the matter is he didn't give a damn. He'll always be himself. I like men like that. Oh, the trucklers and the pussyfooters! They've cost me millions of dollars and years of worry. Yes, I'll ask Art Graydon to give this lad a riding job at seventy a month for six months and see what he's made of. If he holds up—"

He roused from his musing as Ken Burney reentered the room. "You speak Spanish, son?" the king demanded.

"Yes, sir. It runs in our blood like a wooden leg. I even read and write it."

The king nodded his satisfaction. "Some one of these bright days I may ask you to ride down across the line into El Cajo Bonita and talk Spanish to a pisano there by the name of Miguel Gallegos."

"Thorn in your side, sir?" Young Mr. Burney's tones were freighted with sympathy.

The king favored his guest with a cold, direct, beetling glance from under shaggy, wild eyebrows. "I'm certain he brands my cattle. What's more, he gets away with it, son." He paused. After a while he said: "Gallegos wants killing!"

"I shouldn't be a bit surprised," his guest replied, still more sympathetically. "I shall ve very happy to attend to the matter for you if placed in the killing department. Is it a one-man job?"

"That's the hell of it," the king confessed. "He has about three hundred followers and I suppose he can get more if he needs them. They'll all go."

"In that event," young Mr. Burney murmured, "what you need is a new chief in your diplomatic corps. A three-hundred-man mess might develop international complications and we must avoid that."

"You haven't heard the half of it," the king complained.

"I can guess it, however. You are, I believe, referring to Mr. Martin Bruce, of the Triangle B. I worked two months recently for Mr. Bruce, and naturally, around the bunk house at night I heard more or less gossip, put two and two together and decided to come to work for you."

"Well, I was spared the necessity for creating this opportunity sir, but when I learned that the opportunity existed and that there were, in all likelihood, no other candidates for the unpleasant job of smothering it, I made up my mind to seek the nomination. Mr. Martin Bruce's definition of a maverick is not only loose, but he is,in addition, sheriff of the adjacent county, Cochise County, Arizona. The Bruce ranch laps over into Arizona. Martin Bruce is an old-time killer and a brave man. He never ran from a fight. He never took a bluff and he never will. Quite a sizeable job to convict him of rustling."

Gallegos and his men do it for him below the Line and the choicest aggregation of gallows! fruit unhung does it for him north of the Line. They figure they're protected because he's sheriff and has political pull."

"How come they made him sheriff, sir?"

"About ten years ago Cochise County got so tough nobody else wanted the job, young man. And Martin Bruce's cattle were being stolen from him faster than he could steal them from me."

"Ah! So they worked his side of the street, eh?"

"They did. And Bruce cleaned up on them. None of them ever came to trial. They just disappeared out of the country."

"Buried where they fell, I daresay Well, that's my policy, sir. Never bother to arrest a cow thief. The law is liable to turn him loose. It's simpler and cheaper to open fire the minute you come up on him. Safer, too, because if you delay he'll not."

"Have you ever killed a man, Mr. Burney?"

(To be Continued.)

"What are you doing in this country?" Looking for excitment and a job.

The pinto broke into a gallop, cleared the gate neatly, settled into a jog on the farther side and headed straight for the king's castle.

WEDDING BELLS

BENNETT—MARTIN.

HAVELOCK, June 28.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Martin was the scene of a pretty wedding, Wednesday, June 25, at 2 p.m., when their elder daughter, Elma Catherine, was united in marriage to Alfred Charles Bennett, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bennett, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Lennox, of Knox Church.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and looked winsome in a gown of banana heart flat crepe and French radium lace, and carried a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses. She was attended by her sister, Marguerite, who looked charming in a dainty frock of peach crepe satin with French radium lace and picture hat to match. She carried a bouquet of briar cliff roses. The groom was attended by his brother, Stanley Bennett, of Toronto. Miss Doris Jeffery, of Smith Falls, cousin of the groom, played the wedding music, and during the signing of the register, "O Promise Me" was sung by Miss Vaughan Rorke.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a crystal necklace; to the best man, a signet ring, and to the soloist and pianist, mondaine compacts.

After the ceremony a reception was held when the mothers of the bride and groom received with the bridal party. Mrs. Martin, mother of the bride, wore a gown of hunter's green georgette, with black mohair hat, while Mrs. Bennett, mother of the groom, wore a gown of cascade satin-back crepe and hat to match.

After a dainty luncheon the bridal couple left on a honeymoon trip to Victoria, B. C., and Seattle, Wash., the bride travelling in a suit of rose-glow morocain crepe, with hat and shoes to match. She also wore an Isabella fox fur, gift of the groom. On their return they will reside in Havelock.

Descendants of Otonabee's Pioneers Hold Family Reunion

In Month of June 101 Years Ago Five Scottish Families Started Pioneer Life in Fair Otonabee

In Chemong Park To-day the Descendants of Duncan Comrie, Duncan Drummond, Peter McIntyre, Archie and William McNevan, John, James, Helen, Janet and Margaret McIntyre Are Celebrating.

MANY OF THE EARLY HARDSHIPS ARE RETOLD BY OLDER MEMBERS OF THE FIRST GENERATION

Landing Near Keene the Little Band of Scottish Immigrants Immediately Started to Work to Hew Down the Virgin Forest and Erect Small Shanties For Their Women Folk.

(By Mrs. Jean Camp ...)

One hundred and one years ago five Scottish families left their homeland and migrated to Canada, settling in the township of Otonabee in June, 1829. To-day, the descendants of those five families are celebrating at a big picnic in Chemong Park. These hardy pioneers have descendants living in all parts of the world. Many have made fortunes, many have become distinguished in army, church and state and many others to-day make up the very best of the citizens of Otonabee and the surrounding township.

Theirs was a hard lot. With little or no money those hardy pioneers landed on the shores of Rice lake and at once set to work in the virgin forest to hue out a small clearing, build a little shanty for their woman folks and sow a little grain so that they might have bread. Through those years they struggled until to-day Otonabee is known as the banner township of the county of Peterborough.

The five families, all residents of Comrie and Perth, Scotland, were composed of Duncan Comrie, who was married and seemed to have been the leader of the little group of immigrants; Duncan Drummond, Peter McIntyre, Archie McNevan and his brother, William, with his wife and six small children, and the Millers, John, Peter, James, Helen, Janet and Margaret. All but the McNevans went first to the Comrie shanty where Samuel Comrie lives now on the 9th concession of Otonabee and from there moved to their own farms as they acquired them.

Oldest of the McIntyres.

In giving a short history of these pioneers some of the oldest survivors of the first generation to be born in Canada were seen. Duncan McIntyre, who lives with his daughter-in-law and three tall grandsons, on the 8th Concession, is the oldest of the McIntyres, and it is most evident that he enjoys nothing more than to spin yarns of those early days. Mrs. William Campbell is one of the oldest of the Millers and when these two get together it is most interesting to listen to the bygones that are retold. Both are over eighty with perfectly clear minds and they can make the past live again by their vivid tales. Their only regret is that although they have lived to see so many great changes they can scarcely hope to see those that are coming so rapidly now. What is coming after the automobile and the airplane? What improvements will there be in the radio? What will television be like? We have been born 30 years too soon they lament.

McIntyre Family.

On board the boat coming out from Scotland was a youth of about eighteen years, Peter McIntyre. He used to 'mind' the two-year-old Margaret Comrie for her mother, dandle her on his knee. About fourteen years later he married her!

He used to herd sheep in the Old Country, but out here Duncan Comrie taught him to make shoes in a little shop just a few steps from the Comrie home. When he married he went to live on what is now Mrs. Sandy Stewart's farm, but being afraid of the pine stumps, he moved to the farm now owned by Mrs. Jack McIntyre on the 7th line of Otonabee. There they reared a family of four boys and six girls.

The eldest boy, Archie, was murdered in California, and his mother, grieving over his death, died shortly after. It was at the time of the California gold rush and the murderers had planned to kill an old man with whom Archie lived, to get his money. "Get the old man, but don't touch the boy," had been their instructions, but when they came to the house the old man was out and the boy alone. A noise started them and they ruthlessly shot Archie.

Peter McIntyre and Miss Kate McIntyre both live in California now, the former occasionally returning for a visit.

Another sister, Nellie, married Thomas Thompson and still lives on a beautiful farm overlooking Rice Lake, part of old Captain Anderson's grant. Her eldest son went as far afield as India, and Sierre Leone, in the medical service of the British Army.

Not a Partition in the House.

"Not a partition did we have in our house," said Mr. McIntyre, when I questioned him about those early days. "Two beds downstairs, with a sheet hung between—all the rest bundled upstairs. I wonder we didn't fall down. We had no stairs, just a ladder to climb up. That's the old home, built in '60 — the year the Prince of Wales was in Peterborough. I went up to see him."

"Why I sang before him," interrupted Mrs. Campbell, "in the court-house grounds. All the girls wore white dresses with blue sashes."

"The first school was in the field opposite Herb Howson's," continued Mr. McIntyre. "I was just counting and I don't know a person living except Mrs. Howie who went to school with me. We had just forms in school, wooden benches with no backs—terribly hard to sit on all day long. Around the walls were desks slanting down for the older pupils to write on.

"Of course, I had very little schooling. I don't remember how old I was when I left school but I dragged my first fallow when I was only nine. It was planted with wheat and I had to go over the same piece five or six times, so it was slow work. I had oxen; I drove them for logging and I was so small that when a root or stump caught the leg of the drag, it would be too heavy for me to lift and I had to unhitch and have the oxen pull it back.

"There was no money for anything in those days," he said.

"Didn't Peterborough have woollen mills by that time and a thriving lumbering industry?" I asked.

Unable to Pay Postage.

"No, siree, Peterborough was a pretty small settlement then! No, there was no money. Our people had to ask their friends in Scotland not to write as they could not afford the twenty cents necessary to post a reply. There weren't stamps then. The letter was folded and its edges held together by a bit of sealing wax—no envelope. 'Paid' was stamped in the right-hand corner and in the left was a round date stamp, 'Otonabee U. C.' with say, '10 Feb., 1847,' written in by the postmaster.

"Duncan Drummond's first taxes were fifty cents! Yes, I agree it's a terrible change nowadays, but maybe it was as hard to get that fifty cents as it is to get fifty dollars now. If you raised a sheep, that would do for meat for quite a while. Before our time, I remember hearing of people who planted potatoes, and when the stalks grew they dug up the tuber and ate them! Some boiled wheat and ate it!"

"When you finally got a few cows, where did they pasture if the country was all forest?" I enquired.

"They ate the leaves off the small trees that formed the undergrowth," he explained, "then they browsed in the grass so high in the beaver meadow you couldn't see them. Besides, there were a few cleared places where the Indians had camped. I remember when we broke land at our place, it was full of flints and arrowheads and crockery—all broken, you know, but nocely decorated and burnt very hard. I had a pipe, a kind of soap-stone, but somebody took it away to a museum in Toronto. The Indians had a way of tempering copper then, but it is a lost art now."

"Were you ever afraid of these Indians?" I asked him.

"Oh no, never," he replied, smiling.

It seemed that the only ill ever charged against the Indians was that a white baby was carried away by them and years after this suspicion was strengthened when a band of Indians who came up from Lower Canada had a white girl with them.

"Did you ever have any holidays to enlighten your hard work?" I asked.

No Holidays Then.

"No holidays for me," he replied; "I'd be burning fallow till ten o'clock at night sometimes. Mind you, once you started a fire you had to turn it over two or three times. It didn't just burn right up. But the big holidays were May 24 and New Year's Day—you see the Scotch made more of a festival of the New Year than of Christmas.

"We had no chairs then. Our people used to tell us, 'Stand up and you'll grow bigger,' so we stood even for eating, or sometimes got a block of wood. The bedsteads were all made of boards. There was no plaster so the spaces in the log houses were stuffed with mud, and in the winter the beds would be covered with snow which had blown in through the cracks.

"Timber was no use then. The main idea was to get the ground cleared for grain so we burnt thousands of cords of wood. The last wood I drew was to Keene and I got one dollar a cord for it.

"In the logging shanties the fire was built in the centre and the smoke was drawn up through huge chimneys made of pine, too. You'd think you would be burnt out, but no, the flames and all would go up fine.

"The bread in these shanties was put into bake kettles with iron lids, set in a row in front of the fireplace and the ashes raked over them. When cooked the kettles were taken out and the ashes swept off the covers and I never heard of a bad loaf of bread. Every loaf was the size of an 80-pound cheese.

Archie McNevan Was the Mason.

"The frying-pan had a handle four feet long, so the cook could stand well back from the heat. Great logs, six to eight feet long, were drawn up to the door with oxen and then rolled into the fireplace. Archie McNevan was a mason and he built all the fireplaces in the first log houses. They took half as much stone as would build a house now, so huge was the chimney.

"Yes, I've heard mother tell," added Mrs. Campbell, "that the water would be boiling at one side of the fireplace and freezing at the other!"

Pancakes and scones were baked on a lid that was fastened to one side of the fire and swung over the heat by a crane.

No Lamps Then.

There were no lamps at first, just candles made at home out of sheep's tallow. "Yes," said Mr. McIntyre, "and I've seen us run out of candles and have to get a saucer of goose-oil with a wick in it."

"'Keep that candle below your nose,' was always the warning given us children," said Mrs. Campbell. "You see, the basement was stuffed with pea-straw and things were hung from the ceiling—hams, and bladders filled with lard—so if we carried the candle above our head in the natural way, we should have set fire to the straw. Only the grownups were allowed to light the kerosene lamps when they first came in."

Old Dr. Andrews, the minister for fifty-two years, used to say that Mrs. Campbell had the gift of a Macaulay as a story-teller and here she was reminded of a funny incident of her girlhood.

"There was a shanty across the field from us which had one of those huge fireplaces and one Sunday some of the Scotch and Irish youths of the neighborhood had met there to play cards. William Drummond, Duncan's son, knew of this Godless gathering and stealing quietly upon them, he managed to climb upon the roof and drop a black cat down the chimney into their midst. The consternation was terrible. Their guilty consciences told them it was the devil—they were very superstitious then.

'Let ush Pra-a-ay,' said Con Hayes, dropping on his knees.

The Drummond Family.

Duncan Drummond married Helen Miller, in Crieff, April 28, 1829, just before they left Scotland. A family of four boys and eight girls were born on the farm now owned by William Drummond, a grandson. Their children's children scattered to the Canadian West, Denver, Toronto, New York and even India.

Duncan was a weaver in the Old Country and brought out his hempen bags made by himself. Willie MacDougal got his loom and after him, Mrs. English. Duncan used to cut sticks and whittles them to a point to make pitchforks. The story is told that he once rolled a keg of nails from Cobourg, which is twenty-six miles from his home. James Miller carried a bag of wheat on his shoulders the same distance, to Cobourg and carried the flour he had ground from it home in the same manner. Surely not a crumb was wasted then!

"The last of the second generation of Drummonds is Kate, now Mrs. Thomas Laing, who lives in Toronto, and therefore had no opportunity to enrich this history with her reminiscences.

John Drummond recalls his mother telling how she used to be able to see the deers' heads over the tops of the pine trees on Peter McFarlane's hill. These pines are giants now and form a landmark for miles in each direction.

Miss Mary Drummond tells how old Chief Mosang Paudash used to come up from Hiawatha to her Mother's home and tell about the different battlefields. It was after a great battle on Hatrick's point that only one girl of a tribe of Ojibways survived and she swam to Spook Island. This is probably the same story Katharine Parr Trail tells in her book, "Lost in the Backwoods."

Family Worship at Night.

"Uncle" Duncan Drummond never went to bed at night till all his children were in. He would pace up and dowt the floor to keep himself awake so that he might have family worship, even if in were twelve or one o'clock. "An out and out Christian was Uncle Duncan Drummond," said one who knew him. "I'd like to know his mate these days."

Duncan returned to Scotland once for a legacy. Imagine the list of things his friends must have asked him to bring back from 'home."

He did bring four grandfather clocks—just the works, I am told, and Mr. Hastie, of Lang, made the cases.

Duncan Comrie had one son, William, by his first marriage and a farm was bought for him on the 6th line, just north of Keene. When he was clearing it, he had to walk over three miles every morning. The story is told that he used to have a goose egg in his lunch. When he married he had ten children who settled, for the most part, a few miles east of their father. The son, William, still lives on his father's farm, while across the road he was joined some years later by John Comrie, who traces his descent through Duncan's second wife.

From the time that the family gathering was first mentioned, there was one person whom everyone hoped would be well enough to journey to Chemong. This was "Aunt Mary Ann" as she was called (Mrs. John Neish) the last of the second generation of Comries. She would have been the oldest of all at the picnic. About a month ago she died.

These women carded their wool, spun their own blankets, cured meat, baked bread, churned butter, besides binding sheaves in the field with the babies lying in the shade of a stook. Those were the days when twenty-one sat down to breakfast—all these on a farm now run by one great-grandson and one tractor.

After Mrs. Neish's death, a letter was found among her treasures written by Uncle Duncan Drummond when he thought he was on his deathbed. It was to say farewell to his Sunday School scholar and give her a last bit of exhortation and also contained instructions as to who should take over his work for he was superintendent of the Sunday School. It was undoubtedly the background of strong, religious principle that gave these men and women the courage to succeed in face of all obstacles and hardships.

Archie McNevan was a bachelor, but his brother William married and brought his six children with him from Scotland. They landed at Coldsprings and in six weeks the father died.

"They were a hardy race of people, landing at Quebec with nothing to look at but the trees; no home to go to, but what it must have been like for a widow with six small children?" said Mr. McIntyre.

Little wonder she never forgot the kindness of old Archie Weir, father of Councillor "Baldy" Weir, who went to live in Ashburnham. At this time old Archie was driving a stage from Kingston to Toronto, and when he got to a big hill near Toronto, it was necessary to put on a double team. No doubt it was what is now known as Rouge Hills on Highway No. 2. When a sporting American car skims past me at fifty-five miles an hour on that long grade, I think of Archie Weir and his stage coach toiling laboriously through the mud a century ago. His route took him from Cobourg to Coldsprings, and he was very good at bringing Mrs. McNevan provisions. "The kindest-hearted man that ever lived." she vowed he was.

Very soon she moved her little brood to Otonabee to the farm on the 7th line, where Bill McNevan lives now with his mother, fondly known as "Aunt Jemima" and who is almost eighty-three years of age. In those days the wolves were fearless and logs were piled against the door to keep them out. Once a little little black dog was torn to pieces by the wolves before it could be pulled insideto safety. One of the most prized possessions of this family is a shorter Catechism and Westminster Confession printed in Gibson's field in Glasgow in 1753.

BURIED IN CENTRAL PARK.

As I said before, the Millers went first to Duncan Cromie's as he was married to their sister Janet, "the blithest lassie in a' the toon o' Cromie." Only six weeks after they arrived the boy Peter, aged eighteen, died. His grave is in the park in Peterborough, in front of the new Collegiate Institute, but no one knows the exact spot now. His brothers and sisters walked home through the woods after the burial and never spoke a word all the way. They were broken-hearted at burying their brother in this strange, wild country. In after years, whenever James was heard to chant, "By Babbel's stream we sat and wept," his children knew he was recalling the little procession of mourners at Peter's funeral.

"Oh how the Lord's song shall we sing, Within a foreign land?"

John Miller married Margaret Wood and to them were born ten children. Six of these settled on farms near Keene and had large families. These are the people whom one would see on a Sunday morning driving to Church in great old family carriages. These are the families that furnished ruling elders and members of session to the auld kirk. Mrs. Peter J. MacFarlane is the only survivor of this family. Like her mother she was a great friend to the Minister. "Yes, Mr. Andrews christened me," she said, "married me, christened my four children and married my eldest daughter."

Margaret Miller, known as "Aunt Peggy" married Andrew Short. Their homestead is on the 6th line near the Norwood road. Those fine woods along the block road belong to them. Their three children are gone, but a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Richard Short, is a marvel of strength, industry and wit. She is ninety-four years of age and still makes clothes for her grandchildren. She declaims her own poetry—but she is Irish, Bridget Sheehan. This reminds me of another very old Irish lady, wife of a brickmaker near Hayes' Tavern. When the neighbor children tormented her she would cry. "Out of this wid ye, ye Hayees, and ye Lynches and ye Scotch pups."

The "Scotch pups" were the Jimmy Miller children, only two of whom survive, Mrs. Campbell, of Keene and Mrs. Harry Cruikshank, of Toronto. Jimmy Miller and his bride walked up from Keene to their new home carrying an axe and a logging chain. What a start in life! When their first house was being built, everyone was at the raising and when the frame was up, Peter McNevan leaped to the beam and shouted, "I christen it 'Breadalbane.'

Old Cobourg Railroad.

"I'm sorrier every day," said Mrs. Campbell, "that I did not keep a diary of the time the railroad was being built—the old Cobourg and Peterborough one that ran right across Rice Lake and which was an extraordinary feat of engineering. It ran through our farm and such comings and goings! When the cholera broke out, eighteen died in one week and they were buried over in Captain Rubidge's field. The following spring when a young man was ploughing the horses broke through into the coffins. They had been buried too shallow and everyone feared the plague would break out again. Mother said it was a judgment on them for the way they broke the Sabbath."

"Mother lived before she married father, near the Fife settlement," Mrs. Campbell continued. "Yes, the Fife wheat—same family—old Davy Fife. She told us about oneof these Fifes having a sick child whom he carried over thirty miles to Cobourg to the nearest doctor. The raspberries were growing thick and the father laid the sleeping child down to appease his hunger. He did not notice how far he was wandernig until he tried to find the baby again. Only after a frantic search did he come upon it. In Cobourg a woman gave him a hen which he carried home with the child and the egg it laid each day helped the child to get well again.

"About eighteen years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Cruikshank visited Comrie and revelled in recalling the past with the cousins who had not emigrated to Canada. Mrs. Cruikshank had carefully carried a large and becoming hat and a pretty scarf on the entire trip, simply to do honor to her Scotch cousins when she should appear at church. But on Sunday morning their party was met by old David Miller's daughter, with tears in her eyes. She and her father had had words over a blue scarf which she had donned to match her eyes and to do honor to her Canadian cousins. When she suggested taking the younger members of the party to a Church where the music was very fine, her father very sternly said, "You'll come to the Church of your fathers."

"I believe this sternness was characteristic of these old men, but what could you do with a family of ten or twelve if you did not keep a tight rein? Even so they climbed from windows to go to parties—the sweethearts placed the ladder to the window and the girls climbed down. It is even said that when the merrymakers returned, the door was frequently opened for them by the gentle little mother!"

Chase Family.

I would like to mention another large branch of the Cromie family, the Chases. Duncan's daughter, Elizabeth, married Parse Chase and had ten children, but all left Otonabee. Three went to pioneer in their turn in Vancouver, Rachael, Jerry and Harry. They went there before the fire that destroyed the City just as it was getting nicely started.

They wrote to a cousin, Jennie Lockhart Center, Ellen Comrie's daughter, to join them and all were there in the great boom days. They can tell tales just like their grandparents, of how they used to take picnic suppers down to English Bay where now probably a million-dollar apartment house stands.

Mrs. Center is one of the most highly respected women in Vancouver, just as her mother was one of the best loved in Brandon, in the Middle West, where she also was a pioneer—but that's another story.

Lord Charnwood tells how Abe Lincoln was asked for material for an account of his early life. "Why," he said, "It is great folly to attempt to make anything out of me or my early life. It can all be condensed into a single sentence and that sentence you will find in Gray's Elegy. "The short and simple annals of the poor." That's my life and that's all you or anyone else can make of it."

And my story must close. So many I have not mentioned—most because of lack of space; some because I have never heard of them; a few because like Abe Lincoln, their people thought their history too quiet and uneventful to be worth recording; but who is to judge of the importance to this world of lives lived in industry and piety?

"Hard-working, God-fearing"—what greater eulogy could we give our forefathers? In their humility they thought it nothing. We can see how well they wrought and are proud.

MADOC CHURCH CELEBRATES 65TH ANNIVERSARY LAYING OF EDIFICE CORNER STONE

Members of District Masonic Order Attend Service in Body.

CHURCH DECORATED.

Rev. A. B. Payne of Athens Delivers Powerful Address to Congregation.

MADOC, June 28.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The sixty-fifth anniversary of the laying of the corner-stone of the Anglican Church of St. John the Baptist, in Madoc, was celebrated on Tuesday, June 24, by the celebration of holy communion at ten a.m. and festal evensong and sermon at eight o'clock in the evening, with the members of the Masonic Order attending in a body, as was most fitting as this order assisted at the laying of the corner-stone in those early days, sixty-five years ago.

The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, paeonies, roses and other Summer flowers in abundance and the supplied choir played an important part in the festal choral evensong service. Evening prayer was read by the rector, Rev. P. Gatley Reynolds, and the first lesson read by Mr. G. E. Graham, student missionary at Bannockburn, and the second lesson by Rev. B. F. Byers, of Stirling.

The professional hymn, "The Church's One Foundation," was followed by "If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves and the truth is not in us."

The exhortation, general confession and absolution followed in order, with the Lord's Prayer and full choral responses and Psalm 67, "God be merciful to us and bless us," responsively.

Gloria, Magnificat and Nunc Dimitis followed, showing the splendid training received by the choir, and intoned creed and Lord's Prayer.

After the following prayers, a beautiful sacred solo was rendered by Mrs. P. G. Reynolds, "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings, O Lord of Hosts" (S. Liddle).

Preceding the sermon the hymn, "Bless Be the Tie That Binds."

Splendid Sermon.

The preacher of the evening was Major Rev. A. B. Payne, of Athens. Rev. Mr. Payne expressed his pleasure at being invited to share in this sixty-fifth anniversary and to speak to the members of the order whose members had assisted in the laying of the corner-stone of this church so long ago, on the feast day of St. John the Baptist. He said it was eminently fitting that Masons should gather for worship on this day, as one of their own patron saint days. Taking as his text, St. John 2:16, "Make not my Father's house an house of merchandise," and Matt. 21, "My house shall be called the house of prayer," Rev. Mr. Payne went on to speak of the difficulties faced by these pioneers who felt that a house of prayer must be erected, and in planning to build this church. Money was an acute scarcity at that time, yet they were enabled to build. There were false idols then, as always, which attract and which distract men's attention from God. The only solution is the truth as found in the Gospels.

House of Prayer.

The place of the church fills in any community cannot be accurately measured. Any great teacher repeats and reiterates the words of warning —so, too, did the Great Teacher. He cleansed the temple with burning words, "Make not my Father's house a house of merchandise," and "My house shall be called a house of prayer," not a den of thieves. These things are not wrong in themselves, but were in the wrong environment. The Great Teacher came to teach of the Kingdom of God, and all other things should be added.

As members of the Christian faith and members of the Masonic Order, our faith is shown by following His example, by healing, by doing good, by sacrifice. There is no charity apart from the spirit of sacrifice. He taught us on learning the Father, and of the Father's house and of fellowship.

In the church we often lose sight of the things beneath the surface where are found the things of true worth. Deep down we find the spirit of true Masonry, and these point up and up to the true Centre God.

Every little village, on every lonely seashore, over the prairies and up into the mountains we find little buildings built in the name of some saint, erected to the glory of God and for the use of man, by the sacrifice of those gone before. "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God."

To the Masons, the speaker dwelt on the fact that these societies are but the handmaid of the divine society. They grow by sacrifice that they may be some more worthy of the divine love and fellowship. So we all live to work out the parable of life in action.

A beautiful anthem by J. H. Mamber was given by the choir, "O Worship the King," with the second verse by male voices and the fourth verse as a solo by Mrs. Reynolds.

After offertory, benediction and vesper hymn, the recessional hymn, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," was sung as the choir left the stalls, and martial strains of "The Church Festival March" accompanied the Masons in their march out.

The opening music was "Ave Maria," by Schubert, and "Poet and Peasant" overture, by F. Von Suppe. Miss Lillian Hart, organist.

PALE FACES JADED NERVES

Due To Weak, Watery Blood.

Anaemia—impoverished blood—comes so stealthily that it is often well advanced before recognized. Fatigue and discomfort, the earliest manifestations of the trouble, are seldom taken seriously. Soon the face becomes pale; the nerves jaded; the heart palpitates violently after the slightest exertion; the appetite becomes fickle and before you realize it you are in a terrible plight.

At such time, by enriching and purifying the blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will build up the nerve cells and correct the run-down condition. Concerning them Miss Margaret Torrey, Toronto, Ont., says: "I suffered a complete breakdown. My heart would palpitate on the least exertion. Nothing I ate agreed with me. I started taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and by the time I had taken several boxes I was ready for anything; I had gained in weight and every distressing symptom had left me."

You can get these Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LARGE CONTEST HELD AT KEENE

Total of 125 Persons Participate in Junior Farmers' Competition.

LIVESTOCK-SCIENCE.

KEENE, June 28.—The largest annual livestock and domestic science judging competition for junior farmers yet held in Peterborough County was staged at Keene on Thursday with a total of 125 participating. Seventy-nine boys took part in the livestock competitions and 46 girls entered the domestic science events.

An outstanding feature was the winning of highest honors in the livestock competitions by Roy Dunford, 14-year-old Lakefield boy who score 654 points out of a possible 800. He is probably the youngest that ever won this distinction in the annual competition locally and was one of the youngest competitors yesterday.

The girls and boys gathered in Keene at the Otonabee Town Hall at 9 o'clock in the morning and shortly the competitions were begun. Under the direction of Miss Edith Hopkins of Lindsay from the Women's Institute Branch, the girls carried out their domestic science judging in the hall. Judges were Misses E. Wallace, Toronto; B. Duncan, Toronto, and E. Cowan, Drumbo.

Domestic science work was divided into three sections: Nutrition, clothing and house furnishings; and the sections were sub-divided into two further divisions, each. Under nutrition school lunches and family lunches were judged. Dresses and country girls' wardrobes were judged in the clothing division, and living room plans and kitchen plans in the house furnishing division.

The three girls who were chosen to represent the County at the Canadian National Exhibition intercounty competitions this Fall were Marjorie Frankish and Mary Tanner of Lakefield and Miss Helen Tedford of Indian River. Mary Rose was named as a spare.

In the domestic science competitions the five high girls were Marjorie Frankish who scored 538 points out of 600, Mary Tanner, Helen Tedford of Indian River and Mary Rose of Warsaw. Gladys Anderson, Havelock, won the special prize of $10 offered by Warden J. Hawthorne to the highest girl who had never competed before. Isabella Towns, Douro, was one point behind Gladys Anderson.

Expenses for a two-weeks' short course at Guelph donated by the Women's Institutes of Peterborough County went to Marjorie Frankish. Mary Tanner won Reeve McIntyre's special prize.

Dresses for the judging competitions were loaned by the Canadian Department Stores.

In the livestock judging competitions there were five classes judged. The boys went to the farms of Hope Brothers for horse judging. Holstein cows and sheep were judged at Sam Comrie's farm and beef cattle and poultry at Herbert McFarlane's farm. The livestock work was concluded in the morning except for the giving of oral reasons which took place in the hall in the afternoon. Grain was judged in the hall after luncheon also.

Winning the highest number of points, Roy Dunford also won the $10 given by the Bank of Toronto in Keene towards a trip to the Royal Winter Fair. Hugh Buchanan of Havelock was runner-up.

Winners in the livestock division were Ralph Garbutt, Lakefield, and Roy Dunford. Austin Wilde, Havelock, led the grain judging with Stewart Tedford, Indian River, second. The C.N.E. shield for the highest boy who had never competed before went to Harry McIntyre, Keene, with Everett Tully a close second.

Jim McIntyre of Keene won a special prize of $10 towards a trip to the Royal Fair donated by the Keene Junior Farmers' Club. T. P. Lancaster's $10 prize of a similar nature for the older boy training and bringing the best team of three juniors to the competition went to Ralph Garbutt, Lakefield. His team consisted of Howard Hamilton, Sherwood Payne and Trevor Little.

J. B. Nelson, of Peterborough, representative of the Department of Agriculture, was in charge of the judging competitions. Horses were judged by Walter Smith of Brighton, agricultural representative; dairy cattle by J. Y. Kellough, representative at Port Hope; beef cattle by M. H. Winter, representative at Lindsay; hogs by D. A. McKinnon of Peterborough; sheep by J. Lefevre, Brighton; poultry by J. F. Francis of the Ontario Agricultural College and seeds by H. W. Pearson of Belleville.

The choice of ten boys to go on the "Royal 500 party" to the Royal Winter Fair has not yet been made.

Half a million people attended the international fair at Budapest, Hungary, this year.

GLASS BUSINESS BOOMS.

BUTTE, Mont. (U.P.)—Butte's retail glass business is thriving. And why? A group of young vandals is the answer. Their unerring aim with air guns and rocks has cost the school board $652.65 for broken glass replacements in public schools since the beginning of the school year.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure e weet
Or dims the radiant light.
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind,
But each shall seek the common weal,
The good of all mankind

CAVAN

The following is from the pen of an Institute worker and is worthy of thought and consideration.

A Successful Failure.

"Do not attend the meetings of your branch, or if you do, be very sure you come late. If the weather is in the least unfavorable never think of coming at all. If you do attend the meetings be quick to find fault with the work of the officers and members. Do not ever be persuaded to accept an office of any kind in your branch, as it is ever so much easier to criticize those who are doing the work than to do it yourself. Nevertheless, get sore if you are not appointed on some of the committees; if you are, do not attend any of the committee meetings. If you are asked by the president to give your opinion regarding any important matter under discussion, tell her you have nothing to say. After the meeting tell everyone how things ought to be done. Do nothing more than is absolutely necessary for you to do, but when the other members roll up their sleeves and willingly and unselfishly use their ability to help some good cause along, howl that the W.I. is being run by a clique. Never put yourself to any other or inconvenience by trying to get new members, but let the other members do that."

If you faithfully follow these instructions, you should have as your branch of the W.I. a very "successful failure."

WARSAW

An activity among Women's Institutes which comes to them, whether they have deliberately undertaken it or not is relief work.

At the recent gathering in Havelock it was brought up to try to call the work by some other name as people did not like accepting relief as such. It was pointed out that were the name changed it would affect the work throughout all institutes. It did not necessarily, nor always mean charity. One lady thought if any one objected to the name, they were not worthy of the assistance.

Relief work does cover a certain amount of what is often called charity, but the spirit of the Women's Institutes does not consider it as such, any more than any woman would consider it charity to help her own sister, were she in distress of any kind. Relief does not always mean financial help, or what money could buy. It means Christian thought and consideration for another. Perhaps a friendly call, a few flowers, a box of Christmas cheer, a shut-in, for themselves, but it is nice to know not that the recipients could not buy that others think of us, and it does give cheer.

Warsaw Institute has done quite a bit of this.

There have been cases of actual need, where the Institute has helped. It has paid for bread for a family for some weeks, and the members have sent vegetables and other foods and clothing, even household supplies have been sent through the Institute, without regard to any creed. The council feels that it can come to us, and we sometimes go to the council for any money for any the ouncil for any money for any needy case, but we have asked the reeve to look into certain conditions, and have asked his advice. Through the Institute certain sick people who have needed care have received it. Trying to get work for a man is no charity, but a relief to the community as well as to the family, but Institutes throughout the country do a good deal of that sort of work.

Helping a busy mother with her sewing is surely a neighborly act, and one branch reported work of that kind. Do we not all love to help with a layette for a friend, why not extend that work to a neighbor, or to some one whose personal friends are not in the position to do it?

Institute relief work would seem to help the needy in a kindly spirit, to help out in emergencies, to help cheer those who need it, by word or deed, to help the sick by necessities, flowers, help, care, perhaps looking after children, sending delicacies and in any other way, and that without regard to religion or social position.

MILLBROOK.

In some communities requests have been received that homes ready to offer accommodation for tourists should be listed by the Women's Institute, and the names forwarded to headquarters in Toronto. Members who have signified their willingness to add to their income by this courtesy frequently ask how to secure these transient guests, what advertising should be done, and how their stay may be made pleasant and satisfying.

This is a subject that Institutes are recommended to take up at a regular meeting, particularly at this season, and practical advice and suggestions be given as an important part of the program.

Advertising in one or two city papers, as well as in the local news' sheet, has been advocated to secure paying guests; having a sign, large enough to have the lettering easily read by passing motorists, placed in a conspicuous place in front of the residence, or to one side of the lawn is an important step when tourist trade is wanted; again, the hostess must provide good, wholesome meals,—home cooking and plenty of it—and also comfortable beds with proper ventilation in the rooms, if she is to increase her income from this source.

Too much furniture clutterings up the house is no advantage, but simple, attractive furnishings, with everything bright and clean, comfort being apparently well to the fore in all the planning are points to be stressed. These and other suggestions come from a member of a branch where this subject has been taken up and thoroughly discussed, this particular member having, for some years, made a success of summer boarders of the tourist class.

An Institute branch that boasts a large membership, and is very up-to-date in its activities and meetings, had a mother, recently tell how she induced her little daughter, convalescing after a long illness, to take the food she required "Use different china for her meal tray,' the mother advised; "try a small Japanese cup, or odd dish standing on three legs, for the boiled egg; don't fear to get out your best mayonnaise holder for the cereal, or custard, and try and secure a colored glass for the milk which is so important. You will think up for yourselves many other ways to tempt a jaded appetite, but above all things have a pretty doyly on the tray, and two or three flowers in a small container, to stimulate interest in the meal, and desire to eat what is so necessary to bring back lost strength, and inspire an appetite."

"Do not discourage your members by always bringing up the question of money at every meeting", writes a veteran member of the W. I.; "have a definite object in view for which funds are really required before you take up the time of any gathering by long discussions on money-making. Why worry over money unless it is needed for some worthwhile and definite purpose? The Institute is not, and never was intended to be, merely a money-making machine; it's real slogan is 'Service' but too many branches lose sight of this fact. If you judge your branch merely by its financial report, rather than by what it has done for the community, you are making a bad mistake, and will not grow and function as an Institute is intended to increase its membership list, and to serve. In the majority of cases will not the fees, augmented by the receipts from one or two social functions, or entertainments during the year, keep the treasury sufficiently full? A certain amount is needful to meet current demands, and supply local cases of illness or poverty, but attend well to the community needs before you enlarge on outside relief work, and by experiment decide just what sum will actually carry the branch through the year happily without too big an effort simply to boast of a large surplus."

CAMP INGLESTANE OPEN FOR SEASON

Advance Guard Puts Finishing Touches to Camp For Summer Months.

Carpenters are putting on the finishing touches. The camp caretaker has been painting, taking off shutters, moving out garden furniture and opening up since Monday. C. Tivey, caretaker of Barries Ltd. kindly assisted yesterday afternoon.

The Camp cook arrived by boat at camp yesterday with a splendid supply of provisions. Cottagers on the boat, moving up to their camps were amused as they saw case after case of canned goods, bags of potatoes and sugar and flour and many boxes of provisions, donated at the camp shower, unloaded at Inglestane. Provisions are now safely stored away and promise wonderful meals at camp.

Miss Marion Walker who will be in charge of camp for the month of July, with Mrs. Barrie, Mrs. H. M. Yelland, members of the Camp Committee, and Miss Leta Brownscombe, General Secretary of the Y. W. C. A. motored up to camp yesterday and made the final preparations for camp guests.

Miss Walker is planning all kinds of delightful good times for campers and thinks Peterborough "Y" Camp is a most complete and wonderful camp and its situation among the many islands of Stoney Lake is ideal. Pretty garden spots, green trees and good bathing beach are wonderful attractions. The first campers will arrive at Camp Saturday afternoon and will find supper soon awaiting them.

Jolly Juniors will have first place at Camp during the junior two weeks, June 28th to July 12. Seniors will also find a happy time and lots of fun at Camp, as several are taking holidays at that time and will be at Camp. Registrations are coming in every day and camp promises to be a popular resort for many girls, all summer.

GET-TOGETHER FOR STIRLING

Old Boys and Girls Returning to Home Town in First of Week.

PLAN GALA RECEPTION.

STIRLING, June 28.—Welcome, old boys and girls! The town wants to welcome you — the latch-string is hanging out—the pantry is "full up," and the citizens are waiting with outstretched hands to take you in and prove that you have made no mistake in keeping a little spot down in your heart sacred to the memory of old Stirling and community. The town is yours—paint it red or your favorite color.

The plans are completed, and if Old Sol will just co-operate, next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday will go down in the history of the village as red-letter days. Everything has been done to assure a good time, except to bribe the weatherman, and it is to be hoped he will be possessed with the get-together spirit and order ideal weather.

The Program.

An exceptionally fine program has been arranged for each day. The idea of the committee is to make the daily program as interesting as possible.

On Sunday, special services will be conducted in the churches. The Masons will attend divine service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in the morning, and the Oddfellows will hold a decoration service in the cemetery in the afternoon. The band will give an open air concert in the evening. There will not be a public service at the cenotaph as previously arranged.

Monday morning the first bombardment of frivolity and fun will be made. Arrangements have been made to hold "Old School Days" in the schools and from then until Tuesday night at midnight there will be a continuity of fun and frolic. Dancing will be held on the street on Monday and Tuesday nights and in the exhibition hall in the fair grounds in the afternoons. An outstanding event will be the pyjama parade at midnight, led by a band of noise-makers. It is reported that Campbellford and Frankford will be well represented in this parade.

There will be refreshment booths on the fair grounds and a booth on the north side of Fred McKee's block.

The town will be decorated to-morrow or Saturday by Scantlebury's, of Belleville.

A De Forest-Crosley radio is being offered in a lucky number contest. Tickets are being sold at 50c each, which also give membership in the association, and the drawing takes place next Tuesday evening in Stirling Theatre, at 8 o'clock. The radio is on display in W. J. Whitty's insurance office window.

Tag days will be held, with Stirling girls as the taggers. The tag or button is most appropriate for the occasion, with a picture of one of the schools on it, along with the words, "Stirling and Vicinity Old Boys' and Girls' Get-together, June 29 to July 1, 1930." Buy one or more and pay at least twenty-five cents for the privilege.

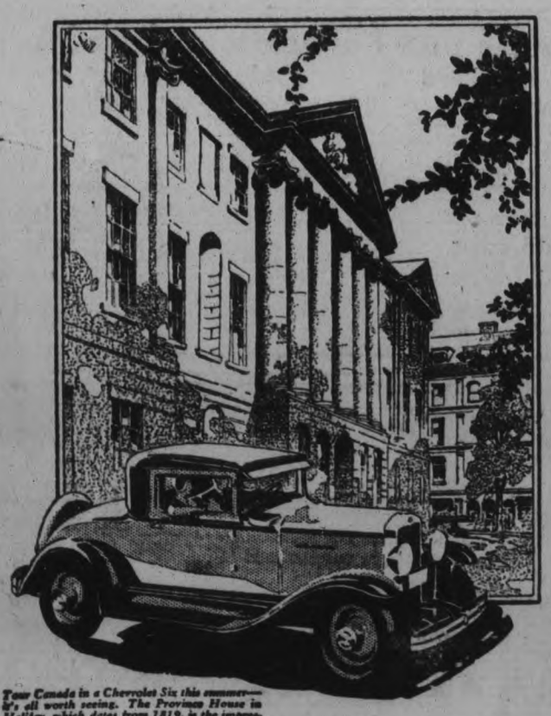
IT'S WISE TO CHEVROLET CHOOSE A SIX

Chevrolet Gives You Six-cylinder Superiority with Economy Second to None



Tour Canada in a Chevrolet Six this summer—it's all worth seeing. The Province House in Halifax, which dates from 1819, is the impressive home of the Nova Scotia Legislature.

WHAT a vast difference there is between Chevrolet performance and that of any other car in the lowest price field!
Chevrolet is superior in smoothness and silence . . because it has the outstanding advantage of a 50-horsepower six-cylinder motor, with a harmonic balancer and a big 48-pound crankshaft. Superior in comfort and stability . . due to Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers, front and rear. Superior in control ease and security . . because of fully-enclosed, four-wheel brakes.

Distinctive Appearance

And more striking in appearance! Because in combination with its features of finer performance, Chevrolet offers new, roomier Fisher bodies . . with lavishly appointed interiors, upholstered in richer, more durable plush . . specially designed bright-work, chromium plated.

Unsurpassed Economy

Above all, superior in downright value! Because with all the above advantages, Chevrolet is offered at a price extremely low—and the Chevrolet Six is just as economical—it costs no more for gas, for oil, for tires, and for service.
See your nearest Chevrolet dealer. Ask him about the General Motors Owner Service Policy, the most complete in the industry . . and the G.M.A.C., General Motors' own Deferred Payment Plan.

PUPILS PRESENT PLAQUE PICTURES

Presentation Made Miss Robertson By Students of Elmdale School.

SPRINGVILLE, June 28.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Miss Robertson, who has taught at Elmdale School for the past three years, was the recipient of a set of pictures of Burns' cottage in ivory plaque style and a beautiful bouquet of flowers by her pupils on Tuesday afternoon.

The address which accompanied the gifts were read by Mae Kelk, while Charles Whittington made the presentation and Miss Helen Strain presented the flowers.

Miss Robertson thanked the pupils most heartily and expressed the fact that she had spent a happy three years or more in their midst, and stated that she regretted leaving such a band of happy and responsive workers where every effort put forth was always rewarded.

Immediately following the presentation lunch was served by the pupils and an enjoyable time spent.

The Garden Party of the Young Women's Christian Association, planned for yesterday, turned into an Indoor Fete, when the weather proved unsmiling, and it was a huge success, being one of the most enjoyable of the many pleasant affairs staged at the 'Y'. There was a splendid attendance during the afternoon hours and everyone seemed to be having a thoroughly good time. The reception hall and green room and library were bright with many flowers in bowls and vases and the gymnasium was a perfect bower of blossoms. The large interior was banked on every side with colored screens of modernistic type and with wall trellises over which clambered artificial flowers of every variety. Many beautiful colors and blossoms combined to give an aspect of out of door attraction. Screens of living evergreen branches were used also and the white-clothed tables for high tea were centered by bowls and vases of roses, peonies, daisies and orange blossoms. The central serving table was done with a cloth of buttercup linen centered by a bevelled mirror of unique oblong shape, filled with peonies, roses and daisies. The whole effect of the room was very lovely and demonstrated the huge amount of care and attention given to this item alone, in a very enjoyable afternoon's program. High Tea was served in a manner quite different to the usual procedure. It was on the cafeteria plan, each guest taking a plate and silverware and then passing in line before a long table loaded with good things to eat; sliced meats, salads, rolls and pies of every variety. The tables were then in use for the meal and the whole arrangement proved to be very satisfactory and interesting. The committee in charge of the High Tea was composed of members of the social committee: Mrs. L. J. Leclair, convenor, Mrs. H. Foote, Mrs. R. J. Kidd and Miss Mary Elliott, assisted by a bevy of energetic ladies who helped in various capacities, looking after the tables and serving the foods. These included Mrs. E. Carr, Mrs. Ford Turner, Mrs. J. F. Allan, Mrs. Jas. Heffernan, Mrs. F. Brownscombe, Mrs. R. Hicks, Mrs. T. McWilliams, Mrs. F. L. Robinson, Mrs. J. J. Doris, Mrs. Ivan Lillico, Mrs. G. H. Roper, Mrs. W. Lytle, Mrs. J. W. Fraser, Mrs. L. Yeates, Mrs. S. Bridge, Mrs. B. Shortly, Mrs. G. Wood, Miss E. Morrow, Mrs. D. F. Drummond, Mrs. N. D. Buchanan, Mrs. H. C. Sootheran, Mrs. H. M. Yelland, Mrs Thos. Barrie, Mrs. G. A. Macdonald, Mrs. A. M. Weldon, Mrs. R. Harstone, Mrs. G. E. Porter, Miss Jane Macdonald. Tea was poured by Mrs. E. E. Harvey and Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner. Decorations were in charge of Mrs. Butcher and Mrs. Sootheran, and the members of the staff, Miss Littlefield, Miss Brownscombe and Miss Sherin, also assisted materially in general arrangements. A number of pretty booths, stalls and tables were in the large reception hall. A little kiosque of green and yellow with daisy decorations was used for the sale of ice cream, by Mrs. H. Wightman, Miss A. Wood and Miss E. Scott. The pretty candy baskets in colored paper at a booth of white and gold were sold by Mrs. W. F. Butcher, assisted by her guest, Miss Florence Butcher of St. Mary's, Ontario. In the library, a unique and attractive game, "putting on the green", in indoor fashion, was arranged, in charge of Mrs. C. G. Graham and Mrs. Reg. Turner. Prizes for this game were won by Madam Sifroy Goulet, Miss A. Wood and Mrs. W. F. Butcher. The set was presented later to the Y Stoney Lake Camp, by Mrs. C. G. Graham. A vivid Rainbow tree and pot of gold were placed in the hall. Decorated with colored novelties and pastel-tinted butterflies, the tree held surprise packages in dainty wrappings. It was in charge of Mrs. N. C. Staples, assisted by Mrs. F. Hooper, Mrs. C. E. Graham, Miss Daisy Davidson, Miss Hazel Buller, Miss Helen Anderson, and Miss Olga Johnston. Fortune-tellers in brilliant scarlet and gold and green outfits, with fringed headkerchiefs and many gold bangles, revealed the future to enquiring patrons. These were Mrs. Chas. Saunders, Mrs. A. L. Potvin, Mrs. Reg. Turner, Mrs. Herron, Miss Flossie Mitchell, Miss Claire Mason and Miss Violet McKeown. Not the smallest part of the program of entertainment was the swimming-pool program, with many races and stunts, and the very colorful program of dances presented by members of Miss C. Littlefield's classes, who gave several of the lovely numbers, in costume, from the Ballet, "Miladi's Boudoir", which was such a beautiful portion of the recent 'Y' Pageant. The little girls and boys danced in costumes of many colors, in the dances of the Bellhops and the Rouge Boxes the Powder Puffs and the Nosegays, with the little Wooden Soldiers' Parade as a colorful bit of red, white and blue. Miss Mildred Hetherington played for the dances, and Miss Sophie Yeotes did a solo dance in the role of Miladi.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

PERHAPS MANY of the housewives will not be interested in the article to-day, and I think I can guess the reason why — and yet there may be a great many.

Anyway it will be a change from what we have been discussing.

The subject is concerning paste-ons. Right away I imagine I hear a whole lot say, "Why does she talk about them: only children are interested in such things."

But do you know I know lots of women who ARE interested in such things. Decorative paste-ons are so quickly made that they tempt the homemaker to work with them, although she may be too busy to spend much time on any thing that is not absolutely essential.

There are a number of ways of doing the work. The word is used in a broad way since glue is more often used than paste of a flour and water type. The glue is much more adhesive and it withstands the ravages of wear far better also.

If paper is the medium used with the paste, the regulation kind often called library paste can be employed but if the paste-ons are of textile, leather, string, cord, etc., glue will be needed.

The simplest variety of decorative paste-ons consists of fancy papers or colored pictures pasted onto boxes. The sides can be of a plain paper either black or some color that goes particularly well with the color scheme of the picture used for the top of the box cover.

Paint the box with clear shellac or with one that is toned to give the antique effect. Such paste-ons are excellent to use on cottage furniture and accessory furnishings.

Rainbow paste-ons give a modernistic effect. Cut pieces of many different colored papers in shapes that are unlike and fit them together.

A general design should be worked out to insure the odd shapes meeting exactly. This design can be repeated over an entire surface and if colors are dissimilar repeats will be different in effect.

Only small articles, however, lend themselves to this treatment.

Cloisson paste-ons can be made by cutting skeleton frameworks from black, gold, silver or white paper and filling in the blank spaces with colored papers. The colors may be so arranged that a pattern is brought out, or a rainbow effect can be produced.

I am told that the Italians have used this method with good results. They use a pattern suited to the shape of the surface to be ornamented and take great pains to bring out the pattern in a classic beauty.

One box with silver cloissons pasted on showed a pattern of roses with foliage and a background carried out in exquisitely soft tones of rose, green and cedar.

The cloissons, and by the way I find the name cloisson means "inlaid between partitions," can be made of fine cord and the space filled in with the papers.

The papers should be fitted together over the pencilled or printed outlines and the cords pasted down following the outlines. This is an excellent method to follow in cloissonn paste-ons, as well as the cordonne work.

In all the work the design should be drawn or traced on the surface to be ornamented. This is then covered with glue or partially covered and the work done over the sticky surface until that is decorated when more glue is put on and the work continued.

The part covered with the glue must be completely concealed with the papers and the cloissons, however the latter are made. No surface that has had glue on it should remain without decoration.

After the design is completed, and the work bone-dry, coat it with shellac.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

STUDYING OR ARGUING WHILST EATING.

When you see a machine that will take materials in their raw state, grind them up, mix them well together, put them into the form of a square bar or other formation, and then finally wrap them up and seal them, you think how marvelous it is that man can design such a machine.

And yet this is absolutely nothing when we compare it with some of the processes in that body of yours.

Dr. A. C. Ivy, outlines for us something of what happens in the stomach and intestine when you eat some food. He divides it into three phases. (1) The head phase, that is where your brain enters into this matter of digestion. The sight, taste, and smell of food, is recognized by your brain and it sends down impulses to the stomach notifying it to get ready for the food. Immediately a goodly portion of the stomach digestive juice is manufactured by the glands lining the stomach, and it is there waiting when the food comes down.

You can readily see what a wonderful start towards digestion is accomplished by having foods served in a tasty and inviting manner.

It has been found that this 'brain' digestion lasts for forty five minutes.

The second phase, is the digestion or flow of stomach juice that is poured out into the stomach just because of the weight of the food. Experiments have shown that if a rubber ball is put into the stomach, its weight will cause the stomach digestive juices to flow.

The third stage is when the stomach pours out even more of its juices due to the fact that just as soon as some of the food gets digested the stomach glands become even more active.

Now why do I write about these three stages of digestion in the stomach?

Because all three are important. If any or all of them are interferred with in any way, then you not only do not get all the good of the food eaten, but you are liable to have distress in the stomach, gas formation, and so forth.

Normal sleep or rest promotes the flow of the stomach juice, whereas mental activity really slows up or stops the flow. Thus it is unwise to 'study' during the eating of meals.

Worry, nerve strain, unpleasant sensations not only slow up the flow of juice, but interfere with the churning movements of the stomach which are necessary to mix the juice properly with the food.

So Dr. Ivy recommends that the non laboring public be taught to think of their food and pleasant things while eating; to eat lightly of easily digested food during a day fraught with business worry or mental or nervous strain.

OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

PICTURE BOOKS.

When buying books for the children do not overlook picture books. Pictures can tell good stories and tell them better, many a time, than print can tell them. Illustrated books have more power than those without pictures but a picture book that is pictures ffom beginning to end is the thing. Children of all ages need them.

For the little children begin with the books that the kindergarten supply houses carry—the book of ships, the book of dogs, the farm book, and the like, and go on from there getting such as suggest themselves as the child grows.

By and by the supp y in the shops becomes limited. The children going to school need other sorts of pictures than those you can get. It is time to begin to make the picture books that will be valuable reference books by and by.

When a child begins to show an interest in a subject begin helping that child to collect pictures about it. The newspapers have them, the magazines carry beautiful ones. There is almost no end to the source of supply. Take a heap of good stiff paper, all the uniform size decided upon and paste the pictures on the sheets. Instead of binding them into a book place them in a folder, a portfolio.

These portfolios ought to be made of uniform size of the same sort of material and the title plainly printed upon them. They ought to hold a goodly number of pictures without being clumsy. They should be tied with stout string, like shoelaces.

Each child collects the pictures that interest him. One has history pictures, one collects architectural pictures, another animals, each his own. When they are in the upper schools these picture books become invaluable reference books.

The cartoons in the newspapers are a source of great interest and instruction to the children. Teach them to select those of high grade and paste them into a book. If a child does this faithfully until he is a college graduate he will find himself possessor of a very valuable collection.

If along with the pictures the child makes clippings, the value of the collection is increased. Newspaper clippings do not last well because of the poor paper, but the child can type them on good paper and preserve them in that way

By making his own collection this way a child gathers a great deal of information that will stand in good stead in days to come. He gets a power by this work that study is slow to give him. By selecting his cartoons and pictures from the papers, he learns to read a newspaper discriminatingly, an art well worth acquiring.

Obituary

Kenneth Stinson.

Lifford Line, June 28. (Examiner Correspondence.)—The funeral of the late Kenneth Stinson took place on Wednesday afternoon from his late residence on the fourteenth concession of Manvers township to Riverside cemetery, Lindsay.

The deceased was internally and fatally injured in a motor accident near Janetville, on Sunday and died Monday, in Lindsay Hospital.

The boy was thirteen years of age and just completing his Public School course.

The funeral was exceptionally largely attended, owing to the unusually sad nature of the bereavement.

Rev. R. M. Patterson, pastor of Janetville United Church, of which deceased had been an attendant officiated at services at the home and graveside.

Six youths performed the duties of pall bearers. Two children's hymns were read by Rev. Patterson who was located so that those indoors as well as the crowds standing without might hear.

Floral tributes were numerous and beautiful, testifying to the high estee m of one of the most promising boys.

Left to mourn his loss are sorrowing parents and seven brothers and sisters, all younger except one brother.

Our Mail

Conducted by ANNE WILCOX

Dear Anne—

Here I am the first thing after breakfast on Monday morning, writing to you (well I did get my dishes and milk pails washed and finished) but I just feel like writing. It is not adhering strictly to the rules of good housekeeping, but I'm afraid I break those rules some times.

I visited your city the other day and it did me so much good that I have to tell about it. I was only in the city two hours, but I visited some of the stores and I want to say that the young lady clerks were so dainty, feminine and sweet, and they were so courteous and kind. Also they each and everyone of them had such an exquisite shell-like complexion.

They certainly are a band of pretty workers. I hope some of them read this because trying to please the public is no easy task.

I saw where Auid Est and Quo Vadis had a little jar; it made me smile, but that is a woman's privilege to have little differences. They both impress me as very clever women, neither one is a sneak, but come right out with things.

Some people need a rude awakening and set on their feet, but I can't think that Ad Nauseam is one of these. She strikes me as an over-generous nature who has been disappointed in some of her friends, but sure, that happens with all of us. Just try to forget and go right on. Quid Est and Quo Vadis have been the life of the page, I hope they keep right on. If I were you Anne, I would get discouraged and disgusted with the neighbors not making use of it at all. The letter Quo Vadis wrote about our work and our health was just to the point.

Your articles are always interesting Anne, I wonder how you can think of so many things.

Elizabeth.

Thank you, Elizabeth, for taking that little period so soon after breakfast to write to the page. One can write so much better and easier when in the humor. We enjoyed reading your letter.

Dear Anne—

I hope all our neighbors are not sick, if so that they get better quick. It must make you feel nearly dumb, to write to folks who are so dumb! When one drops into see me and says only yes or no while I tell most everything, I know—when they're gone after acting like that, I never feel as if I'd had a chat. For me, this old world seems to go around so fast that ahead of me so many go past—so I'll not begin to make any excuse as it might not help you to bear the abuse.

Meta.

I don't mind really, Meta, if the neighbors don't write, for I know how busy they all are and how hard it is for them to find time to drop us a line. I do appreciate their thoughtfulness though, very much when they can find time for this.

EAST PLANS FOR ALLAN CUP RACE

Fifteen Upper Canada Canadian Players Signed to Season Down East Material This Year.

HOCKEY TALK IN AIR.

HALIFAX, N.S., June 28. (C.P.)—Although baseball, tennis, golf and other summer sports are now in season, hockey leaders throughout the Maritime Provinces are talking, and their chatter is making a noble bid to drown out the gossip of the seasonal sports.

Since the Truro Bearcats made such a splendid showing against the Winged Wheelers of Montreal in the Allan Cup series last winter Maritime sportsmen have decided that the famed trophy can be brought to the Maritime Provinces.

Various Upper Canadian hockey coaches who have handled Maritime teams the last two seasons and teaching the "inside" points of the game, feel that much improvement has been made in Down East hockey.

Furthermore during the 1928-29 season several Upper Canadian players were brought to the Maritimes and did as much to improve the game of the Easterners as all the coaches who have ever taught the rudiments of Canada's National Game.

Fredericton, N.B., which has yet to reach prominence in Maritime hockey, has tied up practically all the leading players of the three provinces, has added two Upper Canadians, and secured the services of George Boucher, former Ottawa Senator and Montreal Maroon defence veteran as coach for the coming winter.

Other prominent clubs have sought players from the Upper Provinces and the 1930-31 season is expected to be the greatest in the history of the game in the Maritimes. The aim of all Maritime clubs in the next season is the Allan Cup. Each season Maritime champions have done much better in play for the premier amateur trophy than in previous years and an added incentive has been added in that 1931 holders of the Canadian championship will represent Canada in the Olympic Games.

To date some fifteen Upper Canadian players have reached the Maritimes and are located with prominent teams. Many teams will do away with coaches this season but will strengthen their lineups with experienced players.

Maritime hockey leaders made the prediction, even at this early stage, that Down East will be represented by a redoubtable six in 1931. The Allan Cup preliminary between Quebec and Maritime representatives will be staged at the Forum in Halifax, the only artificial ice arena east of Montreal, and hockey moguls are laying plans with a view to bringing about the elimination of the Quebec champions who have put out Maritime representatives in three successive seasons.

O'Doul Replaces Klein In Big Six Standing

Frank O'Doul gave the Big Six a lesson in hitting yesterday, and in doing so he moved from fourth to first place in the standing. The Phillie southpaw went to bat five times and hit two doubles and two triples to add nine points to his average and displace his team-mate, "Chuck" Klein, from the top place. Klein hit only once in five tries. Sam Rice of Washington slammed out three hits in four times up and replaced Mickey Cochrane, going into fourth place at .395, only a point behind Al Simmons. The Philadelphians slumped badly, Simmons getting only a home run in six times at bat. "Babe" Ruth hit three times in five at bats, inserting his twenty-seventh home run, and gained five points. Paul Waner dropped three with one hit in four times up, but held third place.

Macks' Margin Dwindles to One Full Game as Senators Win.

HALT FOR INDIANS.

PHILADELPHIA, June 28. — The Athletics divided a doubleheader with St. Louis Browns yesterday, winning the second encounter by a score of 8 to 3, after turning in five "boots" that aided the Missourians to beat "Lefty" Grove in the first game, 8 to 2.

Dick Coffman kept the Mack hits well scattered in the opener, but in the closing affair the world's champions gave Chad Kimsey a sound slugging. Grove, A's pitcher, hit a homer in the first game and Quinn, A's hurler in the second game, also hit a homer.

In the second game "Jimmy" Foxx hit his twentieth home run of the season, with two on in the third inning, and in the fifth Al Simmons walloped his sixteenth with one on base.

Indians Halt Losing Streak

NEW YORK, June 28.—The Cleveland Indians found a favorite relative in "Cousin" George Pipgras yesterday and evened the series by winning the second game from the Yankees yesterday, 11 to 7. They drove Pipgras from the mound in the fifth inning, making the seventh straight time in two seasons they have sent him to the showers.

Cleveland broke its losing streak by piling up 16 hits off Pipgras and Ownie Carroll, including homers by Falk and Averill. "Babe" Ruth's twenty-seventh home run of the year was the one big Yankee clout.

Willis Hudlin, Cleveland's starting pitcher, had to retire in the first inning when he split his finger taking a throw.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

It used to be the idea, Mac, that a ball season here wasn't a ball season unless Mister Walter Gerow and his Belleville play boys was seen in action here, so we gotta pass a vote of thanks to Mister Art Primeau for hooking up his C.G.E.'s for a game with Belleville here on the holiday a.m. The Mills lads, the Mister Weirs and some of the other old-timers is still wearing monkey suits for the Nationals, which is a lap ahead of Kingston in the two-club Central loop, and local fans will be glad to get a chance to razz the well-known performers. The C.G.E. mostly comprises Central League graduates, and they been sailing along in good style in the East Peterborough circuit, where they ain't lost a game yet. They oughta give the Belleville crew a tidy argument and the clash on Dominion Day a.m. will be a treat for the stay-at-homes, of which they will be plenty.

The Bethany team, Mac, has dropped outta the East Peterborough doings. That real sportsman, Doc Hamilton, which has kept the village represented in the league despite a uphill fight, has finally decided to call it a season after his team dropped a flock of games. Doc has stuck to the E. P. League loyally and deserves a vote of thanks. Some of his players will likely be grabbed up by other teams in the circuit. This Mister Ralph, the curve ball heaver, would be a handy lad for any club to have around, and some of the rest of the Bethany talent should get their selfs a job without trouble.

The mush ball league sees the Sugar Bowlers still out in front, the league leaders going along nicely, while the rest of the teams is beating each other and keeping the race all hot and bothered.

The Belmonts pulled off 1 of the fightiest finishes of the season Wed p.m. when they started the last ½ of the 9th 4 runs down and hammered in 5 counters to nose out Perce Harrison's Sunoco boys. The losers looked like they had the game tucked away when the Belmonts bust loose in the 9th and breezed in. It was 1 of the peppiest clashes of the season, and Mister Holyman's argument with all and sundry made a campaign meeting look like a funeral.

Well, Mac, they had been another foul since my last, Mister Godfrey hitting Mister Carnera 4 ft. from the ground, which, seeing the Italian lad is built something like a 2-storey house, was too to be according to Hoyle. The boy from Mussolini's precinct, which has been tipping over a lotta set-ups, rather surprised the crickets. It seems Mister Godfrey give him the works in the 1st 2 rounds and Mister Carnera took it all with a smile. Well, if a tank like that can't be shook up at all, Mister Schmeling and the rest of the aspirins for the heavyweight crown is likely to run into a ton of trouble if they mess with this Carnera hulk.

They don't seem to be nothing more to get excited over, Mac, so I'm going to call it a day and sign off.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

BELMONTS IN SECOND PLACE

Clubmen End Weird Session to Defeat Westclox Aggregation 24-11.

MANY ERRORS.

Ending up a weird session at the Central School grounds last night with a score of 24 to 11 in their favor the Belmont Club galloped away with the Westclox aggregation to step into second place in the league.

A blinding sun in the first few innings combined with a series of errors on the part of the Westclox boys gave the Club lads all they needed to get away to a fine start and they garnered 7 counters in the first two sessions. Darling pitched a fair game but all the support he had was enough to break any twirler's heart, and as a result the opposition hit him freely. Delahaye on the mound for Haskell's outfit lapped the old pill over freely and was batted around in the same style, although he had much better support in the field than his opponent. Errors on the part of Holyman at short were responsible for several of the counters that the Westclox did manage to tally—though the erring Holyman must be given credit for a pretty pick off in the seventh.

Only in the third did the Club fail to count, and every round they added a few more to their collection, the fifth being the most productive — six crossing the plate to tally. The Clockmakers rallied a bit in the seventh and added three—their last, for in the final two innings they drew a blank.

Score by innings:

Westclox .....141 020 300—11
Belmont Club .....340 262 124—24

CUYLER'S HOMER WINS FOR GIANTS

Cubs Close in on Dodgers Again—New Yorkers and Pirates Win.

VICTORY FOR REDS.

CHICAGO, June 28.—The Cubs again placed themselves only one game behind the league-leading Brooklyn Club yesterday by virtue of Kiki Cuyler's home run in the tenth inning, which brought a 7—5 victory over the Robins. The victory evened the "crucial" series.

A crowd of 50,000 turned out to watch a close battle between Guy Bush of the Cubs and Adolfo Luque and Ray Moss of Brooklyn, which was anybody's game up to the last play. Moss allowed but two hits after he he relieved Luque in the sixth, but one was Cuyler's homer. Babe Herman of Brooklyn also hit for the circuit.

TWO STRAIGHT FOR GIANTS

ST. LOUIS, June 28. — Frankie Frisch hit a home run with two on base in the first inning yesterday, but after that blow Fred Fitzsimmons held the Cardinals in check, and the New York Giants scored their second straight victory, 9 to 4. The last St. Louis counter did not appear until the eighth inning.

Burleigh Grimes started for the Cards, but was knocked from the box in the sixth inning, after he had yielded ten hits and eight runs. Fred Leach duplicated Frisch's home-run hitting feat in the fourth inning to give the Giants the lead.

PITTSBURG, June 28.—The Pittsburg Pirates staved off a ninth-inning rally by the Philadelphia Nationals yesterday to win their third straight from the Phillies, 6 to 4.

It was anybody's contest until the seventh, when the Pirates scored three times while making but one hit. An error and a passed ball gave scoring openings that were seized.

O'Doul, hitting two doubles and two triples, was the batting star of the game.

Kelly previously hit a home run in the seventh, scoring a run ahead of him. Bennie Frey pitched a strong game until the eighth, when the Braves bunched hits for five runs, and tied the score. LEAFS-ROYALS IN TWIN BILL

Friday's Game Was Postponed Owing to Unsuitable Weather.

TEAMS NEEDED REST.

Toronto, June 28. — Unsuitable weather conditions caused by a high wind and a soggy diamond compelled a postponement of the scheduled game between the Royals and the Maple Leafs at the Stadium yesterday afternoon. The game will be played as part of a doubleheader this afternoon, the first game starting at 2 o'clock.

The postponement was welcome to both teams. The Royals and Leafs were on the train all the night before and were train weary when they got in yesterday noon. To-day third place will be at stake as a double victory for the O'Neill men will move the Royals down a peg and send the Leafs up.

Johnny Prudhomme and Dowell Classet will oppose each other in the first game. Classet is the big pitcher who received a trial with the Leafs, during the spring training campaign of 1929. He was released just before the season opened owing to lack of experience. Eddie Holley got him this spring and he has been a fairly effective performer for the Montrealers.

Cowboy Film Star Takes Third Spouse

LOS ANGELES, Calif., June 28. (C.P.)—Hoot Gibson, cowboy film star and Sally Eilers, a screen celebrity too, to-day were enroute to the Canadian Rockies for a wedding trip, following their marriage last night.

They were married in the presence of 150 guests at the Gibson Hacienda near Saugus last night.

Gibson 36, twice before was married. It was the 22 year old bride's first marriage.

Starting, it is believed, from internal combustion, the blaze gained great headway in the carton room and spread rapidly to the malt room and storage. Fanned by the breeze the flames ate ther way along the walls and householders moved their effects into the street.

Austin Whitton, general manager of the plant, stated yesterday that the brewery will be placed in operation within a few days.

"Jersey Joe" Stripp Still Among Leaders

Cincinnati's fans are known as being wise in the lore of baseball and the anvil chorus of Redland field is famous for what it does when poor playing turns up. But they can recognize good work as well; and, at present, the Redland fans are getting a chance to appraise the work of a few of the year's most promising newcomers to National league circles.

While the Boston Braves are playing at Cincinnati, there is a chance to compare the play of Wally Berger and Buster Chatham with that of "Jersey Joe" Stripp of Cincinnati. The Boston youngsters are goin at a great rate, Berger tyin Hack Wilson for the league's home-run leadership, while Stripp remains in the major leagues, still one of Cincinnati's most effective batters, although he no longer is threatening the leaders.

SCHMELING BLAMES N.Y. COMMISSION

Lack of Punishment to Offenders is Cause of Foul Epidemic.

NEW YORK, June 28—Before sailing for Germany last night aboard the SS. Bremen, Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion, laid responsibility for the current epidemic of fights which end in fouls squarely at the door of the New York State Athletic Commission.

"When a commission protects a fighter as Jack Sharkey was protected, then it fails to punish him in any way after he has hit you, when it makes it possible for him to fight again for the world's championship within three months, is it any wonder there are so many fouls?" asked Schmeling. "I bet you"—and here the serious young German leaned over and tapped me on the knee to emphasize his point—"I bet you that if Sharkey had been punished for fouling me as another fighter not under the com mission's protection would surely have been punished, there would have been no foul in the Godfrey-Carnera fight at Philadelphia last Monday."

Schmeling said he was planning to return to meet Sharkey in a return bout in September. He said it with a touch of bitterness in his usually good-natured, modulated voice, for he feels sincerely that he has been forced unwarrantedly into this sudden defence of the heavyweight title.

"If I had had the misfortune to foul Sharkey, although I never fouled a man in my life, where would I be?" demanded Max. "Would they have called me, as Commissioner Muldoon called Sharkey, 'the most unhappy man in the world'? Would they have insisted that Sharkey defend the title against me in the fall?"

Make Contest Compulsory

"While the success of the Peterborough boy is still fresh in our minds," stated Mr. Bentley, in making the announcement at the convention, "let us for a few moments consider whether there is any logical reason why our contest should not be made compulsory upon every apprentice to submit an entry. Of course, this convention can not say that such shall be the case, but the delegates in attendance can certainly co-operate with its officers in securing the number of entries that the time and energy expended and prizes offered warrant. Remember, this work is done solely for the purpose of assisting in the education of our boys, as an incentive to them to strive to do their utmost to put the "art preservative of all arts" upon a high plane and keep it there. Remember, also, that the competition offers to the apprentice in these days of specialization a means of ascertaining how he or she is progressing in either the job or newspaper branch of the industry, or in both, for we have boys who submit as many as four proofs in the contest. Surely, if the delegates in attendance here to-day said that they would, upon their return to their local unions, support the competition, the ideals which it stands for, next year, instead of having 65 or 70 entries, we will have in the neighborhood of four or five hundred.

Continuing, Mr. Bentley said: "We are credited with having organized the first competition of its kind among the conferences, both the Michigan Federal and Empire State Conference following our lead, the first named organization using our first copy (merely changing the dates), and the latter body launching its contest after an address by the speaker some four or five years ago at their Niagara Falls, N.Y. convention. We are given credit by those interested in educational value to the younger members of the craft and, therefor, something that will redound to the benefit of the printing industry as a whole in the years to come."

Suggests Tribute to Bolwell

Later Mr. Bentley said, "May I suggest that during our proceedings we stop for a few minutes to remember our late president, A. J. Bolwell, of Peterborough, whom I had the pleasure of serving in the capacity of secretary-treasurer for two or three years, and one who gave much of his time and effort, not only for the Typographical Union, but for Labor generally."

Night of Horrors Related By C.N.R. Wreck Passengers

SUDBURY, Ont, June 28. (CP)—Tales of nightmare horror as frantic mothers sought to save their children and terrified women fought to get free as the two derailed coaches of a Canadian National Railways express bound to Toronto from Winnipeg, sank slowly to the bottom of Vermillion River, four miles west of Capreol, late Thursday night, were recounted today by passengers on the ill-fated Limited. Trapped in a day coach and a tourist sleeper, with water rising rapidly as the two coaches slipped off the right-of-way and into the river, it is regarded as a mercy of providence that no more than four lives were lost and only 21 passengers so seriously injured that they required medical attention.

UNCLE WIGGILY AND BUNTY'S BALL.

Uncle Wiggily was so much pleased at the way his giant lettuce had hidden him away from the fox, and so delighted that Baby Bunty had first found out the way of cuddling up in the green leaves, that the rabbit gentleman wanted to do something to repay the kindness.

"All you need do for me," said the lettuce which had a way of talking, "is to give me plenty of water when I am dry."

"What can I do for you, Bunty, because you were so clever as to show me how to hide out in a head of lettuce?" asked Mr. Longears.

"If you would get me a rubber ball at the toy store I would like that very much," said the little orphan rabbit child.

"You shall have the largest rubber ball I can buy!" cried Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose.

"With a hole in?" asked Bunty.

"Yes, with a hole in," answered the bunny uncle.

"And one that squirts water?" asked Bunty.

"Yes," answered her uncle, "I'll get you a rubber ball that squirts water. Only you must promise not to squirt any water on me."

"Oh, I'll promise that all right!" Cried Bunty. "Come on now, Unkie Wig, and buy me that nice, big, rubber ball that will squirt water. Hurry, Unkie Wig!"

"But no baby talk!" said Mr. Longears shaking his paw at Bunty.

"No baby talk!" agreed the little Wig. Mr. Longears allowed Bunty just that much baby talk—those two words "Unkie Wig", but no more.

Soon the two, holding paws were hopping to the toy store and there Uncle Wiggily bought Bunty a large, red rubber ball with a hole in it, the largest in the shop.

A stream of water struck the dog gentleman in the eye.

"Will it squirt water?" asked Banty as the old dog gentleman who kept the toy store, handed her the ball.

"Why, of course!" he barked with a jolly laugh.

"I should like to try it, if you please," spoke Bunty. "I mean here and now. It would be too bad," she said politely, "if I were to hop all the way back to Unkie Wig's bungalow and then found out this ball had no hole in it."

"But look—you can see it has a hole in it," barked the dog.

"Yes, but will it squirt water?" asked Bunty? Couldn't you just please bring me a pail of water here so I could fill my new ball and see if it squirts? Please, couldn't you?"

"Oh, yes, I suppose so," chuckled the old dog gentleman with a wink of one eye at Uncle Wiggily. So he brought a pail of water. Bunty dipped her ball in, first squeezing it almost flat before she put it under and then the water sucked itself up inside the ball which was so large that it took nearly the whole pail full.

"O, what a lovely squirter I'm going to have!" cried Bunty as she took out the ball and gave it a squeeze.

"Zip," a stream of water struck the dog gentleman right in the eye.

"Oh!" he howled.

"Oh!" cried Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, I beg your pardon!" gasped Bunty.

"I thought you promised me you wouldn't squirt water on anybody if I got you a rubber ball," cried Mr. Longears.

"I promised not to squirt on you. I didn't promise not to squirt at Mr. Dog", said Bunty. "But really I didn't mean to. It was an accident. But my ball squirts just lovely; doesn't it?"

"I'll say it does!" barked the dog gentleman, wiping his eyes.

"You must be careful after this, Bunty," warned Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, I will!" promised the little orphan rabbit. "Come on, Unkie Wig, let's hurry home. I want to show Nurse Jane how my ball squirts!"

Soon they were back at the hollow stump bungalow. Bunty still had plenty of water in the rubber ball, for she had squirted none out on the way home. Uncle Wiggily watched her carefully. Once the little orphan rabbit seemed about to squeeze the ball as they passed a Police Dog. But Uncle Wiggily in a low voice said: "Tut! Tut!" And Bunty tutted and didn't squirt.

But when she saw Nurse Jane standing on the back stoop, Bunty ran up to her holding out the ball and cried: "See what Unkie Wig bought me, Nurse Jane."

The muskrat lady did not have on her glasses so she couldn't see very well. She reached out her paw to take what Bunty had and said:

"What is it!" Then, not knowing quite what it was, Nurse Jane squeezed Bunty's ball and— "Zip!" Out shot a stream of water all over Uncle Wiggily.

"My goodness!" squeaked Nurse Jane.

"I didn't do it! I didn't do it! Did I?" cried Bunty, dancing around on one paw. "I didn't do it, Unkie Wig!"

"No, I don't blame you, Bunty!" chuckled Mr. Longears, wiping his pink nose dry. "But please take that ball from Nurse Jane." So Bunty did and after that she only squirted water on the flowers.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book, "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., Windsor, Ont.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

HAZARDS OF DEADLY SPIN REMOVED BY TWO CANADIANS

New "Parachute Machine" Incapable of "Stalling" Approaches Foolproof.

PRESSURE REGULATED

(Special to The Examiner, Copyright.)

TORONTO, June 28.—A parachute aeroplane which can neither tailspin nor stall and which operates easily with a full load at 85 miles per hour, has been designed and tested for 30 flying hours by two Canadian business men who have made aviation their hobby.

Lieutenant Leboeuf, Royal Air Force flying ace, tried out the Valkyr, as it is called. He made 12 ascents and on the eleventh try succeeded in putting the ship into two spins—but he couldn't keep it there more than a fraction of a minute. On his twelfth attempt he again met with failure.

The new aeroplane has no absolutely new feature. There is nothing embodied in design nor construction which one can patent. It simply groups a number of improvements, applies fundamental physical principles intelligently—and has removed from aviation two of the greatest hazards confronting novice or any other fliers.

"We started work on the theory of the new plane last October," William Kistler said. He and Norman Thomas collaborated on the machine. "It took some time to get the principle established. The rest is easy."

Easy. Perhaps it was, but still the fruit of ripe technical and practical experience. Shop work and design is a part of Mr. Kistler's life as general manager of the Hayes Wheel and Forgings Limited of Chatham and of the Norge Electric Refrigerator plant of Toronto. Norman Thomas, his associate, is a flying ace with world-war experience, who continued his interest in aviation as a hobby ever since.

Worried Over Hazard.

"We both bought aeroplanes about two years ago," recalled Mr. Kistler. "It was brand-new experience to me and for a time I greatly enjoyed it. Then the risk started to worry me.

"As I see it, at the present time one must be either a superman or a fool to operate a ship. Few of us are supermen—I know I'm not—and I don't want to think that I'm a fool.

"The reason I say that is because the hazard caused by tailspins and stalling is so great that either cast-iron self-control or recklessness is needed. Norman and I studied the construction of our own aeroplanes. We went to air races. And we began to plan.

"Last October we commenced in earnest. At the Cleveland air races I had studied the one- and two-wing type. To satisfy the spectators all ships fly very close to the ground in these events and I went away from there convinced that the biplane model is safer and better suited to flying purposes in every way."

Mr. Kistler explained the principle of all flying — that by accumulating sufficient speed forward an air force is created which supports the wings. That isn't all, of course, but that's where the technicalities begin.

"To begin with, we placed the top wing 30 inches in front of the bottom one," he said. "That resulted in regulating the flow of air striking the bottom of the upper wing, especially when currents of varying strength might be encountered. The supporting force was evened, so to speak.

"Another principle we at once developed was concentrating the weight of the aeroplane in one place. The engine is directly behind the propeller. Behind the engine is the gas tank and then sit the two pilots, side by side. The ship is equipped with dual control."

Eliminate Stalling.

Concentrating the weight in one place eliminates stalling and gives the ship its parachute-like attractiveness. It is the same principle upon which all gliders must be built. The passengers and the bulk of the weight must be concentrated in one place with the wings resisting the pull of gravity sufficiently cause descent to be gradual and normal.

"You can pull the 'stick' right back until it's in your lap, and the ship will settle easily," said Mr. Kistler. "I've tried it and I know. The machine simply can not stall; physical laws prevent it from doing so."

Three factors combine to eliminate the tailspin. One is the centrally concentrated weight of the plane, which gives it the parachute feature. Another is the semi-elliptical shape of the wings, which concentrates the resisting force to the spot where it is most needed. Another is the fuselage, built in strict conformation with the law of physics, which makes the width of the fuselage, in proportion to the wing spread, 3½ or 4 to 1. The new aeroplane is 43 inches wide at the pilots' seats and tapers down in streamline fashion.

Built Plane Themselves.

"We built it ourselves," the enthusiast said. "I believe we'll build another very soon. It's quite easy. Skilled labor is necessary. With 10 men another could be constructed within 90 days."

The ship is constructed along normal lines, with canvas-covered frame. The wing struts are N-shaped, of streamline steel tubing, about thirty-thousandths of an inch thick. The wing spread is 29 feet and the fuselage measures 18 feet. In the present aeroplane the top wing is 30 inches in front of the bottom span. It is planned to extend this another 9 inches in the second machine. The engine is sunk 4½ inches to enable better visibility.

Visibility is another feature. The pilot may see his landing wheels and have a good view above, to each side and down, at an angle of less than 45 degrees. The horizon is about 2½ inches below the nose of the engine, or better than usual.

The amateur fliers do not plan to market their aeroplane, nor to go into the aviation business at the present time. "After all, there is nothing patentable about the machine," it was explained. "It's simply an application of principles which everyone has known for a long time. But this application of those principles was designed to remove the two serious dangers of the tailspin and the stall. And it works."

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

(Baltimore Sun.)

Before a man can learn he must, by inference, confess that he is ignorant. Because men and women live and die in error, the truth is ever an assault on the beliefs and faiths of the times. The majority do not desire the truth; they desire only that their complacent ignorance be left undisturbed. It is a tenet dear to English law, "The greater the truth, the greater the libel." To a man of reason their dogma seems absurd, yet the same man will train his children to accept it and punish them if they do not. Do the children point out his faults? Very well, that is impertinence and they shall be spanked. The greater the truth, the greater the impertinence. What is truth? asked the Roman; it is a red flag waved before a sullen bull; an assault on the scheme by which the fat now draw tribute from the lean and ignorant.

The service was read by the Rev. C. V. McLean of St. Andrews' United Church, in the presence of the immediate family. Mr. and Mrs. Corley left by the noon train for a honeymoon and will be at home at Fairview Place, Mount Forest, after July 15th.

MILLS—PARISH.

The wedding took place quietly at half past one o'clock this afternoon, at St. John's Church parsonage, of Florence Kathleen Parish, eldest daughter of Mrs. A. Simmons, of 91 Park Hill Road, and the late Albert Parish, and Vivian Henry Mills, second son of Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Mills, 610 Bethune Street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. C. Blagrave, D.D.

The bride wore a pretty gown of white flat crepe with white mohair hat, with slippers and hose and necklace of pearls. She carried a bouquet of Butterfly roses

The bridesmaid, Miss Alberta Parish, sister of the bride, was in coral celanese with matching hat, white slippers and hose and bouquet of Briarcliff roses.

Mr. Edward Jones acted as best man.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. H. Sadler of 77 Park Hill Road.

The rooms were arranged with roses, larkspur and gypsophila and the table was draped with a hand-embroidered linen cloth, centred by the bride's cake, festooned with pink tulle, and flanked by pink candles in silver holders.

Later, Mr. Mills and his bride left on the afternoon C.P.R. train for a trip to Toronto, after which they will live at 77 Park Hill Road.

The bride's travelling outfit was a green crepe dress with beige coat and hat and matching shoes and hose.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bridesmaid, was a necklace of pink pearls and to the best man an inlaid mother of pearl cigarette lighter.

BACHELORS RAISE GERMAN DEFICIT

Gov't Plan Will Produce $25,000,000 From All Shying at Matrimony Altar.

RUSHED THROUGH CABINET.

BERLIN, Germany, June 28 (C.P.)—Roughly one-fourth of all the millions the German Government needs to wipe out its vexing deficits expected to be raised from the pockets of bachelors and bachelor maids.

A revised financial program presented to the Reichsrat to-day by Chancellor Hermann Bruening and Finance Minister Hermann Dietrich, which the Cabinet is determined to rush through both the Reichsrat and Reichstag, makes it clear that Germans of both sexes who shy at the altar of matrimony will have to pay on the altar of national necessity at least 110,000,000 marks (about $25,000,000) of the 480,000,000 marks Dr. Dietrich plans to raise for balancing the Budget.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

of the human body is dependent upon the nervous system for its activity. The nerves that supply the stomach carry the "Spark of Life" which enables the stomach to digest food. If it were not for the nerves supplying the heart, that important organ would cease to do its work. If it is true that a complete severing of the nerves leading to these organs will cause them to cease functioning, is it not reasonable that pressure upon these same nerves will limit the activity of the heart and stomach and cause them to function imperfectly.

THE ONLY WAY

to relieve this abnormal condition is to relieve the pressure from nerve fibres that supply these organs. This is accomplished by scientific manipulation of displaced spinal segments which are constricting spinal nerves. When the nerves are freed of pressure they are capable of carrying 100 per cent. of mental impulses to the abnormal tissues. THE RESULT IS HEALTH.

HAMILTON GIRL RESCUES 3 LADS ON RAFT

Typographical Union ConcludesConvention At Clear Lake Resort

Beautiful Scenery of South Beach Provides Wonderful Setting For Send-off Banquet to Ontario and Quebec Delegates Attending 19th Annual Meet.

HAROLD DORMER OF EXAMINER TYPOGRAPHICAL STAFF MADE PRESENTATION AS APPRENTICE CONTEST WINNER

Splendid Addresses Given By E. A. Peck, ex-M.P., J. J. Duffus, R. R. Hall, K.C., R. M. Glover, W. Schmitt and H. S. Bentley, the Two Latter of Hamilton—Officers All Re-elected on Single Ballot.

Under the restful and tranquil spell of the enchantment of South Beach the delegates to the Ontario and Quebec Conference of the International Typographical Union concluded their nineteenth annual convention Saturday evening as the dinner guests of the printers of Peterborough.

The Clear Lake resort provided a charming scenic setting with all its June-time splendour of woods and water and sky,, a persuasive harmony of nature that stole into the heart and attuned it to the gentle sylvan rhythm of the place, and left only a wistful yearning that deepened with the coming of twilight and the brightening stars.

The glamour of South Beach completely captivated the visitors, and renewed its thrall upon those who had long ago yielded to its pervasive beauty and the coolness of its piney shade.

And the congenial spirit of the place seemed to permeate the banquet with a felicity that brought two political opponents together as table companions and in a friendly, jesting mood in which there was no pretence; and at the same table employer and employee sat down together as friends and arose to declare their reciprocal respect. In brief this banquet, overlooking the wooded shores of Clear Lake, was a memorable success to the last detail.

Presentation to Mr. Dormer.

It was also the occasion of the presentation to Harold Dormer of The Examiner typographical staff of his prize as winner of the competition for apprentices in Ontario and Quebec Conference.

The premier prize was the handsome silver cup given by J. E. Atkinson, President of The Toronto Star, and engraved as follows: "Presented by The Toronto Star for the Apprentice Competition of the Ontario and Quebec Typographical Unions." A shield on the base bears Mr. Dormer's name, also The Examiner's and the date of his success. The trophy is for annual competition Mr. Dormer also received for his permanent possession an engraved gold watch and chain, also the gift of The Toronto Star and commemorating his victory, and incidentally the fact that he is the first winner of The Toronto Star trophy.

Another prize was a copy of the book "Modern Type Display", written by J. L. Frazier of Chicago, advertising expert and editor of "The Inland Printer" who was the judge in this competition in which senior ap-

Royal Air Force Shows Break Derby Gate Record

HENDON, England, June 30 (Canadian Press). — Aircraft scorching through the atmosphere at 200 miles an hour, or crawling at the funeral pace of five miles an hour, monster ships and tiny ships, flopping ships and steady ships, all kinds of aircraft to the number of 200, were gathered here on Saturday at the great aerial display staged by the Royal Air Force.

The "gate" exceeded that of the Derby, England's greatest race, so great was the interest in this greatest exhibition of the modern marvels of the air.

Missionaries Are Presented Airplane

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 30— (CP) —An aeroplane which will carry spiritual and medical aid to remote regions in Alaska was blessed yesterday by Bishop Crimont of Alaska and will take off in a few days for the far northwest carrying the Rev. Dr. G. J. Seldes, S. J., and George Pickenpack, both experienced aviators.

The plane is a gift of the Marquette League. Judge Alfred Talley, President of the League made an address praising the missionary work of the Jesuits and Bishop Crimont committed the craft to the care of Our Lady of Loretta Patron Saint of Aviators.

The plane will penetrate to the far reaches of Alaska, replacing some of the plodding dog teams of the missionaries.

ALLISTON VISITOR WOUNDED IN ARM BY UNKNOWN MAN

W. E. Rowe, Ex-M.P., believes Shot May Have Been Meant For Himself.

BROTHER OF VICTIM.

Shot Fired As Car Was Being Put in Garage—Has No Enemies.

ALLISTON, Ont., June 30 (C.P.)—The shooting of Russell Rowe near Cookston this morning may have been the act of someone intending to shoot his brother, W. Earl Rowe, member of the last House of Commons for Dufferin-Simcoe, according to Mr. Earl Rowe who, however, stated today that he could not think of anyone likely to attack either his brother or himself.

Right Arm Shattered

Russell Rowe is in hospital here with his right arm shattered from gunshot wounds received from an unknown assailant when he was putting a car into his brother's garage this morning. His brother, in an interview to-day, said he did not think anyone could have known Russell was at his home, as he had been visiting there for only a day.

"The thug lay waiting in the yard apparently," said Mr. Earl Rowe. "He must have thought the man who had parked my car was me. Russell told me he didn't have an enemy in the world. I myself cannot conceive of anyone with any possible motive for wanting to get me."

Police investigation has so far failed to reveal the identity of the gunman.

LIBERALS HOLD RALLY IN ROOMS

J. J. Duffus, Liberal Candidate, Outines His Policy in Campaign.

CONSERVATIVES MIXED.

"My policy," declared J. J. Duffus, Liberal candidate for Peterborough West, speaking before an enthusiastic meeting in his committee rooms on Saturday evening, "is on the basis on which the Government has administered the affairs of state during the past seven years; on the Budget brought down by the Hon. Mr. Dunning and the British Preference, in other words the widening of marketing possibilities of the products of the soil and all lines of manufactured goods."

"I am wholeheartedly in accord with and extremely enthusiastic with the possible results of the forthcoming Imperial Conference and convinced that it will have a further tendency of strengthening the bonds between Canada and the British Empire. I am also convinced that the economic conference of representatives from all the component parts of the Empire will have a lasting effect to the advantage of all classes of industry and go a long way towards permanently solving the employment situation."

Mr. Duffus was of the opinion that Premier King's attitude towards other countries has been characterized by a great spirit of diplomacy and whole-hearted co-operation and has been of untold assistance in promoting the business relations with the outposts of Empire. "I am convinced," the speaker averred, "that Mackenzie King's influence at the Imperial Conference would mean a great deal for Canada, and he added, the extreme statements of the Mobile Columns of Troops in Pehsawar Subdue Hostile Tribes.

BOMBAY, India, June 30. (C.P.)—A "Boycott Week" against British goods was inaugurated here to-day with intensive anti-British propaganda.

A pouring rain dampened the enthusiasm of the Nationalists early in the day but later Congress volunteers paraded the streets, shouting revolutionary slogans.

A partial stoppage of work was part of the demonstration and a big procession is planned for to-morrow.

It is understood that the manifestants will appeal to the public not to buy any British goods. Sidewalks will be chalked to show the shops handling British products and in the processions the word "boycott" will be shouted again and again by men, women and children participants.

Pandit Nehru Arrested

The Government took another leader of the civil disobedience movement to-day when it arrested Pandit Motilal Nehru, acting president of the All-India National Congress, at Allahabad. Syed Mahmud, secretary of the Congress was arrested at the same time.

In addition the authorities declared the session of the National Congress working committee, which had been sitting at Allahabad for three days, unlawful. Seals were placed on the doors of the committee rooms.

After his arrest the Pandit nominated Vallabhai Patel brother of the former speaker of the Legislative Assembly to succeed him as President of the All-India National Congress and to continue the Nationalist movement.

Nationalists of Allahabad, meanwhile planned processions and other manifestations at the trial of Nehru and Mahmud, which begins to-morrow.

It was announced from Pehsawar, where mobile columns of troops have been operating against hostile tribesmen of the frontier, that insurgent activity in the villages of that region had been squelched. The columns have been broken up and the detachments of troops have returned to their bases.

$5 AUTOS IN SCOTLAND

Used cars are reported to be selling for as low as $5 in Scotland. One owner said that his machine of ancient vintage, for which he paid that amount, could do 40 miles an hour, seemed to be free from vice, and was "by no means a bad bargain".

Chicago Gov't Warehouse Held 3 Hours; 15 Gunmen Taking $200,000 in Liquor

CHICAGO, Ills., June 30 (Canadian Press). — Fifteen gunmen held control of a Government warehouse for three hours last night and trucked away whiskies, brandy, and alcohol, the value of which may exceed $200,000.

Included in the liquor stored in the two-storey warehouse were 400 cases of bonded whisky, shipped to Chicago from Jacksonville, Fla., presumably by agents of Al Capone, and seized by Federal agents.

The possibility that the raid on the warehouse last night was by Capone gangsters seeking to recover the seized liquor is being investigated.

Paul Perry, night watchman, was alone when four men, each carrying a large can, appeared at the entrance. Perry thought they were Federal prohibition agents bringing more liquor for storage, and he admitted them. Gun barrels were poked against his side and he was bound, gagged, and blindfolded. The gang leaders then admitted the others, and the three-hour job of carrying out the cases of liquor to waiting trucks was begun.

MALTA SITUATION TERMED SERIOUS

Pope Pius Claims Maltese Tempest Was Not Roused By Holy See.

..ONLY WISHES PROTECTION

VATICAN CITY, Italy, June 30 (C.P.)—Pope Pius in an allocution opening a secret consistory at which five Cardinals were created to-day termed the situation in Malta, where there has been conflict between the Church and State, a situation of the most serious nature. He laid down three principles.

They were that the Maltese tempest was not aroused by the Holy See or Maltese officials; that the return of tranquility and peace "notwithstanding our sincere effective desire and the desire of the Episcopacy itself has been rendered impossible by the actions of persons and facts independent of our will; indeed, contrary to our will because of contrary interests of the Catholic religion.

The Pope expounded another principle: "At no time has our intervention and that of the Maltese episcopacy wished to enter the political field. Instead, it has been limited itself, always, as was its strict pastoral duty, to recall, proclaim and inculcate those principles of moral law, wherefrom Catholic conduct and actions can never depart."

The Pope said he did not wish limitation of liberty but solely protection and saving from degeneration into license the moral laws which regulate the use of liberty and indicate the confines between permission and prohibition and intimate respect for liberty.

EIGHT JESUIT MISSIONARIES MADE SAINTS

Over 8,000 Canadians Gather on Site of Fort Ste. Marie For Celebration.

PATRON SAINTS OF CANADA.

Pope Pius Conducts Canonization Service in Vatican City.

MIDLAND, Ont., June 30 (C.P.)—On the site of old Fort Ste. Marie, scene of their labors, Canadian Catholics yesterday celebrated the canonization of the first Canadian martyrs. While the names of the eight Jesuit missionaries who gave their lives in an attempt to Christianize the Indians were being inscribed in the roll of the Saints in Vatican City, 8,000 people gathered at Martyr's Shrine near here to venerate their memory in impressive open-air services.

The crowd knelt on the slope of a hill on which the martyrs had trod while Mass was said at an altar on the peak overlooking the broad stretches of what once was the Huron country.

Patron Saints of Canada

The Canadian martyrs would be the Patron Saints of Canada and an aid to the accomplishment of national unity, said Monsignor O'Sullivan of St. Augustine's seminary, Toronto, one of the principal speakers. For them, he said, the hearts of Canadians should fill with the same personal love which fills the hearts of a Frenchman when he thinks of Ste. Jeanne d'Arc; of an Irishman when he thinks of St. Patrick; of a Scot when he thinks of St. Andrew and of an Englishman when he thinks of St. George.

"Canada needs them to teach our people to live together in Christian Brotherhood," he added.

Day of Canada's Glory

VATICAN CITY, Italy, June 30.—(C.P. Cable)—"We must thank Divine Bounty that we are permitted to see this day of Canada's glory". In these words His Holiness the Pope addressed 350 Canadian pilgrims headed by Cardinal Rouleau of Quebec who were here for the canonization yesterday of the eight Canadian martyrs who suffered death at the hands of the Indians in the 17th century.

The Holy Father himself presided at the canonization of the Jesuit martyrs—a ceremony which concluded many months of careful inspection of the merits of the miracles performed by the martyrs and the character of the deaths they suffered. It was on the feast day of St. Peter and Saint Paul and thousands upon thousands gathered in St. Peter's basilica. The colossal black statue of St. Peter, founder of the church was decked in the tiara and in rich ecclesiastical vestments studded with precious stones.

Punitive Efforts of Trio Useless Against Breeze

Youths Starting Out on Short Paddle From Hamilton Find Themselves Powerless to Stop Frail Craft Which Rapidly Drifts Farther From Shore.

PLUCKY GIRL OF EIGHTEEN WITNESSING PLIGHT MAKES RESCUE IN ROWBOAT AFTER MILE'S STRUGGLE

HAMILTON, Ont., June 30 (Canadian Press). — Three lads from Hamilton narrowly escaped drowning in Lake Ontario to-day when the raft from which they were diving was blown out to sea by an off-shore wind.

The boys, George Krikortan, John Dolisky, and C. Molnisky, cycled to Grimsby Beach and went paddling on a raft. The wind sent the frail craft over a mile out into the lake, one of the boys tried to push the raft to shore by swimming against it, but was unable to make progress. Finally Audrey Wilcox, 18 went to the rescue in a rowboat. A fourth boy, whose name is unknown, cycled to Grimsby Beach with the others.

LEGION MEMBERS AND EX-SOLDIERS HONOR THEIR DEAD

Beautiful Decoration Service is Held at Little Lake Cemetery.

INSPIRING ADDRESSES.

Significance of Cross of Sacrifice is Stressed by Rev. Father Costello.

"Year after year we come here to do homage to the splendid fellows who laid down their lives. May we be permitted to come for many years more. But one by one the Legion men now here will depart to join their comrades who have gone before. We have not ceased paying. Let our observance take increased solemnity from this thought."

Cross of Sacrifice.

Thus speaking at the Cenotaph in front of the Legion Hall yesterday afternoon, the Rev. Father Costello, Dominion Chaplain to the Legion, opened the triple ceremony with which the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion remembered the heroic dead in the annual observance of Decoration Day. RANGERS PLAN BIG SHAM BATTLE Attack Will Take Place Tonight After Dark at Rifle Ranges.

PUBLIC INVITED.

Nothing will be absent except casualties to add to the realism of the big night attack to be staged this evening at the Rifle Ranges by the Peterborough Rangers.

Stabs of flame will light the scene as the infantry swing into action to defend the city of Peterborough from the fierce charges of the attacking party. The angry rat-tat of the machine guns will be heard as No. 4 Machine Gun Company take up its position in the defence.

Nothing approaching such a display of military forces in action has been in Peterborough since before the War. The Rangers have been practising for weeks for this big demonstration and everything promises to be carried through without a hitch.

Certainly citizens will be anxious to see this impressive spectacle of two military forces fighting a sham battle under the cover of darkness. Lieut.-Colonel Park, V.D., has extended a welcome to the citizenry to view this display.

The battle will be preceded by a program of stirring music played by the Peterborough Rangers between 8.30 and 9.30.

SHE SEEKS GENTLEMAN

BROCKVILLE, Ont., June 30.—(C. P.)—In an effort to bring to the surface the bodies of 38 men lost in the drill boat explosion last Thursday the Porter Contracting Firm started here this morning to lift the machinery from the sunken boat J. B. King, by means of derricks mounted on the Tugs Salvage Queen and Salvage Prince.

It is hoped that when the wreckage is lifted the bodies of the men may be found underneath by divers, although many doubt this in view of the force of the blast and the upheaval that took place in the river bed where the hull now lies.

This afternoon Christopher Peterson, Shawinigan Falls, Que., whose body was found floating in the river cemetery. The only other body re-Friday will be buried in Brockville covered, that of Rubin Arnold, has been forwarded to East Jeddore, N.S., for interment.

A pathetic incident occurred here Saturday when a party of Jugo Slavs from Toronto arrived with a wreath expecting to attend the burial of some fellow countrymen who were among the casualties. To-day the flowers are withered and the river has not yet given up its dead.

AUSTRALIA SCORES 729

England Must Get 304 to Avoid Single Inning Defeat.

LOST TWO WICKETS.

LONDON, June 30. — (Canadian Press.)—When they had scored the phenomenal total of 729 runs for six wickets Australia to-day declared closed their first inning in the test match against England. This left the home land team with 304 to get to avoid a single innings defeat, a single innings defea. England lost the wickets of Jack Hobbs and Fran Wooley before play closed for the day, England's score being 98 for two.

By the tea interval the Australian total had reached the gigantic proportions of 729 for six wickets against England's first inning total of 425. The Australian captain was obviously attempting to get as many runs as possible while the good wicket lasted to-day in order to put England in during the waning light of the afternoon and on a crumbling pitch which would favor the bowlers.

All England was talking to-day about the amazing batting of a young Australian, Don Bradman, at the Lords cricket grounds.

Breaks Three Records.

Bradman made 254 runs before being caught out by Chapman from White's bowling and broke three test match records—the highest score in this country, the whitest by an Australian in either England or Australia and the highest at the Lords ground.

His feat got on the front pages of English newspapers and thousands of cricket fans cheered wildly when he returned to the pavilion.

Kippax was bowled by White when he scored 83 and this afternoon Australia had recorded 587 for four wickets.

FERGUSON CHARGES KING BROKE FAITH

Offer Referred To Was Never Made By Federal Gov't

Peterborough Speech Answered By Ontario Premier—All Correspondence is Published—Says King Omitted Essential Part of Govt's Proposal to Provinces.

CLAIM THAT ONTARIO IS HOLDING UP DEVELOPMENT OF ST. LAWRENCE, MADE TO SHIFT RESPONSIBILITY

Ontario Will Not Hand Over Right to Deal With Its Water Powers in International Negotiations—Quebec Stands With Province in Refusal to Federal Gov't.

TORONTO, Ont., June 30.—(CP)—Declaring that Premier Mackenzie King in his speech in Peterborough on June 18 had omitted an essential part of the Dominion Government's proposal to the Provinces respecting waterprower rights, Premier G. Howard Ferguson issued a statement in reply last night. It was accompanied by the correspondence and memoranda between the Federal Government and the Governments of Ontario and Quebec.

The claim credited to Mr. King that the St. Lawrence development was being held up by the Province of Ontario the statement asserted "is so entirely without foundation that it could be made with none other than a political motive and in an effort to shift the responsibility from his own shoulders where it unquestionably rests".

"It is because of an understanding that negotiations were confidential, Mr. Ferguson's statement declared that I have up to the present refrained from making any statement upon this important subject. By his declaration at Peterborough, Mr. King has chosen to violate that understanding and thereby release the Provinces from their undertaking in that regard.

"Not only", Mr. Ferguson's statemen continues, "has Mr. King treated this agreement as a scrap of paper, but he has failed to keep his written promise to consider the last suggestion made by Ontario and communicate with me further as shown by his letter of May 6th".

The memorandum which Mr. King was quoted as reading on the platform at Peterborough, Mr. Ferguson declared had never been submitted to the conference with the Provinces or communicated to Ontario and differed in a very vital respect from the proposition actually put forth by the Federal Covernment.

The memorandum Mr. King read according to the statement follows:

"Conferences beginning Jan. 24 to reach a practical basis of agreement regarding the development of water powers in navigable waters. A memorandum setting forth the policy which the Dominion Government is prepared to adopt as a basis of agreement with the Provinces without prejudice to the legal rights of the parties:

"1. Where a province desires to undertake power development in navigable waters, its right to do so shall be recognized conditional on the provision of the necessary navigation requirements.

"2. Should the Dominion Government at any time undertake or authorize the construction of any canal or other work for the improvement of navigation, it would be prepared to make available to an approved provincial agency the surplus after power developed beyond that needed for the operation of the locks and purposes of navigation on a basis equivalent to that which would govern if the provincial agency had itself undertaken the work as a power-development scheme.

"3. In either case, should the use of Dominion or Provincal property be required or the riparian or other property rights of the Dominion or Province be interfered with or the authority to interfere with or affect ed. The acquisition of such property or the authority to interfere with or affect such rights, could be made the subject of a special agreement in the particular circumstances of each case."

The essential part which Mr. Ferguson's statement declared Mr. King had omitted was that the statement submitted to the conference with the Province had been predicated upon the "vital" conditions "subject to the observance of any necessary international requirements."

"This clearly means" Mr. Ferguson's statement continued, "that the Federal Government in its international negotiations wants to deal with the property of the provinces in any way it sees fit without reference to the Provinces. For example the actual power development could be placed anywhere in any section of the river, either on the American or Canadian side and the Province which owns the power would be precluded from being consulted or having any voice in the matter. I am sure that the people of Ontario are not prepared to surrender their property in such a manner. Why Mr. King omitted this essential part of his proposal from his Peterborough speech is for him to explain.

"To say that Ontario has retarded plans for the St. Lawrence development is not borne out by the fact; because it is a matter of general public knowledge that it is six years since the Ontario Hydro Commission, with the authority of the Provincial Government, filed its plans for a St. St. Lawrence development at Ottawa, for approval, and this Government has been urging action by Ottawa ever since.

Since the Hydro Electric Power Commission was established and the people of Ontario undertook the development of its water powers and distribution of electricity as a publicly owned enterprise, there has been no serious obstacle placed in our way by the Federal authorities until the King Government came into power." The statement then proceeds to set forth what it claimed to have been the attitude of the Dominion Government in connection with development on St. Mary's River, namely that the Province had no right to develop power there except under lease from the Federal Crown.

"Then again," proceeded the statement, "in 1930 the Provincial Hydro Commission were sent an agreement from Ottawa and flatly told that this agreement must be signed by the Commission before Ottawa would approve of development plans. The agreement practically provides that the Dominion authorities at their own sweet will can confiscate the property of the Province or destroy the investment."

The statement also contended that in framing questions as to Dominion and Provincial water power rights for submission to the Supreme Court of Canada, the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec had been ignored and when they protested, were allowed to add two questions hurriedly. The Supreme Court ruled that the questions submitted to it were too general and vague to be definitely answered.

On January 24th last there was a conference in Ottawa at which Premier Taschereau and Hon. Mr. Mercier, and Mr. Lanotot, deputy attorney-general represented Quebec and Attorney-General Price and Mr. Ferguson represented Ontario.

This conference was not conclusive and later there was an exchange of correspondence in which the views of the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec were set forth. In a letter of Feb. 15, Mr. King wrote Mr. Ferguson saying the Domtnion Government would not accept the provision in the draft from the Provinces that "the Federal Government recognize the full proprietary rights of the Provinces in the beds and banks and waterpowers of all navigable rivers." That would be a renunciation of the Dominion Government had no authority to do. It expressed the hope that a practical solution could be arrived at which would not prejudice the legal rights of either the Dominion or the Provinces.

In his reply Mr. Ferguson expressed surprise at Mr. King's letter and took the view that the draft adequately expressed the opinion arrived at during the Conference. After a further exchange of letter and telegrams, another conference was held in Ottawa on March 8. As a result of this Mr. King submitted a memorandum to Mr. Ferguson setting forth the views of the Dominion Government.

CONSCRIPTION AGAIN.

Mr. John R. MacNicol, general and chief organizer of the Liberal-Conservative party and president of the National Lib.-Cons. Association of Canada who displaced Tommy Church at Toronto, uttered these beautiful words at his nomination, according to the Mail and Empire:

'When the next war comes along there will be no hesitancy about conscription," he said. "There will be conscription, and conscription not only of people but of captial, too. If they have money to spend on war, they should have it to spend on unemployment, too."

If this is the policy of the Bennett party, Mr. Peck had better get Mr. MacNicol down here at once to speak for him. Mr. King, we understand, is opposed to further conscription of any kind. Australia proved that it was not necessary for the war there and it ought never to be introduced into Canada again, Mr. Bennett, Mr. MacNicol and Mr. Peck to the contrary notwithstanding.

LLOYD GEORGE RESENTS ATTACK

Criticizes Bitterly Baldwin's Scoring of Liberal Candidate.

PREFERENCE A SURPRISE.

LONDON, June 30 (By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer).—Lloyd George is on the warpath again.

"I am not surprised," he said Saturday, "that Mr. Baldwin has always expressed a preference for the society of pigs."

This was but one sentence of his scathing reply to a speech by the Conservative leader last week in which Mr. Baldwin criticised the personality and the methods of choice of Liberal candidates and implied that most of them were mediocre and not of Parliamentary calibre.

Mr. Lloyd George's reply came at a garden party he gave at his Kensington residents. It was reminiscent in style of the days when the warrior-chief of the Liberals was attacking dukes and the landed classes generally.

"I have never heard a more ill-conditioned and ill-favored criticism," declared Mr. Lloyd George. "If you dig up the speeches of political leaders for a century there is no precedent for the coarseness exhibited in the Baldwin attack.

"When I read it I said to myself: 'I am not surprised that Baldwin has always expressed a preference for the society of pigs.' But I do not mind telling you I was surprised when a decent man like Neville Chamberlain, who, although he is a hard-hitter, is never foul-mouthed, should have said that this extraordinary outburst against the personality of Liberal candidates would endear Mr. Baldwin to the Tory party more than ever."

Mr. Lloyd George added he chose none of the Liberal candidates, not even his own daughter. He thought the level of the candidates was unusually high in recent years. Honorable men and women should not be subjected to a vulgar and boorish attack even from the leader of a great political party.

The Negro was said to have gone to the Egger home and shot Egger through the head and Mrs. Egger through the breast. He escaped in an automobile and fled toward this city.

SOLLOWAY MILLS BUSINESS ENDED

200 EMPLOYERS LET OUT.

Solloway, Mills and Co., brokers, closed their doors at noon Saturday, dismissed about 200 employees and unless a purchaser for the organization as a unit appears, it will be broken up, offices in various centres for which there are buyers will be sold, and the rest abandoned.

Employees dismissed on Saturday, were given a week's pay in lieu of notice and informed that if possible, any project involving the organization as a unit, would be made to include the employees. Only sufficient employes, mostly the "key men" of the organization, were retained to handle the winding-up operation.

MUSKOKA SHIP RAMS INTO TUG

Several Hundred Passengers Given Bad Scare as Wheel Breaks Away.

CAPTAIN INJURED.

GRAVENHURST, June 30.—Several hundred tourists on board the Medora, of the Muskoka Navigation Fleet, were given a bad scare on Saturday afternoon when the Medora rammed the tug "Constance" at the Muskoka wharf.

As a result of the collision, Captain Andrew Corbett of the Medora was severely injured. The steering wheel swung around by the sudden reversal of the engines, struck him in the face, breaking his cheek bone.

Walters Escape.

The tug crashed through into the dining-room of the Medora, which was occupied by a few walters, who escaped unhurt.

About 30 feet of the upper works of the Constance were smashed in.

Following the accident, the Medora was able to proceed on its way according to schedule.

The tug crew saw the Medora backing out from the wharf, according to Captain James Cameron, owner of the tug. But they thought the Medora captain had seen their craft. When the Medora kept on its course the tug whistle was blown; too late, however, to avert the crash.

Party of Eight Cars Spend Two Days Marooned by Floods in Temagmi Bush

NORTH BAY, Ont., June 30 (Canadian Press). — Marooned at Goward, four miles north of Temagami, and 77 miles from North Bay since Friday morning last, motorists caught in the height of the storm which swept that district last week have been freed through the efforts of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway. They were enabled to proceed on their southward journey when a party on a special train, under the direction of George W. Lee, chairman of the railroad, laid planks from the highway to the railway embankment to enable motors to detour the flooded road at Net Lake.

Some eight cars carrying women and children were the special object of relief by the railway. These parties had been cut off from food and shelter.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

AID IS PROMISED FOR AGRICULTURE BY MR. BENNETT

Tory Chieftain Crowds Three Meetings into Day in Quebec Campaign.

National Highway Needed.

King's Policy With New Zealand Hotly Assailed.

ORMTOWN, June 30. —(C.P.) — With three meetings crowded into the day, Hon. R. B. Bennett here late on Saturday concluded the present portion of his Quebec campaign. At La Prairie he spoke in the afternoon and last night he departed for the Maritime Provinces to open his itinerary at Saint John, N.B.

"This Prime Minister of ours," Mr. Bennett explained in strongly denouncing the serious effect on Canadian dairy products through the New Zealand Treaty, "is the Prime Minister for New Zealand or for Canada; is he elected by New Zealand or by Canada? If he wants to legislate for the prosperity of New Zealand let him go down and do it, we can spare him here."

Opening his remarks at La Prairie, Mr. Bennett said he was not unmindful that he spoke in the former constituency of the late Hon. J. A. Robb.

Policy of Assistance.

Immediately directing attention to agriculture, the Conservative leader gave strong expression to his party's policy for assistance to agriculture, he continued, that farmers should receive just compensation for their efforts "and rewards equal to the profession," to keep Canadian boys and girls on the farm. Agriculture stood first in Canadian development.

"If we are to succeed," Mr. Bennett asserted, "we must supply the same advantages to agriculture as to other activities. It must be made as profitable as any other profession in which men are employed," he went on. "We of the Conservative party maintain that the Dominion, having control of all systems of taxation, must assist agriculture, understand by scientific study the problems under which we work; and get the best returns. And we Conservatives are pledged to see that agriculture receives the same benefits as in days gone by."

Distribution and marketing were essential factors in assisting agriculture.

A national highway was required for agriculture to connect the east with the west and to develop tourist traffic, Mr. Bennett went on.

A Favorite Kipling Story

It is recorded of this well-known British author that he once remonstrated with a friend for having sent him a publication from which the advertising pages had been cut. "Why, you have thrown away the most interesting section!" Mr. Kipling said.

Advertisements are more interesting to-day than at any time since the invention of movable type. Merchants and manufacturers realize that their announcements must compete for interest with the work of the high-priced authors and illustrators.

If you are not a regular reader of the advertisements in this paper, this is a good time to cultivate their acquaintance. You will find them interesting. You will find them friendly. They show you where to stop and take considerable strain off both shoe-leather and pocketbooks.

Read the advertisements because they are interesting. Believe them because they are true. Act upon their suggestions because it will pay you in many ways. Before you pick up the telephone, you usually consult the phone book. Before you start out to shop, consult the advertising columns of this paper. They will give you a direct connection with the merchandise you want.

Don't stop with reading the news and editorials. The advertising columns are equally important

PETERBORO MAN IS DROWNED IN NORTHERN FLOOD

Ernest C. Harper, Aged 52, Lost His Life on the Wabi River.

ENGAGED IN FARMING.

Was Attempting to Rescue the Horses From the Pasture Field.

The severity of the recent floods in Northern Ontario are sadly emphasized locally in the death of a former resident of this district, Ernest C. Harper, aged 52, who was drowned in a branch of the Wabi River, northwest of New Liskeard, on Friday last. News of his death, although telegraphed from the north country, did not reach his brother in Cobourg until thirty hours afterwards, further emphasizing the seriousness of the flooding and the extent to which communications have been affected as a result.

The late Mr. Harper was born in Camborne, Ontario, having lived there for twenty-nine years, up to the time of his marriage to Clara Allen. He later farmed in Springville and in Smith Township, and had spent the past eight years in this city, prior to his departure for the north country, where he had been farming with his cousin, Herb Jibb of Milberta, fourteen miles north of New Liskeard, for the past three months.

The deceased, who was an exceedingly popular man, numbered his friends throughout this section of Ontario, and his uprightness of character and sterling qualities will ever stand out as an example to those he has left behind in the prime of his life.

He was an ardent member of the United Church and was also a member of the I.O.F.

Rescuing Horses.

The circumstances leading up to the tragedy, speak eloquently of the unselfish and kindly nature of the man. In the face of a serious flood he had gone to bring the horses in from the pasture, at the end of the day. Driving the democrat which was drawn by a team of horses, he was leading the other five animals, and when crossing the bridge which spans that branch of the Wabi River, the frightened horses crowded off the waterlogged structure and all but one of them perished in the swollen river. The body of the unfortunate Mr. Harper was likewise swept away in the raging stream, and after a search which lasted until late Saturday afternoon, the remains were recovered. Coroner Dr. J. S. McCullough of New Liskeard has decided that an inquest will not be necessary. The funeral will be held on Tuesday at 1 p.m., E.S.T., from the home of his brother-in-law, Bert Allen, 587 Water Street, Peterborough, to Little Lake Cemetery. The Rev. J. E. J. Millyard of George Street United Church will officiate.

The deceased is survived by his widow; one son, Allan; two daughters, Lottie and Vera; four sisters, Mrs. James Baptist of Baltimore, Ontario, Mrs. Richard May of Cobourg, Mrs. Victor Gaynor of Toronto, Rev. Mrs. William Alp of Ottawa, and two brothers, Ezra of Camborne and Eric of Toronto. He was predeceased by his mother two years ago.

Seaplane Lands on Nose After Jumping Pond on McLaughlin Farm in Forced Landing

When the giant six-passenger Fokker seaplane of the Interlake Airways was forced to make a landing on a small pond on one of R. S. McLaughlin's farms, near Oshawa, Ontario, the machine, travelling at 60 miles an hour, jumped the bank and crashed on its nose. LEGION MEMBERS AND EX-SOLDIERS HONOR THEIR DEAD with the Ladies' Auxiliary. Following the laying of flowers on the Cenotaph, the salute to the flag, the Last Post, and Reveille, the procession—forming behind the Canadian Legion standard-bearer and the Salvation Army Band—proceeded to Confederation Square, where a wreath was laid on the City War Memorial by Alderman G. A. Macdonald and a wreath on the Captain Brown monument by Captain J. Abraham, president of the local branch of the Legion.

The procession then marched through the city to Little Lake Cemetery where, on the Veterans' Plot, the main portion of the ceremonies took place.

Forget the Sacrifices.

Addressing himself particularly to his own comrades, Captain Abraham declared in his address at Little Lake Cemetery that there was grave danger of the younger generation's being permitted to forget what the war had meant. He spoke of the deprivations and sufferings of those who had returned from battle, declaring that while there was a real danger of neglecting those who had been maimed in body, it was a present fact that due attention was not being given those who had returned to labor for the rest of their lives under the terrific handicap of a maimed mind.

"Only by the background of the solid opinion of the returned men shall we be able to accomplish anything toward alleviating these sufferings," he said. "The door of the Legion is open to all those who seek to serve."

His Honor Judge Huycke, who was introduced by Captain Abraham, felt that there existed to-day too little respect for those who had died in the war. We had our memorials, he said, but we should do well to treat them with even more respect than we did.

"The children should be trained up to think of these as the Holy of Holies," he declared. "They represent the blood of brave men. I should be glad to see done in Peterborough what is done in many parts of the world—the raising of the hat when a war memorial is passed."

His Honor felt that this was a task for the schools.

Likening the heroic dead to Bunyan's Mr. Steadfast who had crossed the River of Death to be welcomed by the trumpets of the Celestial City, Judge Huycke called on the silver trumpets around him to sound for those whose memory they were seeking to perpetuate. "And while we keep green the memory of those who lie here" concluded His Honour, "let us not forget those who lie in graves beyond the seas, and those who have no graves but whom the ocean has claimed."

Gave of Her All

"When the Empire was imperilled" stated E. A. Peck, third speaker, "Canada entered the fray with a whole heart." Those who had died had not died for Canada alone but for each individual who to-day enjoyed the peace for which they had fought. What we did in memory of the dead was a good thing, he declared, but a dual responsibility still remained on each individual. Quite apart from the government's responsibility, each citizen owed an individual debt to the dead to see to the welfare of those whom the dead had left behind. "Who knows what a kindly word will do?" he asked.

"Our second obligation," continued Mr. Peck, "is to see to it that the dead have not died in vain." He spoke of war as a collossal waste, but felt that the League of Nations and the various post-war pacts and parlies would go far toward making remote the possibility of another major conflict. "Our aim should be permanent peace" he declared.

Representing His Worship, the Mayor, Alderman Macdonald spoke of the depth and beauty of friendship, of love, and faith. Through memory and the belief in immortality they who had died were now alive he said.

"By gathering here, we not only honour them" he declared, "but we honour ourselves."

J. J. Duffus, whom Captain Abraham introduced as the last speaker, stressed all that those who had gone abroad to fight had left behind them and the record which they had made for themselves. "They left everything near and dear to them; everything of material importance. Their glorious deeds are left on the battlefields in letters of blood. They have done more than their share. Now it is our turn. If we fail, history will condemn us."

He spoke of the loss in manpower, but declared that the greatest sacrifice of all had been on the part of the mothers, the sisters, and the wives of the men who had gone. What little we could do in alleviation of their sorrow and loss, he declared, would be all too small.

After an anthem by the Salvation Army and the sounding of the Last Post and Reveille, the Veterans of the Legion broke ranks and joined the women in the placing of flowers on the graves and memorial tablets.

Bouquets of all descriptions were in evidence. Simple wildflowers were clutched in horny hands. Colourful old-fashioned nosegays were there, perhaps from gardens the dead had loved. Huge peonies bloomed in splendour in front of simple wooden crosses which bespoke the thousands of other crosses in France and Flanders.

Some there were who deposited their floral offerings quickly, as if afraid to make display of the feeling which prompted the act. Some stooped long and slowly as if in prayer. Here and there were tears, hastily wiped away with a furtive hand. There were other eyes in which the hot tears of a dozen years ago had given place to a purer and more abiding emotion. Some left the cemetery quickly as if anxious to leave the scene of a great pain. Others lingered long as if to commune with something bigger than themselves.

During the afternoon ball games were played by boys and girls and some of the men pitched horse-shoes. The younger generation danced in the Rendezvous pavilion to the music of Wynn Phillips Orchestra. H. Milne of Peterborough, provided bag-pipe music.

The re-union was arranged by William John McNevan of Reaboro, and John Comrie, Jack Drummond, Jack Robertson, William Comrie and Mrs. William Campbell, of Keene. The re-union was the first ever effected by the various descendants.

Regular Meeting Of Roseneath W.M.S.

ROSENEATH, June 30 (Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. John Drope entertained the members of St. James' Women's Auxiliary for the June meeting with thirteen members and three visitors present. The president, Mrs. J. Timlin conducted the meeting.

The scriptural reading was from Acts, 19: 1-7, read by Mrs. Lottie Nicholls. It was decided to donate ten dollars to the prayer book society also to pay for Sunday School supplies. The members are now interested in making an autograph quilt, each member donating a block and ten cents to cover the cost of lining and batting.

Mrs. Frank Brown gave a splendid reading entitled, "Use your money while your living." Mrs. R. McCracken and Mrs. James Webb each read a chapter from the study book and Mrs. E. Timlin read an interesting letter from Japan. The Rev. Francis Battersby closed the meeting with prayer and a social half-hour was spent with lunch being served by the hostess.

SOUNDS WORRY CAMERA MEN

Heavy Trucks Rolling Along Pavement Have Forced Pictures to be Retaken.

THE "ECHO HUNTER."

Officials of the Paramount Studio, in Astoria, are said to be considering applying to city officials for permission to set "Hospital Zone—Quiet" signs alongs Pierce avenue fronting their building.

Recently several scenes of "Heads Up" and "The Sap From Syracuse" had to be retaken because a rumbling truck or siren-blowing fire engine competed too effectively with the players' voices.

Not all of the woes of the sound experts are due to exterior discords, however, and many of the retakes were made necessary by intramural interruptions. Victor Schertzinger, who is directing "Heads Up", was inclined to vent his wrath upon a hapless cornet player, who played a few notes on his instrument at an inappropriate moment.

Charles Rogers and Margaret Breen were in the throes of a romantic garden interlude. The action had been rehearsed several times and Mr. Schertzinger was beaming at the lovelorn twain when the cornetist, in a rehearsal room on the same floor, "obeyed that impulse." Mr. Rogers's sentimental wooing was drowned in a mulish bray and with it expired Mr. Schertzinger's patience.

Paramount's well-known 'echo-hunter" was called upon Tuesday to ferret out a strange squeak in an elaborate set for "The Sap From Syracuse," in which the featured players are Jack Oakie and 'Ginger" Rogers. The set is a duplication of the dining salon of an ocean liner. Mr. Oakie is required to bound down the companionway and into the salon, exchanging bumptious pleasantries with all and sundry during his entrance.

The "Echo-Hunter"

For more than an hour the "echo-hunter" stalked his prey. He went so far as to examine the players' shoes for a possible squeak, but without success. Then the floor boards were tested and the elusive squeak was found to be in the stairway. In a few minutes the faulty steps were torn up and relaid and the filming proceeded.

In the same scene, several uninitiated spectators commented upon Mr. Oakie's resplendent yellow dress shirt. They asked whether it was to be taken as the "Syracuse" boy's idea of sartorial splendor. The camera man banished this notion by explaining that the yellow shirt reproduces better than the usual white ones. White reflects the light and results in "fuzzy" photography.

The Legislature of New Brunswick, which was meeting in Fredericton, adjourned for one afternoon last week to permit the members to attend a showing of "Disraeli."

PUPILS HONOR SCHOOL TEACHER

Presentation Made Miss Maud Spiers of Hastings Public School.

RESIGNS POSITION.

HASTINGS, June 30.— (Examiner Correspondence.) — Just before the close of school for the summer holidays on Tuesday afternoon the pupils of the junior room presented their teacher, Miss Maud Spiers, with a beautiful manicure set as a slight token of their appreciation of her services.

Miss Spiers has been a very efficient teacher of the junior room of the Hastings Public school for the past nine or ten years. She resigned this year to accept a position as teacher in London, Ontario, where she starts her duties in September.

During her period of teaching in the junior room there has been many occasions in which she has had more children than one teacher could usually handle. Despite this, her pupils loved her and the parents and citizens of Hastings are sorry to see her leave and extend to her their best wishes for her future success.

A Strong Financial Bridge

A SAVINGS bank account in The Canadian Bank of Commerce is a bridge over which your money can safely be carried to profitable use.

This bridge rests on the most solid of foundations. It stands secure against dangerous elements—the jagged rocks and the treacherous undercurrents that might cause the loss of your money.

And this strong financial bridge would link your work with that of other hardworking Canadians—the farmer who plants seed in fertile soil; the woodsman and the mill operative who turn trees into building materials and paper; the miner who brings rich minerals to the surface; the fisherman who casts his net for the harvest of the sea; and the factory worker who manufactures all kinds of material into a great volume and variety of Canadian goods.

The road to this safe bridge starts at any one of the 800 branches of The Canadian Bank of Commerce.

THE JACKSON PARK CAMP.

The opening to-morrow of the summer camp at Jackson Park, operated by the Peterborough Health Association with the assistance of the Kiwanis Club, will be a red-letter occasion in the lives of many Peterborough children whose bodies will be built up by open-air life, good food and properly supervised play.

It is to be hoped that every under-nourished boy and girl in Peterborough will be able to take advantage of the facilities of the Jackson Park camp and receive the benefit of the carefully planned routine by which the institution has succeeded in materially improving the condition of many of its little visitors.

With an admirable location on high ground amid the health-giving odor of the evergreens and one of the finest natural playgrounds to be found anywhere, the Jackson Park camp is ideally situated for the purposes for which it has been established; few communities in Canada have such an institution right at their doors, and in this respect as well as in the matter of outing camps for older boys and girls Peterborough is perhaps in a class by itself as compared with other municipalities.

EMPIRE MARKETING.

An interesting survey of the work done by the Empire Marketing Board for the year ending May, 1930, is furnished in the annual report of the board, which reveals that considerable progress has been accomplished.

As the report puts it, "there has again been an appreciable quickening of interest in the theme of Empire buying among men and women in the United Kingdom."

The British Government has appropriated the sum of four million dollars for the work done during the current year, the money to be spent on advertising and other publicity methods designed to bring to the attention of shoppers in the Old Country the variety and merit of Empire products.

Attractive posters are placed in the principal cities and towns of the United Kingdom, leaflets are distributed in the schools, window bills are displayed in the shop windows, hundreds of thousands of people listen to lectures given under the auspices of the board, the British Broadcasting Corporation arranges special talks for housewives, exhibitions and shopping weeks are held in different centres, and other means are employed for the benefit of dominion trade.

SHOULD BE A RECORD VOTE.

Attention is called by the Brockville Recorder and Times to the fact that twenty per cent. of the people on the lists in that district did not vote at the last Dominion election.

It is to be imagined that in other districts, including our own, the percentage of those who through indifference refrained from expressing their views was equally as large, if not indeed greater.

Four weeks from to-day the people of this riding, as well as all the other electors of Canada, will be called upon to select a Federal Government, the most important responsibility possibly that voters have to face.

There is no reason why in summer weather with roads at their best there should not be a larger percentage of the possible vote polled, particularly as the electors in the present campaign have an unusually good opportunity to become enlightened as to the issues in the election.

Not only has the passing out of the old-time party newspaper ensured the printing of fair reports of the speeches and activities of all the political parties, but in addition the new instrument of education, the radio, brings every word of important speeches into the homes of the voters.

In this election the people of Canada should go to the polls with a better appreciation of what is involved than at any other time in the history of the country, and the vote registered should be correspondingly larger.

DOMINION DAY.

To-morrow Canada pauses in the midst of a general election to celebrate its sixty-third birthday.

Perhaps it would be more appropriate to say that Canadians to-morrow will enjoy a holiday set apart for the celebration of the birthday of the Dominion.

Because unfortunately we as a people do not do nearly enough in the way of observing this all-important event, too much emphasis is placed on the holiday side of the occasion and too little upon its historical significance.

True we did manage to stage a proper celebration of Canada's diamond jubilee, and as a result created an interest in Canadian history and a pride in Canadian achievement that should have been perpetuated by a yearly observance of the anniversary that would keep its significance in the forefront.

But we have been drifting back into our old indifferent attitude.

It is safe to say that not in a dozen places in Canada to-morrow will there be anything on the program for the day that will impress Canadians with the purport of setting apart July 1st as a holiday.

That is a serious mistake; Dominion Day is from a Canadian viewpoint one of the most important anniversaries of the year, and it should be used in such a way as to stimulate among the people of this country a greater love for their homeland and a greater appreciation of the efforts of those who made the Canada of to-day possible.

"TS REGUSTED."

Recently there were assembled in a Maple City home sixteen men representative of the business, industrial and professional life of Chatham. They may quite properly be described as "average" citizens, although most of them, at the same time, are above the ordinary in intelligence and public spirit—in fact, they spent the evening discussing ways and means whereby they might be of assistance in promoting the prosperity and the general well-being of this city and surrounding district.

Business concluded, the radio was tuned up and it was discovered that a great political leader was making a radio address, and that another great political leader was to follow on the air shortly afterwards. In view of the fact that an important election contest is now in progress, it naturally would be expected that men of this calibre would be interested in availing themselves of the opportunity to gain information upon the great issues of the day, to more properly fit them to give an intelligent and competent opinion when they go to the polls to vote. Serious, unselfish and patriotic citizens are offering themselves for public office, and their invitation to the people to give an ear to discussions of perplexing problems of state is one that should meet with a ready and willing response from the serious, unselfish and patriotic men who form the great mass of the voting public.

What happened upon this particular occasion?

Time-pieces were consulted. The hour was fast approaching 10.30. By common consent the dial of the radio was switched. The voice of the political orator was abruptly silenced, and presently the sweet strains of the theme song of "The Birth of a Nation"—the incidental music heralding the appearance of Amos 'n Andy filled the room.

And yet there are people in this country who wonder at the lamentable apathy displayed towards public affairs by men and women entrusted with the sacred duty of rendering judgment in matters affecting the welfare of the nation.

But we should not be too harsh. These men are no different from the men in any other city in Ontario. Apathy with regard to public affairs is an evil common to all communities. We all know it exists, but up to the present the newspapers and the politicians themselves seem to be about the only ones trying to do something to correct it—and sometimes it seems like a hopeless task.

On July the 28th next the people of Canada must decide which of two great political parties they intend to entrust with the important duty of regulating the public affairs of this country. The interests of every man, woman and child in this country will be affected by that vote. Would it not seem to be an opportune time to put first things first, and give some attention to the question of politics until this election is over?

Of course, Amos 'n Andy are important "propolitians," too, and probably those men the other evening, being men of reputation, realized that they would get a better conception of those political addresses from the newspapers the next day.

Let's hope they did.—Chatham News.

THE TOLL OF THE MOTOR CAR.

Deaths from automobile accidents in Canada in 1929 were more than twice as many as three years ago. A return issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics on Saturday showed that there were 1,294 deaths from automobile accidents in 1929; 1,062 in 1928; 365 in 1927, and 606 in 1926.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics have figured out that the deaths for 1929 represent a proportion of 13.2 per 100,000 of population. In 1926 the proportion was 6.5 per 100,000 of population.

These figures indicate a terrible toll of human life in Canada. The sad feature is that it is quite well known that many of the accidents from which deaths resulted would have been avoided by a little care on the part of drivers. It is poor comfort to be told by the Dominion statisticians that in the registration area of United States for the year 1928, the latest figures available, show that the rate there wes 23 per 100,000 of population.

The rate of increase in deaths from this single cause is increasing altogether too rapidly. It is true that some of the increase may be explained by the considerable increase in the number of autos in use in the Dominion during the periods mentioned. But the fact remains that carelessness and indifference to the risk of others, apart from disregard for personal risk, is the cause of many of the fatalities. If the increase continues it is quite probable that there will arise an overwhelming demand for more drastic penalties on conviction of motorist offenders. A correspondent of the Journal has drawn attention to this already in a letter which appeared in the issues of Monday.

Figures for the chief cities show startling increases. Allowance must be made, of course, for the fact, as pointed out by the Dominion bureau, that "deaths attributed to automobile accidents occurring in cities are not in every case the results of accidents which took place within the city limits." Many of those injured in accidents outside of cities are frequently hurried to city hospitals.

Montreal had 151 deaths from motor accidents in 1929 as against 81 in 1926; Toronto, 107 as against 45; Vancouver, 45 as against 26; Hamilton, 36 as against 20; and Ottawa, 26 in 1929 as compared with 12 in 1926.

Provincial returns show that Ontario had 551 deaths from motor accidents last year of the total for all Canada of 1,294; Quebec, 323; British Columbia, 117; Alberta, 71; Manitoba, 68; Nova Scotia, 61; Saskatchewan, 56; New Brunswick, 46, and Prince Edward Island, 1.

Compared with last year, Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan and Alberta were the only Provinces with decreases in the number of motor fatalities.

It would appear that very considerable educational work is necessary still to impress on operators of automobiles the necessity for care not only in their own interests but in that of others. "Stop, Look and Listen" seem to be more needful than ever as cautionary catchwords in Canada.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

With four weeks of the campaign left, there is unfortunately time for a lot of campaign oratory yet.

When it comes to ironing out difficulties the Conservative steam-roller in Toronto would seem to be one hundred per cent. effective.

Reports from the North say the fire hazard is not over yet. Those who go into the woods should exercise every care to prevent fires.

An optimist is a fellow who expects a Liberal candidate to be successful in Toronto, or one who expects a Conservative to be elected in Quebec City.

The tourist invasion is beginning to assume normal proportions. The influx of visitors should have a tonic effect upon business during the next two months.

What To-day Means To You

"CANCER."

If June 30th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a.m. to 9:40 a.m., 2:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. and 11 p.m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 11 a.m. to noon, and 7 p.m. to 8:40 p.m.

Weird experiences are forecast for this date, harmless and interesting. Relief in sight for worries of long standing, and family affairs will be of a most peaceful and happy nature. Receipt of unexpected money.

The child born on this June 30th will have a considerable amount of mental activity and manual dexterity, but there is apt to be a great deal of restlessness and over-exertion. It will love variety and expression, but it will lack determination and tenacity of purpose.

You are one of Earth's good people. This does not mean, however, that you are saccarine sweet, or angelically pious. You are ultra human, a real red-blooded being. You have very clean wholesome and sane ideas about life. There is nothing distorted, uncanny or queer about you. If you have a temperament, it is cleverly concealed an you are its boss. You take on many of the delightful attributes of the month in which you were born. Your disposition is sunny, fresh, sweet and warm. "You hear life murmur, and you see it glisten." You believe in the nature fairies, and the souls of flowers. You have a poet's imagination, and a musician's love for music.

You have an almost childish trust in humanity; you hang on to your illusions. You will be surrounded by good influences and will come in touch with harmonious vibrations almost all of your life. Your horoscope does not reveal that you will ever be the victim of unscrupulous people. Destiny, in this respect is your protector, for you are not a good judge of character. You do not take your work very seriously, but you have a knack of getting through things in rather a haphazard manner. You are always able to lift yourself (spiritually) out of any environment, and to make the most tedious work seem attractive.

"CANCER."

If July 1st is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m., and 8 p.m. to 9:15 p.m. The danger periods are from 8 a.m. to 9:40 a.m., and 3 p.m. to 4:15 p.m.

You cannot expect things to move rapidly on this date—influences are against it. A feeling of depression, although no reverses or actual sorrows are in sight. Not a good time to deal in land or property.

Children born on this July 1st will have extravagant tastes, will be very proud, almost disdainful in their dignity. They will have quick intellects, and also quick tempers. Their affections and jealousies may lead them into trouble.

If you were as positive in your "I cans," as you are in your "I can'ts," the world would be sitting at your feet, instead of you leading a door-mat existence as you do. It is hard to explain why you always try to find reasons (usually silly ones) for not doing the things of your heart's desire. It is also hard to understand why you turn a deaf ear to the voices of opportunity, when your hearing is so keen in regard to the pessimistic things in life.

You are a self-appointed martyr. Destiny does not have her knife in you more than the rest of the people of the world. Whatever your difficulties may be, they are not peculiar to you. Put some stiffening in your back; say "yes," where you now say "no," and stand up and not sit down to your troubles. Stop being a pathetic failure—!

You have real artistic ability (latent, of course), which if developed might be of commercial value, as well as a pleasure in your life. You are too impractical and too sensitive for the business world. You thoroughly dislike the struggle for the bread and butter part of existence; you would like to be taken care of, in this respect.

The fullest growth and widest life, for you, occurs after marriage. You will follow parental lines very closely, both in character and in occupation. Your nature is very receptive to psychic influences.

THE GRINGO PRIVATEER

By PETER B. KYNE

CHAPTER 3.

Mr. Burney's handsome face puckered in distress. "Oh, no, sir," he confessed. "I haven't even had a desire to kill one. That is, if you speak in a professional sense. As a soldier I imagine that in the course of three years of active service I accounted for my share."

The king grimaced disgustedly. "Then why the devil are you applying to me for a job that requires a professional and a specialist?" he demanded turculently.

"Your pardon, senor. I have not applied for the job. I do, however, apply for a job as a rider in the employ of El Ranchito, because it has seemed to me that what you require here is an unusually—er—hardy crew that will be loyal to the payroll, and you might start your recruiting with me. Of course, I am not insensible to the probability that the most loyal and devoted of the crew might come under the eye of Your Majesty and get knighted. I am not, however, a professional killer, I am not hiring out as such, even in the present extremely low state of my finances, nor shall I ever hire out as such. I shall always, I trust, remember that I am a gentleman and leave rough, rude brawling to those who have indulged in it since boyhood and think it manly."

Burney stood erect, turned and found himself facing a girl who stood hesitant in the doorway.

His Majesty murmured in a low voice something just a trifle coarse. "I'm disappointed," he confessed. "I had a hunch you were just a gift from God and if you would guarantee to rid me of Martin Bruce and Miguel Gallegos, there is no doubt but that you would be knighted."

"It's not well to judge men hastily, sir," the young man assured him. "Precipitate men are not apt to comb gray hairs."

The king pounded his library table. "What I require, young man," he said, "is a general manager with the guts of a bear."

"Ever think of tying to one with the cunning of a fox, sir?"

The king stared at him. "How do you do, Mr. Fox!"

"You flatter me, sir."

"I'll take a chance on you, young fellow. To-morrow you'll take your entrance examination and if you pass it, you go on the Bardin payroll. Once you're there I'll have my eye on you. Know what day it is to-morrow?"

"The Fourth of July, sir."

"You bet. And there's a barbecue and rodeo for the whole countryside here to-morrow. Can you ride?"

Ken Burney shrugged. "Muy poco," he murmured, depracatingly. Evidently all of his Castilian blood had not been bred out of him.

"Well, if you want that job you'll ride for it."

His guest bowed. "The king's request is always tantamount to an order."

"You quit calling me king and Your Majesty, will you? Why do you do that?"

"Because everybody else in this country does."

"I don't believe it. I've never been called such names to my face heretofore."

"Everybody's afraid to. But then you've got so much money and land and cattle you're a personage and entitled to a courtesy title. And I never say anything behind a man's back that I will not say to his face."

Whatever reply the king purposed making to this semi-impertinent statement remained unspoken, for Ken Burney saw him glance toward the door, saw his fierce glance soften and a smile of winning tenderness light up his rugged old face. Instantly Burney stood erect, turned and found himself facing a girl who stood hesitant in the doorway.

"Come in, my dear," the king entreated. Burney saw the girl's glance rest for an instant on his chaps and sombrero lying on the divan; then her diffidence disappeared and she advanced to her father's side without paying the slightest attention to his visitor.

"Thinks I'm just one of the old man's riders," Burney decided. "Wonder if the king will introduce me. By James, she's as beautiful as an army with banners!"

The king did. "This young man, Muriel," he announced, "is Kenneth Burney, son of an old cattleman friend of mine in California. Mr. Burney, this is my daughter, Muriel. Mr. Burney is dining with us to-night, Muriel."

Miss Muriel favored the young man with a bright smile and a reserved nod. "I see you're riding through, Mr. Burney."

"Oh, no," he corrected her. "To-morrow I'm going to work for your father as a top cow-hand."

"Maybe," the king corrected him enigmatically. "Mr. Burney," he explained to the girl, "is a drug-store cowboy and before he goes to work for me he has to pass an entrance examination. He'll ride Geronimo to-morrow bulldog a big, peevish steer and rope a couple of calves to prove his social standing."

The butler came in to announce dinner and, to the amazement of the king, Mr. Burney gallantly offered his arm to Miss Muriel, who seemed undecided whether to accept it or not. In all her life none of her father's cow-hands had ever been so bold.

"Oh, take it, take it," the king ordered. "He's used to high society. It comes natural to him, the impertinent pup."

"He's not an impertinent pup," Muriel defended, and accepted the proffered arm.

Arrived in the dining-room the strange guest tucked Muriel and her chair in under the table, waited respectfully for the king to settle his huge bulk into his chair and then sat down himself. Muriel seized the opportunity, while Burney's gaze was fixed upon her father, to steal a swift glance of curiosity at their guest.

She saw a man under thirty years of age, about six feet tall, straight from shoulder to hip, slim, small-boned, wiry, weighing perhaps a hundred and sixty pounds. His head was nobly formed and covered with an extraordinary thick thatch of jet-black, wavy hair; his eyes were very dark blue with heavy long lashes that caused one to think, at first sight, that the young man had accumulated some soot in them. A slightly beaked Castilian nose arose out of a patrician countenance, his teeth were even, white and well cared for. He was, decidedly, an outdoor type of man, tanned to a bricky brown. Also, he was thirty days overdue on a haircut.

Muriel noticed that he disposed of his soup without gustatory riot. When the salad, which in the West is usually served after the soup, came on, she noticed that Mr. Burney chose, with unerring precision, the salad fork; hence she made up her mind that the king had not erred socially by inviting this wandering cowboy to dinner at his castle.

"What a vast difference between grub and food," Mr. Burney sighed presently. "It is a hard two days' ride between your domain and Martin Bruce's ranch, sir, and there are no inns enroute. Having left Mr. Bruce's employ very suddenly and in bad odor, I did not carry any sustenance with me, so naturally my appetite is keener than usual."

"Get fired?" His Majesty queried.

"No, sir. Just quit."

"At the start of the calf 'round-up? Must have had a fight with somebody."

"I did, sir."

"Who won?"

"I did, sir."

"Then," said the king, "you must have had a run-in with Martin Bruce or his riding boss and quit to avoid being fired."

"You are very astute, Your Royal Highness."

"I told you not to call me such names," the king warned.

"You told me not to allude to you as Your Majesty or king. I respect your wishes. But you are a prince to invite me to dinner and give me a civilized room and bath for the night; hence, I now addressed you according to your real rank."

"I love that," Muriel cried. "The newspapers always refer to Dad as The Cattle King."

"I don't like it," His Majesty growled.

"You'll have to stand for it, darling," his daughter assured him. "Go right ahead, Mr. Burney. I like it."

"Thank you, Princess."

"Will you try some of these brandied peaches, Sir Knight?"

"Rubbish," growled the king. "Now, then, what did you and that coyote, Martin Bruce, quarrel about, young man?"

"I wouldn't sell him my horse—and he offered a whopping price for him, too. A thousand dollars."

"I'll give you two thousand dollars for him."

"Sorry, sir. He's not for sale."

"Two thousand dollars is a lot of money for a cowboy, and I'll bet a dollar cigar you haven't two dollars to your name."

"I'll collect that cigar after dinner, Your Highness. I have three dollars."

"Well, at least you and I will not quarrel about the horse," the king retorted smilingly, "although I did think I'd like to trade you out of him—for my daughter. I want a horse I can trust for her."

"With your permission, sir, I shall be happy to present him to the lady after the rodeo to-morrow, provided you will pay the expressage on a duplicate of him, now on pasture at the Santa Inez Rancho in California."

His Majesty laid down his knife and fork and stared at Ken Burney. "You reckless improvident Hidalgo," he cried. "Your friends will have to pass the hat if you're ever given a decent funeral."

"Oh, say not so, Your Highness. Most gifts have a string to them and there's one attached to this one. In return for my horse I charge you, sir, with the responsibility of seeing to it that I am decently interred; and I warn you that my funeral will be expensive, because you'll have to ship me back to Tres Pinos, California, to lie with my ancestors, and, as you probably know, the railroad charges one full fare for a corpse and somebody has to accompany the body. Still, I'll not stick you too deeply. You may omit flowers."

A Thought

THE SECRETS OF MEN

A wonderful fact to reflect upon is, that every human creature is constituted to be that profound secret and mystery to every other. A solemn consideration, when I enter a great city by night, that every beating heart in the hundreds of thousands of breasts there is, in some of its imaginings, a secret to the heart nearest it. In any of the burial-places in this city through which I pass, is there a sleeper more inscrutable than its busy inhabitants are, in their innermost personality, to me, or than I to them?

LORD WILLINGDON INSPECTS CAMP

Petawawa and Pembroke Honored By Day and Half Visit.

OFFICERS GIVE DINNER.

PEMBROKE, Ont., June 30 (C.P.)—Petawawa military camp and Pembroke were honored by the presence of Lord Willingdon, Governor-General of Canada, this week-end. Accompanied by Captain Streatfield, A.D.C., he returned to Quebec Sunday afternoon. Lord Willingdon made virtually a private inspection, spending his day and a half wholly with the army men in camp.

Saturday morning he observed competitive practice on the ranges, and after lunch, which was held in the R.C.H.A. officers' mess, the brigade shoot of the Prince Edward Island and Toronto batteries. The motor-drawn guns, which are being used at Petawawa this season, instead of horses, were viewed by His Excellency. Before making his inspection tour of the camp he watched the tank shoot from Signal Hill.

Afternoon Tea.

The R.C.H.A. military band provided music at afternoon tea at the R.C.H.A. officers' mess and at the mess dinner. Among the officers who attended this dinner were General A. G. L. McNaughton of Ottawa, Colonel George Drew of Toronto and Colonel [illegible]on of Hamilton. Sunday morning camp church parade was held, which was attended by the Governor-General, and was followed by a band concert by the R.C.H.A. band of Kingston. Lord Willingdon's train left Petawawa siding at 12 o'clock, and upon its arrival in Pembroke, he inspected the P.L.D.G. of Lanark and Renfrew and the members of the Canadian Legion. The station platform was decorated with flags. After the Governor-General's departure decoration services were held at the cemeteries, at which members of the clergy spoke.

IMPERIAL MEET WORRIES AFRICA

Fear They May Be Pledge to Course Unacceptable to Majority of People.

APPEAL TO HERTZOG.

CAPETOWN, South Africa, June 0.—(C. P. Cable, Via Reuters)—The danger that South Africa may become embroiled in a controversy or become pledged to a course of action unacceptable to the majority of its people through the Imperial Conference to be held in London in the autumn is plainly becoming a matter of concern in government circles.

The economic situation in Britain and also the conditions throughout the Empire are largely responsible for this. Members of the Government Party have appealed to General Hertzog the Prime Minister, to make a declaration of his economic pomlicy before sailing. The Dutch organ "Dieburger", says it is becoming clearer every day that the Imperial Conference will actually be an Economic Conference. The paper points out that in 1926 Premier Hertzog took the public into his confidence before his departure for London and the conference of that year. "Dieburger" urges the Prime Minister to do the same now.

Speech of 37 Hours Strengthens Stalin

MOSCOW, Russia, June 30.—(C P) — Joseph Stalin's record-breaking seven-hour speech before the Communist Party Congress, occupying thirty-seven solid columns of newspaper print yesterday, has made him more than ever the strongest political figure in Soviet Russia.

The speech, as printed, touched upon three questions of vital international interest and importance which previous summaries had failed to reveal. These are Czarist debts, Bolshevist propaganda abroad and the Soviet policy respecting minority races within the union.

STABILITY

EXCEEDING

ALL OTHERS

HYDRO-ELECTRIC Power is an ever-increasing public necessity. Even in periods of depression, demand has been greater than supply.

Because of its essential nature, the power industry in Canada has had phenomenal growth since the war. Development has more than doubled; consumption has tripled and total capital investment has increased to over one billion dollars.

The great investment strength of the industry is well described in a report issued by the Dominion Government, which states: "The record of stability of Canadian water-power investment far exceeds even that for banks, railways and municipalities."

MINING MARKET IN SLOW MOTION

Prices Are Firm But Very Little Activity Is Shown.

BUNKER HILL EXTENSION.

TORONTO, June 30. (Special to Examiner.)—The forenoon on the Mining Market to-day was another repitition of Saturday's slow motion session. Prices were firm enough, but the activity was not sufficient to keep the ticker turning over without many pauses and floormen had many idle moments on their hands.

Oriole carried its week end advance further and it looks as if the pool has a full head of steam on. At least talk on the street speaks of a powerful pool at work that has tied up the floating supply of Oriole. One or two brokers report it next to impossible to borrow stock for selling short. Interests representing the new crowd in Tough Oakes are at the property to-day and intend to get down to work immediately. According to an official it is hoped to have everything ready to resume operations at the end of this week.

It would appear somebody is buying a pig in the poke when they pay for Tough Oakes stock. K. A. MacPhayden, who recently optioned the property maintains that no equity can reasonably be applied to the company's shares because of the bond issue outstanding and the fact that the bondholders have foreclosed on the properties of the company. Mr. MacPhayden's option is for an amount considerably less than the amount of the bonds outstanding, so there seems little chance that shareholders will derive any benefit.

The second payment on the Sherritt-Gordon shares offered by rights to stockholders fall due to-morrow. This is the second of 50 cents, the first was due May 1, the second July 1, the third September 1 and the final November 1. As the stock dropped below the issuing price of $2 immediately after the announcement of rights, the shareholders' response is thought to have been light. Sherritt-Gordon is protected, however, as the issue has been underwritten.

It now turns out that it is a copper-nickel property in the Sudbury area and not a gold property that Bunker Hill extension is interested in. The company has for some time past been investigating the area with a view to acquiring a new property and have discovered what they are looking for. Bunker Hill has considerable cash in the treasury with which to carry out a diamond-drilling program.

Mining companies are again well represented in the month's list of Canadian dividend payments. Six of the Dominion's producers will make distribution of over $5,000,000 to shareholders in the current month. Smelters, Dome, Hollinger, Nipissing, Noranda and Premier are paying dividends at this time.

NICKEL IS FIRM ON SLOW MARKET

Hudson Bay Is Up Ten and Noranda Twenty-five.

GOLDS ARE MIXED.

TORONTO, June 30 (CP).—The market moved idly back and forth in a very dull session on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange, during the early session to-day. Volume was very small, the total for the forenoon session falling below that of Saturday.

International Nickel was firm throughout. The stock was up a point at $24½ at mid-day, while Hudson Bay was up 10, and Noranda 25.

Golds were mixed; Howey was up ½; Kirkland Lake, 6, and Wright Hargreaves 1, while Dome lost 20, and Teck Hughes 5. Lake Shore and Premier were unchanged.

Falconbridge was the feature of the Lindsley's after opening at $2.75 for a 14-point gain; the stock receded to $2.50, where it showed a loss of 11 points. Sherritt-Gordon was up 10, and the rest were unchanged. Pacific Coast stocks did little. Abana, in the miscellaneous group, was 3 higher.

LIBERALS HOLD

Hon. Mr. Bennett are not tending to promote a spirt of confidence which would seem to warrant the people's choice of placing him as first citizen of Canada."

The candidate, who was supported on the platform by Dr. J. J. Craig, president of the Peterborough Liberal Association, and other speakers, severely criticized the lack of unity as displayed in the ranks of their opponents, declaring that there seems to be no set policy.

Many of the Conservative candidates, he thought, had various views as to the issue of the election. One of them will say that King is the issue ,another will declare that the tariff is the issue. He cited an instance of a Conservative speaker who at Oshawa accused the Liberals of giving the steel industry protection to the injury of that industry, but said Mr. Duffus, he lost sight of the fact that this was a measure which has been advocated by Con-Conservatives for years. In another breath they will deprecate the idea of doing business with the United States and at the same time declaring that a dollar spent in the West Indies might just as well be spent in the Republic. "If they are discouraging trade with the various countries of the world, with whom are they going to trade?" queried the candidate, who concluded that the fabric of economic conditions throughout the universe is based on trade agreements.

QUIET REIGNS ON STOCK MART

Dominion Day Coming on Tuesday Results in Long Holiday Over Week-end.

BOND MARKET STRONG.

TORONTO, June 30, (Special to Examiner.)—Quiet reigned in the financial district to-day. Dominion Day coming on Tuesday resulted in many brokers and the great majority of the ticker adherents taking a long weekend as to-day was not expected to bring forth much action, and in that they were not amiss. While bond houses were not officially closed, only a small staff was on duty to-day to handle business from outside centres or the occasional client who might desire information. Board rooms are deserted, a great stillness broods over the stock exchanges, clerks who are on duty in the offices gaze wistfully out of the windows day dreaming.

Unusual strength has been apparent in the bond market this year. Municipalities have been floating previously delayed long term notes. Corporations have been raising new funds through the issue of senior securities rather than by rights to purchase additional common stock, these and other factors have lead to a greatly increased volume of bond financial for the first half of the year. While the totals for June are not yet complete, the aggregate for the month will probably be between $70,000,000 and $75,000,000, raising the amount for the first six months to approximately $370,000,000. This figure compares with $344 154,229 for the first six months of 1929 and $285,054,421 for the first six months of 1928. Each of the first five months registered an increase over the corresponding month of the previous year the total for June however, will be well below that of June 1929 when $115,-388,617 in bond securities were brought out, comparing with the preciously mentioned $70,000,000 to $75,000,000 for this month. May bond flotations are the record for 1930.

are the record for 1930, amounting to $103 554,045. May was also the heaviest of the first half year in 1928 and while showing a good total in 1929 was exceeded by June.

There was scarcely any action on the Toronto Stock Exchange market this morning. Any price changes passed without notice. Volume the first two hours dwindled under that of Saturday which was the slowest for any day yet this year. Attorneys were standing idely in groups, discussing their golf eccentricities or else trying to evolve a new cross-word puzzle from the stock listed on the board. Seldom was a voice raised for a stock, offers to buy or sell being made in the usual conversational tone a most unusual occurrence on a stock exchange.

"We still feel inclined to hold opinion on the immediate course of the market in abeyance until some more definite indication is given by the action of the market itself," states one market letter this morning. This advice is merely a different wording to the same statement of the past several days. The tone of most brokerage letters is non-commital. "A cautious trading policy apparently remains the safest course to pursue."

"We continue to advise a trading attitude and that profits be accepted or holdings lightened on such further recoveries as occur." These are typical, The Wall Street Mirror says "outside influences will continue to play an important part in stock market operations from this time on. The advance witnessed in the spring was built on hopes of a turn in the business situation once this theory of immediate business improvement proved to be false the market promptly collapsed. Earnings statements will now be closely scanned for some clue to the future. The feeling in some quarters that the second three months results may prove to be the absolute bottom for 1930 earnings. Of course there is nothing in sight now to show that this will be the case."

ARTICLE LVIII

Q.—What are the chief advantages, of gas, electric, water and hydro-electric companies

A.—There are several points which may be advantages or disadvantages to all four companies—gas, electric lighting, water and hydro-electric companies. These may relate to capitalization, operating radio and a comparison of gross earnings to bonded debt. The personal element in all four companies is relatively unimportant when compared to industrials. The labor factor is relatively unimportant also. They all carry on a cash business. Their bond issues are usually secured by direct mortgages on tangible property which is easy to valuate. Their maintenance and depreciation charges may or may not be adequate.

Besides these general considerations, the companies have advantages and disadvantages peculiar to their own classification and it is with these that we are now chiefly concerned.

ELECTRIC COMPANY

Advantages—

1. Good opportunity for expansion in the industry.
2. New uses being introduced for electricity.
3. Greater efficiency in lighting and heating is developing.
4. Earnings fairly steady and unaffected by business depressions.
5. Electric companies furnish necessities of life, e.g., light and heat
6. Competition from gas companies negligible except where natural gas is found.
7. The labor factor is unimportant.
8. Less expensive to expand than for gas companies with their underground work.
9. If company resorts to under ground lines (which are preferable) the depreciation is small and easily calculated.

Disadvantages—

1. Danger of municipal competition and competition with hydro-electric plants.
2. Franchise may expire.
4. Rates charged may be too high and may be caused by mismanagement. This may also show false earnings.
4. Underground electric lines (which are preferable) make expansion expensive.
5. Element of uncertainty due to damage caused by storms, etc.
6. Danger of natural gas competition where natural gas is found.
7. Lower interest return than on industrials.
8. There is a possibility that the company is operating in a small town that is not growing.

GAS COMPANY

Advantages—

1. Industrial uses of gas are increasing rapidly.
2. No competition from other gas companies due to expense of laying pipes.
3. Gas is more efficient for cooking and heating than electricity.
4. In deriving heat from coal it is about six times as efficient.
5. Maintenance is low due to small depreciation on underground pipes.
6. Periods of depression have slight effect upon consumption.
7. Labor factor unimportant.
8. Consolidation just beginning.

Disadvantages—

1. Gas companies are subject to keen competition from electric lighting companies.
2. If adjacent to water power. electric companies can operate more cheaply.
3. New inventions are apt to make electricity cheaper for cooking and heating.
4. Cannot be distributed to far off points due to great expense of pipe lines.
5. Earnings not steady throughout the year.
6. Gas companies feel business depressions more than the average public utility.
7. Costs of expansion are great.
8. Rates too high in many cities.

WATER COMPANY

Advantages—

1. Furnishes an absolute necessity.
2. No substitute for water.
3. Immune from competition if rates at all reasonable.
4. Operating expenses low and operating ratio favorable.
5. Earnings do not fluctuate with seasons.
6. Cash business and therefore no expense or trouble in making collections.
7. Labor element negligible.
8. Immune from fire.
9. Business depressions do not effect earnings.
10. Depreciation on pipes comparatively small.
11. In case of foreclosure, the company can be satisfactorily operated by the bondholders.

Disadvantages—

1. Capitalization may be excessive.
2. If privately controlled it is subject to competition from the municipality itself.
3. Water supply may not be the best obtainable and the municipality may install a new plant and refuse to buy original plant. Excessive capitalization may have the same danger.
4. The yield from water securities is low.
5. The franchise may expire before the bonds mature.
6. Poor pipe lines may be in use and too little set aside for maintenance charges.

HYDRO ELECTRIC COMPANY

Advantages—

1. Power an absolute necessity.
2. Expansion has been rapid.
3. Water generated electricity is cheaper than that derived from coal.
4. Small depreciation on plant and equipment when favorably located with unfailing water supply.
5. Franchises usually of long term duration.
6. Companies free from political influences.
7. Labor element small.
8. Depreciation is easily calculated.
9. Competition on part of municipality small, so long as rates charged are not excessive.

Disadvantages—

1. Construction of dam may be faulty.
2. Unknown elements such as floods, draughts, etc., are apt to have disastrous effects. The record of the stream may be a poor one.
3. Water rights may not be secure. Other competitive companies may be able to divert part of the company's water with drastic effects.
4. Market for electricity may be distant.

As a class these four classes of utility securities offer about as safe an investment as can be had. The earning are quite steady. They are all cash businesses. When compared with corporation issues their yields are lower and their chances of appreciation less. However, due to their security they are quite attractive, especially for the investor who is a near-by resident and can keep in touch with local or municipal affairs.

IN PETERBOROUGH CHURCHES

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

The dual celebration yesterday of the combined feasts of St. Peter and St. Paul, and also of the Canonization ceremonies in Rome of the Canadian Jesuit Martyre, was marked at St. Peter's Cathedral by celebration of Solemn Pontifical High Mass by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, who spoke to the congregation briefly, commenting on the several significances of the day.

Although the patron saint of the Cathedral is St. Peter-in-Chains, whose titular feast day comes at a different date, the First Apostle is still always the special patron of the parish and of the diocese.

"St. Peter," said His Lordship, "was chief of the Apostles by Divine election, and he was commissioned by Christ to feed His lambs and His sheep. St. Peter, the fisherman, was to be the fisher of men, and so Peter, whose feet had stood on shifting sands, become, on the day of Pentecost, the immutable rock upon which Christ decreed to build His church.

"St. Peter was the Bishop of Antioch, where Christians first received their name. From there, he went to Rome and became the Bishop of Bishops of the early church, remaining there until he gave up his life for the faith.

"On this day associated with St. Peter is St. Paul, the Apostle to the Gentiles. St. Paul persecuted the church of God, but on the road to Damascus he saw the light and was converted by special grace of the Redeemer to become one of the most active of the Apostles.

"The second celebration to-day is that of the canonization of the Blessed Canadian Martyrs. In Rome, the successor of St. Peter, Pope Pius Eleventh, has raised to the altars of the church these heroes of the faith, these champions of God who brought to the savages of the wilderness, not only the gift of faith, but also the gift of civilization.

"They knew well how to live for Christ and they knew well how to die for Him. In raising them to a place among the saints of God, the Pope honors not only them but also the entire country of Canada, as well.

"And we must remember that it was France that gave us these heroes who labored and preached, who suffered and died for the faith, in this Dominion.

"With their example before us, we should resolve to be strong in the faith; to let it dictate and enter into our daily lives, at home, at our work, and in our daily contacts on the street.

"The days of martyrdom in this land have passed, fortunately or unfortunately, according to your point of view. But in these days, men are not expected to die for the faith. They are expected to live for it. And days like this will always be with us.

"Be strong in the profession and the practice of your faith. By an act of the will and of the intellect, we have accepted the will of God and His unseen truths. In another and better life, we will accept these things as seen, not as now, through a glass darkly, but then, face to face. Faith is the portal to heaven and the preview of the beatific Vision."

Prior to the Bishop's sermon, the rector of the Cathedral, the Rev. P. Costello, informed the people of the civic reception which will be held for Bishop O'Connor on the grounds of St. Mary's Convent on Friday evening of this week, at eight o'clock, when an address to His Lordship will be read by Mayor Denne.

Father Costelo also announced the inauguration of the rosary and night prayers at the Cathedral. These will be said every evening at half-past seven o'clock and the parishioners are invited to attend.

Announcement was also made of the annual social of Downeyville Parish on Thursday evening.

THEATRE NEWS

SAYS CANADA'S CENSOR "DUMB"

New York Opinion of Censor Boards North of Border.

FAIL TO AGREE.

NEW YORK, June 28.—Canada's censors are dumber than our own. They are light on sexy angles, hard on underworld subjects, and toughest on pictures that are imbued with the Yankee flag waving spirit.

To prove this the Hays organization shows that although Canada rejected 106 U.S. features in 1929, not one rejection was unanimous. Some other part of the Dominion saw each picture just as it was before any of the eight censor boards had a chance to place the onus or sharpen the shears.

These censor boards across the line are as different as day is from night. To substantiate this the Hays body shows that the variety of opinions, reasons, etc., are best reflected in a list of the rejections. Where one board rejected 59 American features the one next to it took exception to 17, and the remaining boards saw fit to find fault with 15, 3, 8, 4, 2, 0, respectively.

Bedroom scenes that would be ripped by many of the boards in the States are never given a tumble. Across the line sex is sex, the same as drinking is in the States.

But Canadian censors have the oddest complexes of any censors in the world, according to students of the situation here.

"Evangeline" is cited. One of the mildest and most puritanical poems and pictures ever written and adapted.

Up there several of the censor groups let down the bars simply because of this artificial recording:

"Evangeline" doesn't show enough British groups."

PICKFORD FILM HALTED.

Entire Company Dismissed—$200,000 Spent.

HOLLYWOOD, June 28—A dramatic event of the week was Mary Pickford's sudden decision to call a halt on the production of "Forever Yours", the talking version of "Secrets", which Norma Talmadge made some years back. After completing more than three-quarters of the film, with an outlay of some $200,000, Miss Pickford walks on the set on a Saturday morning and dismisses the entire company and staff, to the swift amazement of all concerned. The event created a considerable buzz in the screen colony, particularly since Miss Pickford had been making the picture with Douglas Fairbanks, her husband and adviser, away golfing over the English links. Later reports from United Artists indicate that after a generous revision of the script the film will be done again with a new cast and director. In the meantime, the various members of the company have been drafted for other pictures, and Marshall Neilan, in charge of "Forever Yours", has started work on a new screen venture of Howard Hughes's.

POWELL'S NEW FILM

NEW YORK, June 28.—William Powell's latest film, showing here, is "Shadow of the Law." It is for the most part a well-acted and entertaining piece of work but with a frightfully exaggerated finish. The director forces matters and sometimes in his zeal for the melodramatic he fails to give enough detail in developing his ideas.

Co-operation Invades B. C. Fishing

Since the days of the Indian, salmon-trolling has been pretty much of a one-man, one-boat job. "The Lady of Scandal", the screen version of Frederick Lonsdale's play, "The High Road," is at the New York Capitol, with Ruth Chatterton playing the role of a music hall actress who becomes engaged to the son of a British peer. Parental opposition reverts to strategy in an attempt to show the "impossibility" of such a match. In the supporting cast are Basil Rathbone, Ralph Forbes, Nance O'Neill, Frederick Kerr, Cyril Chadwick and Effie Ellsler.

Warner Brothers reports that seven pictures are now in production at its studios. They are: "Old English," with George Arliss; "Life of the Party", with Winnie Lightner and Irene Delroy; "The Office Wife" with Dorothy Mackail and Lewis Stone; "Captain Applejack," with Kay Strozzi and John Halliday; "Handful of Clouds," with Lew Ayres and Dorothy Matthews; "Penny Arcade," with Grant Withers and Evelyn Knapp, and "Maybe It's Love," with James Hall, Joe E. Indicating the trend of the times in women's colleges, Chic Sale's "Specialist" was voted the favorite book of the year by the graduating class of the Skidmore School for Art at Saratoga Springs, N.Y.

RUTH CHATTERTON'S COME-BACK

Ruth Chatterton is now an outstanding start of the talkers. Only a few seasons ago, during her last seasons on the stage, her career seemed ended, for she was no riot in "La Tendresse", "The Changelings" or "The Magnolia Lady." Born in New York, and educated in Pelham Manor, N.Y., she first acted at the Columbia theatre, Washington, in "Merely Mary Ann," in 1909, following with stock seasons in Milwaukee and Worcester. Reaching Broadway in "The Great Name," 1911, she made a hit in "Daddy Long-Legs", 1914.

For several years leading lady with Henry Miller, she then married Ralph Forbes. Forbes preceded her in the talkers, but she has far outdistanced him.

Failed At 18 Jobs Before He Wrote "Tarzan"

Edgar Rice Burroughs Was Down to Half-Soling His Own Shoes and Lunching on Three Cents' Worth of Ginger Snaps a Day.

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

EDITOR'S NOTE: Readers of this newspaper who have been following the "Tarzan" stories in daily picture strips will be especially interested in this autobiography of the author. Here for the first time Edgar Rice Burroughs tells the story of his life in some detail. It is a very human tale of a man who seemed doomed to failure and who created a way out for himself that resulted in one of the most dazzling successes in writing history. With the publication of his latest book, "Tarzan and the Lost Empire," his sales are entering into their eighth million in the American and British editions alone.

I have often been asked how I came to write. The best answer is that I needed the money.

I had worked steadily for six years without a vacation and for fully half of my working hours at that time I had suffered tortures from headaches. Economize as we would, the expenses of our little family were far beyond my income. Three cents' worth of ginger snaps constituted my daily lunches for months.

I was thirty-five and I had failed in every enterprise I had ever attempted.

I was born in Chicago and attended the old Brown School on the the West Side, partially through the sixth grade, at which time there was a diphtheria epidemic in the city and much to my horror my parents took me out of public school and put me in a girls' school, which happened to be the only private school available on the West Side.

I next went to the old Harvard School, Chicago, but there was an epidemic of what was then known as La Grippe and my parents shipped me to a cattle ranch in Idaho. Unquestionably my destiny is closely woven with pestilences, which may or may not account for my having become a writer.

The author of the "Tarzan" picture stories as a member of the 7th U. S. Cavalry at Fort Grant, Arizona. Soldiering was just one of the eighteen jobs he attempted before he became a writer. His trade record follows: (1) Cowboy (2) bill collector (3) school instructor (4) soldier (5) storekeeper (6) storage battery workman (7) gold dredger (8) railroad policeman (9) construction timekeeper (10) electric bulb salesman (11) candy salesman (12) book salesman (13) expert accountant (14) mail order department manager (15) salesmanship "expert" (16) pencil sharpener agent (17) scratch pad business (18) magazine department manager.

In Idaho, I rode for my brothers, who were only recently out of college and had entered the cattle business as the best way of utilizing their Yale degrees. I did chores, grubbed sage brush and drove a team of broncbos to a sulky plough. As I proved no good as a chore boy they appointed me mail carrier. I carried the mail to the railroad at American Falls, sometimes on horseback, or if there was freight to bring back, I took a team and wagon. When I went on horseback, I made the round trip of sixty miles in one day. The West was still a little bit wild and I met murderers, thieves and bad men. I suppose they must have constituted another epidemic, because I was transported away from them to Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. I was elected president of my class, but I guess I did not make much of a hit with "Banty" who was then running Andover. He removed me at the beginning of the second semester.

When I got home, my father, Major George Tyler Burroughs, who had served in the Civil War, took me to Orchard Lake, where the old Michigan Military Academy was located, and there I spent the next five years. The commandant was Captain Charles King, author of the best army stories that ever were written; a man who has been an inspiration to me, all my life because of his outstanding qualities as a soldier, a cavalry man and a friend. But the inspiration he gave me had nothing to do with writing. He made me want to be a good soldier.

I was a member of the cavalry troop all the time I was there and received instruction from a number of army officers that proved extremely helpful to me, especially after I had enlisted in the regular army. We did a great deal of trick riding in those days: bareback, Cossack, Graeco-Roman and all the rest of it. It was known as "monkey drill."

During the senior years I received an appointment to West Point, where I went for examination with a hundred and eighteen other candidates. Only fourteen of them passed, I being among the one hundred and four.

Upon my inglorious return, I got a summer job as a collector for an ice company, but in the fall I returned to Orchard Lake, having been appointed assistant commandant, cavalry and gatling gun instructor, tactical officer and professor of geology. The fact that I had never studied geology seemed to make no difference. They needed a professor and I was it.

After having had the pick of the whole corps of cadets as my companions for four years, being an assistant commandant was a lonesome job. I have always been impatient of restrictions and now I had less freedom than I had as a cadet. I still yearned for the regular army and I determined to enlist and try for a commission from the ranks. I landed in the Seventh Cavalry at Fort Grant, Arizona.

There was always a lot of excitement at Fort Grant. The Apaches were corralled at a post not far distant and there were constant rumors of an uprising similar to those led by old Geronimo. The Apache Kid and his band of renegades were giving trouble in the south and Black Jack, the famous bandit, was raiding towns in our vicinity.

A weak heart developed and I was twice recommended for discharge. As it seemed wholly unlikely that I should pass a physical examination for a commission, my father obtained my discharge from the army through Secretary of War Alger.

My brother Harry backed me in setting up a store at Pocatello, Idaho. It was a stationery store with a large news stand and a cigar counter. I also had a newspaper route and I delivered the papers myself on horseback. My store was not a howling financial success and I certainly was glad when the man from whom I had purchased it returned to Pocatello and wanted it back. Providence never intended me for a retail merchant.

Shortly after this I returned to Chicago and went to work for my father, who was manufacturing storage batteries that were used principally for train lighting and signaling. I started at the bench to learn the business from the ground up.

In January, 1900, I married Emma Centennia Hulbert, the daughter of Colonel Alvin Hulbert, a well known hotel man of that time. He had been the proprietor of the old Tremont House in Chicago and was then proprietor of the Sherman and the Great Northern in Chicago and the Lindley Hotel in Saint Louis.

When I was married I was getting fifteen dollars a week and immediately thereafter I received a raise to twenty. Owing to the fact that we could eat as often as we pleased at my wife's mother's home or at my mother's, we got along very nicely.

In 1903, my oldest brother George gave me a position on a gold dredge he was operating in the Stanley Basin county in Idaho and Mrs. Burroughs and I went West. We pitched a tent on the hill while we were building our house, the construction of which was original and not too successful. Timber was plentiful and I felled what I needed at no great distance from our cabin site.

Our next stop was in Oregon, where my brother Harry was managing a gold dredge on the Snake River. We arrived on a freight wagon, with a collie dog and forty dollars. Forty dollars did not seem much to get anywhere with, so I decided to enter a stud game at a local saloon and run my capital up to several hundred dollars during the night. When I returned at midnight to the room we had rented, we still had the collie dog; otherwise we were flat broke.

I worked in Oregon until the company failed and then my brother got me a job as a railroad policeman in Salt Lake City. For the next several months, I was kept busy rushing bums out of the railroad yards and off passenger trains.

We were certainly poverty stricken there at Salt Lake, but pride kept us from asking for help. Neither of us knew much about anything that was practical, but we had to do everything ourselves, including the family wash. Not wishing to see Mrs. Burroughs do work of this sort I volunteered to do it myself. During those months, I half-soled my own shoes and did numerous other things that school had not prepared me for.

Then a brilliant idea overtook us. We had our household furniture with us and we held an auction which was a howling success. People paid real money for the junk and we went back to Chicago first class.

The next few months encompassed a series of horrible jobs. I sold electric light bulbs to janitors, candy to drug stores and Stoddard's Lectures from door to door. I had decided I was a total failure when I saw an advertisement which indicated that somebody wanted an expert accountant. Not knowing anything about it, I applied for the job and got it.

I am convinced that what are commonly known as the breaks, good or bad, have fully as much to do with one's success or failure as ability. The break I got in this instance lay in the fact that my employer knew even less about the duties of an expert accountant than I did. I was with him a couple of years and when I left it was of my own accord.

I had determined there was a great future in the mail order business and I landed a job that brought me to the head of a large department. About this time our daughter Joan was born.

Having a good job and every prospect for advancement, I decided to go into business for myself, with harrowing results. I had no capital when I started and less when I got through. At this time the mail order company offered me an excellent position if I wanted to come back. If I had accepted it I would probably have been fixed for life with a good living salary, yet the chances are that I would never have written a story, which proves that occasionally it is better to do the wrong thing than the right.

When my independent business sank without trace, I approached as near financial nadir as one may reach. My son, Hulbert, had just been born. I had no job and no money. I had to pawn Mrs. Burroughs's jewelry and my watch in order to buy food. I loathed poverty and I would have liked to put my hands on the party who said that poverty is an honorable estate. It is an indication of inefficiency and nothing more. There is nothing honorable or fine about it.

To be poor is quite bad enough. But to be poor and without hope—well, the only way to understand it is to be it.

I got writer's cramp answering blind ads and wore out my shoes chasing after others. At last I got placed as an agent for a lead pencil sharpener. I borrowed office space, and, while sub-agents were out, trying unsuccessfully to sell the sharpener, I started to write my first story.

I knew nothing about the technique of story writing and now after eighteen years of writing I still know nothing about the technique of story writing, although, with the publication of my new novel, "Tarzan and the Lost Empire," there are thirty-one books on my list. I had never met an editor or an author, outside of Captain King, or a publisher. I had no idea of how to submit a story or what I could expect in payment. Had I known anything about it at all I would never have thought of submitting half a novel.

Thomas Newell Metcalf, who was then editor of the All-Story Magazine, published by Munsey, wrote me that he liked the first half of the story and if the second was as good he thought he might use it. Had he not given me this encouragement, I would never have finished the story and my writing career would have been at an end, since I was not writing because of any urge to write nor for any particular love of writing. I was writing because I had a wife and two babies, a combination which does not work well without money.

I finished the second half of the story and got four hundred dollars for the manuscript, which at that time included all serial rights. The check was the first big event in my life. No amount of money today could possibly give me the thrill that that first four-hundred-dollar check gave me.

My first story was entitled "Dejah Thoris, Princess of Mars." Metcalf changed it to "Under the Moon of Mars." It was later published in book form as "The Princess of Mars."

With the success of my first story, I decided to make writing a career, but I was canny enough not to give up my job. But the job did not pay expenses and we had a recurrence of great poverty, sustained only by the thread of hope that I might make a living writing fiction. I cast about for a better job and landed as a department manager for a business magazine. While I was working there, I wrote "Tarzan of the Apes" evenings and holidays. I wrote it in longhand on the backs of old letterheads and odd pieces of paper. I did not think it was a very good story and I doubted if it would sell. But Bob Davis saw its possibilities for magazine publication and I got a check; this time, I think, for seven hundred dollars.

I then wrote "The God of Mars," which I sold immediately to the Munsey Company for All-Story. "The Return of Tarzan," which I wrote in December, 1913, and January, 1913, was rejected by Metcalf and purchased by Street and Smith for one thousand dollars, in February, 1913.

That same month, John Coleman, our third child, was born, and I now decided to give up my job and to devote myself to writing.

Everyone, including myself, thought I was an idiot. But my stories were now selling as fast as I could write them and I could write pretty rapidly, so I bought a second-hand automobile and became a plutocrat. The Chicago winters were too cold. We went to California and wintered in Coronado and San Diego.

We were a long way from home. My income depended solely upon the sale of magazine rights. I had not had a book published at that time and therefore no book royalties were coming in. Had I failed to sell a single story during those months, we would have been broke again, but I sold them all.

I had been trying to find a publisher who would put some of my stuff into book form, but I met with no encouragement. Every well known publisher in the United States turned down "Tarzan of the Apes," including A. C. McClurg and Company, who finally issued it, my first story in book form.

Its popularity and its final appearance as a book were due to the vision of J. H. Tennant, managing editor of the New York Evening World. He saw its possibilities as a newspaper serial and ran it in the Evening World, with the result that other papers followed suit. This made the story widely known and resulted in a demand from readers for the story in book form, which was so insistent that A. C. McClurg and Company finally came to me after they rejected it and asked to be allowed to publish it.

FAREWELL GIFT MRS. HERRINGTON

Presentation Made by Members of Lakefield United Church Women's Association.

REPORTS READ

WARSAW, June 30 (Examiner Correspondence). — Mrs. H. B. Herrington was presented with a silver tea service by the members of the United Church Women's Association at a meeting held in the basement on Thursday afternoon, before her departure from the community.

Mrs. Herrington, as president, occupied the chair for the last time and following the usual opening exercises, the treasurer reported that the sum of $103.42 was in the bank, with about $21.00 yet to be paid out. The penny contest amounted to $5.00 and the flower fund amounts to $16.00. It was voted to give the W.M.S. the amount that would have been paid for flowers as Mrs. Somers wished.

The Sunday School gave $10.00 to the W.M.S. in honor of Mrs. Somers. "She being dead, yet liveth."

The lighting of the church is rearranged and is now much better. It was decided to leave the office of president vacant until Mrs. Wilkinson comes, when it will be offered to her. Mrs. Arthur Edwards will be in charge of the next meeting and Mrs. Allan Payne and Mrs. Roland McCauley are the flower committee for July.

The program for this meeting was provided by the losers in the penny contest, and was as follows: Hymn, "Child of a King"; Scriptural lesson, Mrs. Charlotte Cooper; prayer, Mrs. Sargent; story of Jesus, the Good Shepherd, Mrs. J. Hawthorne; duet, Rev. H. B. and Mrs. Herrington.

Mrs. Herrington announced that Mrs. Weller would give a reading by request, and this turned out to be an address to Mrs. Herrington in which Mrs. Weller spoke of her work in organizing the Association, so that now it was like a large family. Her prayers, ready help, and words of encouragement and inspiration meant much to the women and prayers and good wishes go with Mrs. Herrington to her new home.

Mrs. Anderson made the presentation of the silver tea service and Mrs. Herrington responded, thanking the ladies very heartily. Mrs. Herrington also read a little farewell address in which she gave a short history of the Aid, and spoke of the help she had received from the ladies, saying she would also think with prayer on the last Thusday of each month, of the members of the Warsaw Women's Institute. Mrs. Herrington also asked the members to think of them with prayer and invited all to visit them in their new home.

The basement was divided by curtains, one part of which was arranged as a cosy living-room and the other where tea tables were arranged. These were prettily decorated and the ladies enjoyed a social hour at tea.

Rev. Mr. Dudgeon, pastor of the church, was chairman, introducing the following splendid program to an appreciative audience. In the sweet voice Miss Geneva Sedgwick rendered "Building for Eternity", Miss O. Prest accompanying at the piano.

A sparkling piano duett by Miss Aileen Rose and Miss Olive Prest, A.T.C.M. whose clever interpretation made their selections both attractive and well rendered. Miss Frances Clarke in her usual fine style gave a number of humorous readings, including "Dr. Johnston's Picture Cow", "When Teacher gets cross" and "Practising Time."

"The Garden of Prayer" was charmingly sung in duett by Misses Dorothy Dudgeon and Marion Wood.

A laugh-provoking dialogue entitled "The Peterborough Uplift Society" was admirably enacted by Mesdames Turner, Payne, English, McAdams, Beatty, Sloan and Byers.

Little Betty Irwine captivated her audience with her delightfully appealing numbers "Over the hill to Grandma's", "Sonny Boy", "Carolina Moon" and "If I had a Talking Picture of You".

A group of St. James' Mission Circle girls, assisted by four young men presented a very humorous playlet "A rummage sale" in which witty repartee and catchy songs were intermingled.

A very pleasing number was the Hawaiian duett skillfully rendered by Miss Moynes and Mrs. Hotston.

Ice cream and cake were served by Auxiliary ladies and the successful evening was brought to a conclusion by all joining hands in a huge circle and singing "Blest be the tie that binds" and the Benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Mr. Dudgeon.

LIBERAL RALLY AT LAKEFIELD

Mrs. J. Forbes Allen Addresses Women's Meeting in Queen Street Theatre.

DEBT REDUCTION

LAKEFIELD, June 30 (Examiner Correspondence)—Mrs. J. Forbes Allen addressed a meeting of women held in the Queen Street theatre in the interests of the Liberal campaign on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Allen prefaced her address by contrasting the granting of the franchise to women in Canada with the struggle in the Old Land. 'Here it was easily acquired and its importance is not yet fully realised by women. In the Old Land women were on the point of winning the frachise after a hard fight when the war came and the women threw themselves heart and soul into the cause of their country and by their largeness of feeling won the right to vote."

"In the Liberal party and in Premier Mackenzie King we have a policy and a leader of which we may be proud. The party counts for less than the principal underlying and in Mr. Duffus we have an upright clean minded, clean living man who has shown his business ability and has done so much for Peterborough.

Women are the budget housekeepers and spend the money earned by the men so that the price of commodities is an important one so that the tariff which regulates prices on many things is a very vital matter to women. The policy of the Liberal party has not changed, it has always stood for the greatest good to the greatest number regardless of class or creed. It is not immorable for we must face 20th century problems with 20th century methods."

Debt Reduction

Mrs. Allen dealt at some length with the debt reduction and the reduction of taxes by the King government. "It is true that there has been unemployment," said Mrs. Allen, "and there will be for a little while but the conditions which have produced this are not caused by any government but are due to several causes—machinery replacing hand labor, and the market crash. Unemployment is a world condition to-day. Canada is in a better position and coming back better than any other country. Premier King saw Empire trade as the only way to insure our future. Mr. Ferguson advocates, "Canada First" and urges that we sell within our own boundaries and quotes the United States as a glorious example of doing this. If this is a wise move why is it that the United States has the greatest amount of unemployment in the world?"

"The establishment of legations in various countries has proved of immense value for Canada, since the war, has acquired a new status which made it undignified for her to lack direct access to other governments."

Mrs. Allen concluded with a few words on the exportation of liquor to the United States which has been abolished. "It was going into a country whose law made it illegal and a man who is willing to sacrifice the revenue for honor deserves support."

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

WINNIPEG WHEAT

WINNIPEG, June 30.—Rain-soaked fields in the West proved more prominent a feature of the Winnipeg grain market Saturday than adverse crop reports. As a result, in uninteresting trading, wheat values dropped 1 3-8c to 1 1-8c, taking the October future close back to the dollarmark, under which July has settled.

Overnight export business was slight and demand at a minimum, according to reports. Little cash wheat trading was done and course grain cash business was limited to low-grade feed barley for domestic use.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, June 30.—Quick right-about-face action of wheat prices Saturday gave an exhibition of what a weather market can do. Starting with an advance in quotations, the market suddenly underwent a downward slide of 2c a bushel from the top figures reached, mainly because of rain relief in Canadian Prairie Provinces.

Accelerating the tumble of wheat values were reports of increasing movement of newly harvested domestic winter wheat, together with predictions from authoritative sources that United States spring wheat this season would mature fast enough to beat black rust, the outcome in this case also being purely a question of weather.

Closing quotations on wheat were heavy at the day's bottom level, 7-8-1 3-8c a bushel under yesterday's inish. Corn closed 5-8c-1½c of, oats, ¼-3-8c down and provisions varying from 2c decline to a rise of 47c.

Presentation Made To Miss Annie Haig

LAKEFIELD, June 30 (Examiner Correspondence). — Prior to her departure from S.S. No. 6, Smith, Miss Annie Haig, who has for the past three years been the popular teacher, was presented with a handsome chamois suede wardro, accompanied by an address, which gracefully expressed the affectionate regard in which she was held by her pupils, read by Miss Edna Higgins. Miss Winifred Roseborough made the presentation. Miss Haig was much surprised at the presentation, but in her reply assured the pupils of her regard for them and her regret at severing the pleasant connection with the school.

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION CONCLUDES CONVENTION

prentices in the two provinces submitted specimens of their work as printers. Another prize was a pen and pencil set from the Peterborough Examiner, presented by R. M. Glover.

The Star cup was presented by Hugh Bentley of Hamilton in behalf of Mr. Atkinson.

Delegates Grateful.

The delegates showed their appreciation of the efforts and program of the local entertainment committee with gifts to M. J. Swanston, president of the local union; Maurice Dunkley, secretary; A. O. Phillips, chairman of the committee; H. J. McCauley and R. A. Baker.

The Thanks committee of the Conference also formally acknowledged the welcome and warm hospitality extended by the Peterborough Typographical Union, the merchants of the city, Mayor Denne, E. A. Peck, J. J. Duffus, R. M. Glover, T. J. McMurray, president of the Trades and Labour Council and F. Plant of the Bureau of Labor, Ottawa.

Mr. Hall's Tribute.

R. R. Hall, K.C., the first speaker at the banquet said that the Press was one of the most important institutions ever founded. It was the fourth estate of the realm. Possibly only Parliament and governments had more material influence.

"Newspapers are a great force in the shaping of public opinion, and for that reason I would advise newspapers to consider well their responsibility, down to the humblest compositor, who should be careful not to pi the type because I have sometimes found on reading the newspaper that I have been made to say things I certainly did not intend to say."

With a passing jest at Mr. Peck and Mr. Duffus, Mr. Hall touched upon Canada's predominant position as a producer of newsprint and spoke of the great annual loss to the forests of the country. Every citizen should be an agency to caution tourists and our people against carelessness in the forest areas. Millions of dollars a year are lost by forest fires caused by the careless match or cigarette, and also by the negligent camper who fails to put out his campfire in the woods.

Mr. Hall concluded his interesting address with a reference to the age and antiquity of some trees, the economic importance of trees and their sanctity and essentialness to mankind as shown by their frequent mention in Holy Writ.

J. J. Duffus.

Mr. Duffus expressed his regret that he had been unable to be present and join with Mayor Denne, Mr. Peck and other citizens in welcoming the delegates at the opening of their convention.

"I wish to add my welcome now," he said. "Nature has been very kind to us in this community, and we take advantage of and exploit the things she provides. We believe Peterborough is one of the best of the smaller cities of Canada. Our seventy-nine manufacturing concerns must have had an appeal to you when spoken of by Mayor Denne. Around us we have a fine farm country and yet we are only two hours' drive from the best deer hunting district in the province. We hope you will carry away cherished memories of your visit, and the next time you come I hope I shall have the privilege of welcoming you as the member of the House of Commons."

E. A. Peck, ex-M.P.

Mr. Peck said in part: "I applauded almost everything Mr. Duffus said, but I wish it to be understood that I did not endorse his last remark. (Laughter). We are in accord on everything else. I hope your convention during the last two days has been a happy period and a complete success, because your interests are ours and anything you do to advance your interests will redound to the advantage of ours. You are very useful members of the community. I don't know what we would do without the newspapers, and I am glad to see that all over the Dominion there is less partisanship and bitterness of feeling in editorial expression and more fairness and impartiality. And in that respect I wish to mention to you my appreciation of the kindness I have always received from our great local paper, The Peterborough Examiner. During contests in which I have been before I have always been received kindly by The Examiner, and anything I ventured to say was well represented to the public."

Mr. Peck congratulated Mr. Dorner upon the distinction which he had won in connection with his work as a printer. It was an honor to the city that one of its young men had so well acquitted himself in competition with young men of the two provinces.

R. M. Glover.

R. M. Glover said he hoped the delegates would be impressed with the fact that Peterborough people were 100 per cent boosters for their city. He congratulated Mr. Dormer upon his success, and stated that the young men of today must make up their minds that they are going to learn their trades well. Too many smart boys of this day do not apply themselves as they should.

"Our young men should settle down in any trade they choose", Mr. Glover advised. "They should realize that their years of earning are not going to be so long as were the years of their fathers. This should come home to them when they see that in our own time men of fifty find it increasingly hard to get a job that is just as profitable as the one they had. They must not throw their money away foolishly because it seems that the earning period is five, ten or fifteen years shorter than what it was a decade or more ago.

With that in mind our boys should make the most of their opportunities and accept every opportunity of advancement that comes to them."

Referring to the printing trade and The Examiner, Mr. Glover said: "I have met hundreds of men in all departments of our business and I feel we have the finest body of men with us now that we have ever had in our history. Loyalty is a big factor in any business. To a newspaper you simply must have it or you won't get anywhere. I wish to express my appreciation of this loyalty."

After congratulating the conference on their convention work, Mr. Glover said that the Typographical Union was not altogether selfish. "I have had many dealings with your representatives, and very few conflicts in that time. So long as you keep men of this type at your head you will have few difficulties with any employer. I wish your organization every success and hope it will not be long until we have the pleasure of another meeting here."

Wm. Schmitt.

Wm. Schmitt, Kitchener, President of the Conference, thanked Mr. Glover for his kind reference to the Conference of the Ontario and Quebec Typographical Unions, and also paid tribute to the scenic beauty of Peterborough. His speech was a sketch of the pioneer days of newspapers in Ontario. The forerunner of the modern newspaper in this provinces was published in 1791 by Sir John Simcoe, governor of Upper Canada, who brought with him a printing press for the dissemination of news among the settlers and for the assistance of government in the new district. Louis Roy, a French-Canadian, was the first King's Printer. The plant was set up in October 1791 at Newark, now the city of Niagara, and the paper was called the Canada Gazette. Roy resigned in 1794 and was succeeded after a brief interval by Gideon Tiffany. His successor in 1797 was Titus Simons who in 1798 moved to York, now Toronto. York was in that year definitely recognized as the capital of Upper Canada. In 1801 John Bennett assumed the duties of printer to the King, and carried on until 1806 when John Cameron was appointed. In 1807 the first opposition paper appeared in the interests of Judge Thorpe's party. It was known as the Upper Canada Guardian or Freeman's Journal. In those years the art of printing began to spread out over the province. In 1810 Stephen Miles founded the Gazette at Kingston. In 1824 William Lyon Mackenzie launched "The Colonial Advocate" at Queenstown and shortly afterwards transferred it to Toronto. In 1817 St. Catharines had "The Spectator," and in 1822 Wm. Buell established "The Recorder" at Brockville. Many other papers sprang up during the intervening years and by 1840 the art of printing the art preservative of all arts, had emerged from its state of infancy.

Hugh S. Bentley.

Hugh S. Bentley, second vice-president of the Conference and chairman of the committee on Apprentices, spoke chiefly on the interest of the Unions in the boys who were coming into the trade. He also explained what was being accomplished in the printing department of the Hamilton Technical schools, from which handpicked boys were being graduated to the printing establishments of the city, thereby saving the employers the details of teaching the boys the rudiments of the profession.

Mr. Bentley also related how the executive of the Conference in 1921 had persuaded the Hon. E. C. Drury, then Prime Minister of Ontario, to include in all contracts to pulp and paper companies using the forest wealth of the province a clause stipulating that 15 per cent of the newsprint production be retained for the newspapers of this province. At that time the Backus interests had secured a virtual control of the pulp industry with the effect that the domestic newsprint supply was seriously curtailed and some newspapers in this country had actually been forced to suspend publication.

"And for that voluntary aid which we were able to render to the newspapers we received no word of thanks from the publishers nor anybody else," Mr. Bentley remarked.

Officers Re-elected.

At the closing business session Saturday afternoon the officers of the Conference were re-elected on a single ballot, and were installed by C. P. Doughty of Hastings, who was president of this association during its inceptive years and who also contributed materially to the soundness of its institution and early management.

Next year's convention will be held in Montreal.

I.O.D.E. PLAY AT CAMPBELLFORD

"Smaty Shop Sally" Plays to Good House—Musical Features Enjoyed.

CAST OF 50 LOCAL PEOPLE.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, June 30.—Under the auspices of the Bemersyde Chapter, I.O.D.E., the musical comedy, "Smart Shop Sally" was presented in the Regent Theater, Campbellford, on Saturday evening to a full house.

The play, which is a laughable production with a cast of fifty local characters, was produced by Al. J. Perrin, under the direction of Al. J. Perrin and Hartley McVicar. The comedy, which is suplimented by a review, is in four acts, and centers around Sally Jones, who has inherited a millinery establishment from her mother, which is in poor shape financially. This, through the energy and smiling manner of Jack Brown, is soon rectified.

The musical review is staged with great ability, the numbers being varied and interesting, and the scenic effect good. Two between-act specialties were featured.

After act one, Miss Iona MacPherson was seen in a fancy dancing number which was heartily applauded, and after act two, William Blue sang three songs that met with great success.

The acts of the play were: I. Sally's "Run Down" Style Shop at Campbellford, Ontario; II. The same as Act I; III. At the Regent Theater; IV. Same as Act I, eight months later.

The cast of characters in order of appearance is as follows:

Dulcy Doolittle, Miss Helen Bygott; Billy "Speed" Bronson, Mr. Ralph Sperry; Sally Jones, Miss Helen MacDonald; Hiram Barn Dollar, Mr. Al J. Perrin; Peggie Wellington, Miss Frances Anderson; Clarence Potter, Mr. Dickson Dawson; Jack Brown, Mr. Hartley McVicar; Kittie Jones ((Sally's Sister), Miss Lulu Gay; Mme. Lucy Fontain, Miss M. Ackerman; Mrs. Roxall Lamphan, Miss Eleanor Ferris.

Models

Miss K. Bygott, Mrs. Forrest Dennis, Mrs. E. C. Roberts, Miss Phyllis Haig, Miss Muriel Linton, Miss Enid Richardson, Miss Margaret Irwin, Miss Florence Thomas.

"Painting the Clouds with Sunshine"—Mr. Franklin Linton; Miss Iona MacPherson, Miss Helen Walker, Miss Enid Richardson, Miss Florence Bibby, Miss Margaret Irwin, Miss Muriel Linton.

Whoopee Dancers — Miss Goldie Nicholson, Miss Elsie Southern, Miss Margaret Bowen.

"On My Radi-adi-o", "I Haven't Told Her—She Hasn't Told Me," by Hartley McVicar, Helen MacDonald.

"Yawning"—Miss K. Bygott, Miss H. Atkinson, Mrs. F. Dennis, Miss H. Thomas, Miss M. Covert, Miss H. Tait, Miss P. Haig, Mrs. E. Roberts, Miss F. Nelson, Mrs. C. Weston.

"Uku-le-le Tree" and "I Can't Help It"—Mr. Jack Bygott, Miss Frances Anderson.

Master Jackie Sherwin and Miss Monica DeCarroll in "Singing in the Rain".

Mr. Herb. Leonard as "Son"; Mrs. L. A. Denike as "Mother", "When All the World Forlets You, There's A Mother Waiting Still" and "My Pal".

The finale was entitled, "Little Present by the Dancing Girls", and consisted of a specialtie number, when the group threw favors among the audience.

The play carried its own music, "The Smart Shop Sally" Orchestra, which consisted of Miss Isabel Bygott, pianist; Miss Enid Richardson, cello; Ronald Richardson, violin; and George Frederick, drums.

Presentation Made To Miss Annie Haig

LAKEFIELD, June 30 (Examiner Correspondence). — Prior to her departure from S.S. No. 6, Smith, Miss Annie Haig, who has for the past three years been the popular teacher, was presented with a handsome chamois suede wardro, accompanied by an address, which gracefully expressed the affectionate regard in which she was held by her pupils, read by Miss Edna Higgins. Miss Winifred Roseborough made the presentation. Miss Haig was much surprised at the presentation, but in her reply assured the pupils of her regard for them and her regret at severing the pleasant connection with the school.

Our Mail

Conducted by ANNE WILCOX

Dear Anne:—

Is there anything in the world more interesting than people? People one sees or meets or passes, people who flash by and are gone, people we deal with in some way; people with whom we are intimate; our relatives and friends?

We sometimes wonder what people of whom we read are like, what people whom we are to meet are like and so on, and quite often as not we are out in our conjectures. Is it not so?

Then we see people we notice their eyes, nose, mouth, chin and set of their shoulders. The way they hold their hands and are fairly certain to form a correct estimate of their natural tendencies of what will likely be strong points and what weak points in their characters. Then we can look at the expression on their faces, and make a fair estimate of how much they are maintaining their tendencies to good and overcoming their tendencies which are not the best. If we come to know and deal with these people and the unexpected happens, we do not get the jolt we might have had. There is such a tremendous mechanism of brain, subconscious mind and heart, that if something goes a little wrong, perhaps a little head ache or some worry the person does something unexpected. If good we are prone to take it for granted or say, "Well she always was a good woman anyway" or if bad, you hear either, "Who would have thought it of him?" or "Well, what could you expect?"

That world friend seems so often misused. And is often applied to acquaintances with whom one is on friendly or neighborly terms just because the meetings and chat are pleasant from a social point of view and then we speak of dropping a friend as we might drop a name from our social list for one of the many reasons we may. Why, how can we drop our friends, those whose characters we admire, those whom we love and cherish? They may have done something wrong, may have wronged us, but it would seem there might be cause for heartache, but to drop them, or even ask others about doing so, seems to me impossible. I know love may turn to hate, and the greater the love has been the greater the hate, but I sometimes wonder if it is not really hate, or rather wounded pride that makes us show a bad side of ourselves.

There are acquaintances with whom we hold friendly relations, who disappoint us. Perhaps we do not fully understand perhaps they do not. It is well perhaps for us not to be quite intimate. Still, no matter how anyone had acted I would never cut them unless for some actual moral wrong which might have been avoided, some action which has a right to be generally scorned. Then I might cut them, but again how or why am I better than they? I cannot thank myself for it so why scorn another for what in the same circumstances I might have done? Pleasing acquaintances are delightful. Friends are oh, so precious!

May I say a word to Quo Vaids, and I think it is High Flyer? I really really thank you ladies for catching me up before I got too far, you did me good, for my nervous system was getting a little beyond me in another matter and what you said made me think of where I was in the other thing and I have been able to gather up the reigns a little and am better for it.

However, in the matter for which you censured me, I still think I was right. Sick people often need a moral shaking (as I did a few weeks ago). Our friend seems to need it and I gave it in kindness and I flatter myself that though she does not recognize it, it did her good.

I do not like, nor approve of the child or adult who wakens with a frown, I like the smile. I do not care for the sick person whom no one can please, or who because he is ill and uncomfortable cannot smile and finds fault because expected things are not done. I do not mean one should put up with neglect. No matter how ill a person is he may always be polite if conscious. Do not think I do not know what I am talking about, I do in more ways than one. Though exceptionally myself—I would not be living were I not—I have had almost every kind of suffering except broken bones, have lain at death's door for days.

The very thought of others suffering as I have fills me with sympathy. But I realized those caring for me were not to blame for my pain. Friends, acquaintances and neighbors have always been so good to me. There have been unpleasant experiences in my life, but I try to forget them and remember the pleasant, of which there have been so many.

In my work, no matter how hard, I try to do my very best. If physical infirmity makes me unable to do as I would wish, why worry about what I cannot help? If I take a holiday, I take it to the full, prepare for it as well as possible, beforehand, leave things at home as well as can be. Then while away forget what is not done. I never carry a basket of ironing with me—that will keep. If there is something hard to do, I prepare for it as well as I can, but do not worry. Then do it when it should be done, and when it is done, I do not tire myself out thinking how hard I worked. Am thankful it is done. Once is quite often enough to do anything.

The birds are singing oh so merrily, and a robin has her nest in a vine outside the window.

Kindest wishes to Anne and all the neighbors.

Sincerely yours,
Quid Est.

Thank you, Quid Est, for starting the Mail once again. I had decided they didn't want to bother with any letters during the summer, so I was quite willing not to encourage them. However, I had a couple more for to-morrow.

Elaine And Her Ideas From Paris

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

THOUGHTS ABOUT THE MIND.

When we think that despite the age of man in the world, it is not very long ago that individuals with sick minds were loaded with chains, bound like galley slaves, and thrown into frightful dens at the mercy of their attendants, and these attendants convicts from prison, it shocks us beyond words.

The first help given these unfortunates was by some English physicians, not with the idea of being able to help their mental condition, but simply because of a human desire to do all possible to make their lives happier.

Then research men began to realize that the brain was a part of the body, an organ just as was the liver and heart and so they began to study it. Thus as they studied the structure of the brain and how it worked, they found that certain definite portions of the brain controled certain definite functions of the body.

This was of considerable help in locating injuries to the brain that were causing paralysis of arms, legs and so forth, but did not locate what was causing depression, melancholia, fits, uncontrollable rage and other mental symptoms.

Despite careful examination, research men have not been able to see actual physical changes in the brain substance that they could definitely state were causing any of the above symptoms.

And so our brain specialists have to study the brain from the actions of the individual, from his thoughts, when they can get the patient to express them.

It is not hard to recognize an 'imbecile' because the brain of this poor individual never did develop, or if it did, it was never past the first years of childhood. A demented person, on the other hand, has had brain power at one time but something has made him lose it, either temporarily, or permanently. In imbecility and dementia, an actual change in the brain substance has been noted.

However, where there is excitement, depression, or an actual loss of interest in everything, there is not the gross changes in the brain substance.

Then there are 'hallucinations' when the patient sees an object that has no real existence. 'Delusions' are false beliefs, where the patient may think he is the King of England, President of the United States, or has an exaggerated idea of his importance—certainly no inferior complex. Or he may have the delusion that some one is attempting to harm or persecute him in some way.

An 'obsession' is where the patient gets the idea in his mind at times that there is something wrong with him or some one else. There are times when he knows this is not true. Perhaps these definitions will help you as you think about the mind, and the problem it presents to physicians.

OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

THE INVESTIGATOR.

Pat and I went out for a walk in the park. Pat was on a leash but that didn't prevent him from chasing squirrels and threatening cats and enjoying himself as a good dog should.

A tiny girl, scarce three years old stopped digging gravel, threw down her shovel and shouted through the iron paling, "Stand just where you are. I want to see something about that dog."

We stood perfectly still as commanded and the stout little legs tore up the walk on the far side of the paling until they reached the gate, swung in on a wide curve and headed down the green to where we stood.

"Is that a boy or a girl dog?"

"It's a boy dog and his name is Pat."

"Oh, Pat. What is that?" and she placed the tip of a wary finger on the end of Pat's upright stubby tail.

"That's his tail."

"O. Tail. Hm. And is this his hand?" indicating Pat's hind leg.

"No. That's his hind leg."

The two, a shaggy little terrier and a dainty little child, shook hands gravely.

"A boy dog. Where's his pants?"

"Right there. He wears fur pants. That's his pocket there. That black patch.

"O. Has he a hanky in his poclet?"

"No. It's in his mouth."

"Show me it in his mouth."

I opened Pat's mouth and immediately he lallopped the little face that bent over him with his moist pink tongue.

"O. He kissed me. But that isn't a hanky. That's his tongue."

"He uses it for a handkerchief when he needs one. He's quite a bright dog, you see."

"Yes. He's a very smart doggie."

She wheeled and raced back toward the gate. Halfway there she remembered something. "Good-bye Pat." She raced on until she reached the gate. Again she remembered something. "Good-bye, man. Thank you very much." In a moment she was back at work in the gravel pile.

Somebody had been very kind, very patient, very intelligent with that little investigator. She had been permitted to ask questions, been encouraged to find out for herself.

In danger? I don't think so. She was was too intelligent to be in any real danger. You cannot sterilize life for children and keep it vital at the same time. You must allow the child a chance to investigate the world for himself. There is a risk, no doubt. On the other hand, isn't there a serious risk in keeping children so much under restraint that they never move hand or foot to see what is around the corner, much less commanding it to stand still until it is properly investigated?

I felt very glad for that happy, questioning, searching child.

Several hundred people availed themselves of the opportunity yesterday afternoon of having a cup of tea at the Norwood Road Rifle Ranges, when Lt. Col. M. H. Park and the officers of the Peterborough Rangers, now in camp there, invited their friends to join with them in a pleasant social hour. The big flat fields where the men encamp are dotted with the little white pointed tents that resemble a teepee, and the larger marquees that served yesterday as reception rooms and tea rooms, with a special tent reserved for the band of the Rangers, which played snappy, melodious music during the afternoon hours, under the leadership of Lt. W. H. Peryer. The rat-ta-tat of the little Lewis guns with which the men blazed away at the hillside targets, punctuated the hum of talk in the big tents and gave the guests an opportunity to stroll across the fields to watch the gunners. In the reception marquee, where the guests were received by Lt. Col. and Mrs. Park and Colonel and Mrs. Vanderwater of Belleville, were displayed the gorgeous silver trophies which the Regiment has captured during many past years, extending back to 1894. They were displayed to much advantage on a wine-red cloth, with tall vases and silver baskets of flowers; deep blue cornflowers and larkspur, feathery white garden heliotrope, orange marigolds, crimson sweet William and blue Canterbury bells. In the big marquee where tea was served, Mrs. J. Mills and Mrs. G. Winterbottom presided at a table centered by a circular silver tray holding a slender silver vase that was filled, like its two companions on the table, with blue cornflowers and larkspur and orange and gold gaillardia. Mrs. Mills and Mrs. G. T. Melton were in charge of refreshments. Assistants were Mrs. C. E. Newman, Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, Mrs. W. H. Peryer, Mrs. E. Nicholls, Mrs. R. J. Bolton, Mrs. G. W. PARISIAN FOIBLES

Alternating groups of narrow lace trim the skirt of this black crepe de chine dress which is to be found in the Jenny collection. The tiny bows on the blouse are bordered with beads.

A Chic Afternoon Gown for the Tall Slender Woman.

Clever trimming gives character to this frock in black crepe de chine. Alternating groups of narrow lace trim the skirt and the tiny bows of the blouse are bordered with beads. The ruffle-like peplum is very smart and is particularly becoming to the tall slender figure.

Flowers Are Chic Both Real and Printed

A ROSE MAY MAKE AN EVENING GOWN

It may be "only a rose" that makes an evening gown a thing of beauty, but it is more likely to be a gigantic bloom of exotic origin, hand-blocked into the very fabric of the gown, as shown on the full-length figure in the Vogue sketch on the LEFT above. This model is of chiffon printed in shades of lavender and vivid purple. Sleeves are hinted at by graceful drapery, and the decolletage is cut in a V in the back. Between the two circular peplums, a long bow of purple velvet ribbon falls, lending a evening dress of plain crepe or lace, she may add a note of charm by real flowers. Huge white orchids, bereft of any extra foliage or ribbon, are undoubtedly the most sophisticated choice, as shown at the UPPER LEFT in the sketch. Another excellent effect was achieved by a Parisian beauty by adding real camelias, shading from white to pink, to the shoulder and the belt of a white satin dress, as illustrated at the LOWER LEFT in the sketch. To pin a bouquet of white Parma violets at the waist line is another way to effect, shown at the RIGHT in the sketch. On the RIGHT is a photograph of a smart printed frock in floral design with capelet sleeves.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

ONCE OR TWICE before I have mentioned something of what a woman must do if she is contemplating selling the things she can make. Usually she is at sea to know just how to get in touch with customers.

• • • • • • •

She must find a solution, she cannot expect anyone else to manage her own personal problems, but she can learn the methods that are followed by others who are successful.

• • • • • • •

This means that she must apply herself to the study of such methods.

• • • • • • •

A business man does exactly the same thing!

• • • • • • •

First he becomes thoroughly acquainted with his products, and then he studies the problems of getting them on the market. So great a problem is business that universities are having special branches known as business schools for graduates of colleges so that they may learn business management.

• • • • • • •

The housewife has no opportunity to attend such a college, so she must learn at home, make the things at home and sell them without going into the actual business world.

• • • • • • •

It will be seen that she should not be discouraged if she has to study the merchandising of her products.

• • • • • • •

It is this that is the business end of her work. The other end is generally part of her household tasks. Because she knows the latter part thoroughly she feels that through the things she makes she should be able to make money. So she should, but thinking she sould is but the first step towards doing it.

• • • • • • •

She has to think to a purpose.

• • • • • • •

It must be remembered that the actual selling of the things a woman makes can be done only through the personal efforts of that woman herself.

• • • • • • •

It remains for readers who would earn money by selling what they make to select the avenues best suited to their purposes and try them.

• • • • • • •

If any woman has found an original method of selling which has solved her own problem, I shall be glad to hear from her, and to pass along her account to help those who are struggling with unsolved problems.

• • • • • • •

It is hoped that many women will have helpful suggestions to aid those who are beginning to sell what they make.

LATE CONSTABLE KIRK IS SUCCEEDED BY HIS SON

TORONTO, June 30. — Succeeding his father, the ilate Sergt. T. B. Kirk, of Newmarket, Ernest A. Kirk was appointed Liquor Control enforcement officer for York County by the County Council on Saturday. His appointment was passed unanimously on the recommendation of the Police Commission.

In making the appointment, the Council took into consideration the facts that Sergt. WOMAN IS WED AT PISTOL POINT

Tells Court Plan Was to Prevent Her Testifying in Robbery Trial.

IS GIVEN DIVORCE.

VANCOUVER, June 30.—Declaring that she had been forced at the point of a revolver and against her will to marry James Roy Darragh so that she could not be compelled to give evidence against him at a time when he was under suspicion for robbery, Teresa Margaret McKinnon of Winnipeg petitioned in supreme court for nullity of the marriage.

Although nullity was refused by Mr. Fisher, an absolute decree of divorce was granted on other grounds.

In September, 1927 according to Mrs. Darragh, the respondent called in a taxi at the school where she was a teacher, and asked her to marry him. The man, with whom she had been keeping company explained that he was under suspicion for robbery and that if he were arrested she would have to testify against him.

To avoid this, he said, she must marry him.

The young woman refused his proposal, she alleged, but on a subsequent occasion he inveigled her into the taxi, ordered the driver to proceed to First Lutheran Church, Princess Avenue, and threatened to shoot if she did not go through with the ceremony performed, the husband drove her back to the academy. The wife alleged that she had never seen him again.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Alice Michaelis

UNSHARED GOOD.

It is not enough that man may live
His life to the full, to know
Great tasks and the thrill they give
Or love with its beacon glow.

Though his treasures pile heaven high
All gifts that the world desires,
Still after each smiles comes a sigh
And his spirit droops and tires.

If he selfishly keeps for the few
The bounty that falls to him,
For his pleasures will not ring true
And his sunlight must soon grow dim.

It is not enough to gain
After the toil is done,
A feeling of proud disdain,
A mountain crest in the sun.

For one who dwells thus alone
Will find earth a barren place
Till he shares all the good he has known
And it shines from each brothers face.

Oshawa Arabs Defeat Raybestos 7 To 3

MOTOR CITY OUTFIT WINS SIXTH STRAIGHT VICTORY IN LAKESHORE LEAGUE

Duke Dainty. Pitching For Arabs Comes Through With Flying Colors.

SCORE IS 7 TO 3.

Rus Kitchen Has Bad Day on Mound For Raybestos.

Again the Raybestos ball team failed to halt the winning streak of the Oshawa Arabs, losing in the Motor City on Saturday afternoon by a 7-3 score. The victory was the sixth in a row for the Oshawa club in the Lakeshore League and goes to strengthen the opinion that they will be sitting is first place when the race is over. The position of the Rays was not altered by the loss. They remain in second place, Port Hope having shot holes in Cobourg's progress by handing their neighbors a loss on Wednesday.

Hank Kohen, generalissimo of the Oshawa nine, wasn't for wasting any bets in his engagement with the Rays He called on "Duke" Dainty, former "Iron Man" of the Central League, to do the hurling and the "Duke" came through with colors flying. None of the cunning had gone from the veteran's arm, although he was chary with his curve ball. Relying mostly on control he eased the Spalding across where it was deemed least likely that the Rays could connect with it. His judgment wasn't far wrong either for he retired nine on strikes. Further evidence of the manner in which he bested the Rays is furnished by the fact that he allowed but seven hits, and all were scattered in ones except the trio that came in the fifth.

Opposing the "Duke" was Rus Kitchen, but it just wasn't the tall youth's day. He failed to show the same speed that has marked his previous work and was given a tough passage by the Oshawa hitters. They hit him soundly and often for thirteen sturdy clouts and packed all but one of them into four innings. He was allowed to go the whole way, however, because the Ray's never showed sufficient strength at the plate to indicate that they might possibly overcome the lead gained by Oshawa during the first five frames.

Some smart work was turned in by those who patrolled the outer gardens. Hall Moore, Rowden and Fair, all making spectacular catches. This quartet was responsible for fourteen putouts.

Oshawa gained their opening for runs in the fourth innings, when Fair, first up, got a life on a weak roller when Barry allowed Kitchen's throw to get away from him. C. Elliott lined a drive into center field but Moore got it. Then followed singles by Rowden, Young and Dainty, and three runs crossed the plate. T. Elliott flew out to Hall and Gummow rolled to Nicholls to end the innings.

The Rays had been unable to do anything up to this stage, but they came along strong in the fifth. Mein opened up with a single and Barry followed with a single through the box. Mein scored on Kitchen's single, but Kitchen was caught off first by Dainty. Barry cross the plate on Hope's sacrifice fly. Hillier flew out to Rowden.

Again in their half of the same frame Oshawa broke loose with a barrage of hits for two more runs. Whitely's single went for naught when he was caught off first by Rogers. Gray rolled to the pitcher. Fair doubled into left and scored on C. Elliott's two base hit into center. Rowden's clout into left field was lost in the sun and went for three bases, C. Elliott scoring. Young's fly into left was taken by Hall.

The Rays collected their other run in the seventh. Mein was safe when C. Elliott threw wild to first after making a pick up of his grounder. Mein got two bases on the over throw because Young threw his glove at the ball. Barry rolled to second, but Kitchen singled scoring Mein. Hope and Hillier struck out.

After being kept off the score column in the seventh, although they secured three hits, Oshawa got two more counters in the eighth. Young hit into left but was thrown out by Hall at second base. Dainty doubled and scored on T. Elliott's double. Elliott ran to third on the hit and scored when Mein made a wild throw to that sack. Gummow singled, but Whitely rolled to first and Gingeriski struck out.

C.P.C. BEAT BRINTON FOR SPALDING CUP

Accidental Handling Allows Two Penalties That Were Converted By Packers.

LARGE CROWD PRESENT.

Griffin Brilliant in Goal—Packers Gain Only Counter In Second Half.

The Canadian Packing won the Spalding trophy from the Brinton Athletic on Saturday afternoon, after an exciting ninety minutes of soccer that provided the spectators with many thrills, by the score of three goals to two. The losers gave away two penalties that were converted or otherwise they might have been the holders of the cup, but accidental hndling proved costly to them. This is the first time that the Packers have won the silverware. The Candian General were the holders last season.

At the conclusion the cup tie, President Stewart presented trophy to Captain Buchan of the Canadian Packing, who responded with a very appropriate speech. Also the prizes awarded at the cup ties resulted as follow: First prize, Axminster rug, G. Walker, 287 Stewart street. Second prize, automobile rug, Harold Rose, 23 Albertus street. Third prize, quarter ton coal, J. G. Anderson, 88 Gladstone avenue.

First Half

The spin of the coin went in favor of the Brinton and Preston kicked off. The forwards took the ball along to the Brinton end where Green at full back saved the team from disaster as he diverted it for a fruitless flag kick. Anderson beat it up the field with the ball to outguess the opposition with clever dribbling that failed to penetrate inside the goal area. Quickly Buchan relieved the pressure to send his wing men away in possession of the ball, to cause Curtis, goal-keeper, a lot of trouble saving his charge. The Packers kept up the attack for the next ten minutes to find Westwood and company giving no scope to be playful around the goaol area. A break away by Boon deceived the full-backs nicely to get a perfect centre into goal where his partners missed a golden opportunity. Two successful attacks a few minutes later resulted in the Packers' custodian being best at close range. Mayette and Hotson showed combination to beat the defense until Foster coming from nowhere conceded a flag kick. Mayette from the flag kick placed Westwood a nice centre that he took advantage of when he sent a low grounder into the net for the opening goal. No sooner had this taken place when Newt. Downer took the ball from the centre kick and along with Foster upset the full backs with their accurate passing until the ball was in a position for the packer inside man to gain the equalizer. With the teams again on even basis, the halfbacks concentrated in holding the attack outside the goal area. They did ho successfully for a long period until Lucas unknowingly handled inside the dreaded zone. The penalty kick was trusted to Preston who delivered a rising shot in below the bar to beat Curtis.

Over anxiety was in evidence for the remainder of the first half because the forwards kept up a continual barrage of shots at the custodians. They responded with a brilliant display in goal by accepting all manner of drives from near and fgar. Repeatedly the Packers' left wing would come into prominence with combination that had the rinton defence in a quandry, although they spoiled their good work when they tackled the man, instead of going after the ball. Westwood, at center half for the Brinton, never gave up trying to get an opening. At last, he witnessed Boon accept his pass from the centre. The winger made tracks along the wing to beat three men in quick succession, drew the defence away from their charge by his close dribbling. At the logical moment, he passed across to James who jumped at the chance to touch the ball into the net, pass Griffin for the equaliser, with only five minutes to go in the first forty-five minutes. Play was in mid-field when the interval arrived. Canadian Packing 2, Brinton Athletic 2.

Second Half

The customary rest brought forth no changes in the positions, when they set the ball arolling again. Fate played a dominating part on the Brinton eleven when the Packers tore down the field with the ball at their will, but a Brinton player unfortunately gave away a goal when he accidentally handled inside the dreaded territory. Buchanan (Capt.) changed his marksman this time by instructing his versatile man, N. Downer with the kick, who put his team ahead once more with the score at three to two. Individuality crept into the tactis of the winners' attack, thereby making the game full of disconstrued mavements detrimental to any front rank that indulged in the desire to score when a partner was in a better position to register. This method of attack left the losers in a position to offset the movement of any individual by peppering the Packers' goal with all kinds of shots. On one occasion, Wallie James beat three men on a solo run up the centre of the field. The full backs claimed off-side but the player was in a legitimate position when he took possession of the sphere but his parting shot just missed the upright by inches amidst a great shot of goal. unchan noticed that James had the better of the arguments in any tussle and he consolidated his personality with the Brinton center for the remainder of the game. Well he did so because James raised seige after seige against the Packers' citadel that good luck only saved. He tackled in mid-field for the ball, beat his man cleverly, swerved away from the next opponent to slip it past the next man, while he worked his way past the defence. Griffin run out of goal to make a clearance as James touched the ball past him but it rolled on the outside of the upright to the delight of the Packers' full backs. The last part of this half undoubtedly proved the Brinton team far superior in every department and if it had not been for Buchan giving his team-mates a piece of advice they would not have won the trophy. The Brinton men endeavoured to pull the battle into the equalising column again just before the whistle announced the final ninety minutes. Canadian Packing 3, Brinton Athletic 2.

Local Electrics Tangle With Belleville In Exhibition Fixture.

IN EXHIBITION PARK

James Stevenson Park tomorrow morning will be the scene of the big exhibition game in which the C. G. E. team clashes with the Belleville Nationals. This game should furnish fans with the best ball spectacle of the season, and will give them an opportunity to judge the strength of Art Primeau's club.

The Nationals are bringing their whole outfit along, which includes players seen in action by local fans for many seasons.

The battle will get underway at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Imagine the sad case of "Killer" Kelly, the star captain and fullback of the Atlanta pen, who was pardoned on the day before the big game with Sing Sing.

COURSE IN GREAT SHAPE

By Ralph H. Reville
Editor of "Canadian Golfer"
(Special to Examiner Copyright 1930.)

TORONTO, June 30. —A recent visit to Ancaster demonstrated that the course of the Hamilton Golf and Country Club is in superb shape for the Open Championship of Canada to be held there next month on the 24th, 25th and 26th. Leo Diegel the defending champion and the other stars who will participate in the event will not be able to complain of course conditions if they do not register record making scores. The fairways throughout are a ribbon of green simply inviting shots with the wood whilst every green is well nigh puttingly perfect.

Several minor improvements and changes are being made to the course. Extra traps are in process of construction around the third, sixth, thirteen and seventeenth greens which will stiffen up these holes. Twenty yards has been added to the length of the first hole, thirty yards on the twelfth and fifty yards is now the yardage of the course.

The length of the course, 6470 yards, is an excellent one, although about 200 to 250 yards less than the average championship courses in Great Britain and the States. There is however, a particularly fine balance of holes. Mr. Henry Colt, the famous British Golf architect never did a better job than his creation at Ancaster. It ranks as one of his outstanding courses. The magnificent new club house with its artistic surroundings of sloping lawns gay with flowers and shrubs, is a fitting crown to the glorious course.

The last time the Canadian Open was played in Hamilton, was in 1919 when the late J. Douglas Edgar made the record making score of 278 for the course. This was the best score ever recorded in the Canadian Open until last year at Kanawaki, Montreal, Diegel registered 274. If the weather conditions are favorable on July 25th and 26th at Ancaster, with the great galaxy of stars who have signified their intention of entering it would not be at all surprising if Edgar's total is not equalled, although the course to-day is both longer and stiffer than when he collected his glittering total.

The U. S. Open Championship is to be held July 10th-11th and 12th at the Interlachen Club, Minneapolis and the greater number of the leading entrants will come on to Hamilton for the Canadian Open. The majority of them have not played the Ancaster course having risen to fame since 1919. Diegel however, then a mere youth took part in the Championship on that occasion and was in fifth place with a score of 295 or 17 strokes back of Edgar the winner. All the outstanding Canadian professionals and amateurs will be at Ancaster next month and it is rather hoped that Bobbie Jones too, may decide to go after the only great Championship he has not annexed. He would be a stellar attraction. Record galleries in any event are assured as Hamilton is most accessible to leading golf centres both in Canada and the States.

A meeting of the Executive of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, was held the week end of June 21st at the country residence at Knowlton, Que., of the President, Mr. Alfred Collyer, of Montreal. Matters were discussed and decided upon in connection with the holding of the Open Championship at Hamilton, next month, the Amateur at London in August and the Inter-provincial at Toronto, August 2nd. It is announced that at the Inter-provincial very strong teams from British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba and Saskatchewan will compete for the Governor General's Cup in addition to Ontario and Quebec. The members of these teams will all afterwards participate in the Amateur Championship giving that event a really Dominion-wide complexion.

Bobby Jones pays this tribute to "Auld St. Andrew's" and the British Amateur Championship—"Every time I play St. Andrews I get to love it more. It is one of those courses which has a personality and charm of its own. And I realise that there I have now won the oldest title in amateur golf. To my mind, the British Amateur Championship is just about the most difficult title in the world to win. I was lucky to win it but you have to be lucky to win any championship. One thing that helped me to win was the sportsmanship of the crowds. I think the biggest gallery I have ever played before in Britain, came out to witness the final. The gallery of St. Andrews understands golf and is as appreciative as it is sympathetic. You cannot help knowing that the crowd realizes your feelings and wishes to help."

It looks as though the impossible, as it was thought, may happen and that Lloyds of London, now stand a fairly good chance to lose that fifty to one bet ghey made that Bobby Jones, could not win the four major championships of 1930, the British Amateur and Open and the U. S. Amateur and Open. He is already off to a fine start by annexing the two former and on his wonderful form this season, it is quite on the cards that he might win the latter two during the next few weeks. A syndicate of friends in Atlanta, cabled $5,000 on these terms to Lloyds and if the great Georgian should show out in front in the U.S. Amateur and Open, they stand to pick up $250,000 of good British gold. Jones is not only a wonder-golfer but he seems to have cast the inferiority complex spell over all his opponents, both amateur and professional.

DELORO JRS. BEATEN BY POINT ANNE

Catcher McInroy is Injured in the Fourth Innings.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MARMORA, June 30. — Through an injury to Catcher McInroy in the fourth innings, Deloro Juniors were forced to utilize an intermediate substitute in their game with Point Anne on Saturday and in the game thus forfeited, went under to the tune of 5 to 1.

A fair crowd witnessed the encounter. Dunkerley, the new recruit from Peterborough started on the mound for Deloro and with the exception of the third innings when he was a little wild, lasted well for five frames. In the sixth, Callery took over and obtained nine of the thirteen strikeouts coming to Deloro. W. Loft pitched the major portion of the game for the victors with Rosebery taking the last two innings. Play was even for three innings, no score resulting. A timely hit and a couple of errors in the fourth yielded three runs to the Cement boys. In the sixth and eighth lone counters brought their total to five. Deloro replied with a single registered by Jack Brady in the ninth on a bunt play by Hugh Brady. The fielding and hitting of Whitehead, the diminutive Point Anne player was a feature of the game as well as the good play on third base by Hewitt of the home team. After the game the injury to McInroy's teeth received dental attention and he is expected to be fit for Tuesday's encounter with Belleville Moose.

TORONTO LEAFS IN THIRD PLACE PASS THE ROYALS

Maple Leafs and Jersey City Rochester Maintains Its Half in International.

WINS DOUBLE HEADER.

Skeeters Put Up Real Race Game Lead Over Baltimore.

The rise of the Toronto Maple Leafs and the Jersey City Skeeters is going far toward making an already close International League race just that much closer. Jersey City, of course, does not figure as a pennant contender, but the Skeeters have been making things mighty uncomfortable for all rivals during the past eight days.

Since June 22 Toronto has set the pace for the whole league with seven victories and three defeats. Jersey City is close behind with seven victories and four defeats. The net result has been to place Toronto in third place and Jersey City only two and one-half games out of fifth place where a month ago the Skeeters were close to the cellar.

Wins Double Bill.

Toronto moved into third place yesterday by winning a twin-bill from Montreal which fell back to fourth position. Nearly 20,000 spectators saw the Leafs win the first game 11-10 in 11 innings, and second game 5-3. The first game was exactly what the score would indicate, awful, free-slugging battle, when hits were pounded out and seven hurlers used. The score was tied five times in all before the Leafs finally managed to score the winning run. Sam Gibson outpitched Smith and Pomorski by a wide margin in the nightcap although five passes got him into difficulties at times.

Jersey City whipped Reading twice 5-12 and 1-0. The first game, which went 16 innings, was decided when Julian Wera connected for a home run with Veach and Oss on bases. This contest was a thriller all the way and a tough one for Herrman, Reading hurler, to lose. Herrman went the route for the Keys and held Jersey City to 12 hits in 16 innings.

Moore slided the route for the Keys and held Jersey City to 12 hits in 16 innings. Moore and Miner divided pitching duty for Jersey City. Jess Bream halted the Keys with two hits in the nightcap and never was in trouble. Jersey City got only four hits off Carts and Wollfolk, but won the game in the first inning when Max West doubled after Pittinger had walked.

Retains Lead.

Rochester maintained its half game lead over Baltimore by splitting a double bill with Buffalo, while Baltimore was doing the same thing at Newark.

Rochester won the first game, 12-4, ten of the Redwings' runs coming across on home runs by Carleton, Southworth and Wilson. Spectacular relief pitching by Dave Danforth enabled the Bisons to win the second game 5-4. Danforth relieved Mills with the bases filled in the third inning and one out, retired the side without a score and held the Redwings safe the rest of the way. Danforth struck out seven, including the side in the sixth inning.

Baltimore took the opener from Newark, 15-5, as Joe Hause hits his 26th and 26th home runs of the season, but Newark pounced three Oriole pitchers for 11 hits and a 9-4 triumph in the nightcap. Manager Al Mamaux started the second game for Newark, but was forced to retire in the first inning when he was spiked by Gill at first base.

CHICAGO CUBS CAPTURE LEAD IN THE NATIONAL

Crippled Club Team Refuses to be Downed or Beaten.

WIN 11 OUT OF 13 GAMES.

Cards and Braves Picked Up Two Full Games Yesterday.

Famous sport sayings attributed to Princeton's aggressive football coach, Bill Roper, is that "the team that won't be beat can't be beat" and in baseball this season that team appears to be the Chicago Cubs.

It has been a somewhat crippled Cub team lacking, Rogers Hornsby and occassionally a few other regulars that has been battling its way upward through the National League and finally has wrested first place from the Brooklyn Robins. The Cubs have refused to be downed despite their various misfortunes, and even losing the first game of their series to the Robins failed to daunt them. They came back to win the next three finally capturing the league lead yesterday by beating Brooklyn 5 to 1.

The Cubs have won 11 of their last 13 games, starting when they played their last game in New York before returning home for a long stand. And these victories have placed them a full game ahead of the Robins. Their lead is only nine percentage points, however, due to the fact that they have played four more games than the Robins. In addition they set a record for attendance in the series with Brooklyn, drawing 47,000 fans yesterday to bring the total of 140,000 for the series.

Secure Only 7 Hits

Brooklyn made it a sad celebration of Manager Wilbert Robinson's 66th birthday by getting only seven hits off Charley Root and failing to take advantage of the few opportunities the Cubs offered. Chicago got to Hollis Thurston in the fourth for three runs to win the game.

The St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Braves had almost as much cause for rejoicing as the Cubs yesterday although they could not alter the standing. The Cards picked up two full games on the New York Giants, winding up only one game out of third place, by winning a pair of close decisions. The scores were 3 to 2 and 5 to 4. Sylvester Johnson and Bill Hallahan held the Giants to a total of eleven hits in the two games. The Braves likewise won both ends of a double header the league's tail-enders, Boston and Chicago divided a double header. The Red Sox made it eight straight over their Chicago rivals by taking the first 10 to 6, but the White Hose reversed the decision, 2 to 1, in the second game as Ted Lyons bested Jack Russell to gain his eleventh victory of the season.

Softball Notes.

Tonight at Brinton Carpet grounds the Brintons and Harrison will hold forth. Both teams will be right on edge for tonight's battle and will give the south end fans a good bill of softball. The game starts at 6.30 sharp.

There will be no game Tuesday night but on Wednesday Belmonts and C.G.E. meet in an important game. Both teams are bunched up in second place and the game means a great deal to both aggregations.

The Belmont Club are proving the heaviest hitting and run-getting aggregation in the league. The Clubmen have scored 109 runs in eight games.

The Sugar Bowl, league leaders of the local softball group, are planning an exhibition game with Apsley, which in all probability will be played Wednesday afternoon, July 9.

HOLY NAME JRS. BADLY BEATEN IN LEAGUE GAME

Kiwanis Are Superior in Every Position in Saturday's Game.

SCORE IS 18 TO 3.

Ten Runs Are Secured By Winners in First Two Innings of Game.

The Kiwanis Juniors slugged their way to a decisive 18-3 victory over the East City Holy Name Juniors in a nine-innings battle on Saturday at the Exhibition Grounds. The winners were superior to their rivals in every department and cinched the game in the first two innings by securing ten runs, when Busby, the opposing hurler, walked three and failed to hold the runners on the bases. Busby was relieved near the first of the second innings by C. Dorrington, who turned in a great fielding game, but was touched freely and finished the game. McGillen replaced O'Rourke behind the bat for the losers in the second innings and played a good game, but was slow in his throw to second.

The winners poled out thirteen safe hits, one a clean home run into centre by Saunders and a three-bagger by Foley which scored two runs. Dave McCullough hammered out a two-bagger which also sent two runners in.

Pitched Nice Ball.

Cripp twirling for the Kiwanis, dished up a nice brand of ball and although he passed four and hit one, he was able to fan eleven in seven innings when he was replaced by Hillier, a left-hander, who finished the game without trouble.

The East City team secured two of their counters in the fourth when Adamson hit through second with the bases loaded, sending two tallies across. The losers, however, were weak on the pitching and seemed to lack finish in their fielding, but the addition of two new players would make the team a crew to be reckoned with.

ST. PAUL'S SUNDAY SCHOOL HOLDS BIG PICNIC AT COBOURG

One Largest Picnics in History of Congregation is Held.

SPORTS PROGRAM.

Beneath smiling skies in Cobourg's Lakeside Park, St. Paul's annual Sunday School picnic took place Saturday afternoon, described as "one of the most successful community affairs Peterborough has seen in years." For the children there were races, ice-cream cones, prizes. Even the adults forgot their work-a-day dignity long enough to indulge in races, softball games and horse-shoe pitching. For everyone the tables literally groaned with food and drink.

"There are more people here and they seem to be having a better time than I can remember since I came to St. Paul's" declared O. M. Steer, Superintendent of the Sunday School.

The men's organization, the Men of St. Paul's, were in charge of the affair. The Ladies' Aid looked after the supper. The crowds were transported to Cobourg and back in busses, private cars, and taxis.

One of the features of the day was the horseshoe-pitching contest under the guidance of Harry Morgan. Webster Armstrong and Fred Rowan were declared horseshoe champions of St. Paul's.

A softball team under the captaincy of Clarafee Patterson staged a last-inning rally to capture a free-hitting five-inning contest to the tune of 15-9 from a team under the pitching arm of Beatrice Ross. The opposing teams, composed of 5 boys and 5 girls each, indulged in some heavy slugging before the result was decided. Some good pitching was offered up on both side, but was counterbalanced by hectic fielding.

The score by innings:

Patterson ..... 2 2 3 1 7—15
Ross ..... 2 0 5 2 0— 9

Umpires: Ferguson behind the bat, G. A. Macdonald on bases.

A very fast softball contest after supper resulted in a triumph for the Married Men over the Single Men. The score was 9—7, and a last-minute rally did it. Eleven men faced the losing pitcher in the last frame before the final out was made. O. M. Steer's good right arm received credit for the victory. The score by innings:

Married Men..... 0000081—9
Single Men..... 3102100—7

Umpires: Bert Reid behind the plate; Clara Petterson on bases.

The foot and obstacle races filled most of the afternoon. Prizes were distributed after supper by Rev. Mr. Allan, H. Dodds, and C. W. Anderson.

The results of the races were as follows:

NOVEL COURSE FOR GOLFER IS BEING OPENED

Miniature Course Situated on Site of Old Bowling Greens.

OPENS JULY 1.

18 of the Trickiest Holes You Ever Saw Are Promised.

A novel addition to Peterborough's summer sports will be made to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock when the Mite-Tee-Green Miniature Golf course on the site of the old Bowling Greens at the corner of Aylmer and Hunter is formally opened by His Worship, Mayor Denne; J. F. Strickland, M.P.P.; Joseph Wearing, City Solicitor; and Chris. Graham, Manager of the Empress Hotel.

"These are about the trickiest 18 holes you ever saw in your life" declared Ray Paquette, manager of the course, speaking to The Examiner this morning. "Par for the course will be around 52. But they won't break par very easily."

The Examiner representative, inspecting the transformed terrain, did indeed see a sporting course. A tricky set of traps features the first hole, while the second boasts a challenging hill. The fourth hole presents a water hazard in the form of a deep trough. Tunnels on the fifth and sixth make them about as sporting as any holes on the course. Logs dominate the seventh, while the ninth is important as the only all-grass hole. At the turn, the tenth hole pits itself against the golfer's skill with the necessity for a difficult carom shot. The fourteenth features a platform tee, the sixteenth an elaborate pipe arrangement, and the seventh a double water hazard. At the long eighteenth when the player has sunk his final putt, the ball disappears into a locked box.

Golf at its Best

That this is miniature golf at its best is the claim of the manager. It is primarily a game of skill, he said, a chance for the player to pit himself against odds. It had its appeal not only for the seasoned golfer, but for the novice who had never had a club in his hands. Clubs and balls are supplied by the management, although the golfer had the right to bring along his favourite club if he chose. The putter is the club recommended, but it is possible to go around with the jigger or some other pet club. "This course will provide an excellent chance for the player to gain confidence in the handling of clubs" stated Mr. Paquette.

Floodlights will permit play until midnight or later, announced the manager, while strings of coloured lights will present a carnival effect. The woodwork of the course is done in orange and black, and the course has been constructed entirely by local workmen. There will be, within a week or so, according to Mr. Paquette, a driving lot for the benefit of hardened campaigners. A parking lot is provided, as well as a Canteen and all sanitary conveniences. The teeing off will be done on cocoa-mats.

RENE LACOSTE TO BE MARRIED

Tennis Star is Marrying First Woman Golfer of WEDDING TO-DAY. France.

PARIS, France, June 30.—(C.P.)—Rene Lacoste who in the past has held the French, British and American tennis titles will be married today to Mme. Simon De La Chaume, first woman golfer of France.

The wedding, which will take place at the Church of Ste. Clothilde will be among the most fashionable events of the season. It has been often postponed due to a condition in La Coste's lungs brought about by playing tennis in the rain. This condition he has overcome.

Jean Borotra and Henri Cochet, French tennis stars, will fly from Wimbledon, England, to be present at the wedding. M. and Mme. Lacoste will leave after the wedding on an airplane honeymoon tour of Europe.

And then there is Rudy Vallee, a Yale graduate, getting his nine thousand a week for singing love songs. It just goes to show what a college education will do for a man.

TORONTO TEAM UNABLE TO COME

Cricket Club is Unable to Schedule Game For July 1st.

U. S. CLUB HERE ON 15TH.

Word has been received from the Birchcliffe Cricket Club that they will be unable to send a team to play the local club on July 1. Owing to the fact that the notice of this cancellation was so late, it has been found impossible for the secretary of the local club to obtain another game. Several clubs were approached for this purpose, and a special trip was made to Toronto on Saturday, but unfortunately to no avail.

One very important game, however, has been arranged for July 15 at the Oval, with the Ardmore Cricket Club of Philadelphia. This game should prove an attraction. On July 12 the local club visits Armour Heights, where they will play Brantford in the first qualifying round of the Ross Robertson Cup.

All players desiring to be chosen on the team for that day must turn out to practice regularly as this will be the main consideration of the selection committee, when choosing the team for that big game. Practices will be held regularly, Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings at 6.15.

If Peterborough survives the first round they are drawn to play the Yorkshire Cricket Club on the following Saturday at the Oval.

There is a full practice to-night, and every player is urged to be on hand.

YANKEE GIRL II FIRST TO FINISH

Only One Yacht Fails to Finish 660 Mile Ocean Race.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, June 30.—(C.P.)—With the Ketch Tanager owned by P. M. Runyon of New Brighton, N.Y., the only entry not across the finish line, the largest fleet ever entered in an ocean race has completed the 660-miles jaunt from New London to Bermuda.

The 42 yachts which set sail from the connecticut port last Sunday, finished the race under excellent weather conditions.

G. W. Warren's Yankee Girl II., driven hard all the way, was the first boat across, followed by T. Floyd Jones' Fame, the scratch boat, and J. G. Alden's Labar X.

Alden's yacht won first prize in Class A., while R. W. Ferris' little schooner Malay, only 45 feet in length, carried off the honors in Class B, and managed to beat all the larger class boats on corrected time, winning the Bermuda trophy for the first boat, rating all classes together. Tergram, G. W. Mixter's New York owned schooner, was second in Class A, with O. J. Stephen's Dorade, a yawl, second in the class for smaller boats. The Yankee Girl II. won the trophy for being the first yacht to finish the long course.

The City League is offering fans a big double-header bill at James Stevenson Park to-morrow afternoon. At 2 o'clock the Kiwanis and East City Holy Name teams clash in a Junior game and at 4 o'clock the Athletics play the Maple Leafs in a Bantam game. SCOTS VS. C.G.E. WEDNESDAY NIGHT

In An Important League Match on King Edward Park. Kick-off at Six-thirty.

On Wednesday evening, on King Edward Park, another important soccer game will be played between the Caledonians and the Canadian General in a League game. Kick-off at 6.30. The official referee will be appointed this evening at the meeting of the executive, in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms at eight o'clock.

The Canadian General need the two points so that they will remain in the running for the League championship. In the Scots' line-up a few new men appear for the first time, and their executive are endeavoring to build up a winning team, and the line-up reads thus: J. Ward, goal; J. Pottie and A. Boggie, full backs; A. Emery, T. Craig, and A. Clyde, halves; A. McCracken, J. Cook, R. Curtain, D. Best and A. S. Coyle, forwards. Reserves: S. Agnew, R. Graham and T. Williams. In all probability the C.G.E. eleven will be chosen before the match starts.

There is no game scheduled for tomorrow, the football fans always recognizing that date as a respite from soccer activities. All members of the executive are requested to attend at eight o'clock prompt to-night.

A BEDTIME STORY
by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PAIL OF WATER.

Uncle Wiggily had so many newlittle rabbit boys and girls that he was often kept busy teaching them things they should learn so they would be able to take care of themselves when they grew up.

Mothers and fathers of boys and girls must start with the babies, teaching them how to eat, how to dress themselves and how to tie knots in their shoe laces.

So with rabbits, Uncle Wiggily had to teach his little ones how to nibble carrots ,how to keep away from poison berries in the woods and how to run fast and hide under the ferns when a Fox or Bob cat chased them.

And there is something else I must teach you little bunnies," said Uncle Wiggily to half a dozen of the newest boy and girl rabbits one morning. I must teach you how to dig a burrow, or underground tunnel house."

But, Daddicums, aren't we always going to live with you in the hollow stump bungalow?" asked Whizzie.

No, indeed!" exclaimed Mr. Longears. When you grow up you will have a hollow stump bungalow of your own. But there are times when you will want to live in a burrow or hole under the ground. So I must teach you how to dig one with your front paws. Come with me and we shall have a lesson in dirt digging."

It was easy for the little rabbits to do this, for their father led them to a soft place at the far end of his garden, near where the giant head of lettuce grew. One after another of the new bunnies scratched in the dirt with their paws, learning how to dig a burrow.

That's enough for to-day," said Uncle Wiggily after a while. Now I will dig a deep burrow in which you may play if you wish."

It did not take Uncle Wiggily long to make a deep, slanting hole in the earth and he left his children playing there while he hopped off to have a game of checker with Uncle Butter the goat.

It was after this game had been played that Uncle Wiggily, on his way back home, thought of the little bunnies he had left at the play burrow hole.

I must stop and see that none of them has fallen asleep in the hole, thought Mr. Longears. One or two might be left behind when the others hopped home. So, reaching the hole he had dug, Uncle Wiggily crawled down in it to make sure none of his little tots were there.

It was just at this time that the Fuzzy Fox, sneaking through the woods, saw Uncle Wiggily go down in the burrow.

Oh, ho!" said the Fox to himself. This is lucky for me! I shall just sit down here near this hole and wait for Uncle Wiggily to come out. When he goes I'll catch him!"

So the Fox sat down beside the hole to wait like a cat watching for a mouse. Uncle Wiggily, having made sure there were none of his little bunnies asleep in the burrow he had dug as a play-house for them turned around and started to come out. He did not know the Fox was there waiting for him.

But Uncle Wiggily was a wise old rabbit, and he never hopped out of an underground hole without first thrusting up his pink nose the least teeny, weeny bit and sniffing and snuffing to make sure he could smell no danger. And when he had done that this time, Uncle Wiggily smelled the Fox, and, taking a careful look, the rabbit saw the Bad Chap sitting outside the hole, waiting for him.

'Ha! He thinks he is going to catch me!" chuckled Mr. Longears. "But I'll fool him! I'll dig a back door to this burrow and skip out that way."

Uncle Wiggily was just going to do this when he heard the Fox say:

"Ha! You are just in time, Mr. Bob Cat, with that pail of water. Let me take it."

"What do you want of my pail of water?" asked the Bob Cat. Uncle Wiggily looked out and saw the other Bad Chap, with a large pail of water, near where the Fuzzy Fox was waiting at the hole.

"Uncle Wiggily is down there," growled the Fox, pointing with his paw. "I have been waiting a long time for him to come out, but he is too slow. If you will pour your pail of water down in that hole, Uncle Wiggily will have to scramble out quickly or be drowned. And when he comes out we can catch him. Go on, pour the water in the hole!"

"All right!" mewed the Bob Cat. "I will!" He lifted the pail of water to pour down the rabbit's burrow.

"Oh, what can I do?" thought poor Uncle Wiggily. "Before I can dig my way out by a back door I'll be drowned! Oh, dear!"

FAMOUS AIRMAN KILLED IN CRASH AT THUNDER BAY

Horror Stricken Throng of 3,000 See Fatal Plunge of Major J. O. Leach, M.C.

IN STUNTING EXHIBIT.

Engine Apparently Stalled While Attempting Loop at Port Arthur.

PORT ARTHUR, June 30.—Major John O. Leach, M.C., 35, resident of Barrie, and veteran of the Air Service in the war, plunged to his death while engaged in a series of aerial acrobatics before an estimated crowd of 3,000 persons here Sunday afternoon. The fatal plunge into the waters of Thunder Bay, not a hundred yards in front of the C.P.R. depot, and the Prince Arthur Hotel, was made as he was attempting to turn upwards in the third of a series of three loops. Apparently he had miscalulated distance so that the altitude was too low for a successful loop or his engine stalled.

The crowd, thrilled by his previous exploits, gasped in horror as the machine failed to take the upturn and plunged headlong into the water with a splash and a crash.

Major Leach had been entertaining the crowds for about 15 minutes with various tricks—spirals, banking, gliding and looping. One of his thrilling stunts had been to ride as if on one wing. Several times he had swooped down so low over the city streets as to alarm watchers.

It was while this program was being given in the air that the crowds who could see them from all parts of the city, began to gather at the waterfront where machines of the Ontario Air Service have been moored during the past few weeks of use in the fire-fighting service.

Body Recovered

Immediately after the crash hurried efforts were made to get apparatus for raising the machine and in three-quarters of an hour, it was lifted from the water by a derrick. The body of the airman was taken from the cockpit.

Leach was assistant to Captain Roy Maxwell, director of the Ontario Air Service and his headquarters were at the Sault. He had been here some time associated with the work of air transportation related to the fighting of forest fires in the district. The plane in which he made the fatal plunge, was a new all-metal Hamilton. Leach's hame was in Barrie, where he leaves a widow and three children. He was a member during the war of the famous 56 with Bishop, Ball and McCudden, V.C., winners. After being shot down in 1917 and losing a leg, he recovered and returned to service to finish out the war.

HORSE PARADE STARTS 10 A.M.

Parade Will Form Up at Exhibitions Grounds.

Peterborough's first annual horse parade sponsored by the local branch of the Humane Society, which is to be held to-morrow morning, promises to provide a fine Dominion Day attractive, which will doubtless bring numerous people in from the surrounding district. The parade is primarily conducted as a means of stimulating added interest and care in our dumb beasts of burden, who patiently toil in all seasons of the year. For weeks past the horse population of the city has been afforded a little more attention than is usual, if such a thing is possible in Peterborough, where the sleek horses of the various manufacturers and railway companies are objects of pride and examples of the humaneness and capability of the drivers.

At ten o'clock the parade will form at the Exhibition Grounds, and late entries will be received up to the time of moving off at 11.30. The parade will go via George Street to Confederation Square, where the judges, Wm. Maher of Cobourg and Mr. Baird of Oshawa will award the first prize of a silver cup for the best horse on show.

The space for advertisement for July first celebration which appeared on Friday, June 27, was donated by Stocks Bread Co.

ROTARY HEARS DR. C. V. McLEAN

Canada Holds Position of International Mediator in World.

EXPECT EXPANSION.

Canada holds a position in the world which affords it an opportunity to act as an international mediator, declared Rev. Dr. Charles V. McLean, Ph.D., of St. Andrew's United Church, addressing the Rotary Club at luncheon to-day. She is in a position to mediate between the two great Anglo-Saxon nations of the world, United States and Great Britain, and also between the Greater nations and the smaller nations, he said.

Dr. McLean stated that Canada, although a minor nation as far as population is concerned, is granted a status somewhere between that of a major nation and a minor nation by the other nations of the world due to the fact that it is an integral part of the British Empire. It is in this status that it has its opportunity to mediate between the major and minor nations, he said and due to its geographical relation with the United States and its political relation with Great Britain it has the opportunity of mediating between the two Anglo-Saxon nations.

Dr. McLean's address was on the subject of the future of Canada. Expressing the thought of Rousseau, "Insight produces foresight" he said that by looking into the history of a people one may reasonably foretell the future of the people.

"We may reasonably look for territorial expansion in Canada in the future," he said. "As yet Canada consists of a settled strip between 49 degrees and 55 degrees latitude. The Dominion has yet the strip between 55 and 75 degrees latitude to claim. By whom it is to be settled is the important question."

He pointed out the importance to Canada of the immigration and emmigration problems reminding that they are very closely connected with the matter of territorial expansion.

A very pretty and interesting wedding took place on Thursday evening, June 26th, at the Beacon House, Brookline, Massachusetts, when Ruth, only child of Mr. and Mrs. H. Abramson, Homewood Avenue, Peterborough, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Jason D. Rudnick of Brookline, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudnick of Brookline.

To the strains of the wedding march played by the Brookline Orchestra, the wedding party arrived. Twelve ushers preceded the bride and bridegroom and attendants. Taking their places on the wedding stairs, which were decorated with flowers and ribbons, they supported an aisle of ribboned arches that extended to the canopy where the ceremony was performed.

Then came the parents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Rudnick, followed by the bridegroom and the groomsman and the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Abramson of Peterborough. The maid of honor came next, Miss Ruth Greene of Brookline, a cousin of the bride.

The bride, who came next, was beautifully attired in a gown of white satin trimmed with lace and silver. The dress was made in bouffant style and had a train of white satin lined with white chiffon. The bridal veil, five yards in length, was of chiffon trimmed with very fine lace and orange blossoms. It was held by a dainty flower girl, Miss Harriet Coleman.

The bride's shoes were of white kid trimmed with silver, and worn with matching hose. White kid gloves completed her costume.

Her bouquet was of white and pink roses, bridal wreath and maidenhair fern. Long showers of satin and silver ribbons were tied with bridal wreath in true lovers' knots, over the stems of the flowers.

At the foot of the steps, the bride was met by her father and mother, who accompanied her to the canopy through the archway provided by the ushers. Under the canopy, the bride was given in marriage by her father, and the ceremony, performed in Hebrew and English, was solemnized by two Rabbis from Coolidge Corners Synagogue, Brookline.

During the ceremony, a sacred song was rendered in Hebrew by a friend of the bridegroom. The friends and relatives of the bridal party were seated in a circle around the canopy.

Immediately after the ceremony, the bride and bridegroom, accompanied by their parents and the guests, returned to the adjoining room which was arranged with flowers and ribbon streamers. Here one hundred and fifty guests were entertained at a bridal dinner served at tables beautifully decorated with flowers, ribbons and candles. In the centre of the bride's table were tiny cards of best wishes and good luck arranged in the shapes of a horse, a shoe and a bird. The Beacon House catered for the six-course dinner and the waitresses wore bridal be-ribboned favors. During dinner, many speeches of congratulation and good wishes were given and several telegrams were read from those unable to be present.

An evening of dancing and social enteratinment followed, concluding at midnight, when Mr. Rudnick and his bride left for New York, where they will sail for Miami, Florida, where their honeymoon will be spent. On their return, they will visit the bride's parents in Peterborough before returning to live in Brookline, Massachusetts.

JOE WRIGHT BEATS GROVES AT HENLEY

JUNE BUILDING TOTALS $484,105

Building Record Set

Permits Taken Out in June Valued at Nearly Half a Million.

TWO FACTORY JOBS.

Thirty-two Permits Were Issued By Engineer During Month.

Building in Peterborough reached a new high record for all time during the month of June, mounting the city's building operations for the first six months of this year to more than double the figures set in the same period last year. In fact the estimated cost of the permits for building taken out last month from the city engineer's office totalled close to half a million dollars. These estimates are made by the contractors on the various jobs and may vary slightly either way on each separate permit.

TOTAL VALUE $484,105

The value of the buildings for the construction of which permits were issued in June reached the impressive total of $484,105, making a new record for any single month in the city's history.

In all there were thirty-one permits issued, but permits for the erection of two factory buildings made up a vast part of the total value. One of these was for A. Wander Company's Ovaltine plant now under construction and the other was accounted for by the new Switch Board Building of the Canadian General Electric Company now being rushed to completion. For the Wander plant the estimated cost was fixed at $215,000 and for the C. G. E. addition $247,000. Both of these factories are being put up by T. A. Brown and Company, builders of this city and Toronto.

Last month's figures dwarfs the figures set for the same month in 1929, when building totalled only $181,445.

Again the activity in large building operations in the city this year as compared with last is reflected in the great increase in the totals for the first six months of each year. This year at the half way mark the buildings costs amounted to $593,370, being more than double the $251,055 total set from January to June in 1929.

Other Important Jobs

Other important permits issued last month besides the two for factories were two taken out by the Peterborough Transport Company for work on the new bus terminal on King street. One for $1,500 was taken out by the bus company for the erection of a service station and a canopy on the terminal, and the other amounted to $3,000 for the installation of a new heating system in the building, laying of a cement floor and the lowering of the ceiling.

Taking the permits according to classification there were issued last month as follows: 7 for garages, totalling $2,490; 2 for dwellings for a total value of $8,600; one service station, value of $1,500; 21 miscellaneous for a value of $471,515.

CITY SUCCESSFULLY DEFENDED WHEN RANGERS STAGE REALISTIC SHAM BATTLE AT RIFLE RANGES

Wrong Man Slain In Gangsters' Duel

CHICAGO, Ills., July 2 (Canadian Press). — Gang gunners stood in the glare of the bright lights of South State Street last night and made an unsuccessful attempt to assassinate Jack Zuta, gangster.

A man was killed. Another was wounded. In the excitement Zuta and three companions disappeared. The gunmen escaped behind a smoke screen emitted from the exhaust of their car.

A police officer emptied his revolver at the gunmen who, however, apparently escaped unhurt.

The man killed was Elbert Lusader, 38 years old, motorman on a street car. A bullet from the pistol of one of the attackers penetrated his neck.

Three Companies, Led By Major Winterbottom, Rout Attackers.

STIFF HOUR'S SCRAP.

Throngs of Spectators Thrilled As Verey Lights Outline Battle Field.

Advance! The order could be heard faintly as it was repeated by the platoon commanders to their men hidden from view by a slight rise. A moment later dusky crouching figures could be seen coming over the top of the hill on the run. The attack was on!

Fifteen hundred people from Peterborough who had journeyed to the Rifle Ranges on the Norwood Road Monday night to see the great sham battle staged in connection with the Rangers' camp, turned their eyes towards the mimic battle field. Another wave of men appeared shortly and then another to the left of the first. All advanced swiftly but without a sound. They paused for a moment but soon the orders for further advance were given and the dark forms continued stealthily with arms at the trail.

Suddenly a verey light was shot into the sky from across the battle field from the enemy outpost lines. For the space of several seconds the entire country-side was illuminated with a brilliant greenish-white light which brought out the attacking men in sharp relief. The enemy had discovered the attack! The boom-boom of a vigorous artillerly fire commenced from the enemy lines. The vicious rat-tat-tat-tat of machine guns, the spating of hundreds of rifles and the sharp reports of heavy guns broke the quiet which had blanketed the scene but a few minutes before.

Attackers Advanced.

The attackers, undeterred by the terrific fire, continued to advance in waves driving at the outpost position of the encamped enemy. Another verey light arched through the sky throwing its brilliant, ghastly light over the battle field. Machine gunners and snipers in the enemy lines redoubled their fire. The foremost wave of the attackers hesitated again returned the defenders' fire from prone position. When the advance was resumed again many forms were left behind sprawled motionless in grotesque positions on the ground.

Behind a slight rise in the field but a few hundred feet from the enemy outpost entrenchment the first wave of attackers took a stand. Enemy rockets revealed the drifting smoke from the rows of spitting rifles. Minute after minute passed but the fire from both sides continued unabated. A heavy toll was taken in the ranks of both the attackers and the defenders. The outpost of the enemy was re-inforced by troops from the main

Great National Highway Visualized—Would Boost Revenues.

WOODSTOCK, N.C., July 2 (By Thomas Green, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent). — On the beginning of Canada's sixty-fourth milestone—as he himself aptly termed it—Hon. R. B. Bennett delivered his Dominion Day speech here yesterday. Criticism of the Government's claim for reducing taxation, a recent report of the Quebec Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Perron) indicating the depleted state of the agricultural industry, and the visualization of a great national highway, all found place in the speech of the Opposition leader.

Before he entered into a discussion of these subjects, Mr. Bennett paused to pay tribute to the old Conservative chieftain and Canada's first Prime Minister—Sir John A. Macdonald. Liberals had protested, Mr. Bennett went on, against these great Conservative undertakings, but despite their protests the work was carried to completion again. Liberals under Sir Wilfrid Laurier had raised the

AUSTRALIA WAITS FEDERAL BUDGET WITH HIGH HOPES

Country's Finances Occasion Gov't and People Much Worry.

ANNOUNCED JULY 8.

Theodore Proposals Expected to Contain Plans For Tax on U. S. Film Earning.

CANBERRA, Australia, July 2 (C.P. Cable, via Reuters).—Not for many years has an Australian Federal Budget been awaited with such anticipation as that which the Hon. W. G. Theodore, Treasurer of the Commonwealth, will disclose on July 8.

With the country's finances occasioning the Government and people no little worry; with Australia in common with the rest of the world, experiencing the rigors of economic depression; with the drastic emergency tariff on imports in effect, it is felt that Mr. Theodore's Budget will contain an epitome of Australia's present position and will crystallize in a definite and practical manner, the Government's remedial policy.

Tax U. S. Film Earnings

It is expected the Budget will contain announcement of a tax on the earnings of American films displayed in Australia. Besides yielding a handsome revenue this tax should have the effect of aiding the distribution of British films. Dividends and profits accruing to persons living in the Commonwealth from abroad will also be taxed even though such dividends or profits have been taxed in the country of origin.

The custom revenue of the last financial year it is understood, was £2,686,000 (about $12,500,000) below the Governmental estimate of £4,450,000 (about $240,000,000).

Special revenue duties will be levied on a wide range of importations; apart altogether from the general tariff, to correct customs situation.

BELIEVE JEALOUSY MOTIVE FOR BOND HEAD SHOOTING

BRADFORD, Ont., July 2 (C.P.)—A man jealous of Russell Rowe because of his friendship with Edith Carter, Bond Head, Ont., is thought by police to have shot Rowe in the arm outside his brother's house near Alliston early Monday morning.

Both Rowe and Miss Carter's father denied to-day having made the statement that has suspicions as to the identity of the attacker.

Earl Rowe, former Member of Parliament for Dufferin-Simcoe and brother of Bell Rowe, denied that he had said the shooting had a political aspect but said the shooting was not an attempt at murder.

Alfonso's Hispania was the last to get away. The event began under a brilliant sun, with a smooth sea and a moderate southerly breeze.

GASOLINE WAR STARTS IN CITY

British American Gas is Reduced to 18c., Tax Included, To-day.

SOME 23 CENTS.

The local gasoline war which has been in existence for the past two weeks took on the aspects of a bitter fray to-day, with the announcement of a cut in the price of gasoline to 18 cents a gallon, tax included, at stations and pumps operated by the British-American Oil Company in this city. Up to the press time to-day 22 cents a gallon was the lowest figure that could be found elsewhere in Peterborough, this price being in effect at Dawson's Service Station.

Gasoline can be bought for 23 cents a gallon at J. J. Duffus, Limited, and Border Transit, Limited.

When inquiries were made this afternoon regarding the war the service station operators and oil company officials proved to be very reticent and refused to divulge any information. It is understood, however, that the stations where the cut is being made, with the exception of British-American stations, are individually owned and that the proprietors are at liberty to sell their line at any figure they wish, as can be ascertained, the matter is a local affair.

Princeton University Lightweight Crew and Kent School Outfit Win Opening Heats in Their Respective Races.

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, Eng., July 2.—(C. P. Cable) — Joe Wright of the Toronto Argonauts scored an easy victory this afternoon over J. N. Groves of the London Rowing Club in the first heat of the competition for the Diamond sculls, premier single sculls event of the British Empire.

For the powerful Canadian sculler today's race was almost in the nature of a practice spin or the London man was far from being a match for him.

Groves led for the first few strokes but after a few yards Wright came level. The Canadian got into a strong paddle after the first minute and then took matters easily. A strong head wind failed to hinder him as much as it did his lighter opponent.

Wright was a length ahead at the quarter mile post and one-and-a-half ahead at Remonham Barrier. He had forged three lengths ahead of Groves at Fuwley and did the half-distance in four minutes and 23 seconds.

Four Lengths Lead

Wright dropped to 26 strokes a minute in the second half of the course but he led by four lengths at the Milepest and 24 seconds. This was four seconds slower than the time in which Collett beat Gentry, his fellow Englishm[illegible] in the heat today but the difference is not regarded as at all significant as Wright did not seek to extend himself.

The Toronto rowers wife and his father followed the race in the umpire's boat. A large and colorfully dressed crowd watched the race.

In the first heat of the sculls West defeated Jones easily, covering the Henley course in 9 minutes 37 seconds.

In the second heat T. D. Collett, crack English sculler, eliminated Gentry by winning by a length, in 9 minutes 20 seconds.

BEATTY CLAIMS BRITISH NAVY CRIPPLED

Britain is Only Nation Reducing By Naval Treaty

Reduction Made Is So Great As To Render Her Incapable of Maintaining Control Over Various Parts of Far-flung Empire, House of Lords is Told.

EARL JELLICO IN FULLEST POSSIBLE AGREEMENT WITH ASSERTIONS BY FAMOUS WAR TIME ADMIRAL

If Fleet is Sent to Far East in Case of Strife Britain Rendered Impotent—Result of Pact Makes it Possible For Others to Greatly Increase Navies.

LONDON, July 2.—(CP)—The navy's own viewpoint of London's part in the recent naval conference yesterday was communicated by the admiral of the fleet, Earl Beatty and Lord Jellicoe, war-time sea lord, to the House of Lords in vigorous attacks upon the treaty conclusions.

Earl Beatty, often recognized as Great Britain's most prominent naval figure, assailed the treaty declaring Great Britain the only nation that made any disarmament or reduction and that the reduction made was so great as to render her impotent and incapable of maintaining control over the various states of her far-flung Empire.

The Earl's denunciation of the treaty contained a reference to use of the fleet for a far eastern contingency. This was taken by observers to indicate that the home Government had not overlooked the possibility of a necessity for sending warships—possibly a fleet—to India.

Earl Beatty said the London naval treaty had resulted in an increase of armament for other countries, the United States' increase being 233,000 tons, Japan's 10 per cent. of her strength and France being left without restriction whatever. France, the speaker said, already had built three 10,000-ton cruisers, is building three more and has authorized ten others, while Italy had built 2, is building 4 and has authorized 1.

Criticizes the Admiralty

Admiral Beatty severely critized the admiralty for formulating a naval policy that did not take into consideration the possibility, however remote, of a naval attack on the part of the United States.

Earl Beatty said it was a most "inexplicable thing" because 70 cruisers until recently had been declared by the admiralty to be an irreducible minimum for its needs.

"If we have to move our fleet to the far east," said Earl Beatty, "we will leave a force insufficient to safeguard our trade in the Mediterranean and home waters and we will be at the mercy of any power with greater naval strength in the Mediterranean."

Earl Beatty said he could not believe that there could be a body of statesmen in the country who could deliberately sign away Great Britain's heritage [illegible] that it was possible that [illegible] would give advice [illegible] service to [illegible]

BRANDON, Man., July 2.—(CP)—Premier G. Howard Ferguson of Ontario is seeking "to manufacture political capital by misconstruing and misrepresenting the position of the Federal Government with respect to the waterways situation even at the risk of considerably endangering the further development of the St. Lawrence waterways project" Premier Mackenzie King asserts in a statement issued here yesterday. The Prime Minister's statement constitutes a reply to one issued some days ago by the Ontario Premier. In that statement Mr. Ferguson accused Mr. King of omitting an essential part of the Government's proposal to the provinces respecting water-power rights when the Prime Minister dealt with the St. Lawrence project in his speech at Peterborough on June 18.

EMPIRE TRADE ELECTION ISSUE DUNNING SAYS

Minister of Finance Addresses Cobourg Crowd For W. A. Fraser.

EXPLAINS BUDGET.

Importance of British Market For Canadian Wheat Stressed.

(By a Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, July 2.—One of the most dramatic personal achievements in Canadian history was incidentally impressed upon the large assembly of Northumberland electors at the Liberal meeting here Monday night. It is related as somewhat legendary that Dick Whittington, offspring of poverty, became Lord Mayor of London. But in the Hon. Chas. A. Dunning, Minister of Finance in the government of Canada, Monday night's crowd saw and heard, and his voice was carried by radio to a far greater audience, the erstwhile English immigrant boy of seventeen, now become a minister of the Crown in the greatest of His Majesty's Dominions, expound his budget and tariff policies which he said were devised to expand and strengthen the trade relations between Canada and the Motherland.

The personality of Mr. Dunning vied involuntarily with the importance of his message in the first speech he has delivered in the east since the opening of the election campaign. He came to Cobourg to aid the Liberal candidate, W. A. Fraser, who, with Mrs. Turner Skaith of Toronto, Hon. G. N. Gordon of Peterborough, and Dr. George Ferris, chairman of the meeting, preceded him in the half hour interval prior to the microphone's precise period from 8:30 until 10 o'clock.

Included amongst those on the platform was James Bulger, president of the Cobourg Liberal Association; Mrs. Turner Skaith, president of the 20th Century Ladies' Liberal Club, Toronto; J. J. Duffus, Liberal candidate for Peterborough West; Robert Harstone; Hon. G. N. Gordon, K. C. of Peterborough; John Hayden of Cobourg; Nelson Stone, reeve of Campbellford; George Armour of Cobourg; Dr. Robertson, ex-M.P.P.; Dr. Robbin of Picton; W. H. BENNETT TO AID PORT OF ST. JOHN Should Be Great Gateway to Sea Tory Chieftain Asserts.

NEW ZEALAND PACT UP.

ST. JOHN, July 2 (By Thomas Green). — Back to his native province by the sea, Hon. R. B. Bennett on Monday opened his election campaign in the Maritime Provinces. The port of St. John, the Conservative leader declared, should be a "great free port—a national port," and towards the implementation of this object he gave his pledge.

"This is a national undertaking. This port belongs not only to you, but to the people of the whole of Canada. It should be a great gate to the sea to carry our products as cheaply as possible to the world."

Alludes to New Zealand Treaty.

Briefly alluding to the New Zealand trade agreement the Conservative leader declared: "Mr. King, I understand, has been telling you that the reason that Canada has bought more butter from New Zealand is because we are prosperous. That's his argument in certain places. Why? Little New Zealand, he tells us, is part of the British Empire." Mr. Bennett paused, and then he warmly asserted, "so is Canada. What is his duty to New Zealand or to Canada? My concern is for Canada first and not for New Zealand."

Mr. Bennett asked his audience what they thought of a Prime Minister who appealed to the electors on an old age pensions scheme on a contributory basis by the Dominion, and shortly after the election had categorized as a "vicious principle" such contributions. "That and the five-cent-piece statement are classics," he declared.

MURDER, SUICIDE FOLLOW 90 MILE CHASE IN NORTH

Woman Shot Down in Lonely Cabin Near Kirkland Lake.

COMPANION WOUNDED.

Jealous French-Canadian Turns Gun on Self After Tragedy.

KIRKLAND LAKE, July [illegible] — A French-Canadian's mad jealousy resulted here yesterday in murder, suicide and a hospital case after a wild 90-mile chase from Timmins to Kirkland Lake over treacherous water-filled roads.

The French-Canadian, Eli Meloche, 32, and his common-law wife, Lucienne Pelletier, 25, lie in a local morgue, he a suicide and she his victim. Emile Droulx, lies in hospital with a shattered jaw and a splintered hand.

Meloche and the woman came here several months ago from Hull, Que. Late Monday night she, Droulx and five others left Pelletier's rooms in Timmins in his absence and started by automobile for a cabin two miles from this town on the Goodfish Road.

An hour after they had left Maloche returned. He obtained another car and rushed out the highway after them, defying death on roads cut to pieces in last week's floods.

He arrived here soon after the other party. The seven were sitting around the little cabin on the lonely road when he crashed through the door, wild-eyed, brandishing a revolver.

He fired twice and the woman fell dead. Five men and women dived through doors and windows and fled into the woods as Droulx advanced upon Meloche. Twice again Meloche fire. Droulx fell and then crawled into the woods.

Half an hour later Droulx crept back. He found the woman dead and, lying across her body, Maloche, still breathing, a bullet hole in his head. He died a few hours later in the Red Cross Hospital here.

TORONTO YOUTH DROWNS IN NORTH

Loyola Bailey Tired From Swim Slips From Brothers' Grasp.

FATHER'S EFFORTS VAIN.

TORONTO, July 2 — Grim and tragic was the finale written to a drowning tragedy on Monday night as Richard Bailey, middle-aged moulder, strode up the front walk of his home at 172 Scarborough Road, bearing in his arms the limp body of his 19-year-old son Loyola.

Without stop, the father had driven 132 miles from the Kawartha Lake district with the body of the drowned son in the back of the car.

A few hours earlier, a jolly family fishing trip, headed by the father, had ended abruptly as Loyola, utterly exhausted from swimming with his brothers, slipped from the latters' arms as they towed him to the shore of Devil's Lake, near Irondale, in the Lindsay district. While the brothers, Al and Lionel, grasped at him frantically, Loyola sank three times and drowned within a few yards of shore.

Weighted with heavy fishing waders, the father dived several times, but even with this burden on his legs, could not reach the body which was plainly visible at the bottom of the clear water.

Half-crazed with grief Bailey tied a stone around his body to sink himself to the boy. Even the desperate expedient failed. It remained for a complete stranger, summoned by the shouts of Al, Lionel and their cousin, Earl Paquette, to bring up the body. Excited, the Baileys did not find out the stranger's name.

Trouble Looms for Endurance Plane

CHICAGO, July 2.—With motor trouble developing, it began to look late last night as if the Hunter family airplane had neared the end of its record endurance flight. As the motors began giving signs of acute trouble, the ground force abandoned thoughts of sleep for the night. A malt extract firm announced it would pay a dollar a minute from now on for every minute the plane stayed in the air. With the $100 an hour the Hunters receive from a gasoline firm, it was figured out that their salary from now on is being paid at the rate of $1,401,600 a year.

Soon after his incarceration in March, business men and members of the sporting fraternity circulated a petition and presented it to the Attorney-General, Hon. W. H. Price, with the above result. Mr. and Mrs. James Toms and their two nieces, Sylvia and Ila King, motored to Warsaw Sunday and attended [illegible] here. Rev. Mr. Williams, who has been in the foreign mission field gave a wonderful discourse on conditions in China and other foreign missions, which was most illuminating, and greatly appreciated by the visitors from Belmont. While in Warsaw they were the guests of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Herrington of the United church parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. George Walton of Toronto are coming to their cottage "Duck Inn" to spend a few days at the week end and holiday.

The many friends of Mrs. Frank Breckenridge will regret to hear that she is quite ill at her home in Belmont.

Mr. and Mrs. Hector Bannon of Peterborough were recent guests of their parents here.

With the advent of the bass and lunge fishing season the annual invasion of the summer cloony will start. A number of tourists have booked accommodation at the local resorts, but as in other years there is ample room for all. A number of the cottages have already been opened, but the real influx will be on the eve of the holiday. Fishing in Belmont Lake was especially good last summer, and it is predicted there will be plenty of big ones landed on the opening day.

MARMORA.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert McKenzie, of Toronto, are visiting relatives in this district.

The barn raising beet on the property of James Jones was a big event on Saturday. About fifty workmen sat down to dinner while more than a hundred persons partook of the evening meal. Improvised tables furnished outdoor accommodation.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown and children of Bonarlaw spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. James Jones of Marmora Township.

Mr. and Mrs. Manley Lavender and young son Glen visited relatives of Glanmire on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Law of Oshawa were Sunday guests of Mr. and [illegible] H. W. Sebine.

Among those who have recently taken up residence in their cottages at Crowe Lake are Mr. and Mrs. Parker and family of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Mills and family of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Snell and family of Toronto are visiting relatives in town.

On a ship which recently arrived at Liverpool, England, from Australia and Africa, were 103 boxes of kangaroos.

ROTARY ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

H. N. Carr Installed as President of Campbellford Club For Coming Season.

COMMITTEES NAMED.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 2 (Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The weekly luncheon of the Campbellford Rotary Club, held on Monday in the St. Lawrence Hotel, was featured by the installation of the new president, H. N. Carr. Past President Alex. McColl occupied the chair for the first part of the session.

Mr. McColl, in a review of his term of office, noted that the club had increased its membership by four. He emphasized the fact that the club had done a great deal to promote fellowship among its members, but that this was only one ideal of the organization. It was a helpful one, however, as a great deal more can be accomplished when the members know each other.

"Rotary," he said, "had made a great contribution to the town of Campbellford." It had several of its members on the council, and had done work among the crippled children that would be lasting.

It was one of the finest clubs in Rotary, in his opinion, and he was pleased and proud to have held the office of president.

At the sound of the gong, the new president, H. N. Carr took the chair and voiced his appreciation of the honor bestowed upon him. He spoke of the work of Rotary, and emphasized the fact that it was up to the individual member to work and make the club progressive. It was an important factor in community life, and as such should go forward, and that could only be done when each member felt the responsibility that rested upon them. He congratulated the past president on his splendid year and appealed to all the members to assist the executive in every way possible.

Committees for 1030-31

The various committees named for the year were as follows: Luncheon speakers, H. W. Lapp; boys' work, Alex. McColl and C. Nadoo; crippled children, Dr. Bruce Longmore; weekly publication, E. H. Grieg and A. Armour; community, R. Scott and J. Loucks; sergean-at-arms, J. C. Birmingham; entertainment and ladies' night, Elie Brunelle; music, A. Hazel and E. C. Dolman; classification, A. D. Bennett; auditors, W. Wiggins and W. Henson; membership, P. C. Denyers; ways and means, S. Sykes; street fair, Clarence Williams; rural and urban, C. H. Davidson; attendance, A. Riendeau and S. A. MacGuire; publicity, G. A. Kingston; fellowship, Ross McLaren; sick, Rev. R. C. Tait; International relations, D. W. Douglas.

Both speakers voiced the sorrow of the club in the passing on Sunday of one of its members, C. K. Stephens, and in sympathy, closed the meeting with the singing of a verse of "Nearer My God to Thee."

One item of business was brought forward and passed at the meeting, which was the resolution to send a certain number of boys to the Oak Lake Camp this year, for a week's holiday.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, July 2. — Surprising scantiness of the amount of wheat delivered on July contracts, both in Chicago and Liiverpool, gave a big jolt to wheat traders yesterday. Sharply higher prices ensued, although this was the first day of the new crop year, and ordinarily the rush of wheat from the harvest fields at this time is apt to make wheat appear over-plentiful, rather than the reverse. Indications, however, were that exporters had turned suddenly to the buying side of the market, and that growers were acting on Federal Farm Board suggestions to hold wheat back for higher prices.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1¾c to 2c a bushel higher than Monday's finish. Corn closed ⅝c to 1⅝c advance, oats ⅜c off to ⅝c up, and provisions varying from 7c setback to 12c gain.

Closing indemnities:

RANGERS STAGE SHAM BATTLE

force. The second and third waves of attackers moved up.

Then the spectators' eyes were attracted by a new movement to the right of the attacking ranks. From behind the lines a greyish bulk moved along the ground. What could that be? A glaring rocket revealed it in a moment. It was a tank.

Tank Destroyed.

Firing from its heavy guns the tank advanced rapidly. Soldiers followed close in its path. The outpost soldiers gave ground. But its career was short-lived. Crashing into a barricade erected by the defenders of the outpost for just such an attack it was wrecked and fired. Leaping high in the air the flames from the burning added to the grimness of the scene.

Many more minutes passed. The combat continued with undiminished vigour, the sound of incessant gunfire filling the air. The enemy gave more ground. Then one division of the aggressors staged a rush. On the double they ran for the outpost defenders with levelled bayoneta. A hand to hand skirmish ensued but the triumphant shouts of the victorious attackers soon arose indicating a victory. Complete success also met similar attacks by the other divisions in a few minutes, although they met with more vicious opposition.

The battle was over and the quiet of the night again fell over the battlefield.

Lt-Cl. M. H. Park.

The well-organized sham battle commenced at 10.30 o'clock and lasted more than an hour. It was the result of many hours of planning on the part of Lieut.-Col. M. H. Park, V.D., commander of the Rangers; Captain J. A. Dewart, M.C., commander of 3rd Company, 4th Battalion, Canadian Machine Gun Corps, Major G. G. Winterbottom, M.C., D.C.M., and other officers of the two units. The unit which staged the attack consisted of Companies "A", "B" and "C" of the Rangers battalion and the enemy unit was made up of the Machine Gunners' Company assisted by "D" Company of the Rangers. The attackers were commanded by Major Winterbottom and the enemy by Captain Dewart.

According to the scheme of the mimic battle an eastland force consisting of one brigade was supposed to be attacking the city of Peterborough and were bivouacked in the vicinity of the ranges. A company from this force, represented by "D" Company of the Rangers under the command of Major Bruce Mills, V.D., was detailed to form part of the outpost troops to provide protection for the attacking eastland force.

Rangers Defend City.

The remainder of the Rangers represented part of a westland force defending Peterborough from the eastland force. The commander of the westland force (Major Winterbottom) having discovered that the eastland force intended to attack Peterborough in the morning, decided to make a surprise attack on the enemy force.

Accordingly, the defenders of Peterborough under orders from the brigade commander opened the attack on the outpost position of the eastland force. Finding unexpected resistance the defenders of the city brought into action the tank which was destroyed. (The tank was under command of Lieut. G. Melton and Lieut. G. Hart).

In spite of very stubborn resistance the westland forces defending the city overcame the eastland forces.

Vickers .30 machine guns were used in the display and were fired unde supervision of Captain H. J. Devey. With the exception of the machine gun ammunition, all cartridges used were blank. The machine guns operating at the rate of 500 rounds per minute were fired into the range butts.

The sounds of battle were secured partly by the explosion of highly-charged fireworks although it remained for the rifles of the men to add a true touch of realism. Sky rockets and Roman candles were used freely to good effect while such realistic touches as signal beacons and field telephone systems were to be found.

ered by the Hon. R. B. Bennett here last week.

"One of the Conservative criticisms, and here is the great issue of the election", said Mr. Dunning, "is this, that Canada should give no trade preferences even to Great Britain, except in return for equivalent trade preferences.

That sounds good when you first hear it, but when you examine it you find that Great Britain has no tax or tariff on foodstuffs, such as wheat, against any country, and in such taxes as she has Canada gets a preference. And foodstuffs are one of our great products in which we are interested in getting to her.

How can we ask Great Britain to put a lesser tax than no tax at all on products we sell her? What the Conservatives mean is that the Conservative party would give no preference to British goods coming into this country unless Great Britain consents to put a tax on foods entering that country so that she can give to Canada a lower tariff rate than to other countries. That is the Conservative proposal.

Although I have been years in Canada I think I still know the minds of the people of Great Britain, and I ask you is there any likelihood of the British people voting to put a tax on food?

Several voices—"No".

Not Favored in Britain

Mr. Dunning said that not one of the three great political parties in Britain was in favor of taxing foods, nor could he imagine the British people on a referendum marking their ballots to tax their food. If there was any hope of such an eventuality one of the political parties would have, already adopted such a proposal. One thing was certain, Mr. Dunning declared, that if Canada waited until Britain put a tax on food in order that a preferential tariff could be obtained for Canadian wheat, Canada would wait a long time. It was also unfair to ask Britain to tax her foodstuffs when she already buys more goods from Canada than she sells to Canada. With such a greater proportion of trade it was a rather raw proposition by Hon. Mr. Bennett or anyone else. In dealing with people it was not a good thing to approach them with a big stick, and such a method would be fatal in any attempt to deal with the people of Great Britain. Canada had cast off the swaddling clothes of colonialism fifty years ago, and would resent being put back into them. In the same sense, the people of Great Britain do not expect to be dictated to in respect to their own questions of taxation.

"When Canada sends her representatives to the Empire economic conference in London this fall," said Mr. Dunning, "let them go in the spirit of our May Day budget, willing to receive the representatives of Britain and the other parts of the Empire as our best customers, and sit down with them in an effort to devise ways and means by which we can extend our trade with each other to our mutual advantage. That is the great issue of this election, and I believe from the expressions I saw in the eyes of the people of the west where I have recently been that the Canadian people want that Conference approached in the spirit of our May Day budget as it has been called. And I have every confidence that such a verdict will be given that this family of British nations will be drawn even closer and closer."

Cause of Unemployment

World conditions of the present moment, he said, were due to "a surplus of most basic commodities." He instanced wheat, coffee, copper, steel output, automobiles and cotton. "When any man stands before you and tells you he will pass some Act of Parliament without specifying what he will put in it, to cure unemployment, I ask you to think for a moment. Do Premier Ramsay MacDonald's Ministers talk about passing an Act of Parliament to cure unemployment? Not at all. They know the problem goes to the roots of world economics. You cannot cure conditions like that by waving a wand, nor by passing an Act of Parliament. You may establish policies which may direct the business of this country along the lines which will minimise the evils of it so far as this country is concerned. And I want to say we have reason to be satisfied, in one respect, at least—it is gratifying to know that there is less of it in this country than there is in any comparable country in the world."

Troubles of United States

If the policy of higher and higher tariffs were the economic cure-all, he asked, how was it that, in the United States today, there were 3,600,000 unemployed union workers? If any country were in a position to put a wall around itself, it was the United States. What chance would Canada have with such a policy, when it obviously had failed in the United States? With Saskatchewan's 850,000 people growing enough wheat for 30,000,000, markets had to be found for the surplus. "No amount of Tory talk," he said, amid laughter, "will make the people of Canada eat all that wheat. Our policy is to try and sell it. Our trade treaties have had this success; that up to last year we sold $170,000,000 worth more to the countries with whom we have treaties than we bought from them."

Referring to the charge that he had "framed" the Budget "to market Western wheat," Mr. Dunning said: "I do not deny the charge. I rather welcome it. It is a national problem, affecting the interests of the whole of Canada. That crop in Western Canada last year is the major cause of unemployment in Canada."

"I found," he said, "there still remained for us across the seas one great free market, the only free market for us for the foodstuffs we have to sell—the British market. But I found further the British people were not buying from as as freely as they had been.

"Blast Way to Trade"

"Mr. Bennett says that if he were in power he would blast his way to trade. I have heard a good many ways but I never heard of blasting as a successful way to trade. One country thought it could blast its way to a place in the sun and that sun was the trade of the world. You know what happened.

"Trade is a matter of agreement and the very word, agreement, means two sides. I don't believe in the big stick policy with any other country. The way to trade is to know exactly our own position, to know what we have to sell, and to study the other fellow's position and make a little allowance too, or he won't choose to trade with us.

"We found that Great Britain was buying twice as much from us as we bought from her. On the other hand the United States, true to its policy of exclusion, which Mr. Bennett says should be applied by Canada, was making it more and more difficult for us to trade with her. She wanted to sell us everything but buy from us nothing and this was growing year after year.

"I have no particular dislike of the United States. I think it would be advantageous for most nations to trade on an even tariff in order that they could sell more to each other. I don't say that this is a complete application for all commodities, but, with the right spirit behind it, it could be mutually beneficial."

Preference to Britain

The answer to the geographical difficulty of Great Britain meeting American competition in Canadian markets, he said, was: "If the British preference is not great enough to enable Great Britain to trade in our markets against the United States, increase the British preference. That is what was done in what is now known as Canada's May Day Budget—the increase in the British preference which, we believe, will have the effect of enabling the British people to sell to us more of the goods which we are now purchasing from the United States."

Instancing iron and steel, he said the purpose was: "If we cannot make it ourselves in Canada, then let us buy it from Britain rather than from the United States, I say it not as a matter of sentiment. The British people would not want that. But as a matter of good sound business for Canada, on the same basis that Fielding himself used in inaugurating the British preference in the first place, that the market in the Old Land is our most precious market for those things we most vitally need to sell; that we want satisfied customers, and in order to have satisfied customers we must be prepared to trade with these customers. The United States has no reason to complain if we are extending lower tariff favors to those who extend favors to us. If she wants to try us out by being a little more reasonable with us, she may find us responsive in the same manner we have been with other countries when they have displayed a willingness to do business on air terms."

Dunning Calls Witnesses

Replying to the Conservative argument that the British preference feature of the tariff was a mere gesture, the Finance Minister said he proposed to call witnesses on the issue. First of all, he said, he would call the political leaders of Great Britain. They were all on record. And every one of them welcomed the May Day Budget of Canada "as one of the greatest forward steps ever taken in connection with Empire trade." The press of Great Britain, he said, testified to the merits of the Budget, since the Budget, he said, an "Empire loaf of bread," composed of 85 per cent Canadian and 15 per cent. British wheat was having fast sale as a result of the better spirit engendered. The British West Indies Islands, he said, were witnesses to the merits of the Budget. It did not take Bermuda two weeks before she turned around and gave Canada a preference on a dozen articles, and Canada to-day had virtually a monopoly in the Bermuda market for flour. Other West Indian colonies were meeting in Trinidad "in order to devise ways to give Canadians a greater chance in their markets in return for the 'empty gesture' of the May Day Budget." Uncle Sam, he proceeded, was a witness, inas much as his Department of Commerce had issued a circular in which it was calculated that the Budget affected between $225,000,000 and $275,000,000 of the goods which Canada formerly bought from the United States.

PETERBORO STAGES FIRST HORSE SHOW

off first, second and third awards in this class.

In addition to the commercial vehicles and horses there was a splendid entry of saddle horses — fine, sensitive beasts who wheeled, cantered, galloped, and pranced before the judges in obedience to the wishes of their masters or mistresses. The lady riders added a picturesque and unique touch to the scene, attired in riding habits, and one of the male entrants was unconventionally attired in the garb of a Western cowboy.

A small boy seated on an equally small horse, namely the Coca Cola Shetland pony, was the object of much admiration from the crowd, while two other entrants in the pony class sported a type of rig which is more familiar to the Old Country—a trap.

The committee responsible for the success of the show and the carrying out of the arrangements was under the chairmanship of Dr. J. E. Middleton and the following: Major Fred Hills, Captain James Abraham, Tom Dutton, Robert Cleghorn, Thomas E. Sargent, Reg. Turner, and Chris Graham. Major Hills and Captain Abraham also marshalled the parade en route.

List of Awards.

The entry list and awards was as follows:

Purity Bread (two), Stock's Bread Company (five). Stock's, first, second and third awards.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 2, 1930

HE HAS A RIGHT TO SPEAK.

The Examiner has said several times since the campaign opened that the legislation passed during the last session of Parliament for the betterment of the condition of Canada's return soldiers should not be made the subject of political controversy nor should attempts be made to gain political advantage out of this unanimous action on the part of the whole House.

Where action was taken on such a lofty basis it would be a pity indeed if the effect of such unanimity were to be destroyed for party purposes.

Yet the fact that Major Power of Quebec was the chairman of the committee which drafted the legislation should not debar that statesman from taking part in the campaign.

As a Liberal member and an advocate of the policies of the Liberal party, he has the same right as every other politician to support that party and advocate those policies whenever and wherever he sees fit so to do.

Every fair-minded Canadian will concede the justness of that assertion, just as every fair-minded Canadian will concede that in this matter of better treatment for returned soldiers all parties and every member in the House deserve all credit.

And from what we have heard of Major Power he would be the last man to attempt to make party capital out of what he knows was a simple matter of justice, considerably delayed.

DOING GREAT WORK.

The Citizen Service Association of Canada, founded a year ago for the purpose of attempting to rehabilitate discharged prisoners from the Ontario Reformatories, is able to announce a very substantial record of achievement during the twelve months. Headed by Brigadier-General D. C. Draper, Toronto's Chief Constable, the Association has been able to assist some four hundred men to become decent citizens again.

That is work well worth doing; nothing is surer than the fact that if these men had been allowed to come out into society with no one to take an interest in their welfare or to help them to re-establish themselves on the straight and narrow path, many of them would in a short time have gone back to their criminal activities.

The annual report of the Association stresses the fact that "crime is to-day the gravest of all problems confronting Canada," and points out that the number of commitments to jails, prison farms and the penitentiary in this province indicates that the crime population of Ontario is approximately one per cent. of the total population "getting dangerously near the crime percentage level of the United States."

In view of these conditions, this work of re-claiming first offenders and assisting prisoners generally to become lawful citizens grows ever more important.

It is gratifying therefore to learn that while the efforts of the Association have been up to the present confined largely to the Guelph Reformatory, the scope of its work is to be broadened to deal with first offenders confined in jails and jail farms and to handle men from Burwash.

The organization should have every support in this splendid reclamation endeavor.

LOCAL TAXATION AND PRODUCTION.

According to the Citizens' Research Institute, which has been studying various aspects of the taxation question, three Provinces of Canada in 1928, as compared with 1927, increased their net production at a greater rate than their local taxation, but still retained the highest percentages.

These were British Columbia, Manitoba and Ontario.

Quebec has retained an even percentage during the last four years, but the other five Provinces all show local taxation increasing more rapidly than net production, the term local taxation meaning, of course, that levied for provincial and municipal purposes.

The highest percentage in this connection was registered in British Columbia where local taxation equals 8.4 per cent. of the total net production of the Province.

Ontario is the second highest, showing a net production of $1,590,659,482 and a total provincial and municipal taxation of $133,301,936.

It is interesting to compare the total local taxation in each Province.

Here are the figures:

British Columbia	$ 26,949,699
Alberta	24,941,989
Saskatchewan	29,598,538
Manitoba	21,339,748
Ontario	133,301,936
Quebec	71,512,977
New Brunswick	5,645,336
Nova Scotia	8,894,696
Prince Edward Island	630,220

WOMEN IN POLITICS.

With the nomination of party candidates well on its way to completion it becomes evident that the selection of Hon. Cairine Wilson to the Senate has not had the effect of bettering the position of women so far as political preferment is concerned.

So far only a handful of women candidates have been named, and in the case of those who have had the official backing of a political party it would seem that they have been allowed to carry the burden because male aspirants for parliamentary honors could see little hope of success.

One woman is running as an Independent in Lanark in a field of four, and, of course, the well-known Agnes MacPhail is again in the field in her home constituency of Southeast Grey.

She alone of the women candidates has much hope of success, and apparently the day when the female of the species will battle on even terms with mere man for places in public life is, so far as Canada is concerned, still some distance off.

In the Old Land women members of Parliament are becoming more plentiful at each election, and women politicians are showing an ability as campaigners and as platform orators that challenges comparison with the best the men can do.

Here in Canada the women as a whole have not yet realized their opportunities nor recognized their responsibilities.

The majority, it would seem, are not greatly concerned with ordinary political questions, nor are they keen as a whole to enter actively into politics.

Almost inevitably when the phrase, "A woman's place is in the home," the speaker is a woman.

THE DUKE BOOSTS CANADA.

The Duke of Connaught thoroughly endeared himself to the people of Canada during his extended term as Governor-General, and on more than one occasion it has been made evident that Canada endeared itself to His Royal Highness. At any rate, the King's uncle seldom misses an opportunity to put in a good word for this country.

An example of this is seen in his address a day or so ago to the boys of Wellington College, Crowthorne, England, when he said: "There have probably been no greater openings at any time in the world for young men prepared to work, than those presented by Canada to-day." Parents, as well as boys, His Highness continued, might do well to consider the opportunities of the Dominion. Those who went to Canada, he added, were able to feel that they were not going to a foreign country, but to a land imbued with the same ideas of loyalty as the Mother Country.

The headmaster of Wellington College, Mr. Frederick G. Malim, also gave Canada some good advertising in urging his pupils to consider the career of an electrical engineer, especially in reference to the service of such great companies as the one which harnessed the immense power of Niagara. The task of uncovering the vast mineral wealth of a country such as Canada also involved a great and profitable career, he said. There was an enormous demand for qualified engineers and chemists, and if Britain were able to keep up sending a steady stream of trained men to the Dominions it would be doing a great Empire service.

That there are real opportunities in Canada for trained men and that these opportunities will be present in ever-growing number as the years go by, is not to be doubted. Many young men from the Old Country have found this to be the case and others will follow. The real expansion of Canada has only begun. The progress of the next quarter century should be tremendous.—Border Cities Star.

CANADA AND JAPAN.

There are more reasons than one why Canada should be interested in the state of affairs now obtaining in the Kingdom of the Rising Sun. One of them is that Japan is one of Canada's best customers and we cannot be indifferent to our customer's ability or inability to purchase our goods. The Government has within the last year or so recognized the importance of keeping in close touch with Japan, and there has been an exchange of ministers. To Tokio went Hon. Herbert M. Marler, who, some will recall, stopped at Hamilton on his way to ascertain what help he could give local manufacturers in selling their products in Japan; to Ottawa came Prince Tokuwaga, son of the Speaker of the Japanese House of Peers. It was not unknown to observers of the nations fringing the Pacific that Japan had fallen upon evil days, and the statement of Aijira Tomita, chief of the Labor Department of the Home Ministry of Japan, quoted by a United Press staff correspondent at Tokio, that there seems to be little hope of the present financial depression abating in the near future, is not surprising.

Like other nations, Japan has been caught in the maelstrom which followed the war, thus affording another illustration of the axiom of Mr. Norman Angell that war does not pay. She received an additional setback when, on September 1, seven years ago, an earthquake and fire destroyed the capital, involving the nation and its people in an expenditure of $369,500,000 for the rebuilding of Tokio, which work was not completed until early this year. Although there were more labor disputes in Japan in 1929 than any previous year, the people are displaying the courage and resolution of their race. The results of the general election in February indicated their temper. The previous Government, the first elected by a general franchise, sat precariously on its seat. Because of small parties and independent members it did not always have a majority. Premier Hamaguchi went to the people with a program of rigid economy, proposed to balance the budget without resorting to loans, and to curtail Government expenditures. He received an unexpected success, and returned with a clear majority of 80 over all parties. The Labor party, torn by dissension, did badly. Out of 93 candidates only five were elected.

As Canada is interested in Japan as a customer, so she is interested in the island kingdom as a competitor, though not to such a marked degree. Other policies of the Japanese Government indicate increasing competition from this source. The aim of the Government is to reduce prices so as to enable its industries to increase their export trade. To further this end, encouragement has been given to the consolidation of many companies, the installation of modern machinery and every effort bent towards the reduction of costs. This policy has led, as the chief of the Labor Department points out, to the replacement of men by machines and an increase of unemployment. Other policies show that Japan is attacking its economic problems in the same way that we do. The stimulation of tourist traffic, the reduction of freight and passenger rates, the "support home industries" movement, tariff revision for protective purposes, have to us a familiar appearance. Only to our own eventual discomfiture and embarrassment can we ignore events in Japan.—Hamilton Spectator.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

That slogan, "See Canada First," was not devised for the benefit of the political leaders. Both Mr. King and Mr. Bennett are having their share of travelling.

Italy is to spend more money on her army. Evidently the movement for world peace has still some distance to travel.

Almost as wonderful as his trip over the Atlantic is the fact that Major Kingsford-Smith was able to talk over the radio telephone from his hotel room in New York to his fiancee 15,000 miles away in Australia.

Remember in the case of the tourist that good service, fair prices and courteous treatment will help sell Canada as a summer playground and ensure return trips on the part of our visitors.

THE ALLISTON HOME BOY.

R. R. No. 7, Peterborough.

The Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—I read with interest and great nausea your news under the heading, entitled "Country Village Social Line Only Clue to Youth's Suicide." According to the news available he had no friends of his own social class. What was he — a Zulu, a Basuto, I didn't know they came from England. Was he a white boy? If so, wherefore this social distinction? Is this really Canada, where Jack is supposed to be as good as his master, or is that just a myth? How come the "grandees" of Alliston. What's their origin that they can't mix with an English boy? I suppose their social orbit extends to about 15 miles either side of their own pig-pen-. These tragedies appear to be coming rather frequent among immigrant boys. I suppose this boy would be considered sane previous to his deed of self-destruction or self-murder. I think inquiries into these cases ought to be a little more exhaustive. Yours,

PERPLEXED.

AIMED AT MR. PECK.

To the Editor, Examiner, Peterboro, Sir:

Reading letters from the pen of Mr. J. H. Burnham to "The Examiner", I am inclined to think that they are written for the purpose of injuring Mr. Peck's chances in the coming Dominion Election. I cannot recall, however, that during the time Mr. Peck has been in opposition, that Mr. Burnham has questioned his acts, but now when he is again the Conservative candidate, he writes as follows: "I am told that since the members along the canal never say a word about it, that they have lost interest in it. Nothing has been said by the opposition for or against the canal which if opened at the north end to admit western wheat as competitive freight rates would double the capacity of the Quaker Oats here, and give employment to 1,000 more people." Certainly some people are gullible. And because Mr. Peck does not advocate absolute Empire trade and preference, he is not for the Empire first. Surely Canada first, is for the Empire, and should be sufficiently British. Mr. Burnham's ideas of Empire trade are more sentiment than business like. Prices and quality being equal let us trade with the Empire. An English buyer, say on the London market, will buy what is best at the price and not because it is made in Canada or any other British Dominion. He will be guided by quality and price. So will a Canadian, re imported goods.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor.

Yours truly,

J. F. LILLIORAP.

Lakefield, 27th June, 1930.

THE GRINGO PRIVATEER

By PETER B. KYNE

CHAPTER 4.

A shriek of laughter from Muriel testified to her appreciation of the grim wit of their guest. "Do you anticipate jousting with somebody, Sir Knight?" she queried.

"Joust once," he answered gravely, and again the girl's merry laughter filled the room. But the king found in both these remarks no seed for merriment.

"What did you do to Martin Bruce?" he demanded.

"Oh, not very much, sir. He called me a greaser, so I pulled him off his horse and slapped him over a half-acre of his ranch. He's about fifty years old, you know, so I treated him with a certain measure of consideration."

"He's as hard and tough as rawhide, son, and can still whip any man on his payroll. You trifled with death, my boy."

"Not necessarily. I took his gun away from him first, broke it and threw gun and cartridges into the sagebrush before massaging him."

The king was very serious. "Were any of his men present?"

"Four."

"And nobody interfered.'

"No, sir. It's the rule on the Triangle B that every man shall kill his own rats, and I imagine they all expected the old man to manhandle me before the fight should terminate. When they saw he was outclassed, they crowded up and would have manhandled me for him, but the old boy played fair. He warned them off, so I quit, rode back to the chuck wagon, packed my dunnage on my spare horse and drifted. I didn't even wait to collect two months' pay I had coming to me."

"You young idiot," the king warned soberly, "Martin Bruce is as deadly as a side-winder and nurses his grudges. Son, you'll have to beat him to the draw — and that's something no man has ever done. Can you shoot?"

"Rather well from a rest. Miss Muriel, I do believe I'll sample those brandied peaches."

But the king was worried. "I advise you to get out of this country and do it to-morrow, son," he warned.

"In effect, sir, you promised me a riding job if I passed my entrance exams. to-morrow. If I fail I'll get out. If I pass I'll stay. I tell you again, I've made up my mind to go to work for you and behave myself and grow up with your business. I've got to settle down, sir, and the sooner I do that the better."

"You'll die with your boots on, I tell you."

"Thank you, sir, for that comforting assurance."

"Will Martin Bruce really attempt to kill you, Mr. Burney?" the princess queried. Under the badinage of the two men she detected a note of grim reality.

"I very greatly fear he will, Miss Muriel. He's a rough, tough, bad old man and the slaying of an enemy doesn't particularly jar his conscience. His conscience, in such matters, is rather worn down, like the teeth of a very old cow."

"But what are you going to do about it, Mr. Burney?"

"I don't know. I haven't given the matter any serious thought, Miss Muriel. Of course I'll keep my eyes open and when I meet Mr. Bruce I shall endeavor to get there first with the most shots. I shall probably fail. I've seen Martin Bruce toss a small oyster can in the air, pull his gun and hit it six times out of six before the can struck the ground. He keeps in practice."

"A regular Annie Oakley," the king murmured.

"And you?" the princess persisted to Burney.

"Well, if I shoot at something quite generally I hit it, but I have to take my own sweet time about it. And in an argument with Martin Bruce that weakness of mine would be just a hundred per cent. fatal."

"Dad, he will have to leave this country," the princess announced with decision.

"Well, I'm not holding him, am I?" her father retorted irritably.

"You will leave, will you not, Mr. Burney?"

He shook his black poll half sadly. "I have made certain plans and I can not now unmake them, Princess. He who would have an omelette must break eggs —and the omelette I crave looks like a good job in the employ of the Bardin Land & Cattle Company. I decided, from what I heard while in Martin Bruce's employ, that there was an opening here for that sort of job for my sort of man, and I've thought it all over so very long and earnestly that I'm more or less of a monomaniac on the subject now.

"The knowledge that Martin Bruce's riders north of the Line blotch your father's brand and shoot his cows so they can claim the dead cow's calves as mavericks, and the knowledge that Miguel Gallegos does the same thing to your father's cows south of the Line has me all stoop-shouldered with sorrow. An opportunity exists for the right man to correct this evil state of affairs and I've already figured out in a general way exactly how it should be done. Nobody else on El Ranchito has the slightest idea how to beat the game and as a result your poor afflicted parent is growing an early crop of wrinkles and gray hairs. Haven't you any pity for your own father, Princess?"

The princess had no answer to this. Her woman's intuition told her that back of the jest lay a deadly and definite purpose—a thing she had never grappled with.

"She has no pity," His Majesty murmured. "Not a dog-gone speck."

The butler entered and informed the king that he was wanted on the telephone. When His Majesty returned from answering it his face was grave.

"There's the devil to pay in El Cajon Bonita, Mr. Burney," he announced. "We had two outposts down there—two men on each outpost, to salt the cattle, repair the fences, clean out the waterholes and keep an eye on the cattle. One of those four men has just come into headquarters. He's leaking a little and reports that yesterday morning he and his partner were ambushed. His partner fell out of the saddle, so I suppose he's dead, but the man who escaped made a run for it and got away with two unimportant wounds. He made for No. 2 outpost to warn the other two men but the enemy had been there before him. He found their charred bodies in the ashes of the cabin they occupied, so he came in to headquarters to report."

"What a sweet hint to stay out of El Cajon Bonita," Mr. Burney murmured thoughtfully. "That makes it a little binding, doesn't it, Your Majesty?"

"It does. I can't send more men to their deaths down there, even if I had on my payroll men foolish enough to go." His Majesty's big fists clenched. "Oh, God," he ground out, "to be locked and have to like it. To see bandits robbing me in daylight and to pretend it's an optical illusion."

"One is never licked until one is counted out and I never heard of any of my relatives getting counted out until they had first been in a fight, Your Majesty."

Ken Burney's gaze came to rest, almost sympathetically, upon the harassed king. The king stared back at him, and though no word was spoken, nevertheless His Majesty asked—with his eyes:

"Son, will you?"

KIWANIS CLUBS GROW STEADILY

Now 1,865 Clubs in Cities of Canada and U. S. Report Shows.

MEMBERSHIP OVER 101,000.

ATLANTIC CITY, July 2 (By The Canadian Press).—"There are 1865 Kiwanis clubs in the principal cities of the United States and Canada with a membership of over 101,000, declared Fred. C. W. Parker, of Chicago, secretary of the Kiwanis International,who recently completed his annual report to be read to 6,000 delegates in convention here this week.

"As to the future of Kiwanis, the total scope of our achievements in civic service and community betterment warrants a long life. In the past year more than 35,200 individual civic and other activities have been accomplished," remarked Mr. Parker.

"There have been rather vigorous criticisms of the service club movement and Kiwanis has been included. It is my view that those critics have not studied deeply enough. I can not foresee the time when Kiwanis will not find a place of usefulness in every community.'

Horace W. McDavid, of Decatur, Ill., president of Kiwanis International, in a social message to the membership urged a more scientific study of community life in America. "A Kiwanis club is a community laboratory," he stated. "The club offers the opportunity through which a man can help his city. It is in this workshop that all the problems can be analyzed. The major problems of humanity confront us, and while we are proud of our past, Kiwanians need to give attention to the programmes of health, education and citizenship. There is no group more prepared for this work than the business men who are members of Kiwanis," he said.

HALL'S BRIDGE BIDS RECTOR FAREWELL

Large Congregation Attend Final Sermon by Rev. R. T. C. Dwelly, B.D.

HALL'S BRIDGE, July 2 (Examiner Correspondence).—On Sunday, June the 29th a large congregation which included many families from Lakehurst gathered at St. Matthew's Anglican Church to take leave of the pastor, the Rev. R. T. C. Dwelly, B.D., who is leaving to take charge of a church at Penetanguishene, Ontario. Mr. Dwelly preached from the text, "Be Strong in the Lord."

Emphasizing the fact that indifference, ignorance and impurity are the great enemies of religion, he exhorted his hearers not to get slack in their religious observances during the time that may lapse before another pastor is sent to them.

After the sermon the hymn, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again" was sung. At the conclusion of the service Mr. Dwelly, who was accompanied by Mrs. Dwelly and their daughter Marion, bade farewell to their many friends.

Mr. Dwelly, who has been the pastor at St. Matthew's for the last four years, has made himself very popular with all classes of the community and will be greatly missed.

OLDEST CLERGYMAN 102.

W.A. FRASER SCORES CONSERVATIVE LEADERS FOR FEATHERING THEIR NESTS IN CAMPBELLFORD ADDRESS

Large Audience Addressed by Guest Speakers at Liberal Rally.

POST OFFICE PROMISES

CAMPBELLFORD, July 2 — (Examiner Staff Correspondent). — A large and enthusiastic audience greeted the Liberal candidate for the riding of Northumberland, W. A. Fraser, at a Liberal rally held on Saturday evening in the committee rooms at Campbellford. Mr. Fraser was supported by S. G. Faulkner of Toronto.

D. Douglas, president of the Liberal Association of Campbellford, introduced the speakers. Of the candidate, he pointed out that the riding wanted a man that could get the people something. Mr. Fraser had been very active along the line of public service. The speaker estimated that twenty-five per cent. of his time had been spent in helping the people of this county, especially along the lines of mail route and soldiers' pensions, and that for the past seven years as Mayor of Trenton, he had helped that town considerably.

Mr. Fraser, in his introductory remarks, said that he wanted the people of the county to know him. In the past his efforts had been in the interests of the people, and in the next four years it would be the same. He was not seeking election for the money that was in it, but for the satisfaction of accomplishment, and because he wished to render public service. He was not entering the fray with any animosity toward Conservatives but with the deepest respect to them, and for the principles that will ultimately result in the best legislation for all the people of Canada. Regardless of opposition, the speaker said that he was Canadian, British, and an Imperialist, and stood for all those ideals.

Feathering Own Nests.

Referring to the Hon. R. B. Bennett's speech at Cobourg last week, Mr. Fraser said: "I consider it a crime to down the interests of the country on the altar of politics, and that is what the Conservative party is doing." He also said that it was the worst, dirtiest and meanest kind of politics to feather one's own nest, a thing that the Conservative leaders are doing. He went on to say that the Liberal party had never been a Free Trade party, and never would be. This was proved by the fact that the Dunning Budget embodied all the increases of duties, because the Liberal party's ideas conformed to the needs of the years.

Of the tariff questions, Mr. Fraser said that few people understood the situation, as it was a matter for a body of experts. The Premier has seen this, and in the creation of the Tariff Advisory Board, has surrounded himself with the best men in the country. The actions of this board had been based on the desires of the country for the past four years. He outlined the attitude of other countries in raising their tariff walls, and drew attention to the fact that the government had adapted courses that placed the country in the position of leading in the policy of opening up trade with the British Empire.

Of Northumberland county, Mr. Fraser said he was a resident and an old boy. He had $100,000 invested in it, and it hurt his pride when he was called an outsider. He had done much for it, and would do more in the future, and mentioned obtaining a post office for Campbellford and one other project that he had in view.

The speaker also went into a detailed survey of the butter question in Canada, and the New Zealand treaty of 1926. He said that the production of milk in this country had increased and not decreased in the past few years, but that the demand for sweet milk had become greater than the supply, owing to the cheese increase and demand for ice cream. The butter output did not keep up with the consumption, and so the influx of butter into this country. Of the price of butter fat, Mr. Fraser said that it was higher in Canada than in other countries. Of the rescinding of the New Zealand Treaty, he said that it was brought about when application from the people had been received to the Tariff Advisory Board, and that their action had been prompt, and handled in the proper way.

Mr. Fraser went on to score the Hon. Bennett's survey of the countervailing duties, drawing attention to his statement that the Canadian Customs Tariff was made in Washington. "They must know if they have any intelligence at all," he said, "that that is erroneous." Of cast iron pipe, cut flowers, and oats, Mr. Fraser drew attention to the fact that the imports of these commodities amounted to larger sums every year.

Of the returned soldiers, the speaker said that he was out to help in every way possible. He assured his audience that his interest was not based on any political grounds, but because he thought the returned man deserved all the help possible.

Mr. Faulkner, who was introduced by the chairman, spoke of the impression that he had that Northumberland was a party of the country that was strongly Liberal. He went on to say that there was a big fight ahead, and it was necessary that everyone should be alert all the time. Of the King government, he drew attention to its achievements in the past, and how the country had prospered financially, and otherwise, under the Liberal banner.

Of the national debt under the Conservative government during the years of the war, the speaker gave a graphic description. From 1918 to 1920 it increased from 312 million dollars to 674 million dollars.

MINING LIST REMAINS FIRM

Oriole Gains Nine Points While Teck Hughes Lost Ten to $6.25.

NICKEL IS OFF A HALF.

TORONTO, Ont., July 2 (Canadian Press). — Except in a few isolated cases, the mining list presented a firm front during the early period to-day with business slightly brighter than last Monday. Specialties were again the active leaders.

Oriole continued to receive favorable attention, climbing to $1.03 for a gain of 9 over the previous close. Golds generally were slightly mixed, Lake Shore advancing a quarter to 22, Dome 5 to $8.20, while Teck Hughes lost 10 to $6.25. Howey and Wright-Hargreaves were up one point each to 52 and $1.09 respectively.

International Nickel was off a half from Monday's close to $24.50, the price established in New York yesterday. Noranda and Hudson Bay were both stationary at $23 and $8.35 respectively. Pacific Coast stocks were firm spots, Pend Oreille gaining 10 to $1.20, Falconbridge 25 to $2.75, and Sherritt Gordon 14 to $1.40.

In the general list Amulet weakened to 38 at noon, dropping 6¼ from Monday's closing level. Waite-Ackerman was off a couple to $1.40, but Abana managed to hold steady at 45. Trading in the oils was light and action mixed. Nordon was soft, falling to a low of $1.05 and standing off 15 at $1.09 at midday. Afax Oil moved up 11 to $2.65, and Home Oil was up 5 to $4.25.

ENGLAND FAILS IN TEST MATCH

Australian Position Remains Secure After Day Long Battle.

FIGHT TO LAST.

LONDON, Eng., July 2.—With a heroism which marked the test match as the most memorable that was ever played at Lord's England, struggled all day long yesterday to scale the gigantic mountain of runs behind which Australia had taken up her position with the ground crumbling beneath her and beset by cunning traps at every turn they finally slipped down the slopes of defeat showing fight to the last. Not since F. S. Jackson's 144 at Leeds in 1905 has England had a captain who has centuried against Australia as A. P. F. Chapman did yesterday.

LONDON, Eng., July 2.—(CP)—A century by W. H. Ponsford for the Australians against the county of Yorkshire at Bradford featured play in cricket matches in England. Tea time scores were:

M. C. C. vs. Cambridge University at Lord's M. C. C. 180 (Haselrigg, four wickets for 34 runs).

Essex versus Somerset at Colchester Essex 146 (A. Lee, five wickets for 38 runs), Somerset 15 runs for three wickets.

Yorkshire versus the Australians at Bradford, Australia 207 for four wickets (Ponsford 107 not out).

Derbyshire versus Surrey at Derby, Surrey 225 for seven wickets (Hobbs 75, Ducat 74).

Nottinghamshire versus Hampshire at Nottingham, Nottingham 292 for four wickets (Whysall 117, Waller 140).

Lancaster versus Worcestershire at Manchester, Worcester 201 for five wickets (Gibbons 71).

Glamorganshire versus Northamptonshire at Cardiff, Glamorgan 153 for two wickets (Bates 83, Turnbull 129 not out).

H. D. G. Leveson-Gower's XI versus Oxford University at Eastbourne, Oxford University 331 for six wickets (A. M. Crowley 144, Pataudi 83, not out).

WALL STREET IS KILLING TIME FOR BIG HOLIDAY

Turn-over on Market is Smallest Since July of 1928.

ADVANCES SLIGHT.

Steel Production Has Fallen to Sixty Per Cent. of Capacity.

NEW YORK, N.Y., July 2 (C.P.).—Intent only on killing time until the holiday, the stock market was a listless affair indeed to-day although mildly optimistic steel trade reviews provided some support for the list after a moderate easing off during the morning. By early afternoon, advances of 2 points or so were numerous among important issues.

The turnover during the first two hours was only 151,600 shares, the smallest since July of 1928. Brokers said most large operators were planning to let the market drift until after the three-day holiday over the Independence Day week-end, and that commission business generally was close to a standstill. Floor traders appeared to be left with the task of keeping the market in motion.

Iron age estimated that steel production for the country at large had fallen to 60 per cent. of capacity, and might dip to 50 before the holiday period has passed. This publication, however, pointed out that resistance to pressure against steel prices is becoming more determined, and there is a growing belief that the iron and steel market is scraping bottom. The sharp curtailment of production is expected to give demand a hance to catch up. It was stated hat often in the past, such a shutown had proven the bottom of a recession.

News developments on the whole, however, indicated anything but decisive changes in business activity. The mid-year of New York banks, while showing curtailed condition statements of New York banks, while showing curtailment in earnings, probably owing to lower interest rates and smaller profits by investment affiliates, showed that the Wall Street institutions are in excellent condition to finance a a recovery n business when it arrives. The treasury surplus of $184,000,000 at the end of its fiscal year was gratifying to Wall Street, but reflected cashpayments of $76,000,000 from foreign governments, and income tax paymens on last year's record - breaking earnings. Freight car loadings in the latest week held at the 1924 level, crude oil production turned upward and gasoline price cutting on the Pacific coast was discouraging to peroleum interests.

A factor in the advance appeared to be the closing out of short commitments in preparation for the week-end. During the morning, Eastman Kodak and Proctor and Gamble lost ½ and 2¼ points but rallied later. American Rolling Mill dropped nearly 5 points to a new low.

6TH PETERBOROUGH TROOP.

The 6th Peterborough Boy Scout Summer Camp will be held this year at Young's Point from June 28 until July 13. This troop has conducted a scout camp in the past two years with a great deal of success.

A very energetic troop committee, competent officers, a large number of boys, and the knowledge gained from other years, promises to make this 1930 camp possibly superior to others.

Parents and all others interested in scouting are extended a hearty welcome to visit this camp on any of the visiting days—Sunday, Wednesday and Saturday.

Girl Rescues Tot; Water 60 Feet Deep

BRANTFORD, Ont., July 2.—(CP)—Betty Taylor fifteen year old daughter of Postmaster G. J. Taylor of this city saved the life of a four year old boy at Honey Harbor on the holiday when the youngster fell from a pier into sixty feet of water. Seeing the plight of the young lad, Miss Taylor who recently passed her life saving test plunged into the water fully clothed and supported the boy until assistance was brought and the pair removed from the water.

Thousands of feet above the ground, one of the "tough hombre" Hunter brothers is shown stretched full length on his back on a foot-wide runway making minor repairs on the endurance plane "City of Chicago." These fliers have already beaten the previous world's record of 420 hours and 21 minutes set by the St. Louis Robin and early on June 30 were intent on keeping aloft until forced down.

INCREASED EARNING OVER $42,000 SHOWN BY HONEY DEW LIMITED

Canada Bud Breweries Display of Strength Rather Exceptional.

TORONTO, Ont., July 2 (Special to The Examiner). — Earnings of Honeydew, Limited, for the first five months of the current year increased by over $42,000 when compared with the corresponding months of 1929, according to E. C. Lindsay, secretary-treasurer. In the period from January 1 to May 31, total sales were valued at $537,230 against $483,696 in the same months of 1929, an improvement of $53,534. Mr Lindsay states the period has been highly satisfactory from the standpoint of both sales and earnings. The Chicago subsidiary, Honey Dew Inc., of Illinois, has just commenced operations and the outlook for the profitable development of this territory is said to be very promising.

Directors of Supertest Petroleum Corporation, Limited, met early in June to review the statement for the first quarterly period ending March 31, and the general feeling was one of entire satisfaction with the progress that has been made. President J. G. Thompson writes the shareholders. Much of the development work which has been undertaken during the past couple of years is now bearing fruit, and sales and earnings for the quarter were on a gratifying basis. "The company now has a large number of shareholders, and while every effort is being put forth to effect satisfactory sales and earnings for you as a shareholder we must, of course, look to the shareholders (who are owners of the company) to assist the management in this regard by fullest co-operation," continues Mr. Thompson.

Improved Business.

Canada Bud Breweries display of strength is rather exceptional in view of the recent action of the general market and naturally has drawn a certain amount of attention in that direction. Action of the stock suggests accumulation, as there has been fairly steady, though quiet, buying at slowly mounting prices until this morning the stock commanded a price only a fraction under its high for the year. Canada Bud is one of the few breweries which has been able to report an improvement in business despite the stiffer competition. The company has practically no export business, relying almost entirely upon the popularity of its products in the home market.

Cellar capacity has been increased in order that the company may be in a position to take care of the increased demand.

Walter M. Price, of Livingston & Company, in writing the local office of A. J. Wright & Company, states that undoubtedly there has been a very extended contraction of business.

The period of recovery will unquestionably lead us through experiences that are not pleasant but there is no occasion for the absurd extreme to which pessimism is running. There is an old adage that if we cannot have what we like we must like what we have and it is much better to accept the philosophy with a spirit of cheerfulness than to be continually covetous of a return to a previous era which people experienced and which they termed at that time as reflecting prosperity, and certainly the people of the United States who have watched its development and have observed its power to make rapid recovery from situations that have been much worse than those existing at the present time, as to make them almost unrecognizable may, in the heritage of the spirit of their forefathers ponder seriously the words of that wise man Solomon who remarked on one occasion: "I have been young and now I am old, but I have never seen the righteous forsaken or their seed begging bread."

Today marks the opening of the second half of the year for the Canadian Exchanges with the markets in the most uncertain position of any similar period in years.

Selling at Attractive Prices

Following the reaction of early May and the more recent prolonged decline the public is all at sea as to what will happen in the final months of 1930. Although most hope that the worst has been experienced and that the next six months will see considerable improvement. Securities are today selling at most attractive levels contrasted with a year ago but the second quarter would see a change for the better but this has failed to materialize and the 3rd quarter or final months of the years are expected to brighten the picture. There is too much unwarranted pessimism abroad. Business in the dominion is not as bad as the state of the stock market would indicate. Securities prices in Canada have depreciated in sympathy with those in the United States where the depression has gone to much greater extremes than here. Both the Toronto and the Montreal Stock Exchanges have decided to close on Saturday. Wall Street will close Thursday evening and remain closed until Monday morning, and the Canadian Markets have decided on a holiday on Saturday. Directors of the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange will meet later in the day to take action on week-end closing.

New York Firm May Buy Solloway, Mills

TORONTO, Ont., July 2.—(CP)—Frank "Shag" Shaughnessy, manager of the Toronto Office of Solloway Mills and Co., denied today that he would take over the Toronto or Montreal interests of the Solloway firm, as hinted in a financial article of a local paper.

"If I go into the brokerage business it will be entirely on my own", said Mr. Shaughnessy. He also denied that an offer had been made to buy the whole business of Solloway Mills.

"A big New York firm has simply been inquiring. There is just a possibility that a United States firm may purchase," he said.

Q.—What are the points of similarity between Equipment Bonds and Steamship bonds?

A.—Equipment bonds and Steamship bonds have several points in common. The rolling stock of a railway corresponds to the vessels of a steamship company. The securities of both are issued for a common purpose—to pay for vessels or rolling stock. A railroad contracts to have equipment built and pays for a portion of it in cash and issues a first mortgage against the remainder. A steamship company contracts to have more vessels built and finances itself similarly. The rolling stock or vessels are paid for out of earnings well within the life of the equipment. The depreciation in each case is rapid. For this reason the replacement value of the vessels or equipment should be well in excess of the bond issued. If the line upon which the vessels are operating does not pay, the owners can sell or lease the vessels to another company, similarly the owners of railway equipment.

The bondholders in each case are protected in that the equipment is in the hands of a trustee who insures the payment of fixed sums before equipment is delivered to the operating company. Insurance covering such is also payable to him.

Both classes of bonds as usually issued in serial form, or are retired by a sinking fund. In the latter event the equity behind the outstanding bonds usually increases as some are called or redeemed.

When properly issued both classes of bonds are independent of the credit of the companies. Generally the bonds have small fluctuations, optional maturities and short terms. When the above conditions are properly observed they are among the safest form of investment.

Natural Increase In City's Population Is 179 In First Six Months of Year

The natural increase of Peterborough's population during the first six months of the present year was 179, there being that many more births than deaths. From January to the end of June the stork visited the city 368 times and there were 189 deaths. This was an increase over the same period last year of sixty births and a decrease in deaths of twelve. The natural increase last year for the first six months was 101.

Marriages, however, shows a decided decrease from last year, there being only 74 as compared with 111. It has been suggested that it requires more courage to tread the altar's path this year because of the industrial depression, and this may be the explanation for the decline in nuptials.

Be that as it may, wedding bells rang out 33 times in the city during June, showing that the month of roses maintains its position as the most popular time for weddings. There were 36 deaths last month as compared with 31 in May, and 59 births as against 55.

Q.M.S.I. THOMAS GOING TO OTTAWA

Has Worked With Local Militia and Cadets For Past 10 Years.

Quartermaster-Sergeant-Instructor T. Thomas, who has been working with local militia and cadet units for more than ten years in an instructional capacity, will leave to-night to take another post in the service at Ottawa. Q.M.S.I. G. F. Turner of Kingston will replace him in this city.

While here, Sergeant-Major Thomas has been identified with the Machine Gun Company, but worked also with the Rangers and the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons. He was regularly loaned by headquarters for instruction service with the cadets of the Public Schools and the Collegiate Institute.

He commenced his militia service in 1900 and until 1914 served wtih the Governor General's Foot Guards at Ottawa. In that year he secured a position on the instructional staff and came to Peterborough in 1920.

Before taking up his duties in Ottawa, which will be similar to those in this city, Sergeant-Major Thomas will act on the instruction staff at Barriefield until camp breaks this month.

Testifying to the popularity he has gained in military circles locally, he was presented with a purse by the Machine Gunners at a smoker last week. A similar presentation was made Monday evening in the Sergeants' Mess of the Peterborough Rangers and yesterday Major G. G. Winterbotom, M.C., D.C.M., made a presentation on behalf of the officers of the Rangers. Lt.-Col. M. H. Park, V.D., spoke very highly of Sergeant-Major Thomas' work in an address on the occasion.

LEADING NET STARS CLASH ON SATURDAY

Leroy Rennie, Former Canadian Champion, Already Entered.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 2 (C.P.). — Leading net stars of Canada and the United States will clash here, commencing Saturday next, when the preliminary round play in the Eastern Canadian lawn tennis championships gets under way on the 17 clay courts of the Rideau Lawn Tennis Club. Bereft of the entries of Dr. Jack Wright and Willard Crocker, the Dominion's first and second ranking stars who have retired from active tourney play this year, the Rideau Club has been hot on the trail of Gilbert Nunns of Toronto. Walter Martin of Regina and Charles Leslie of Montreal, all of whom are expected to take part. Leslie's entry is already on hand. Leroy Rennie of Toronto, former Canadian champion, is entered.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 2 (Canadian Press). — Bill Tilden, Wilmer Allison, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Elizabeth Ryan won their semi-final round matches in the British tennis championships to-day to create an American monopoly of the finals in both men's and women's singles.

FISHING LUCK IS REAL GOOD

Maskinonge and Bass Are Reported To Be Plentiful.

OPENED YESTERDAY.

The fishing seasons opened yesterday and from reports the anglers in most instances had rare good luck.

Rice Lake gave a fine account of itself. Numerous catches of pickerel for the quota are reported, and the largest lunge was caught by a Toronto man who came down for a trip and not to fish, but caught the fever and landed a fine twenty-five pound lunge which gave him all the thrill he wanted for the day.

Right in the city limits good catches of pickerel were made. Ben Johnson caught two beauties in the Quaker Oats raceway.

At Chemong the champion fisherman was Herb. Gilgour who got a four pound small mouth black bass in his catch.

Harry Lacheur and his party of five—Messrs. Hutchinson, Haskell, Harris—caught eight fine lunge at Bald Lake.

Some of the fishing grounds such as Pigeon and Stoney Lake district did not give as good results. The guides said the weather of yesterday affects the fishing in these waters to a greater extent than in others mentioned.

Bill Gould and his party tried Pigeon Lake in the morning and Rice Lake in the afternoon with fair results.

On the whole the disciples of Isaac Walton were more than satisfied and the tourists coming to this district and fishing in the waters where there is supposed to be fish got fine results.

CYCLIST HURT ON CHEMONG ROAD

Gilmour Paul, 22, in Hospital Suffering From Bruises and Shock.

WALKING UP HILL.

Injured in a motor accident on the Chemong Road at 11.15 last night, Gilmour Paul, 22, of the Fourth Line of Smith, was conveyed to Nicholls Hospital. His injuries consist of bruises and shock.

Paul was pushing his motorcycle up a hill about two miles out of the city when struck from the rear by a car driven by Dr. R. H. Carle of Wayne, Michigan. Dr. Carle stated that he failed to see the young man on the side of the road because of the glare of approaching headlights. Paul was conveyed to the hospital by Dr. Carle.

U. S. INSPECTION BRINGS PROTESTS

Over 50 Border Cities Citizens Barred From Picnic By Inspectors.

BOATS HELD 90 MINUTES.

WINDSOR, Ont., July 2 (C.P.) — Considerable indignation is prevalent in the Border Cities to-day over the action of United States immigration officers in grilling some 2,500 local citizens as they were about to embark on two steamers yesterday for picnic grounds in United States. Between fifty and sixty persons were barred from making the trips.

The questioning the United States officers subjected the holiday makers to was said to have been unprecedented in Border Cities history and indications to-day point to a boycott by Border residents on the American resorts.

Protests against the actions of the American inspectors, in view of the fact they have been granted the courtesy of conducting their work at the Windsor Government dock, have been filed with the Dominion Government at Ottawa by Col. S. C. Robinson, member in the last Parliament for Essex West and with the United States Department of Immigration at Washington by C. F. Bellman, general manager of the steamship line operating the boats between here and Tashmoo Park and Put-in-Bay.

Other protests will be filed by the Canadian Legion and the Sons of England Society. Members of these organizations were said to have been embarrassed by the detailed questioning and the resultant delay of 90 minutes in the start of their intended excusion trips.

INTEREST LACKING IN STOCK ISSUES

Little Movement in Stocks. Few Gains and Fewer Losses.

TORONTO, Ont., July 2 (C.P.). — The Toronto Stock Exchange market this morning gave the same monotonous display as it has for the past week and more. Trading resumed from where it left off before the holiday, resumed in the same dead tone. There was no interest in stock and the issues which did come out merely moved within fractional limits. There was no regular movement one way or the other, gains and losses being pretty well mixed.

International Nickel eased off from the high point of 25 to which it had gone before the close Monday. Noranda on the other hand was stronger, gaining approximately a point. Brazilian Traction followed the course of Nickel, slipping back fractionally. Ford of Canada, on the contrary, gained more than a point. Service stations was higher. The foods dull and if anything easier. Walker's sold unchanged or slightly lower; Canada Bud ½ point above its previous close.

The oils experienced a better turnover than most stocks, but still were dragging. B. A. Oil lost ½ point to 17. Most of the others were steady and unchanged.

Automobile dealers of Venezuela are organizing to stop the practice of long-term payments on cars.

A Favorite Kipling Story

It is recorded of this well-known British author that he once remonstrated with a friend for having sent him a publication from which the advertising pages had been cut. "Why, you have thrown away the most interesting section!" Mr. Kipling said.

Advertisements are more interesting to-day than at any time since the invention of movable type. Merchants and manufacturers realize that their announcements must compete for interest with the work of the high-priced authors and illustrators.

If you are not a regular reader of the advertisements in this paper, this is a good time to cultivate their acquaintance. You will find them interesting. You will find them friendly. They show you where to stop and take considerable strain off both shoe-leather and pocketbooks.

Read the advertisements because they are interesting. Believe them because they are true. Act upon their suggestions because it will pay you in many ways. Before you pick up the telephone, you usually consult the phone book. Before you start out to shop, consult the advertising columns of this paper. They will give you a direct connection with the merchandise you want.

Don't stop with reading the news and editorials. The advertising columns are equally important

MILLBROOK BONEKA BIBLE CLASS STAGE SPLENDID GARDEN PARTY

Mrs. V. C. Lambert Made Presentation for Long Service as Sunday School Teacher.

SOFTBALL GAMES HELD UP

MILLBROOK, July 2 (Examiner Correspondence).—Mr. and Mrs. W. A. O'Brian kindly extended the hospitality of their home for the garden party under the auspices of the Boneka Bible Class of Saint Andrew's United Church, held on Friday evening, a large attendance, and a thoroughly enjoyable time, featuring the gathering throughout.

Fortunately an unpromising day, marked by frequent and heavy showers, ended in a clear, cool evening that made it possible for scores of carloads to motor to Mr O'Brian's home, where a warm greeting was extended by the host and hostess and their daughter, Miss Marian

The tea tables were laid on the lawn in front of the house, well sheltered from the rather too cool, strong wind, and the members of the Boneka Class, assisted by some of the members of the Men's Bible Class, looked well to the service of the numerous guests.

While late comers were receiving attention at the supper tables, a softball competition between the married men, under the captaincy of B. B. Dawson, and the single men, under Kenneth Fallis, took place in the field next the highway, and afforded plenty of entertainment for the groups of onlookers. The younger folk also had a game that took in most of the boys and girls, until the signal was given that the program was about to commence. The married men were the winners in the Benedicts' vs. Bachelors' competition.

Rev. W. W. Jones Presides.

The pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., who, with his wife, had been doing a full share in greeting and looking after the pleasure of the guests, filled the position of chairman, giving a brief outline of the fine work being accomplished by the Boneka Class in the Sunday School, Mrs. W. O'Brian being its capable president, and suggesting that both the ladies' and men's classes might adopt as their slogan for the months ahead: "That we endeavor to double our membership in 1930-31."

The wide verandah made an excellent platform for the artists who took part in the program.

A chorus, "The Singing Lesson," by the girls of Mrs. O. Williamson's class, with a nursery rhyme as an encore, was followed by a reading, "The Black Cat's Tail," by Bernice Smith, and a piano solo by Marie Douglas. The only outside talent engaged for the program was furnished by Mr. Thompson, of Peterborough, who sang a number of selections in costume, Mrs. Poole, also of Peterborough, being his accompanist. Mr. Thompson's first song was "Jeanie McNeil," with "Fal de Dal de Dido," in response to the recall.

A piano trio by the Misses Francis and Beatrice Jones and Phyllis Kidd was heartily encored, as was also the vocal solo, "Building," by Mrs. G. W. Sayles. Mr. Thompson's second contribution, "It's Nice to Get Up in the Mornin'," brought a vociferous demand for an encore, "McKay and Me at Tobermory," being the willing response.

Miss Ruth Elsie, of Peterborough, a visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Smith, recited "Ma and the Auto," to the delight of her listeners, her recall being "Mary Ann." A variation was provided by the cornet solos played by Ernest L. Burnham, his sister, Miss Mary Burnham, playing his accompaniment. The musical recitation by Master Gordon Jones, "The Measles," was a very popular number, his mother, Mrs. (Rev.) W. W. Jones, accompanying him on the piano; Miss Esther Might played a piano solo, and Miss Anna Rowland gave "Seeing Things" as a reading.

Presentation to Mrs. V. C. Tucker.

An interruption occurred at this point in the program, when Mrs. V. C. Lambert, who has been for some years a faithful and capable teacher in the Sunday School, was called to the platform, and Mr. W. Fred Fallis, superintendent of the school, read an appreciative address, and Mrs. Jones, on behalf of the teachers and officers, presented her with a handsome electric coffee percolator. Mrs. Lambert is leaving early in July for her new home at Barrie, her husband having severed his business connections in the village and bought out a bakery and confectionery business at this more northerly town.

Taken completely by surprise, Mrs. Lambert replied suitably, expressing her gratitude for the gift and the kindly words which were its accompaniment, and also her keen regret in giving up her class of 'teen age girls and young married women, everyone of whom she had learned to love, her concern in the spiritual interests of each member being deep-rooted.

A demonstratioff of first aid work by the boys of the Tuxis Square, who have been taking up this splendid work under the supervision of Mr. W. Theobald, the latter having taken his instructor's certificate in England, was a particularly interesting part of the program, the boys carrying out proper bandaging for various fractures and wounds, and stretcher exercises with precision and despatch.

Accompanists of the evening, other than those already mentioned, were Misses Dorothy McDowell and Estelle Hetherington.

FIRST PRIVATE YACHT DOCKS

"Aulda" of Chatham Held Up in Little Lake by Drifting Logs.

HEADED FOR GEORGIAN BAY

The first privately owned motor yacht to navigate the Trent Waterway as far as Peterborough this season docked here Monday when the motor yacht "Aulda" of Chatham, owned by William Kistler of Toronto, tied up at the George Street Wharf.

The "Aulda" was delayed for over half an hour in Little Lake by logs which had been blown across the channel. It was stated that the boom was not large enough to accommodate all the logs which had come down the river since Saturday.

Questioned by the Examiner, Mr. Kistler stated that the river drivers had wanted him to nose his way through the jam but that he had refused because of the danger to his craft. He had been here with the "Aulda" two years ago, he said, and knew the ropes.

"This sort of thing spoils this place as a yachting centre," he declared. "People won't come here when they know that a thing like this may happen." He did not wish to complain, he said, but felt that such a condition was not in the best interest of the city as a tourist centre.

It was learned from reliable sources that the Trent Commission had complained to local lumber companies in former seasons about the same condition. It was felt that a large pocket was necessary.

Two years ago when the "Aulda" was here she was photographed for The Examiner by the Roy Studio, as she was tied up at George Street Wharf with two American yachts. The "Aulda" is a 46-foot cruiser, built and commissioned in Chatham, with a draught of 5 feet.

The owner stated that he and his party were en route to Georgian Bay.

THE MARKET FOR MANNERS.

"Manners as a fine art have gone out. There is no market for them."—David Gray.

Perhaps Mr. Gray is right about manners as a fine art. In the hurry of a life that is trying to keep up with machines, manners are sometimes neglected.

That is a pity, for they are one of the pleasant and agreeable institutions in life, and even as a fine art they ought to be continued, though of course not to excess, as they were in the time of the British regency, when many men's manners were far better than their morals.

But good, pleasant, friendly manners are an asset to-day, as much as they ever were, or perhaps more.

This is an age when salesmanship is becoming a fine art, and you cannot imagine a successful salesman who is a boor, or an average salesman who is not tactful and pleasant in manner.

The truth is that manners have a great deal to do with progress.

You yourself cannot help being impressed by a person who speaks to you courteously, whether he is behind the counter or in any position where you come into business contact with him.

You resent a rude person, or even a listless or an indifferent person with whom you have any dealings.

You may not resent him to the extent of complaining about him, but if you can help it you will deal the next time with somebody else.

You are pleased when you ride in a taxi if the driver is polite and friendly.

You are pleased with a salesperson who takes an interest in serving you and goes to a little extra trouble to get you exactly what you want.

And of course you are displeased with the stolid person who waits on you as if it were an unpleasant job to be got through some way, and who spends half the time talking to some fellow worker.

Manners may be dying out as a fine art, but they are increasing in value in the art of business.

It has been lately suggested that even policemen ought to be courteous. That may take a long time, but when it is brought about they will be just as effective in curbing crime and far more pleasant to meet when they are directing traffic.

MANY VISITORS

STIRLING, July 2.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Stirling Lodge No. 239 and Encampment No. 80 of the Independent Order of Oddfellows observed Sunday, June 29, as their annual Decoration Day and with visitors from Trenton, Frankford, Springbrook, Madoc, Thomasburg, Tweed and other more distant points formed a line up of 150 strong, headed by the Stirling Citizens' Band. The procession was halted at the Cenotaph and a wreath was placed at the base of the monument in memory of Stirling's fallen dead. At the cemetery an immense crowd had already reached there, the number being greater than on any former occasion of the kind.

In addition to the 64 buried in Stirling cemetery there are 27 who died away from here and whose remains lie in other cemeteries. These brothers were mentioned and a bouquet of flowers placed in their memory.

Brothers J. W. Sarles and E. R. Carlisle mashalled the procession and J. N. McGee and Harold Ashley as Noble Grand and Chaplain respectively.

Masons Attend Service.

The Masons to the number of 60 attended sevice on Sunday morning in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, when the pastor, Rev. A. N. Reid, B.A., preached a fine sermon from Rev. C. 21, V. 16, entitled character building. He spoke of the four square city. The first wall being education and in this connection stated that Queen's University was founded by the Presbyterians; Victoria College by the Methodists; McMaster by the Baptists, and Toronto University by the Church of England. The second wall he spoke of as "Democracy" where the people should have their say in the ruling of affairs; the third wall "good will" and brotherly love were taught by Masonry. He said it would be a sorry world without the fourth wall, that is "faith" and stated that men of faith had accomplished great things and that only a man of faith could understand a four square city.

During the service the choir sang the anthem, "Bless the Lord, O My Soul." Mesdames Murdoff and Eggleton sang "I Know My Heavenly Father Knows." Mr. Arthur Duncan who is visiting here and a former member of the choir sang in his usual pleasing manner. The hymns used during the service were numbers 109, 546, 607, and 571, in the singing of which the congregation entered heartily. A great many were present at the serivce who are home for the "Get together days" now in the passing.

MILLBROOK HEARS VISITING PASTOR

Chairman of Oshawa Presbytery Takes Both Services in St. Andrew's United Church.

MILLBROOK, July 2.— Examiner Correspondence.)—Rev. J. R. Bick, of Hampton, chairman of the Oshawa Presbytery, preached in Saint Andrew's United church on Sunday, morning and evening, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., who was taking Sunday school anniversary services on Mr. Bick's charge, Mr. Jones being a former pastor on that circuit.

Mr. W. Lambert, of Barrie, a visitor in town over the week end, contributed a solo, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," at worship, and in the evening a quintette by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston, Messrs. V. C. Lambert, W. H. Coombe, and M. McDowell, and an anthem by the choir, made up the musical selections that added much to the interest and spiritual value of the day's services.

Speaking from the opening verses of the third chapter of Exodus as his text, Rev. Mr. Bick delivered an impressive message, drawing several practical lessons from Moses' experience when an exile from Pharaoh's wrath, and keeping the flocks of Jethro in the wilderness.

Brooding on the changed circumstances of his life as Moses probably was, God visits him in the burning bush, and hereafter the wilderness becomes to him, not a place of bitterness and banishment, but holy ground. 'So God's common mercies are holy ground, and we often fail to see the rich inheritance that is ours. It is well to have an upward reach and an upward gaze, and well too, to be able to look down and see at our feet the sweet, fragrant things of life expressed in the everyday mercies of our God."

"God is looking to-day for men and women to be His instruments to translate His Spirit into terms of everyday life, and to do the work He has assigned each to do, linking up with Him, who is the power of the universe, and testifying to His abiding love."

Sunday School Class Honors Its Teacher

Presentation Made to Mrs. V. C. Lambert on Eve of Departure For Barrie.

MILLBROOK, July 2. (Examiner Correspondence).—A pleasant surprise was prepared for Mrs. V. C. Lambert last Thursday evening, when a number of the members of her Sunday School class, and of the Golden Links Mission Circle of which she was at one time the honorary superintendent, arrived at her home and on behalf of these organizations, presented her with half a dozen cut glass, rose-tinted sherbet glasses, as a token of their affection and esteem before she leaves for her new home at Barrie.

During the years of her residence in the community Mrs. Lambert has been a very popular and capable worker in the Sunday School, and the missionary organizations of Saint Andrew's United Church, and keen regret is felt that her husband's business connections have made a change of residence to another town a matter of necessity.

Letter is Read

In place of a formal address the young ladies who brought to Mrs. Lambert the gift from the Mission Circle and her Sunday School organized class, the membership of the latter being practically all included in the Golden Links Circle, read a letter expressing their deep regret at losing their teacher and leader, their appreciation of the help she had constantly given in the development of their spiritual life and their interest in missions, and their best wishes for success and good health in her new home.

Mrs. Lambert, in thanking the girls for their lovely gift and kind words of appreciation, spoke feelingly of her sense of loss in giving up her connection with her class and the Mission Circle, promising a continued interest and a place in her prayer life for those whom she had been privileged to teach, and to lead and urging the claims of the mission field on these young lives.

Bearing the gift to Mrs. Lambert, and representing the organizations interested, were Misses Jean L. Burnham, president of the Mission Circle, Francis and Beatrice Jones, Charlotte Luxon and Phyllis Kidd.

Mr. and Mrs. Lambert and their family, left on Tuesday of this week for their home at Barrie, in which town the former has purchased a bakery and confectionery business.

WRECK DELAYS PICNIC VISITOR

Crowd of Relatives Give Mrs. Centre of Vancouver Hearty Welcome.

FIVE-FAMILY GATHERING

KEENE, July 2 (Examiner Correspondence)—Mrs. Center, of Vancouver, who was delayed on her way to the Five-family picnic on Saturday by the wreck at Capreol, arrived before the gathering broke up and was given a hearty welcome by the crowds of relatives.

She was driven from Toronto by Mr. and Mrs. J. Slater, of Kitchener and their son Bobby. Mrs. Slater is Mrs. Center's niece and will visit with her aunt in Otonabee for some days.

ST. JOHN'S GARDEN PARTY BIG SUCCESS

Campbellford United Church Holds Annual Event on Church Lawn.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 2 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—The annual garden party of St. John's United Church was held on Monday evening on the church grounds, when many people took the advantage of a pleasant evening and first class entertainment.

The grounds were prettily decorated with flags and illuminated with electric light. Many booths were erected and the sale of ice cream, flowers, home cooking, candy and cold drinks was very brisk. For the benefit of the children—and there were many of them—the fish pond was there ,and did a very superior business.

The ladies served a very delightful supper, and many took advantage of a good meal. The band of the Northumberland Regiment was in attendance, and a good program of music was rendered, under the baton of William Pierson, bandmaster.

A delightful play was given in the church hall in the evening entitled, "Do you Remember?" This was a production picturing memories of long ago, and was witnessed by a large audience.

The fun and festivity concluded late in the evening, after a very delightful and profitable time.

DUFFUS SPEAKS AT MOUNT IRWIN

Two Important Meetings Being Held by Liberals This Week.

RALLIES WELL ATTENDED

Last night J. J. Duffus, Liberal candidate for Peterborough West, addressed a meeting of electors at Mount Irwin in Galway township. Mr. Duffus, who has done a considerable amount of electioneering in the outlying districts during the present campaign, informs The Examiner that last Tuesday's meeting at Rockcroft was the largest in the history of politics in that section of the country. On Friday last he was speaking at Nogie's Creek and here also "old timers" noted the fact that Mr. Duffus' meeting constituted the largest political gathering in that village since the days of the late Hon. J. R. Stratton.

Liberals of the district are eagerly looking forward to the series of meetings to be held in this city on Thursday of this week, when Canada's first lady Senator, Mrs. Cairine Wilson, will address a mass meeting for women, in the Grand Opera House at 8 p.m.

Another distinguished member of the Government will also be in this city on Saturday in the person of Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor, and W. H. Moore, ex-chairman Tariff Advisory Board, who will speak in the Grand Opera House at 8 p.m., in favor of the candidate, J. J. Duffus.

From early manhood he has been interested in military affairs, and was in command of the 39th Battalion, which he took overseas in the war. He also took an active part in politics, and has been prominent in the Conservative Party in this riding.

The appointment of Col. Boggs is highly gratifying to his friends, who not only join in congratulating him, but also feel confident that he will fulfill the duties of Crown Attorney with distinction to himself and to the high office.

as referred to it in the course of the past four years." The question of the St. Lawrence Waterways, Mr. King states, had occasioned very little in the way of discussion throughout the last Parliament.

Would Avoid Controversy

The importance and magnitude of the considerations involved in the St. Lawrence project and the sage negotiations have reached, has caused him to feel all along, states Premier King, that it would not be advisable to make the project a subject of political controversy in the elections. Therefore, in his keynote address at Brantford, he refrained from dealing with it. It was as a consequence of Mr. Bennett's remarks at Winnipeg, "and particularly because of the misleading nature of them" I was obliged to make some reply." He had done so at Peterborough, but, declared Mr. King, he "was careful to confine himself to a statement of the contentions of the Provinces and the Dominion respectively, and of the policy the Government at Ottawa has been prepared to adopt as a practical working basis with the proposal without prejudice to the legal rights of the parties."

The Prime Minister expresses the opinion that it "is rather significant that Premier Ferguson found it necessary to wait from June 17 to June 30 to take issues with what was said by me at Peterborough." Mr. King asserts that "the public is not concerned with party politics in this great undertaking"; he has given the public a clear statement of the position of the Federal Government and he is prepared to have the Liberal party and its attitude judged by that statement, he says.

Miss R. Segsworth was the guest of honor at a meeting of the members of the Cavan Dramatic Club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Kennedy, when a social evening was enjoyed.

In the midst of the enjoyment of music and games, R. A. Sutton entered the room and read an appropriate address to Miss Segsworth who is about to leave the community. The presentation was made by Mrs. A. Tinney and after a few words of appreciation by Miss Segsworth all joined in singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

A dainty lunch was served, bringing to a close an enjoyable evening.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

DURING THE LAST few days many of our residents have moved to their summer homes because of the very warm weather, while those of us who are not quite so fortunate must stay in the city and endure the heat as best we can.

• • • • • • •

So today I am going to discuss cold desserts which can be served on hot days and which add a finishing touch of deliciousness to a dinner.

• • • • • • •

Of al these desserts the one most festive is ice cream for there lingers about it the old-time association with parties and other festivities.

• • • • • • •

It is no more trouble to make some form of ices than to make other desserts if the home is equipped with an iceless refrigerator.

• • • • • • •

It must be remembered, though, that the kind of ice cream that has to be kept in motion as it freezes, cannot be frozen in such a refrigerator.

• • • • • • •

The ices known as parfaits, mousses, etc., that require no stirring to keep them smooth and of the right texture are the sort to serve.

• • • • • • •

These must be made with rich cream, or be so concocted that they have the quality of heavy whipped cream when they are set in the refrigerator to freeze.

• • • • • • •

Those who do not have iceless refrigerators can serve these ices with the little extra trouble of packing the water tight container in crushed ice mixed with coarse salt.

• • • • • • •

The process of freezing the mixtures requires no more care in one case than the other when once the cream is set in the refrigerator or packed down in the salted ice.

• • • • • • •

A cold dessert that some persons like as well as ice cream is ice cold custard. Set the cup custards in the ice chest several hours before time to serve them so that they are chilled as cold as ice.

• • • • • • •

Spanish cream, served ice cold with whipped cream is almost as "dressy" a dessert as mousse. Make it with crushed fresh fruit, strawberries, raspberries, peaches, etc., when these are in season.

• • • • • • •

Spanish cream depends for its attractiveness largely upon its having a clear and a cloudy portion. In order for this division of ingredients to show, Spanish cream should be in ornamental molds.

• • • • • • •

Unmold just before dinner time and return to the refrigerator so that the chilling process will continue until serving time. Do not serve. Spanish cream in individual glasses topped with whipped cream, but unmolded and surrounded wth whipped cream.

• • • • • • •

Ice cold tapioo cream is another delicious dessert. Fresh fruit tapioca with whipped cream is delicate. Crush and sweeten the fruit. Mix in approximately equal proportions with the tapioca which has been boiled in hot water until transparent.

• • • • • • •

The proportions of tapioca and water vary slightly with the make of the tapioca. Directions giving proportions come on the container.

• • • • • • •

Lemon Jelly or other gelatine jellies are the most usual of chilled desserts. They are easy to make and tasty. They are not nourishing. They supply part of the liquid needed by the system however and if whipped cream or soft custard is served with them, either supplies nourishment.

That Body of Yours

LATEST ABOUT CANCER.

A research worker, Dr. C. F. Geschicker, of Baltimore, has spent four months in Great Britain and Europe endeavored to find if anything new has been discovered as to the cause, the symptoms, and the cure of cancer.

In one place they are using substances to irritate the tissues to produce cancer, in an effort to find its cause

In another they are transplanting cancer tissue into fowls.

In another place they are working on cancer from a chemical standpoint.

And what does he report on cancer?

A general survey of all these lines of work on the nature of cancer indicates that no one cause either inside or outside the body is alone responsible.

While cancer can be cured by its removal by the knife or radium, nevertheless it is evident that in some way the whole system seems to prepare that one spot for the growth of cancer.

That the age of the patient, the presence of some defect present at birth are factors in causing cancer is now admitted.

Notwithstanding all these investigations cancer is still on the increase. Of course some of this increase is due to the fact that the lives of more and more persons are being prolonged into periods beyond middle life where cancer occurs most frequently.

Twenty-five years ago cancer ranked sixth as a cause of death, whereas now it has risen to third place.

As you know meat was thought to be a cause of cancer but as cancer is not found in the Arctic regions where meat is the main article of diet, nor is it found in parts of India where no meat is eaten, there is apparently no reason to blame meat for the cancer.

However- it is a fact that more than half of all the cancer deaths are from cancer of the digestive organs.

In the majority of these cases the cause is said to be over eating, or the eating of highly spiced or highly salted foods.

It would thus appear that our modern civilization, our modern methods of living, has much to do with causing cancer.

Until the cause and cure of cancer is discovered all we can do is to consult our family doctor when we have skin ailments that do not heal, lumps that appear in breasts or other parts of body, prolonged attacks of indigestion, loss of weight, loss of strength and so forth.

Early treatment by the knife, radium, or X-ray is the only known cure at present.

Anyone can hate. It costs to love.
It takes a man to forgive. Are you easy to get along with?

True thanksgiving is thanksliving.
What you will be you are now becoming.

OUR CHILDREN

GENERAL LAWS.

Children of eight and nine years of age are very literal. They think you mean just what your words say When they find that you meant something else as well, they are bewildered. They are cross and tell you that they don't know what you mean. Then they cry.

Bobbie was a little boy like that. 'I need a spool of black cotton," said mother. "Run down to Moore's and get one. Black cotton number fifty."

"You don't need black, fifty, ma. You got some yesterday. I brought you some. You told me yesterday—"

"Bobbie, never contradict a person older than yourself. How many times have I told you that? Now go and get me the cotton. And don't contradict anybody like that again. It is a very bad habit. You won't have a friend in the world if you keep it up."

Bobbie went to the store and asked for black cotton number fifty and Mr. Moore said, "You're making a mistake, Bobby. Your mother got black cotton here yesterday. Don't you remember?"

"Yes, sir," said Bobbie, very unhappy about it all.

"So I'll just give you white. You got a little mixed up I guess. There you are."

"Yes, sir," said Bobbie, miserably.

"Bobbie Garlett, what do you mean? How can you be so stupid? I distinctly told you black cotton and you argued with me about it. Then you go and bring me white cotton. What do you mean anyway?"

"I couldn't help it, ma. He made me take it. I told him black and he said white and you told me not to contradict, him and how'm I to know who's right' I won't go to the store any more. So there. Every time I go it's wrong."

Nine year old children accept what you say as you say it. Bobbie was afraid to contradict Mr. Moore because he had been threatened with the loss of esteem if he did so. He was more afraid of Mr. Moore than he was of his mother. He dared not contradict him He accepted his mother's word as final, for that time anyway.

"Charlie, remember, don't upen your mouth to Aunt Eliza about this. Remember now. Don't open you mouth." Charlie went about the house with his finger on his lips until his testy aunt inquired if he was in his right mind. He was literally afraid he might open his mouth to Aunt Eliza.

Of course it seems very silly. Children's mistakes are always silly to their elders but to them they are almost tragic. Sometimes quite so as when Mary Louise refused the medal the visitor was presenting to her for excellence in general school work because her mother had told her only that morning "that never, never, never under any circumstances, remember, take anything from a stranger."

The presentation of a medal was something far from the thought of either mother or child. No mention had been made of any such happening. Mary Louise sat tight until permission from home was granted for the acceptance of the little silver medal on the bit of blue ribbon.

Nine and ten year old children are like that. Take it into consideration when laying the general laws for their behavior.

WOMEN'S LEAGUE PUTS ON SOCIAL

Grace Presbyterian Church Party Held at Home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Thompson.

BAND ENTERTAIN

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, July 2.—Mr. and Mrs. John R. Thompson were host and hostess for the annual garden-party, under the auspices of the Women's League of Grace Presbyterian church, held at their home, Fifth Line, Cavan with a good attendance and a substantial sum added to the funds in the Society's treasury.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, who are a bride and groom of only a few weeks' standing, warmly welcomed the many friends to their hospitable home, the minister and his wife, Rev. John and Mrs. Riddell, and the officers of the Women's League, assisting in greeting the guests and in making the out of doors' gathering as enjoyable and successful as it turned out to be.

The tea tables were laid out on the nicely-sheltered lawn to the east side of the house, and the meal served fully sustained the reputation of the Women's League.

The Lakefield band was the main feature advertised in providing the program, cornet solos, duets, and selections by the entire band, with recitations by a young lady reader whom they brought with them, and readings by Miss Dorothy Hall, a pupil of Mrs. W. McKee Bingham's, making up a delightful entertainment.

Many friends from the sister Presbyterian church at Centerville, which with Grace church, Millbrook, makes up the pastoral charge of Rev. John Riddell, motored over and enjoyed the evening at Mr. and Mrs. Thompson's home.

All Ladies Take Part

Practically all the ladies of the congregation are members of the Women's League of Grace church, and the majority of them were on hand to help serve the tea at Mrs. Thompson's, the latter's mother, Mrs. M. Hawthorne, assisting her daughter with her duties as hostess to such a large gathering.

Flags and bunting were used in decorating the verandah and grounds for the garden-party, and the general expression of opinion was to the effect that no more suitable place could have been chosen for the happy outing. The ease with which Mr. and Mrs. Thompson's home may be reached from the village, a paved road all the way making it possible for those who wished to walk the comparatively short distance, was an important feature in adding to the attendance for the annual church lawn social.

Mrs. C. Thorndyke is president of the Women's League, and Mrs. T. A. Ingram secretary.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Alice Michaelis

If One Dream Died

If in your garden
The rarest rose
From bud to blossom
Did not unclose,
Would you leave pensy
And violet
And pink untended,
In your regret?

If lark and linnet
And whip-poor-will
Poured out their music,
Soft notes or shrill,
But one loved songster
Soared far away,
Would that mean silence
For all your day?
Would you cease dreaming
If one dream died,
If one bright hope went Unsatisfied?

TRENT RIVER

The "Dulcia" yacht passed through on Thursday en route down the canal.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Cotton and little daughter Marilyn, of Toronto, are at "Marilyn", Green Point.

Mr. John Boyd celebrated his eighty-first birthday on Saturday. Miss Betty Ormiston's twelfth birthday and John Boyd Brown's (son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Brown) birthday also occurred on the same date. The event took the form of an afternoon birthday tea given by Mr. Boyd at his residence.

The school closed on Friday, the teacher, Mr. N. P. McNulty, returning to his home in Asphodel.

Mrs. R. H. Wood has had a new sun room erected at her residence.

What To-day Means To You.

If July 2nd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a.m. to 8:30 a.m., noon to 1:30 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. The danger periods are from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Astrological indications on this date are too vague to make any definite forecasts. It would be well to feel your way carefully and to be guided by intuitions. To-morrow's intoxicating influence may be felt the last part of the day, and the evening hours may be rife with fun and pleasure.

The child born on this July 2nd will have well developed artistic and imaginative faculties. It will have a longing for sympathy from others, and will be very sensitive to criticism. It will be very easily influenced.

Your intellectual standing may not be high enough to give you prestige, but your character will, amongst the right sort of people. You are a pleasant, quiet sort, extremely unassuming. If you have a castle of 300 rooms you would call it your little house in the country. You let the world discover and value you and your possessions.

Until you find your depth you always say little, and you never talk too freely about other people. Your tongue does not let you or others in for trouble. You have very correct and exacting taste. You are both delightful and disdainful —a dangerous combination for other's self esteem. People never know whether you are laughing at or with them.

It is a matter of indifference to you whether you have logic on your side or not. As a matter of fact you distrust an argument that is too conclusive. You do not work too hard, you think it ostentatious to be too busy, and you hate "fussy people. You wait until you are requested to do things, you never rush into the breach. Your advance in life will be slow and deliberate, you do not believe in hustling Destiny. You are ambitious, but you conceal your ambitions. These too have to be discovered. You are qhixotically honorable, and sarcastically witty. You are never disloyal.

Crescents Beat Cognawagas Four Runs To One

WINNERS HOLDING SECOND POSTION IN LEAGUE RACE

Defensively Cognawagas Had a Bad Day—Also Weak at Bat.

TWO RUNS IN FIRST.

Cogs Score Their Only Tally in the Fourth Frame.

The Crescent ball team drew farther away from the Cognawagas in the E.P.L. sweepstakes and dropped solidly into second place, right behind the fast-stepping C.G.E. nine, by virtue of the 4—1 defeat they handed the Cogs at Exhibition Park on Monday evening.

Defensively the losers had a bad day. It was their many errors, totalling seven in number, which proved their downfall, all but one of the Crescent runs being directly due to misplays. And this came about despite sterling pitching by Angus Macdonald, late of Yale University. The big left hander, making his first start on Charlie Curtis's circuit, twirled winning ball, allowing but four wildly scattered hits, none of which were real thumps. The batters had difficulty in getting anything but pops to the infield or rollers on his throws, and he was far and away the hardest working member of Cogs' team.

The losers were always weak with the bat, but this was all due to the effective pitching of Jeff Hardill. The most the losers could secure from him were two hits, one a bunt by Cuthbertson and the other a sound crack by Grant. Hardill's own wildness gave him his only difficult moments.

The Crescents secured their runs early; two being their portion in the first frame. Getting a walk, LeBarr, first up, went to second on a passed ball, and after Sweetman had rolled out, he scored on J. Jones' single back of third. Jones stole second. Collins popped into centre field. Hardill raised a fly into the same garden, but Grant, coming in fast on the ball allowed it to bounce out of his glove. Jones scored on this mishap. Crary filed to right for the third out.

In the second the Crescents returned to add another run. After Hickey had filed out to left field, the troubled started when F. Jones' bouncer went through Cuthbertson. The runner stole second and continued to third on Starr's wild peg to the middle sack. Heard rolled to the pitcher and Jones tore home, being safe on a close play at the plate. LeBarr singled, but Sweetman raised a foul to Meldrum and J. Jones rolled to first.

In their half of the same innings, the Cogs had their first scoring opportunity. Rooke was safe on Heard's error. Corbett and Starr were retired, but Meldrum and Grant drew walks. Macdonald's best effort at the needed hit was a roller to second.

Again in the next frame the Cogs loomed dangerous, getting Billingsley on third and Cuthbertson on second with but one out, but they failed to score. Sweetman robbed Corbett of a hit to retire the side. In the fourth they came back to get their lone tally. Meldrum got on first when Hardill chose to get Starr at second, who had obtained a life when Heard dropped his fly. Meldrum went to second on a wild pitch and scored on Grant's rap.

In the sixth the Cogs threatened again, getting two on with none out, but Meldrum whiffed, and Crary made smart plays of Grant and Macdonald's grounders.

Errors in the final frame gave the Crescents their other run; three misplays combining for it.

HARRY LONG WINS CHALLENGE CUP AT DELORO MEET

Trenton Boy Beats His Last Year's Record By 2½ Minutes.

6-MILE MARATHON.

Race Was Sponsored By the Deloro Athletic Association.

MARMORA, July 2 (Examiner Correspondence).—Beating last year's record by 2½ minutes, Harry Long, aged 15, of Trenton, secured possession of the Kent challenge trophy for the current year at Deloro on Tuesday in the six-mile road marathon. His time was 31 minutes. Clifford McInroy, 20, Bonarlaw, who finished second last year, finished second also this year, completing the course in the same time, 34 minutes. Last year's holder, Manley Emmorey, 17, Deloro, finished in 37 minutes. Percy Melville, 17, Marmora, finished fourth. These were the only entrants out of seven making application. The race, sponsored by the Deloro Amateur Athletic Association, was favored with the coolest attendant climatic conditions since its inception in 1927. From the start at Deloro, Long, following a good get-away, set the pace for the other contestants. The course followed the Marmora road as far as the Goat Hill turn and back. Visitors joined the full turnout of villagers in giving the runners a rousing reception as they finished their course. The winner of the senior race for which the age limit is 21 was also eligible on account of his youth, to run in the junior race, and this he decided to do, making the number of entrants seven. After an early lead, Long allowed W. Simmons, Deloro, last year's winner, to keep abreast for quite a distance until firmally the Deloro youth outpaced him and won the race, covering the approximate distance of three miles in 13 minutes.

Results of junior race, age limit 17: (1) W. Simmons, 16, Deloro, 13 mins.; (2) H. Long, 15, Trenton, 14 mins.; (3) V. Callery, 14 (Deloro), 14½ mins.; (4) S. Callery, 11, Deloro, 15 mins.; (5) T. Brawley, 14, Deloro, 15½ mins.; (6) W. Burke, 13, Deloro, 16½ mins.; (7) J. Reynolds, 13, Deloro, 18 mins.

An impromptu married ladies' race was staged prior to the boys' pick-a-back race with nine entrants. Mrs. Jules Ethier was the winner. The Hastings County Junior Baseball League fixture, Belleville Moose vs. Deloro, scheduled for 4 o'clock, had to be abandoned, rain which had threatened earlier in the day, falling as the game was about to start.

Prizes for the races were presented by H. A. McNally, immediate past president of the association and chairman of the committee of past presidents, who are yearly entrusted with the arrangements of Deloro's most auspicious sporting event.

HASTINGS BEATS HARWOOD TEAM

Game is a Real Slug Feast for The Two Teams.

SCORE 15 TO 10

HASTINGS, July 2.—(Examiner Correspondence)—Hastings increased their winning streak to six games on Saturday afternoon at Harwood when they took the Lakeshore town into camp 15 to 10. The game was a real slugfeast for both teams bunched their hits when in the best position to bring in the runs. Both towns got a run in the first inning and in the second Hastings got two and Harwood four. Harwood added another in the third and one more in the sixth before Hastings went after Young's delivery in the seventh for six runs, they added three more in each of the last two innings, holding Harwood to one in the eighth and two in the ninth.

There was a large crowd out for the game and feeling high. Hastings took along the regular home town rooters as well as having some from Roseneath and a good-sized crowd of real rooters from Alderville who made themselves heard for the full nine innings.

The Hastings team do not seem to be able to get the support from the home town in which they deserve. The boys are playing smart ball this year having won every game played so far in the league. Four out of the six games have been played away from home in towns and village a lot smaller than Hastings before large crowds, yet their home games only draw a little better than ten dollar gates. The early spring cry was to get the team in a league so that the town would have baseball this summer. The backers of the club went to great trouble in getting Hastings into the Northumberland League, where they are now sitting on top with a good lead. It is to be hoped that the public will get in behind the boys and give them the support they are richly deserving.

Saturday's game in Harwood was handled by Ball and Stewart of Baltimore. The Hastings battery made numerous complaints about the way Ball called them on Scriver, the Hastings' pitcher has a sharp curve that has to be watched carefully as it just breaks over the corner of the plate.

The line ups:

Hastings—Lemoire, cf; Gillespie, 3b; T. Dodd, 2b; Stevenson, 1b; Sargent, lf; N. Scriver, c; L. Hill, ss; G. Scriver, rf; L. Scriver, p.

Harwood—Harvey, rf; Hogg, 3b; Wade, 2b; McLean, c; Lee, lf; O. Harvey, cf; Lawton, ss; Miniffe, 1b; Young, p.

MENIE DEFEATS GLEN ROSS 7 TO 2

Kerr in His First Start of Season Goes Round for Visitors.

PLAY WAS CLOSE

BURNBRAE, July 2 (Examiner Correspondence). — Menie won the hardest fought and best played game of the season on the Glen Ross diamond on Friday evening, when they emerged victors by a score of 7 to 2.

Kerr, in his first start of the season, went the route for Menie and in spite of a baffling wind, his curve ball had the Glen Ross batters guessing all through the game. He struck out three and received good support to hold the opposition to ten safe hits. He walked two while Smith passed one and struck out Frank Little, a somewhat remarkable feat and a new experience for the slugging Menie outfielder.

The play for Menie was entirely infield, but the Glen Ross outfielders gave their pitcher good support. The game was very close until the sixth when four successive errors by Archer let Menie away for three runs. Eagleson was the heavy batter for Menie with four trips to first and three runs in five times up. Kerr got three hits and drove in three runs in four in five times up. Kerr got three hits and drove in three runs in four trips to the plate, but failed to score. Hay and Eagleson each hit a two-bagger while Brown performed the same feat for the Glen. Menie pulled a lucky double play to stop a scoring threat by the Glen Ross crew in the last half of the seventh. None of the southern team could score except Fraser and Smith and none of them reached first on more than two occasions.

This win gives Menie a very satisfactory hold on second place in the League standing. The next game is at Hoards on July 10.

The lineups were as follows:

Glen Ross—Smith, p; Brown, c; Archer 1b; G. Fraser, 2b; M. Fraser, 3b; L. Fraser, ss; Carlisle, lf; A. Fraser, cf; Conley, rf; Mitts, sub.

Menie—Kerr, p; T. Little, c; Shillinglaw, 1b; L. Little, 2b; Rannie, 3b; Eagleson, ss; Hay, lf; Petherick, cf; F. Little, rf; Thompson, sub.

FRASERVILLE GIRLS DEFEAT WESTCLOX

Bailieboro Boys Dovn Home Lads 22-8 in Sport's Day Feature.

BAILIEBORO, July 2 (Examiner Correspondence.) — The Fraserville young people held a field day on their sports field, on Saturday afternoon. Softball games made up the afternoon's program. There was a splendid crowd and plenty of enthusiasm was evident. In all, the day was a credit to the young people of Fraserville.

The first ball game was between Fraserville girls and the Westclox of Peterborough. Although the Peterborough girls were a smart fielding team, they proved to be no match for the heavy hitting Fraserville team, losing 23 to 19. Most of the Westclox runs were scored on errors. E. Perrin pitched splendidly and had 8 strike-outs to her credit. H Joyce and M. Mortimer did the twirling for the visitors. A. Crary supplied some sensational work in centre field. L. Thirnbeck was injured in the fifth but was able to continue a creditable performance behind the bat. The line-up:

Westclox— H. Joyce, p.; I. Thirnbeck, c.; D. Rogers, 2b.; S. Krown, l.f.; G. Mortimer, s.s.; V. Kingdon, r.f.; A. Crary, c.f.; M. Mortimer 1b.; F. Rome, 3b.

Fraserville— R. Wood, c.; P. Carl, s.s.; E. McElory, l.f.; R. Cunningham, c.f.; O. Carl, 2b.; E. Perrin, p.; M. Wood, 1b.; R. Holden, r.f.; T. Yelland, 3b.

Score by innings:

Westclox	305070130—19
Fraserville	222206206—23

Umpires—At the plate, Keith Barnard; on bases, "Mike" Latimer.

The second ball game was between Bailieboro and Fraserville boys. The game was a decided victory for Bailieboro, who went on a wild batting spree to win the game 22-8.

Thompson, playing short-stop for Bailieboro, made several sensational plays. E. Carl made several fine catches in right field. K. Barnard had ten strike-outs. The line-ups:

Bailieboro—M. Perrin, r.f.; J. Barnard, 1b.; C. Harper, c.f.; M. Johnston, 2b.; K. Barnard, p.; B. Thompson, s.s.; F. Barnard, 3b.; A. Bateman, c.; J. Breckenridge, l.f.

Score by innings:

Bailieboro	14452105—22

LEAFS WIN TWO FROM BUFFALO

Toronto Outfit is Two and Half Games Behind Baltimore.

ROYALS SPLIT BILL.

Baltimore and Rochester soon will be taking the Toronto Maple Leafs' threat seriously.

The Leafs earned two victories over Buffalo yesterday, and thereby crawled to within two and one-half games of the second place Baltimore outfit, and only three games away from Rochester, setting the pace.

Buffalo gave the Leafs close struggles in both games, losing by 6-5 in the morning contest and 4-3 in the afternoon. The Leafs fought an uphill battle in the morning game, twice coming from behind before winning out on a double by Ruble and old Joe Harris' triple. Buffalo collected 12 hits off Page and Cantrell, but did not make as much use of them as Toronto did of its 11 off Tomlin and Mills. The Bisons baked Kyle Graham for three runs in the first inning of the second game, but Nick Harrison went to the rescue and held the visitors safely in check thereafter, while the Leafs pounded School for the tying markers in the fourth and fifth innings and won out on Harrison's triple and Rabbitt's single in the sixth.

In the only other games of the day, Montreal and Rochester split a double bill, the Redwings taking the first game 8 to 5, and losing the second 6-0.

The Redwings spilled Art Smith for a five-run loss in the first inning of the opened and clouted Pomorski and Hartman freely as well. Jimmy Collins hit his 19th and 20th homers in this game. Lefty Classet was in complete charge of the situation in the second game when he let the Redwings down with eight scattered hits. Snake Henry clinched this victory for Montreal when he hit for the circuit with two on in the sixth.

TOURISTS' TREK TO LAKE STARTS

Large Number Are Seen on Streets of City To-day.

FISHING OPENS.

The great trek of American tourists into the Kawartha Lake district has commenced. The advance guard of this motor cavalcade was conspicuous on the highways leading into Peterborough yesterday. Large cars weighted down with camping equipment and carrying full quotas of keen-eyed Americans sped north over the roads seeking the pleasures of forest and stream of Ontario's playground.

Along Peterborough's streets on Monday these powerful gasoline chariots were seen crowding the curbs outside the stores, while the eager tourists were busy purchasing supplies needed for their stay at the lakes. From Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and other northern states they had come.

For two weeks and more the city has awaited the tourists and the first contingent was royally welcomed. Other years the tourist season opened in the middle of June, and the Examiner, questioned as to the delay this year, has made a detailed study of the circumstances. Fishing is the answer. Up until last year the fishing season opened on June 15, but in 1929 it was shoved back to July 1st. Last year many tourists came in June expecting fishing and they were disappointed to learn that fishing was closed until July 1st. This information spread through the states during the winter and naturally the American fisherman had his eye on July 1st for fishing in Ontario.

Sunday and Monday the fishermen were making their way into Ontario to be on the fishing grounds ready to cast their flies on the first streak of dawn to-morrow morning.

One American told the whole story when he said, "I would have liked to have come up earlier, but you know, while I come up for a holiday, I like to fish. The muskies and bass are my meat." The same man stated with assurance that there would be as many tourists this year as in the past and "perhaps a lot more."

DEBT PAYING AT CENTENNIAL.

To commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the great Latin-American liberator, Simon Bolivar, Venezuela will pay off the entire external debt of the nation during the coming year. At the end of 1929 Venezuela's debt totalled approximately $4,700,000.

LOCAL BOWLERS ARE ELIMINATED AT OSHAWA MEET

Three Peterborough Rinks Entered Play at Oshawa Tournament.

THREE COMPETITIONS.

George Cairns Loses Out in Third Round of McLaughlin Trophy.

OSHAWA, July 2.—Despite threatening weather, the annual Dominion Day tournament was held by the Oshawa Lawn Bowling Club. There were three competitions for the W. F. Eaton and R. S. McLaughlin Trophies and a consolation series.

The bowlers were hurried off the greens by a heavy rain, which descended about 2 o'clock. Water, two inches deep, lay on the green after the storm had passed, and it was only the quick drainage facilities that allowed the tournament to proceed at all. It was 5 o'clock before play could resume.

BOXERS MUST DEFEND LAURELS DESPITE FOULS

N. Y. State Athletic Commission Abolishes All Foul Rules.

DRASTIC ACTION.

Foul Decisions Have Become Curse of Major Fights.

NEW YORK, N.Y., July 2 (Canadian Press). — The New York State Athletic Commission has finally solved the foul problem. It decided that there was no such animal.

Listening to the pleas of Samme Mandell, lightweight champion, and Al Singer, the "Bronx Beauty," who will battle him for the crown here on July 17, the solemn fathers decided upon the most drastic action in its history to curb the curse that has fallen upon major fisticuffs. Singer and Mandell wanted a ruling that would prevent their match ending in a foul. They got it—with trimmings.

The commission, harassed by the growth of the foul plague and already the sponsors of the "Baumes" law of life suspension for a life suspension for a fourth low-blow offender, decided to eliminate fouls entirely. Boxers will devise their own implements of protection, with the approval of the commission, and then go into battle with the knowledge in mind that, no matter what happens, no matter where the leather lands on their anatomies, there can be no claim of foul.

AFFILIATION IS ASSURED

P. and D. F. A. Will Join Ontario Football Association.

FANS DELIGHTED.

A favorable decision was arrived at the meeting of the Peterborough and District Football Association on Monday evening, when the executive decided that they become affiliated with the Ontario Football Association. The finances to meet the necessary expenditure was presented to the board by men interested in the code.

It was moved by Fred Sutcliffe, seconded by Jack Cairns "That the Peterborough and District Football Association become affiliated with the parent body—Ontario Association—and that they send an application to be considered at the annual meeting of the forenamed board to be held in the month of January; also that the local board send a representative.

The board have no other alternative but to get affiliated because they cannot appropriate the stipulated sums for anything else than the proposed arrangement.

Fred Sutcliffe stated that the local body would never get any recognition unless they become affiliated.

We can get Toronto teams to come and play then, at present we cannot. It costs the O.F.A. more than the P. and D.F.A. gives annually. They pay all expenses of the representatives sent from this city. Let us have the players, spectators and officials recognise that outlaw football is a detriment and it cannot become an asset unless organized from parent body.

'A few years ago, remarked ex-President William Cook, we had some of the finest players in the Province and they played in the Ontario representative games. He enumerated a number who had upheld the good name of the city. Then remember the Gordon Cup final at the Oval when we had over two thousand spectators witness the C.G.E. and the Caledonians. We had football at the highest level then why not now? It is to the benefit of the community when we send excellent players to other cities; also referees that be requested by O.F.A. to go and officiate at games in other cities. Affiliation is the only cure, gentlemen, let us get into it at the annual meeting.

The past president, Jack Cairns, gave an excellent account of the activities of the local association under O.F.A. and detailed the benefits from being associated with the parent body. We have had Ontario cup games worth watching played in this city. Take for example Ottawa, St. Catharines, Brantford and Toronto teams have always had to travel to get into the next round against representative teams.

A general all round comment proved very favorable and the minutes were recorded as previously mentioned.

Game To-night

On King Edward Park, to-night, the Caledonians meet the C.G.E. in the league match. Kick off at seven o'clock. Referee, James Hawthorne. And on Saturday, the same two contestants meet in the semi-final of the Phelan Charity Cup on King Edward Park. Kick off at three o'clock.

Referee's Application Received

James Hawthorne who resigned from the official list was reinstated, last evening, and will meet the examiners in the near future so as to go through the necessary test, according to the rules. All intending referees are requested to be present at the next meeting.

MORE THAN ATHLETICS IN CANADIAN PROJECT

Four Great Continents Will Meet in Truly British Gathering —Stimulus of Novel Adventure Replaces International Rivalry.

WRITER TRACES GAMES TO OLMYPIC ORIGINS.

By Sir W. Beach Thomas in "Overseas."

We may argue—friendily—about Free Trade within the Empire. No one will argue against free competition in athletic prowess—free, that is, within the limits of amateur status. Canada has been very prolific of late in many directions and has produced ideas as well as other goods. The idea of an Empire game is one of the best; and has been endorsed as such with especial fervor in Britain, for the King is President, and the Vice-Presidents are singularly representative, not only of athletics as such, but of public opinion on the subject. One of the best bits of journalism that I can remember was a succession of special pleas for the Olympic games which Lord Northcliffe wrote with his own hand, though annonymously. It was a masterpiece of pleading, clear, merry, well-informed and so delightfully persuasive that presently, instead of asking for money, he had to plead that he could no longer stop the money coming in. Doubtless Lord Rothermere and Lord Beaverbrooke, who are among the Vice-Presidents, will remember and be tempted to rival that feat.

Happy Date.

The date is a happy one, though I have seen no reference to the coincidence. The A.A.A.—the best of great athletic associations, though it is not quite so old as the London or University Athletic Clubs—is to celebrate its Jubilee this Spring; and no more pertinent form of celebration could be devised than to father a really representative team to go to Hamilton, Ontario, in the third week of August. If the team were selected on the Jubilee day, which is in April, it would just have time for a really thorough training. For training is not so short and intensive a process as we are apt to consider it in England. The best sprinter and coach I ever knew—he was a professional—told me that he could not do his best in a 100 yards race with much less than six months' training. Athletics have immensely advanced of late in spirit and in accomplishments, and I speak as one of those who was concerned in arranging the very first journey of University athletes to the American continent. Perhaps the coming of the relay race has been one of the most potent influences. It has lent a new zest to the corporate spirit, which was apt to be missing in so very individual a form of competition.

"Empire Games," of course, include a great deal more than athletics in the narrow sense, or pedestrianism, as some have called it. Our race has invented and adapted and adopted a great variety of games that have spread round and about the Empire; and most of these will be included in the program; lawn-tennis, athletics, boxing, wrestling, swimming, rowing and bowls. This last is a game of much wider popularity than many will believe, and so long established that its phrases and words have made their way into our literature and our common speech.

Olympic Origins.

The holding of such Empire games has been discussed ever since Empire athletes met one another in competition in the Olympic games at Amsterdam. The proposal and its general acceptance were the direct outsome and the pleasurable rivalry of that meeting. The Hamilton meeting will come "trailing clouds of glory" from Olympic origins. It will be designed on the Olympic model, both in general construction and its stern definition of the amateur. But they will be very different, free from both the excessive stimulus and the Babel of the international stadium. They should be merrier and less stern, and will substitute the stimulus of a novel adventure for the pressure of international rivalry.

The neighborhood of Hamilton has great charm in itself, and Ontario has some claim to be regarded as a halfway house. It is very remote from India, but offers easy and very pleasant sea trips to those born athletes, the Australians and to the South Africans, who—to my eyes in Olympic contests—have surpassed all the rest of the world in perfection of training. Personally, I have never seen players who could play five set matches in lawn tennis singles or run a marathon to a winning finish with less sign of exhaustion, or even decent weariness. It is a proper part of the pleasure and value of such games that we are enabled to note such excellences in one another. They enlarge the sport of friendly competition as well as enhance its technical excellence. There is promise of a very representative entry from New Zealand.

WILL ROGERS IN "SO THIS IS LONDON."

Anyone who likes a good laugh ought to see this picture. Will Rogers, with his ceaseless fund of dry humour, his drawl and his Sam Weller lock of hair over his forehead, is simply priceless. The only trouble with this talkie is the fact that the audience laughs so hard and constantly that the conversation is lost, at intervals. But that can't be helped. You can't sit through it and not chuckle with unconcealed merriment over Hiram Draper, of Texas, who goes to England with an inborn and overwhelming dislike of the British and everything connected with them, and remains there just long enough to see the error of his ways.

The supporting cast is wonderfully good. Mrs. Draper is all that could be desired and so is the son, Junior, whose infatuation for an English girl sets the Draper family by the ears. Then there is the girl herself, a pretty, bright creature, and her parents, Lord and Lady Worthing. The former has a walrus moustache and a monocle and a fine idea of his own importance. Gazing in astonishment at his wife, who has contradicted him on a minor point, he asks: 'My dear, have you ever known me to be wrong?" She agrees meekly that she hasn't and the matter is closed. The picture affords, along with other causes of entertainment, a fine example of the differing attitudes towards their womenkind, of English and American husbands.

The comedy is a good one, too, with Hal Roach's Rascals having plenty of fun in a burlesque entitled "Shivering Shakespeare."

Coach: You see, he's good on a muddy field.

Assistant: Yes, his girl has a muddy complexion.

C., July 2.—(CP)—Two world's records crumbled under the flying feet of sprint stars here yesterday, another was equalled—and Percy Williams, Vancouver's double Olympic champion tasted the bitter dregs of defeat. Eddie Tolan, Negro flash from Michigan State University drove his dusky legs to a new world record over the 100 metres course. Tolan was clocked at 10 1-5 seconds, one-fifth of second better than the mark held by himself and Charley Paddock former Southern California marvel. Three feet back of Tolan was George Simpson, Ohio State University, and another few inches to the rear was Williams.

Simpson came back after his first beating to win the 220 yards dash equalling the world record of 20.6 seconds. Tolan paced the slim Ohio speedster to the tape in this event.

Williams did not run.

Lillian Palmer 17-year-old Vancouver high school girl bettered the world's record for the women's 50-yard dash when she travelled the distance in 5 4-5 seconds, one-fifth of a second faster than the previous mark of six seconds flat set by Rosa Grosse of Toronto.

BOSTON RED SOX PITCHING STAFF ONE OF THE BEST

Half Dozen Pitchers Are Working Fine—Best in Major League.

POOR AT BAT.

Milt Gaston Allowed Three Hits Yesterday and Secured Three Himself.

Regardless of their humble position in the American League standing as the baseball season nears its halfway mark, the Boston Red Sox can put in a claim for the honor of having the best pitching in the major league. The only difficulty with the Boston American Leaguers is that they can't hit well enough to take advantage of their hurling.

A half dozen pitchers are working regularly and with a considerable amount of assurance that when they start a game they will finish it. Boston's record shows Milton Gaston, Jack Russell, Dan MacFayden, Eddie Durham, Hod Lisenbee and Ed Morris, taking regular and quite successful turns on the mound although the team's success is limited to getting an even break in its games for the past month and remaining just ahead of the cellar-holding Chicago White Sox.

Of this group of moundsmen, Milt Gaston is perhaps the hardest worker and the most effective pitcher. The star right hander pitched again yesterday and held the Cleveland Indians to three hits in his sixth complete game in succession and his 13th of the season. He also made just as many hits as he allowed having a perfect day at bat. The Red Sox collected 11 blows off Mel Harder but the best score they could produce was 3 to 1. It was Cleveland's 16th defeat in 19 games.

Bob Grove, Philadelphia's speedball ace did about as well as Gaston in the brief time the weather allowed the Athletics to play. He allowed Detroit just one hit in five innings while young Dib Williams aided him to a 4 to 1 victory. The teams started out to play a double header but the storm which stopped the games in New York and Washington cut them to one contest of the minimum length, five innings. Williams produced most of Philadelphia's counters by driving out a home run when he was sent in as a pinch batsman with two on base in the second inning.

The National league was saved a lot of complications when the Brooklyn Robins blew off the accumulated bad baseball of weeks in one inning against the St. Louis Cardinals. The result was eleven runs and a 15 to 7 victory for St. Louis.

Cubs Drop One

While this was going on the league leading Chicago Cubs were in the process of losing a 7 to 5 decision to the New York Giants. The Cubs are a game and a half ahead now, but the Robins had they won, would have found themselves in the strange position of being ahead in the percentage table and behind in games.

Fred Fitzsimmons was the leader in the victory over the league leaders that kept the Giants in third place. After four straight defeats the New Yorkers found themselves only a half game ahead of the Cages. Fitz kept them there by allowing the Cubs only eight hits of which Kiki Cuyler's two home runs and Hack Wilson's one were all that produced tallies.

Pittsburgh replaced Boston in fourth place by defeating the Braves 8 to 3. Rolly Hemsley's triple with two on in the second inning gave the Pirates a three run start and they tallied three more in the eighth just as the braves began to find Larry French for a few runs.

REG DIXON WINS RACING EVENT

Otto Gliddon Captures Fourth Place in Senior 'A' Class on Dominion Day.

.. HELD IN TORONTO. ..

TORONTO, July 2.—Reg. Dixon of Peterborough, flying the colors of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, won the morning event in the Senior "A" class of the Lake Skiff Sailing Association's dinghy races held at the National Yacht Club yesterday. Otto Glidden, an old Peterborough boy, finished fourth in the same event. In the afternoon event Dixon finished third, behind Bill Baker of the Toronto Canoe Club, who finished in first place, and Jim Hyland of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, who was second.

A dense fog delayed the morning for over an hour and a half. When the starting gun sounded at 11.05 twenty eight boats were under canvas, only one of them a gaff-rigged boat. What was described as "the finest fleet of new Marconi-rigged dinghies ever gathered together" sailed twice around a course consisting of a three-mile triangle, with all buoys left to startboard. At the end of the first leg, a beat to weather, Bill Baker, T.C.C., was first, with Tommy Turrall second; Otto Glidden third, and Reg Dixon fourth.

Peterborough Boys Lead

In the run to the western buoy, the first time around, Dixon and Glidden stood further out, and Dixon established a lead which he held for the rest of the race. Standing to windward of Glidden near the finish, Charles Bourke and Bill Baker took second and third places respectively.

In the afternoon race the wind proved extremely flukey. All buoys were left to port with the wind abeam. A shift to northwest wind enabled Bill Baker to pull out a lead which he held until the finish. The time was slow, due to the wind, and the race was shortened to once around the triangle. Near the end of the race Dingwall, who was running in second place, was covered by Dixon, enabling Jim Hyland to slid into second position.

The times recorded in the Senior "A" Class events were:

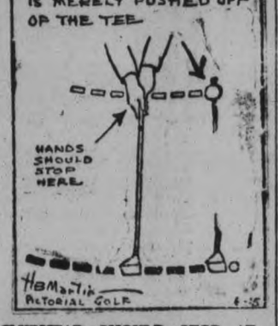
Morning

1—Reg. Dixon, R.C.Y.C.....1.38.50
2—Charles Bourke, R.C.Y.C...1.39.44
3—Bill Baker, T.C.C.....1.39.58

Afternoon

1—Bill Baker, T.C.C.....6.01.10
2—Jim Hyland, R.C.Y.C.....6.04.00
3—Reg. Dixon, R.C.Y.C.....6.05.00

GOLF



CLUBHEAD SHOULD STOP AT IMPACT

If the hands are moving at the same time that the clubhead is moving the ball will only be pushed off at the tee. It is necessary to learn this important fundamental of golf as it often distinguishes the difference between the duffer and the star.

It is important to get the power into the shot from a certain point. The hands actually should come to a stop at the impact. The nearer they come to a stop, the better. They move so slowly compared with the clubhead that it is rather an easy matter to see their movement in a moving picture no matter what speed it is taken.

AUSTRALIA DOWNS ENGLAND IN TEST CRICKET MATCH

LONDON, Eng., July 2.—(C.P.) — Australia defeated England by seven wickets in the cricket test match at Lord's yesterday. The losers rallied strongly in the last phase of the match and had the winners decidedly rattled and only the steadying influence of the Australian captain, W. M. Woodfull prevented a panic developing amongst the team mates.

Several Jockeys and Mounts in Spill on Dufferin Track

An accident without parallel, and what for a moment looked like a fatal mishap involving several jockeys and mounts, occurred at Dufferin track, Toronto, when four of eight starters took spills. One horse and rider crashed through fence to infield and others piled up in confusion. Here are shown (1) Jockey T. Romano, who had his leg broken in spill, being carried from grounds on a stretcher. (2) Assisting a jockey shaken after his tumble, and (3) one of the horses that came down sprawled out on the track.

UNCLE WIGGILY AND BUNTY'S TRICK.

"Now wait a minute," said the Bob Cat to the Fox.

"What's the use of waiting?" snarled the Fox.

"I want to see how this is going to work out," mewed the Bob Cat, sitting down near the pail of water he had been carrying. The Fox sat down near a burrow hole in which Uncle Wiggily was hiding.

"It's easy enough to work, and then Uncle Wiggily will come out," went on the Fox. "The old rabbit gentleman has been showing his little rabbits how to dig a burrow. I watched him from yonder hill. The little rabbits played for a while in the burrow Uncle Wiggily dug, then they all ran home before I could run down the hill to catch them.

"But I waited and pretty soon I saw Uncle Wiggily himself come back and go down in the hole. I heard him say something about going to look and see if any of his little bunnies had fallen asleep in there. But before he could get out and run home I was right here. He'll have to come out sooner or later, but when I saw you coming along with that pail of water I thought of a better plan."

"Yes," mewed the Bob Cat, "you said if I poured my pail of water down in the hole UncleWiggily would pop out fast so he wouldn't be drowned. Is that it?"

"That's it, yes," said the Fox. "Come on, now! Pour the water down and when that rabbit comes out I'll let you nibble half of him."

"Oh, I guess it's all up with me!" sighed poor Uncle Wiggily down in the hole watching for a chance to pop out. He did not dare do that with the Fox and Bob Cat so close by. But when they start pouring in that water I'll have to come up whether I want to or not and they'll have me!" sighed the bunny gentleman.

"Well, aren't you going to pour that pail of water down the hole?" howled the Fox at the Bob Cat.

"Just a moment, now," mewed the other Bad Chap. "I walked a long way to the spring to get that pail of water for my wife. If I go back to her with the pail empty she'll make a fuss."

"She won't make a fuss if you bring her half of Uncle Wiggily," said the Fox. "She'd rather have a half rabbit than a whole pail of water."

"You don't know my wife!" chuckled the Bob Cat. "When she wants a pail of water she wants that and nothing else. Bring her half a rabbit, or even a whole rabbit, and she'd just sniff and say: 'I sent you for a pail of water! Where is it?' Oh, you don't know my wife!"

"Well, what do you want me to do?" asked the Fox. "The only way to catch Uncle Wiggily is to pour water into his burrow so he'll have to come up. If you are so silly—"

"I'm not silly!" mewed the Bob Cat. "But let's consider that. I've got to bring my wife a pail of water. No rabbit that I bring will take her mind off that. But if—"

"Ha! I know what we can do!" suddenly cried the Fox. "Come over here away from that hole, so Uncle Wiggily can't hear what we say, and I'll tell you how we can fix this to please your wife and, at the same time, catch a rabbit."

"Any way so long as I can take my wife a pail of water," spoke the Bob Cat. Then he and the Fox went a little way from the hole but not far enough so that Uncle Wiggily dared take a chance and run out.

And then, all of a sudden, alongcame Baby Bunty with her big, red rubber ball that Uncle Wiggily had bought for her. Bunty saw the pail full of water near the hole and right away the little rabbit orphan rabbit child said:

"Oh, now I can fill my rubber ball and squirt! I've been looking all around here for water, but I couldn't find any until now. Oh, how lucky I am!"

Bunty squeezed her ball and ducked it under the water. The ball sucked the water up through a hole and the ball was so large that it took in nearly the whole pail full, quite emptying it, in fact.

"Now I'll squirt!" gleefully cried Bunty. By this time the Fox and Bob Cat, whom Bunty had not seen, settled their dispute and came out from behind a bush. They saw the empty pail.

"Who took that water?" howled the Bob Cat.

"I did!" answered brave Bunty.

"Give it back to me!" howled the Bob Cat.

"All right! Here it is!" shouted Bunty. With that she squeezed her rubber ball as hard as she could in both paws. "Zip! Zoopy!" out squirted the water spraying full in the faces of the Fox and Bob Cat.

"Wow! Wow! Wow!" they howled, dabbling their paws in their wet eyes. And so they couldn't see Uncle Wiggily when out of the burrow he popped and ran home with Baby Bunty and her tricky rubber ball.

MONOPLANE COLUMBIA SETS MARK ON BERMUDA TRIP

VALLEY STREAM, N.Y., July 2.—(C.P.)—The monoplane Columbia, veteran of the Levine-Chamberlin Trans-Atlantic flight and once holder of a world's endurance record, had another exploit to her credit Tuesday a non-stop round trip flight to Bermuda and back.

Roger Q. Williams, a trans-Atlantic pilot and Errol Boyd, a veteran of the Royal Canadian Air Force, steering the Columbia by the navigation of Harry E. Connor, hopped off from Roosevelt Field at 4:01 a.m. (E. S.T.) Monday, found the speck of an island 800 miles away, circled above it in a tropical downpour, then headed back, landing at Curtiss Field at 9.03 p.m.

HOW TO GET A TUX SHIRT OFF

Now that prom season is with us once again we present a few little helps on how to overcome that all-important problem of taking off a tux shirt:

1. Go on an eighteen day diet until you are a mere shadow of your former self. Enter a dark room—shadow and shirt will completely disappear.
2. Go to a reliable laundry. After going through their cleaning process, shirt will be reduced to threads. Throw away threads.
3. Buy the shirt on Cornell.
4. If all other methods fail —laugh it off.

Three in Same Family Helped

"My mother was visiting in Detroit a year ago and she was in very poor health. My sister-in-law got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped her more than anything she had taken. She advised me to take it too and I did. My back used to ache and I suffered so with pain at times that I could not work. I feel like a new woman and can do my housekeeping and work in the store. I am glad to answer letters."—*Mrs. T. V. THE CALEDONIANS' OUTING

(By Frank Russell)

Yesterday, July the first was, as all my readers know, a public holiday, for it was Dominion Day and most of the Canadian world made a holiday of it. For it comes at a very pleasant time of the year—just after mid- summer—for a holiday. The 'probs' as issued by the Meteorological office on the last day of June had predicted thunderstorms for a previous night and on that day. And they were not far out either, for we had a thunderstorm and some heavy rain on the previous night and the outlook on the early morn of the holiday was not by any means favorable.

However, the writer got out at an early hour and betook himself to the steam boat wharf on George street in this, by no means mean city. And why? Because it was practically the opening day of the steamboat season.

It is true the Stoney Lake steamer had run one or two, what I might term, private excursions for Sunday Schools, but on July first was billed a real holiday outing projected by the Caledonian Club, a substanial confraternity of Scots to which the public was admitted, by the simple contribution of a certain amount of coin of the reader.

Accordingly your scribe found himself at eight o'clock (D.S.T.) on the George street wharf ready to board the good old Stoney Lake Steamer which was to convey her freight of some two hundred and fifty passengers for a trip via the Lift Lock and the Trent Canal to the Lakes, the destination being Juniper Island, about a five hours' journey.

The good old ship was filled with a happy crowd who were all out prepared to enjoy themselves. There were old and young and middle-aged but there appeared to be imprinted on their faces the determination: 'We are out to enjoy ourselves'. There was that smile on their faces that didn't come off. And here let me say that they did enjoy themselves and thoroughly too!

"Well, at five mintes to eight the warning whistle was blown and a minute or so after the city clock had boomed out eight times, the departure whistle was heard and we were under way.

Now I have described the trip up to the lakes so often that I hesitate to say much more about it now, so I will only say that although I have been over it, I may almost say scores of times, I invariably find out something fresh about it each time I repeat the trip. Some pretty, interesting spot appears to be new to me which gives a freshness to the scene.

We had on board the orchestra belonging to the Caledonian Club and very soon dancing was the order of the day interspersed with songs in which, very naturally Scotch predominated and beautiful enough they are too! What can one wish better than say, "Bonnie Dundee" the time honored, "Annie Laurie" the "Blue Bells of Scotland?" and others of that ilk? Suffice it to say that with dancing and singing it seemed to be next to no time that we found ourselves at Young's Point where we received on board the Captain's wife and little daughter. There was a big crowd to welcome the steamer.

Then on and on we steamed, a thoroughly and happy contented party without anything toward or untoward occurring. The clouds in the meantime, had lifted well and the sun was shining as one could wish to see on a July day. And then, oh joyous sound, the dinner bell rang, and nothing loathe, I went into the saloon to feed. By the time the repast was over and much appreciated, we had sighted Juniper Island and preparations were accordingly made for the landing.

The great majority found their way to the dance saloon. Here dancing was soon on in full swing interspersed with singing, both solo and chorus; not only were Scotch songs sung but some of those delightful appealing old airs so prevalent in the Southern States of America during the Civil War and which became so popular in England. Reels were danced galore and the bagpipes were played, so my readers may well guess that all were happy and joyful. And this went on for about two hours when almost simultaneously with the steamer's warning whistle to reassemble in the boat, the clouds which had been growing rather ominous broke and on came a thunderstorm—not a very heavy one however, for it lasted barely half and hour and had the effect of materially cooling the air which had become decidedly summery.

The return trip was delightful, the atmosphere being so clear, showing up as we approached Lakefield, the enormous chimney at the Cement Works.

One little excitement was caused on board during the short thunderstorm, for suddenly a mass of fire appeared on the shore which had the appearance of a cottage or shack having been struck by a flash of lightning.

Amongst those on board to whom thanks are due were Mrs. Bell of Lakefield who in a clear voice sang some songs most acceptably, her enunciation being particularly clear; Bob Hendry, R. Gilmour, and etc. Alex Milne was a most efficient piper. And now a word of thanks to the Captain and the crew for they contribute very materially to the happiness and comfort of those in their care. Captain Scollard was as usual full of thought and attention ably backed up by the loyal members of his crew, while Mrs. Little the cook looked after the creature comfort of many of us in a very material manner.

Altogether it was a most happy pleasant and enjoyable day's outing thoroughly enjoyed by the members of the Club which numbers around a hundred and the others who were privileged to take part in it.

THIS DAY AND AGE

"Daddy, read me the comics," said little Hazel Horsefeathers to her father.

"All right, Hazy," he replied. "First I'll read you about Oscar Oofblatz. In the first picture we see Oscar up in a green apple tree. In the second picture we see him fall out of the tree on his face. Then the farmer licks him with a stick, and finally we see him home at last, but when his father sees how dirty he is, he gives him a licking.

"Next I'll read you about Mary Moonface. Little Mary's mother and father are dead. First we see her dog run over by an auto. As she goes to see if it's killed, a mean old thing snatches her purse. When she turns around, an auto hits her. We'll have to wait until tomorrow to see if she's killed or not."

"Daddy, what does comic mean?"

SUNDAY SCHOOL HOLDS EXCURSION

St. John's Teachers, Children and Parents Picnic at Gore's Landing.

On Monday morning the steamer Stoney Lake left George Street Wharf bound for Gore's Landing, having on board the scholars and teaching staff of St. John's Sunday School, together with a goodly crowd of parents and friends. Ideal weather conditions prevailed and the sail down the river was made in good time, arriving at the Landing at 11.30. Rev. Mr. Kingsford, rector of St. George's Church, met the picnickers and showed them the camping ground, where the members of St. George's W.A. provided a splendid lunch, which was patronized and heartily enjoyed by fully 75 persons. Swimming and boating were indulged in by many of the young folk, and later races were run off. The sports committee, consisting of Miss Lily Bacon, Miss Margaret Guthrie, Mr. Fred Ford, and Mr. Bert Graham had arranged a variety of races in which many enthusiastically took part despite the intense heat. On the return journey the prizes were distributed and a treasure hunt indulged in. The booth, under the capable supervision of Mr. Harold Lang, was well patronized throughout the day. The following is the list of prize-winners:

Junior girls, 35 yards dash—1, Beverly Rogers; 2, Amy Soulby.

Senior girls, 50 yards dash — 1, Isobel Thirnbeck; 2, Betsy Scott.

Senior boys, 100 yards dash — 1, Nelson Stanger; 2, Jack Patterson.

Boys' mixed shoe race — 1, Jack Patterson; 2, George Walton.

Girls' relay race—Betsy Scott, Connie Legon, Beverly Rogers, and [illegible] Caddy.

Boys' relay race — Walter Howell, Alfred Pink, William Staunton, and Harold Vollans.

Boys' mixed needle and thread race — Alfred Pink and William Staunton.

Junior girls' three-legged race — K. Caddy and Rosamond Castle.

Junior boys' three-legged race — E. Gibbs and Victor Coleman.

Senior girls' three-legged race — Bernice Williams and Roxy More.

Lady teachers' and parents' race—Mabel Bacon.

Men teachers 'and parents' race—Warren Turner.

Married ladies' race—Mrs. Dawson.

Married men's race—Mr. Harris.

And so St. John's annual excursion came to an end. It was an unqualified success, but certainly it could not have been so without the untiring efforts of the genial superintendent, Mr. E. Sorby, under whose supervision the picnic was held.

FISH AND CHIP SHOP IS GUTTED BY FIRE

$3,000 Fire Sweeps Shop and Apartment in Lindsay.

LINDSAY, Ont., July 2 (Examiner Correspondence). — A fire which threatened to assume serious proportion broke out in Hopkins' fish and chip store in the Bergon Apartments opposite the skating rink to-day. The fire was due to the ignition of grease and the flames spread with great rapidity, dense volumes of smoke poured out of the shop and it looked for a time as if the apartments would be gutted. Families rooming on the upper floor made a hurried exit, but the great work of the firemen kept flames from spreading. The fish and chip shop was badly gutted. Mr. Hopkins places his loss at $2,000 with no insurance, while the damage done the apartments is placed at $1,000.

CARD OF THANKS
Horse Parade Committee Express Appreciation.
May we take this opportunity of expressing to the citizens at large our appreciation of the splendid support given to our horse parade on July 1st. It was with a good deal of diffidence that this new feature was undertaken knowing well that most people want to make full use of their cars on a holiday in getting out of the city. The response that was made in coming down to the Exhibition Grounds and in lining the streets was most gratifying.
The success of the undertaking was only made possible by a committee every man of which did his full share and also by the firms and individuals that went to so much trouble to put their horses and outfits in such good shape.
We also wish to acknowledge the advertising space given by Hill, Weddell and Hill, Stock's Bread Limited, and The Canadian Department Stores and the material supplied by Richard Hall, Limited and McDonald Lumber Co. Our fullest appreciation for the large amount of free publicity that has been given goes to The Examiner.
The Humane Society hopes to make this an annual event and the encouragement we received yesterday will make us put forth our best efforts in the future.
J. E. Middleton, Chairman,
J. S. Chandler, Secretary,
Tom Dutton, Treasurer.

AGRICULTURAL AID IS PLEDGE GIVEN

banner of continental free trade, he declared, which would have made Canada a part of the American Republic, but, fortunately for this Dominion, Mr. Bennett continued, the Liberal Party had departed from such a tariff policy when in office.

"Mr. King claims that his Government reduced taxation," the Opposition leader declared. "Well, the Government of Mr. Mackenzie King increased taxation — the sales tax, for instance, from 3, then to 4, then 5, and finally 6 per cent. Then they started to reduce it. Obviously the Government was wrong when it increased this tax as high as 6 per cent. Now it claims credit for reducing taxation. It is the same with other taxes. In 1929, it collected more than in any year, except one, inour history."

Touching upon agriculture, Mr. Bennett referred to a report issued by the Minister of Agriculture for Quebec (Mr. Perron) In this review, issued by a Liberal minister for 1929, he proceeded, it was stated that agriculture was the basic industry of Quebec and that success would only come to agriculture with the co-operation of city dwellers of all classes, the report went on to adversely comment on the importation of food supplies as detrimental to the success of the agriculture industry.

'It suffices to say, men and women," he asserted, "that Canadian agriculture has languished and all because you cannot command your market at home."

Will Boost Agriculture.

It gave him great regret, Mr. Bennett continued, to have seen the deserted farm lands of New Brunswick, Quebec and other provinces. "Well," he stated, "I am going to say right here that I shall regard it as my great responsibility if elected on July 28 to see that the collective weight and power of the Dominion of Canada is placed behind agriculture. I would be lacking in qualifications entitling me to head a government if I failed to do so. It is the basis of the country's wealth, and to think that it has been so neglected. What does this government exist for anyway?"

From the tourist traffic, the sum of $28,000,000 had been collected by this country last year, he said; with the consruction of a great national highway, this revenue would be greatly augmented. But that was not the only thing, Mr Bennett proceeded. Connecting as it would the east with the west, old-time Maritimers now residing in Western Canada could return to homes by the sea passing entirely through Canadain territory. The people of the east, too, would visit the west, the Conservative leader continued.

REMOVING PARTITIONS
Louis Yeotes is tearing apart the shop at 337 George street, formerly tenanted by Riley and Hickey, and just next door to Mr. Yeote's own Elite Sweets. When questioned as to what he intended to do with the premises, Mr. Yeotes declared that he didn't know, but that he was willing to take a chance.

OPEN GOLF COURSE
Civic dignitaries opened the Mite Tee Miniature golf course at Aylmer and Brock yesterday morning. Early players around the little course report it in fine shape and a real test of skill.

QUICKLY REMOVING TRACKS
Short work is being made by the Warren Bituminous Paving Company of removing the old tracks and re-paving George and Charlotte street. The tracks have been town up on George street throughout the entire length to be paved—from Murray to Charlotte—and work has been commenced on Charlotte.
The paving on the George street block from Murray to Brock has been completed. Work on the block from Brock to Hunter is well under way.

TWO FIRE ALARMS.
Two small fires requiring the services of the local Fire Department, were dealt with over the holiday. The first which occurred on Monday evening at Clifton Street, was occasioned by a transformer, while the other alarm was the result of a person smoking in bed, at 182½ Hunter Street West, early this morning.

FIREMEN SET EXAMPLE.
The appearance of Peterborough Fire Department headquarters, which makes exceedingly fine comparison with similar buildings throughout Ontario, have been further enhanced by the careful disposition of flower boxes containing blooms of varied hues, along the window ledges fronting Aylmer Street.
Carefully nurtured by the city's adaptable fire-fighters, the artistic plants are quite in keeping with the geeral beauty of the city and surrounding country, and are but a token of the civic pride which is so evident on all sides, in well-kept homes and gardens.

WEDDING BELLS

KROGH—BARNSLEY
The marriage was solemnized at half past two o'clock on Saturday afternoon, at the parsonage of Trinity United Church, by the pastor, the Rev. D. Wren, of Muriel May Barnsley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barnsley of Lindsay, to Leif Krogh of Peterborough, son of Brigadier and Mrs. Krogh of Denmark.
The bride wore a sand suit of lightweight tweed, with blue hat, shoes and purse and sand hose and gloves. She wore a red fox fur scarf and carried a bouquet of red roses.
The bridesmaid, Miss Marjorie Byers, was in a yellow crepe dress, with sand coat and hat and matching shoes and hose. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.
Johan Krogh, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man.
After the ceremony, a dainty luncheon was served at the home of Mrs. Johnson, Lock street, after which Mr. and Mrs. Krogh motored to Lindsay and then to Sturgeon Point, where they will spend their honeymoon at the summer cottage of the bride's uncle, Mr. William Barnsley. They will live in Peterborough.

CASSON—BURTON.
BARRIE, Ont., July 2 (Special to The Examiner).—The marriage took place in the Collier Street United Church of Guida Ray, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Burton, to Mr. Clarence Sheffield Cassan, younger son of Mr. Alfred W. and the late Mrs. Cassan of Peterborough. The Rev. E. A. Pearson, D.D., of Toronto, officiated at the ceremony, assisted by Rev. J. Johnstone Black, B.A., B.D., pastor of the church. The church was decorated by the Mission Circle, of which the bride was a life member, and the church was a bower of beauty with peonies and delphiniums. The wedding music was rendered by Miss Sadie Bremner, and during the signing of the register Miss Marjorie Luidman sang "My Crown." The bride was given in marriage by her father, and she wore a princess gown of eggshell satin, with a pointed yoke of heirloom lace, long sleeves and a short train. She wore her mother's wedding veil, made in cap style, with a coronet of hand-made lace caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley. The attendants were Mrs. Walter Brown of Toronto, matron of honor, gowned in a hyacinth blue lace ensemble with mohair hat to match, and carrying a bouquet of pink roses, fern and baby's breath. The bridesmaid was Miss Lavilla Hamer of Aurora, who wore an ensemble of opaline chiffon with eggshell mohair hat trimmed with pink. She also carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses, fern and baby's breath. The groom was assisted by Secord Handwick of St. Catharines, and the ushers were Walter Brown and Charles Corbin of Toronto. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 63 McDonald Street. the bride's mother receiving in a gown of royal blue georgette, and wearing a black hat. She wore a shoulder bouquet of talisman roses and sweet peas and fern. Later the bride and groom left by motor on their honeymoon, the bride travelling in an ensemble of navy blue pointed silk with blue hat, shoes and bag to match. On their return they will reside in Toronto.

RAYS DEFEAT COBOURG TEAM

Standing in Lakeshore League Not Altered By Double-header.

OSHAWA WINS.

Team standings in the Lakeshore League were not altered one bit by the double-header bill of baseball at Port Hope yesterday afternoon, in which all four teams in the circuit engaged. The Rays came through in handsome style to defeat the dangerous Cobourg Ponies 8 to 6, while the Oshawa Arabs were forced to go ten innings to produce a 6-4 victory over the hardy Port Hope clan.
"Sailor" Maudsley hurled for the Rays, and while he was hit solidly and at times the Ponies threatened to run away with the fixture, he always tightened up sufficiently to safeguard the lead set up by the Ray hitters.
The second game on the bill, in which Oshawa and Port Hope clashed, proved one of the tidbits of the Lakeshore League's season so far. It was one of those free-hitting fracases with the score always close that the fans like.
Oshawa come here Saturday to play the Rays at Exhibition Park, and the home lads are out to draw blood from the pace-setting Motor City crew.

GILBERT CHILDREN ARE LOST IN WRECK

Parents Are Believed to Have Formerly resided in Peterborough.

Included among the passenger list of Canadian National Railway train number 4, which was wrecked near Capreol on Thursday night last, as the result of a washout caused by the severe floods experienced in that section of the Province, were two children, Arthur and Lenore Gilbert aged 5 and 7 years respectively, who were travelling from Kindersley, Saskatchewan to Windsor on a visit to their grandmother.
It is believed that the little victims were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Gilbert, formerly of 539 King street, this city, who left here for the West a number of years ago. Mr. Gilbert was formerly a toolmaker employed by the Canadian General Electric Company and was well known locally. The children who were born in Saskatchewan, were presumably travelling to Windsor in the company of their mother, on a long anticipated visit to their grandmother who is a former resident of this city.
As the derailed cars plunged into the washout, the bodies of the two children were helplessly pinned down by the mass of wreckage which came to rest on the bed of the Vermillion River. The death roll which totalled five casualties as far as can be ascertained to date, also claimed the life of another child, little Helen Mary Wederburn, and that of an elderly man, Ben Giles, of Lloydminster, Saskatchewan. The bodies which were recovered from the tourist coach when it was hauled out of the river on the night of June 30th, were conveyed to Jackson's Undertaking Parlors, Sudbury and those of the Gilbert children will be returned to Kindersley for burial.

TIMID LOVER AWAITS FATE IN MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, Calif., July 2. — (C.P.)—Otto Sanhuber lies huddled in his cell to-day convicted of manslaughter for the alleged slaying of Fred Oesterreich, Milwaukee manufacturer, in whose attics he dwelt eleven years to be near Mrs. Oesterreich, his sweetheart.
The timid attic lover paled and slumped into his chair when he heard the verdict last night which will send him to prison for one to ten years. Apparently dejected and speechless, he was led to a cell to await pronouncement of sentence to-morrow.
Sanhuber confessed the crime to the Grand Jury, but during his trial repudiated his story, saying Herman Shapiro, Mrs. Oesterreich's attorney, coached him in it and told him it would save her from punishment.

Wright and Guest Win Their Heats

GERMAN ROWER DEFEATS WEST IN EASY STYLE

Clash Between Bootzelon and Wright Friday One of Regatta Features.

GUEST HAS WALKOVER.

Possibility of All-Canadian Final For Saturday Looms Bright.

HENLEY - ON - THAMES, England, July 3 (Canadian Press Cable). — Both Joe Wright, Jr., and Jack Guest, Canadian scullers, won their heats in the Diamond Sculls today and go into the semi-finals to-morrow. The Canadians are not meeting each other, so there is a possibility of an all-Canadian final when the premier amateur sculling trophy in the world is raced for on Saturday.

Wright Has Easy Win.

Joe Wright, rowing for the Argonaut Rowing Club of Toronto, easily defeated J. G. Beresford to-day, winning by two and a half lengths in the comparatively slow time of 10 minutes flat for the mile and 550 yards.

Jack Guest, of the Don Rowing Club, Toronto, had practically a walkover over Edwards of Christ Church College, Cambridge. Edwards after rowing in crew races had little stamina for his match with Guest.

Trained by the famous Tom Sullivan, Bootzelon, the German sculler, has absorbed all the famous old professional's powerful, easy style, and the clash between him and Wright who meet to-morrow, is likely to be the tit-bit of the regatta.

In beating West Bootzelon showed fine oarsmanship under difficult conditions, including a strong head wind which was reflected in his time —59 seconds more than yesterday's heat.

German Starts Strong.

The German started off strongly, taking a lead of half a length after 250 yards, where he drew away steadily, increasing his lead to three-quarters of a length at the quarter-mile. He reached Romanham Barrier, just below the half-mile post, in 2 minutes 12 seconds, where he was

REWARD OFFERED FOR LOST VALISE

Boat Is Swamped in Heavy Storm on Stoney Lake.

PASSENGERS RESCUED.

Fifty dollars reward for the recovery of a grip which now lies on the bottom of Stoney Lake is being posted by H. M. East, prominent Toronto lawyer. The grip contains some highly valued papers and the reward is offered as an inducement to some of the more long-winded divers summering at the lakes to delve for it in the blue depths of the lake.

The East family lost all their summer camping equipment on Friday when the boat in which they were being conveyed across the lake to their cottage near Eagle Mount swamped in a heavy storm. The boat was the usual outboard motor variety and contained five passengers, four members of the East family and the pilot, Walter Carveth, of McCracken's Landing. All the passengers clung to the boat and were later rescued, but all the luggage disappeared beneath the waves.

Loch Lomond Acres Are Without Buyer

GLASGOW, Scotland, July 3 (C. P. Cable).—The bonny, bonny banks of Lock Lomond are going a'begging.

The Government doesn't want them, or, that is, would rather have the cash, and the private offers of prospective customers have seemed to the owner, the Duke of Montrose, much, very much too low.

Yesterday, he did not receive a single bid at a public auction for 25,000 acres of seme of the most famous land in Scotland, including the historic isles in Lock Lomond, Ben Lomond and Inversnaid.

Cowboy Headgear is Sported by Premier

MOOSE JAW, Sask., July 3.—(CP)—Premier Mackenzie King is the possessor of a new "ten gallon" cowboy hat, which was presented to him yesterday when he was a guest at the Moose Jaw rodeo. What is more, the Prime Minister immediately discarded his own pearl grey fedora in favor of the new buff headgear which he wore throughout the time he was in the grand stand.

FEAR EXPRESSED LEAGUE NATIONS IS LOSING VIGOUR

May Become Mere Onlooker in World Affairs Report States.

Accomplishments Reviewed.

Unconsciously Old Routine, Old Diplomacy Gaining Upper Hand.

GENEVA, July 3 (C.P.).—Fear that the League of Nations may be losing vigor and drifting into the state of being a mere onlooker in world affairs, is expressed by Albert Thomas, director of the International Labor Office, in his annual report on the activities of his organization to the International Labor Conference. "There is certainly a tendency, reads the report, for important international agreements to be reached in London, Paris or elsewhere — naval conferences, projects for a European federation, or even pacts for mutual security. The League is respectfully mentioned, but the agreements are worked out without its technical assistance and beyond its control."

Then the director of the Labor office looks through his somewhat blue-tinted glasses at the ten years' work of the League.

"Ten years have passed and the time has come for full and frank self-examination. Has there been too much facile acceptance of the limitations imposed by outside conditions? Has too much heed been paid to the frequent counsels of wisdom and prudence?

Old Routine Back.

"Can it not be argued with some justification that, unconsciously and under new names, the old routine and the old ideas have gained the upper hand and that the international organizations have been inspired more by the rules of the old diplomacy than by the ideals of President Wilson?

"The regression may perhaps have been so great that critics may even object to any reference to the name of Wilson or to the ideals of the armistice period.

"We are rooted in the past and held in the grip of tradition and the only method of escape from it into the new world glimpsed in 1919, the world of organization and justice, is by unremitting examination and testing of methods and procedure. By continuous adaptation of them to changing conditions, and by constantly holding up the results obtained to the mirror of the great ideal of world peace."

SENATOR WILSON SPEAKS TO-NIGHT

Only Lady Senator Will Be Heard in Grand Opera House This Evening.

LINDSAY ON FRIDAY.

Canada's first and only lady Senator, Mrs. Cairine Wilson, who is addressing a mass meeting of Liberal women in the Grand Opera House this evening, is undertaking the onerous task of addressing two meetings each day in the furtherance of the Liberal cause.

Earlier to-day she spoke before a large gathering of Liberals at Sir William Mulock's garden party at Newmarket, and was motored to this city by the Liberal candidates two sons Gerald and Carl Duffus, in company with Mrs. Forbes Allan. Mrs. Wison, who is stopping over in Peterborough to-night, will journey on to Lindsay to-morrow noon and will address a meeting there at 3 p.m., after which she will leave for Cobourg, where she will again speak in support of the Northumberland Riding candidate, William Fraser.

American dredges will be used in the channel-improvement plan of Rouen, France.

CHAUTAUQUA SEASON OPENS WITH FINE PLAY

"Broken Dishes" is Ably Presented By Martin Erwin Players.

ROLES WELL TAKEN.

Big Tent Filled To Capacity to Hear Breezy Three-act Comedy.

This year's Chautauqua series had a fine start last night, which sent them off on the right foot, as far as this season is concerned, when an almost capacity audience of over six hundred people filled the big tent for the opening entertainment, in a comedy entitled "Broken Dishes," presented by the Martin Erwin Players.

It was a bright and breezy three-act play that held the attention of the watchers and commanded plenty of appreciative and amused applause. The cast was splendid. Each role was well taken and the very sincere, earnest and spontaneous type of presentation that always animates these Chautauqua plays gave it an atmosphere real and convincing.

Bumpstead Central Figure

If the play had followed out the old fashion in titles, it might have borne the sub-heading of "The Emancipation of Mr. Bumpstead." For Cyrus Bumpstead was the central figure in "Broken Dishes." Robert W. Strauss, who will be remembered by many here as the doctor in "Smilin' Through," the Chautauqua success of last year, has the leading role, and he carried it off in wonderful style last night. He is the fussy little man, good-hearted, affectionate and submissive, who has not been able to progress very far in the world and consequently earns the reproach of his wife, Jennie. Ruby de Farras was simply perfect in this part. It was unlikeable to the audience, but the way in which she carried it through was extraordinarily good. Her manner, voice and appearance were just right.

Cyrus is harried all through his married life by the remembrance by his wife of a former sweetheart, Chester Armstrong, who was in many ways the exact opposite to her husband. Her family wonder why she did not marry Chester, and the fact of her marriage to Cyrus instead was made a personal grievance by the lady for many years. On the night on which the play opened, Chester appeared and then disappeared, taking with him the spectre that had hung over Mr. Cyrus Bumpstead for

CROWD PULLS UNIDENTIFIED MAN FROM PRINCE'S CAR

SUNDERLAND, Eng., July 3. (CP) When the Prince of Wales arrived here to-day to fill several engagements, an unidentified man jumped on the running board of the Royal car as it proceeded through the streets crowded with shipyard workers.

A score of men in the crowd leaped forward and pulled the offender off before he could make his intention clear. He was handed over to the police for questioning.

The Prince scarcely noticed the incident, proceeding to the new hospital. After laying the foundation stone, he visited the ship-building yard.

28-Pound "Muskie" Landed at Chemong Gives Pennsylvania Man Tough Scrap

John Llewllyn, of Johnstown, Pennsylvania, thinks that the fishing in Chemong Lake is great. And no wonder, for he landed a 28-pound "muskie" yesterday, measuring 46 inches in length and 18 inches around the girth. It was not landed without a tough battle.

Mr. Llewllyn caught the fish at the head of Chemong Lake. He and his party report a catch of nine lunge and a dozen bass in the first two days' fishing, all healthy-sized specimens. Albert Nicholls, of Bridgenorth, who accompanied the fishermen, claims that the fishing is the best for this time of the year that it has been for many years past in Chemong Lake. He believes that this is the result of the vigilance of Inspector Carson in enforcing the conservation laws and the care which the Government has taken this year in governing the water level in the lake during spawning season.

18 CENT GAS PROVES HOAX

British American Company's Gasoline Remains at Standard Prices.

Advertisement Fraudulent.

Contrary to the announcement made in the advertising columns of The Examiner in yesterday's issue there has been no cut whatever in price of gasoline sold by the British American Oil Company in this city, it was learned on investigation today. Local officials declare that the advertisement proclaiming a cut to 18 cents a gallon was inserted without their knowledge and without the knowledge of officials at the firm's headquarters.

The advertisement was received in the advertising department of The Examiner yesterday by telephone and was accepted in good faith on the understanding that it was authorized by the British American Oil Company. The information used in a news story on the subject of gasoline prices which also appeared in yesterday's issue was taken from the advertisement.

At all British American pumps in the city gasoline was sold for the usual prices, 29 and 32 cents a gallon, yesterday and to-day.

An endeavour is being made by The Examiner to trace the originator of the fraudulent advertisement so that he may be prosecuted and subjected to the stiff penalty provided by law for the offense.

Every now and again some one from a variety of motives attempts and sometimes succeeds in placing fraudulent advertising in the newspapers of the country. In this particular instance it is hard to even guess the motive, as the British American Company had not even contemplated anything of the sort. If the move made to locate the guilty party is successful there will be a prosecution to the limit of the law in this regard.

The Examiner regrets that it was instrumental in the manner in which it was, of causing considerable annoyance and unrest to the British American Company and its distributors in this city and district.

GIRLS NARROWLY ESCAPE DEATH

Two Are Rescued While Drifting Away on Log at Inverlea.

PULMOTOR CALLED.

Freda Smith, sixteen-year-old girl, and her companion, Violet Stanley, aged ten years, both of 613 Union Street, this city, had an alarming experience while bathing at Inverlea Park beach this afternoon, which fortunately resulted in nothing more than severe shock.

The youngest girl, who could not swim, was in the water with her friend Freda. Both were enjoying a frolic on one of the numerous large logs which are coming down the river at this time of the year. When the current carried the log underneath the western span of the Parkhill Road Bridge, it seems apparent that the youngest girl became alarmed, and in her anxiety clutched her companion. Both girls were cast off the log into deep water, and the struggles of the non-swimmer placed the pair in considerable danger. Lifeguardsman Peter Weatherstone, recognizing their plight, immediately set off to their assistance in his boat and succeeded, unaided, in bringing the girls to shore. Although neither of the girls was unconscious, Freda was in such an exhausted condition that it was considered advisable to apply artificial respiration. Meanwhile the Fire Department pulmotor squad was summoned, and on arrival under Fire Chief George Gimblett, this means of resuscitation was also applied for a few minutes.

Blankets were procured, in which the shivering and frightened girls were wrapped prior to being conveyed to their home by automobile. Dr. D. W. Clark was in attendance.

ENGLAND'S LABOR GOV'T COMPLETED MANY MEASURES

In Trifle Over Year in Office Parliament Has Worked Long Hours.

INTERNATIONAL STEPS.

Indian and Unemployment Problems Only Two Real Stickers.

LONDON, Eng., July 3 (C.P.) — England's second Labor Government has completed a trifle more than one year in office. In that period it has kept Parliament working long hours turning out legislation embodied in a wide social program.

Protection of the consumer against profiteering, the removal of certain injustices under the Widows' Pension Acts, an improvement in the unemployment insure (dole) scheme, the raising of the school-leaving age to 15 years—with the right to go immediately on the dole if employment is not readily obtainable, the shortening of the miner's working day, and reorganization of the mining industry, are some of the domestic issues which have been the target for the Labor Government.

Renewed Russian Relation

In the international sphere there has been a renewal of diplomatic relations with Russia and the signing of a preliminary trade agreement; the ratification of the Government's signing of the Optional Clause with respect to the League of Nations; the withdrawal of British troops from the Rhineland; a near agreement on the Anglo-Egyptian problem; the reparations settlement at The Hague, and finally the renewal friendship with the United States and the subsequent Three Power Naval Agreement for the limitation of naval armaments.

A vast problem of unemployment and the Indian troubles have not, however, responded fully to the Labor Government's administration.

GERMAN RIOTING BRINGS WARNING

Shops of Former Separationists Wrecked and Two Owners Hurt.

GIRLS HURL ROCKS.

MAYENCE, Germany, July 3 (C.P.) —Aroused by a recurrence of mob tactics on the shops and homes of former Separatists, the Hessian Minister of the Interior to-day issued a proclamation appealing for public order and warning citizens that such mob violence was sure to react unfavorably in foreign countries.

The proclamation also announced that the police had been instructed to take vigorous measures to prevent any more disorders.

Half a dozen shops and several homes were raided during the night and early to-day before the police got the upper hand.

Among the places raided were four shops. Two former Separatists were injured and twelve of the demonstrators arrested, but later were released.

A number of alleged Separatists' household received warnings in the shape of miniature coffins containing shrouds.

The demonstrators were mostly young men, but girls also participated, hurling rocks through windows.

Police Statement Follows Decision By Male Relative

Man Broken and Wandering in Mind Picked Up Month Ago on Streets of Toronto is Third to be Confused With Missing Millionaire in Eleven Year Search.

DETECTIVES HAVE COVERED CIVILIZED GLOBE SINCE NIGHT OF DECEMBER 2, 1919, WITHOUT CLUE

Mumbling of Name John Doughty, Small's Former Secretary, Led to Theory of Connection—$50,000 Reward For Theatre Magnate Still Stands.

TORONTO, Ont., July 3.—(CP)—The body of the amnesia victim in the morgue who died yesterday in St. Joseph's Hospital here is not that of Ambrose J. Small missing Toronto millionaire, declared Chief of Police Denis C. Draper in an official statement at noon today.

The statement was authorized by the Chief after thorough examination of the body by coroners. A male relative of Ambrose Small was brought to the morgue by the police and he declared that the remains were not those of the missing man.

The official police statement contradicting the rumor that the unknown amnesia victim who died in a local hospital was Ambrose J. Small ends another of the numerous false alarms that have aroused the police and citizenry of Toronto, since December 2, 1919 when Small, after completing a million dollar merger walked out of the theater he owned here, bought a paper from a newsboy on the street and vanished from the sight of men.

The standing reward of $50,000 for information of Small's whereabouts dead or alive, the thousands additional offered by the family to chase all available clues and the interest afforded to cranks in the novel mystery have all helped to produce momentary furores over the "discovery" of Small.

Detectives and circulars have covered the civilised globe since Small's disappearance and have only resulted in appearance of a number of men bearing some resemblance to him. The man who was picked up on the streets of Toronto recently, broken and wandering in mind, was the third to be "identified" by some momentarily reliable witness. Some years ago another man confused with Small turned out to be John Doughty of Des Moines, Iowa. While the other nameless like the one who lies dead in the local morgue.

Name Starts Furore

The name of John Doughty, private secretary to Small, has entered the case in many curious ways and the statement by a bedside watcher that the patient in hospital here kept mumbling "John Doughty" led to the theory of his identification with Small.

At the time of his disappearance the family of the millionair thought he had gone off alone on a trip as he had done before and the police were late in starting on the trail. After his disappearance a local garbage dump was dug up in an effort to verify the theory that he had been murdered and buried there.

The irony of his disappearance on that December evening lay in the fact that Small had just completed

CONSUMPTION IS BEING DEFEATED

Sir R. Philip Claims White Plague May Be Wiped Out in Generation.

ONE CAUSE, INFECTED MILK.

LONDON, Eng., July 3. — (C. P. Cable.) — "Consumption is on the run," declared Sir Robert Philip, noted authority on the disease at the opening to-day of the annual conference of the National Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis. Sir Robert is Vice-Chairman of the Council of the National Association, head of the Tuberculosis Society of Scotland and member of a dozen other societies working to control "the white plague."

The fight against tuberculosis has been so successful that there are good prospects for the wiping out of the disease within one generation. This was the view expressed by several speakers at to-day's session of the convention.

Sir Robert Philip reported the death rate from consumption had been reduced from 230 per hundred thousand of the population of the British Isles, which it was in 1870, to 99 per hundred thousand in 1922. Infected milk, said Sir Robert, was still responsible for much tuberculosis but the Association was doing its utmost to solve the problem of bovine tuberculosis.

CHINESE WAR IS COSTLY TO GOV'T

Fighting in Last Ten Days Cost Nationalists $350,000 and 30,000 Casualties.

HOSPITALS OVERCROWDED.

NANKING, China, July 3 (C.P.) — A picture of Nationalist China being drained of its blood and money by the civil war against the Northern Alliance is disclosed by a survey of various official quarters.

Fighting along the Haichow-Tunghkwan Railway the last ten days is estimated to have cost the Nationalists 30,000 casualties, including 10,000 killed. Financial circles estimate the cost of this battle to the Nationalists at $1,000,000 Mexican (about $350,000) a day, not including expenditures for munitions.

Hospitals of Nanking and Pukow bear evidence China's wars no longer are fought with umbrellas and similar harmless instruments as generally believed concerning past conflicts. The survey shows hundreds of wounded soldiers clogging the inadequate hospital facilities.

Some of the wounded, unable to gain entrance to the hospitals, are lying in squalor with railway sheds and similar places as their shelter. All plainly show the effects of hardships at the front.

FLYERS' BACKERS BEGIN SQUABBLES

Re-organization Made as Flight Assumes Big Business Proportions.

IN 4TH WEEK.

SKY HARBOR AIRPORT, CHICAGO, Ills., July 3 (C.P.)—The record breaking flight of the City of Chicago assumed the proportions of big business to-day and was organized accordingly.

As the flying hunters soared on beyond the 514-hour mark at 1.40 a.m. central standard time, their backers went into a huddle; then announced that they had elected a field marshal in the person of Bernard L. Majewski, vice-president of an oil company, who has heretofore been flight secretary.

All this was transmitted to brothers John and Kenneth in the endurance ship.

The reply of the endurance fliers was a request for fifty-cent jew's harp to aid in whiling the hours away.

His request was the only note received from the fliers last night. But notes earlier in the day indicated that Kenneth and John were not in accord over continuing the flight, which entered its fourth week yesterday.

Sword Swallower Is Fooled by Dime

CHICAGO, Ills., July 3 (C.P.).—Cyman King swallows swords. That's his business. But he doesn't do so well with dimes.

He rushed into the County Hospital yesterday and demanded that surgeons do something at once to save his life. He said he had swallowed swords most of his life without trouble, but that the dime was different.

The surgeons finally removed it, and Mr. King announced that he would stick hereafter to sabers and such.

LIBERAL BANNER IS ABLY UPHELD AT MASS RALLY

Many Speakers Outline Policy of King Government at Campbellford.

SUPPORT W. A. FRASER.

Woman Speaker Makes Strong Appeal For Support of Lady Voters.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 3.—The Liberal banner was ably upheld on Wednesday evening at Campbellford, when a large audience gathered in the Regent Theater to hear the speakers in support of W. A. Fraser, Liberal candidate for Northumberland riding.

The speakers included Mrs. E. V. Tanner, Toronto; Alex McGregor, K. C., Toronto; Gordon D. Conant, ex-mayor of Oshawa, S. G. Faulkner, and W. A. Fraser. D. W. Douglas occupied the chair and introduced the speakers.

Mr. Conant voiced his regret that the international agreement of the St. Lawrence Waterways had been made a political football. There had been unity between the parties on this legislation until the past few weeks, and he thought that it was regretable that the Premier of Ontario had made it a political issue. The King government had been progressing along the line of power development and the speaker charged that the Conservative party under Mr. Bennett had not played an all-Canadian game.

Of the unemployment situation, he thought that the problem was deeper seated than politics, it was an economical problem, and one that was common all over the world. Of this fact he was sure, that there was less unemployment in Canada than in any other comparable country in the world. Of the Dunning Budget, Mr. Conant thought that there had been nothing comparable to it presented by the Conservative party.

Mr. Faulkner, in a few brief remarks, urged upon his hearer to realize the responsibility of voting, and voting in an intelligent way. He spoke of all the King Government has accomplished, and thought that in the history of the country the outlook was no brighter than it was today.

Principles Best

Mrs. Tanner made a stirring and patriotic appeal to the audience in support of the Liberal government, and of the present premier. She gave as her reasons for this the fact that she was loyal to Canada, loyal to the Canadian peoples, loyal to the finest premier that Canada had ever known, and because she was loyal to the finest premier that Canada had ever known, and because she was loyal to liberal principal. The principals of the Liberal party were high, and people could not afford to lower the standards of the King and country, for which those principles stood.

"The Canadian people formed an integral part of responsible government, and were the formation of public opinion," she said, and urged upon the people to realize this fact.

Of the silent vote, Mrs. Tanner said that it was a menace to the country, for it gave the Government the power to rule by commissions and not by the people, and would cause the power of the people to gradually slip, and made a strong appeal to the loyalty of the Canadian people of the riding to use the privilege of the vote.

Service to the King and the country was the root of national life the speaker said, and pleaded that all should use the franchise that was bought so dearly with blood and struggle in the ages past.

Mrs. Tanner gave a personal description of the Hon. Mr. King, emphasizing his ability as an author, churchman, general, idealist, and practical man of affairs. Of the accomplishments of his Government, she spoke of the work that had been done along the line of emigration, and industry, and stressed the unemployment question that had been

Man Badly Injured In Fall From Barn

KEENE, July 3 (Examiner Correspondence)—Gilbert Howson is lying in a semi-conscious condition which was caused by a fall from a barn which he was shingling at Selwyn on Tuesday afternoon. He is suffering from internal injuries, and will be moved to the hospital as soon as the doctor permits.

Robert McCamus was assisting him in shingling the barn.

UNEMPLOYMENT PROMISE IS MADE BY PREMIER KING

Claims Federal Gov't Ready to Work Out Plan With Any Province.

MUCH HECKLING.

Canada Performing Functions of Nationhood, Prime Minister States.

MOOSE JAW, Sask., July 3.— (C. P.)—By Ray Brown.— The Government of Canada stands ready to assist in meeting emergent unemployment conditions in a quick, practical way. It is prepared to sit down with any province which reports that unemployment has got to a point of emergency and discuss with that province measures for Federal aid. But, up to the present time no province has reported such conditions.

These statements were made by Premier Mackenzie King in the course of his second Western Canadian speech last night.

A great crowd listened to the Prime Minister.

Wide Awake Audience.

That the audience was very wide-awake and much interested appeared from a number of interjections which came during the Prime Minister's speech. This was manifest particularly during his discussion of unemployment. Mr. King was comparing conditions in Canada and other countries.

Mr. King expressed sympathy with the unemployed.

"It's poor comfort to tell jobless, suffering men that unemployment should be treated in a large way if met by wise public policies," he agreed, "and I want to tell you that emergent conditions will be met in a quiet, practical way."

"If not the largest, this is one of the largest meetings I have ever addressed in my public life," Mr. King told his listeners, and he thanked the province of Saskatchewan for the support it had given to the Government. Amid applause, Mr. King informed his hearers that he had once again accepted the nomination which had been tendered him by the people of Prince Albert.

Return of the natural resources to the Western Provinces was then referred to by Premier King. He spoke of the fact that the British House of Lords had approved the necessary amendment to the British North Am-

NEWSPRINT PRICE JUMP BLAMED ON TWO PREMIERS

Ferguson and Taschereau Bear Brunt of U. S. Trade Commission Attack.

COMBINE CHARGED.

Recommends to Senate Development of Alaskan Mills as Protection.

WASHINGTON, July 3—(CP)—Asserting that coercion by two Canadian Provincial Prime Ministers had been responsible for a $5-a-ton increase in the price of newsprint to Hearst papers, the Federal Trade Commission has recommended to the Senate development of Alaskan mills to offset a further impending price rise.

The commission report to the Senate of its newsprint paper investigation cited a contract between Hearst newspapers and the International Paper Company. This contract included a price increase of about $5 a ton, and resulted from agreements between Hearst representatives, the International Paper Company and Prime Minister L. A. Taschereau of Quebec and G. Howard Ferguson of Ontario, the report said.

Threats of Discipline

"The International Paper Company", the Commission said, "was induced to agree to an increase in price of newsprint to Hearst papers by threats of disciplinary action on the part of the Prime Ministers".

The commission found that although the International sells only about 20 per cent. of the newsprint paper used in the United States, "other domestic manufacturers generally follow its lead in making newsprint prices."

Of the existing Canadian paper mill combine, the commission said that if such a combination operated in the United States "it would be in violation of the anti-trust laws, including the anti-trust provisions of the Wilson Tariff Act."

Close observation of the Canadian combination was suggested to Congress "with a view to remedial action if any agency is found to exist, or is created within the United States for the prevention of such activities as may be contrary to the anti-trust laws."

Favors Alaskan Newsprint

Quoting the 1921 price of $62 a ton for newsprint, the commission said the proposed Canadian increase would establish a price of $67 a ton, whereas Alaskan paper could be delivered to New Orleans, through the Panama Canal for $58 and to Chicago for $64.60.

"It would seem," the report stated, "that Alaskan newsprint should compete with Eastern United States and Canadian mills well up the Atlantic coast," adding a suggestion that Alaskan power sites and timber lands be developed and that the Government continue its experiments with the manufacture of paper from farm waste products.

NEW CARDINALS GIVEN RED HATS

Large Audience of Notables Witness Ceremony By Pope.

FIVE SWEAR LOYALTY.

VATICAN CITY, Italy, July 3.—(C.P.)—Five new Cardinals received their red hats this morning from the Pope in a public consistory, one of the most remarkable ceremonies of the Catholic Church.

The entire Curia, of Cardinals resident in Rome and a number of visiting Cardinals, were present.

The ceremony took place in the hall of benedictions over the front balcony of St. Peters where a throne had been erected for the Pope, stalls for the Cardinals and seats for the diplomatic body and for privileged ticket-holders.

The new Cardinals left their residences this morning dressed in the Cardinalate purple but not wearing their red hats. When they reached the Vatican they put on scarlet capes and "birrettas" and went to the Sistine Chapel.

The Cardinal vice-chancellor of the Catholic Church, standing before the high altar, asked each new Cardinal to swear loyalty to the constitution of the sacred college. Each of the new wearers of the purple advanced, followed by two chamberlains. Before the altar he swore solemnly upon the gospel the oath in Latin.

Kiss Pope's Ring

Messengers were dispatched to bring in the new Cardinals from the Sistine Chapel. Each of the new Cardinals, after entering bowed three times before the throne, then kissed the Pope's ring and toe. First came Cardinal Marchetti-Selvaggiani then Cardinal Leme daSilvera Cintra, Cardinal Raffaelo Rossi, Cardinal Serafini and the French Cardinal Archille Lienart.

Each new Cardinal knelt before the throne. This time his two chamberlains held over his head the red hat. The Pope cried "Accipe Galerum Rubrumi"—"Take the red hat" and the Cardinal kissed Pius's hand.

Cardinal Marchetti-Selvaggiani as the first of the newly created Cardinals, delivered a speech of thanks and loyalty to which the Pope replied briefly. The Pontiff gave the apostolic benediction.

PENSION SYSTEM CHANGE NEEDED BENNETT SAYS

Promises Old Age Pensions Be Paid Out of Federal Treasury.

SPEAKS IN YARMOUTH.

Criticism Directed at Liberals For Action on Duncan Report.

YARMOUTH, N.S., July 3 (By Thomas Green, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).— Two engagements are scheduled for Hon. R. B. Bennett to-day. Late in the afternoon the Conservative leader will speak at Lunenburg with a night rally in Halifax. Mr. Bennett departed by automobile early to-day for the meetings.

The Duncan report and Old Age Pensions figured prominently in the speeches of the Opposition leader yesterday both at Digby and later here.

"Name me a Liberal public man," he demanded, "who presented any argument before the Duncan Royal Commission."

Conservatives Get Credit

To the Conservative Governments of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, Mr. Bennett proceeded, belonged the credit for the presentation of Maritime claims before that body. A comparison of the cases as presented by the two Provincial administrations with the judgment of the Duncan Commission, he declared, would leave no doubt on this question. The recommendations of the Commission, he emphasized, were similar to the arguments placed before Sir Andrew Rae Duncan and his associates. Time and again Mr. Bennett criticised the delay of the Government in implementing the Commission's report.

He had a brief reference to the strike in the Cape Breton coal fields in 1925 and the deduction of the expenses of the Militia from the subsidy due Nova Scotia.

"The report of the Commission," the Dominion Leader observed, "recommended a readjustment of subsidies to the Provinces on an increased basis."

But the Liberal Government had retained $133,000 from Nova Scotia, he went on, to cover the cost of sending those troops to Nova Scotia, which had been requested by the former Liberal administration. The Supreme Court of Canada, however, had decided against the act of the Dominion.

Old Age Pension Promises

Mr. Bennett went a little further in respect to Old Age Pensions. "If," he said, "the Conservative Party succeeds on July 28 and I have every reason to believe it will, I will see to it that Old Age Pensions are paid to every Province of the Dominion from the Federal Treasury. That is my answer to a Prime Minister who is not concerned with the import into Canada of Russian coal and New Zealand butter. That is my answer to a Prime Minister who says the payment of money to the Provinces for Old Age Pensions is a vicious principle. It is a national obligation. Premier King says it cannot be done constitutionally. If the Dominion can pay fifty per cent of Old Age Pensions, why cannot it pay 99 per cent.?"

NO LIBERAL FOR SOUTHWEST GREY

Dr. T. Wright Decides Not to Run Against Miss Agnes MacPhail and Dr. Campbell.

DECISION AT CONVENTION.

OWEN SOUND, Ont., July 3 (C.P.).—D. T. Wright has decided not to run as Liberal candidate in South East Grey. Mr. Wright had taken the matter of his running under consideration since the convention of the Liberal Association of that riding held on June 28.

This eliminates the possibility of a three-cornered contest for South East Grey, where Miss Agnes MacPhail, Progressive, and Dr. Campbell, Conservative, will battle for the riding at the coming election.

The executive of the Liberal Association of the riding were against placing a candidate in the field and this will mark the third general election in which no Liberal candidate appeared for this constituency.

ITALY RAISES DUTY ON AUTOS

Sudden Blow Comes as Result of U. S. Tariff Changes.

SMALL CARS AFFECTED.

ROME, Italy, July 3. (C.P.) — Italy's reaction to the new United States tariffs rate has taken the form of a reprisal when, without notice, the Italian import duties on automobiles were raised between 110 and 120 percent. by royal decree.

The sudden blow at automobile imports applied particularly to small cars.

Protection of home industries, including the vast Fiat enterprise at Turin, was responsible for the action acording to Minister of Corporations Bottai.

Small automobiles, such as the United States Ford, are affected most.

Wireless telephone service has been opened between the Netherlands and Netherland India.

CONSERVATIVE POLICY IS CLASSED UNWORTHY DEMAND UPON BRITAIN

Hon. Charles Dunning Addresses Large Audience at St. Thomas.

TAX FOODSTUFFS.

ST. THOMAS, Ont. July 3.—(C.P.)—Into the riding of West Elgin, redeemed for the Liberal party last election by one of the youngest members of Parliament, Mitchell F. Hepburn, Finance Minister Charles A. Dunning last night carried the Government doctrine of greater Empire trade. His audience apparently accepted it with enthusiasm, for they applauded to the echo the several clear-cut points which the Finance Minister endeavoured to hammer home.

With great vigor he made the declaration that the essence of the Conservative policy of "tariff preference only for tariff preference from Britain," was an unworthy demand upon the people of the Mother country to place a tax upon their foodstuffs in order that Canada might have a preference.

"Of course," he said, "our Conservative friends know that, but they do not come out and tell you frankly what their proposal really means is that Canada shall say to the British people that they must put a tax on foodstuffs which they must import in order to be able to give Canada a lower taxation than the other countries. I can quite imagine some softvonced British statesman turning to Canada and saying: 'Aren't you a little bit unreasonable, Canada? We already buy from you Canadians twice as much as we sell to you; now you come to us and ask us to tax food in order that we may be able to buy more."

FERGUSON AT BELLEVILLE

PICTON, July 3.—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, and Leslie G. Bell, K.C., Montreal will be the chief speakers at a picnic at Belleville Agricultural Park on Wednesday afternoon next. The event is being held under the auspices of the Conservative Associations of South Hastings and Prince Edward-Lennox.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 3 (C.P.)—A six-cornered contest is promised in Springfield constituency, covering a large portion of Manitoba's mining areas, for the coming Dominion election. Stewart More, Independent Conservative, and Stanley Grabowsky, Independent Liberal, are the new entrants into the field. Previously nominated were Dr. E. D. R. Bisset, Liberal-Pregressive, who held the seat in the last Parliament; Thomas Hay, Conservative; D. A. Ross, Independent Liberal, and Fred Lange, Labor.

HERTZOG POLICY BEING OPPOSED

Several of Nationalist Party Wish South Africa to Stand Alone.

ADVANTAGEOUS TREATIES.

CAPETOWN, South Africa, July 3 (C.P.)—Evidence that a certain section of the Nationalist party is dissatisfied with Premier Hertzog's present policy was shown by a meeting at Bloemfontein, attended by representatives from three Provinces, when the Republican issue was clearly and definitely resuscitated. Dr. Colin F. Steyn, ex-Mayor of Bloemfontein, said that his group is not opposed to conciliation between the two races, but that it stands against the type of conciliation involving a sacrifice of national aims, ideals, honor and pride.

Dr. Steyn declared that the growing tendency of the Nationalist party to be satisfied with the present position of the Union within the British Commonwealth was opposed to the fundamental ideals of the Nationalist party. "We say it is in the interest of South Africa now to stand alone," declared Dr. Steyn. "We want a republic apart from the British Empire; with treaties that will give us all the advantages and none of the disadvantages that we have to-day."

LODGE MEMBERS DECORATE GRAVES

Lay Wreath on Lakefield Cenotaph — Visit Two Cemeteries.

REV. T. WESLEY SPEAKS

LAKEFIELD, July 3.—(Examiner Correspondence)—With ideal weather conditions and even a larger crowd than in previous years the annual Decoration Day of Lakefield Lodge No. 358 I.O.O.F. was held on Sunday.

Quietly and reverently the Lodge, nearly sixty strong, left the Lodge room at two o'clock, and headed by the Citizen's Band, marched to the cenotaph and laid on the base a tribute of flowers with its silent message of remembrance. This is the first year which this has been possible and nothing could be more fitting.

North on Queen street the procession marched to Hillside cemetery where the grave of Milton Nelson was decorated. Over the tree bordered hills and fields was wafted the sweet strains of those old familiar hymns which never grow old, but bring vividly to mind the best things of life here and the glory of life hereafter.

Eight Graves Decorated.

At Lakefield cemetery eight graves were decorated namely those of Frederick Anderson, William Curry, William Hamilton, W. Jory, George McWilliams, C. O. Northey, Melville Pammett and Gordon Roseborough.

There also an address was given in keeping with the spirit of the day by the Rev. T. M. Wesley, and was heard by a very large group of people who annually join the I.O.O.F. in their ceremony of remembrance. The beautiful cemetery with its border of stately maples, well mown grass and carefully tended plots was a most appropriate background.

Then to the rap of drum the procession moved off at the conclusion of the service followed by the reverent crowd and once more the city of the dead was left to the customary atmosphere for it lies off the highway of traffic on a quiet hillside, beautified and kept up by a board of directors who look on their work as a sacred trust.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, July 3.—Disturbed by a reported tremendous shortage in this season's French wheat crops as compared with last year, the wheat market here went suddenly upgrade yesterday. Cables were received indicating a yield of only 257,000,000 bushels for 1930 showing 64,000,000 bushels reduction from the 1929 total, and standing out sharply against a five-year average of 280,000,000 bushels. Active purchasing of wheat future deliveries here was also stimulated by relative scantiness of primary receipts today in the United States, and by persistent advices that farmers were refusing to sell as freely as in general has been the rule at harvest.

WINNIPEG WHEAT

WINNIPEG, July 3.—By the Canadian Press.)—Bears "laid off" the Winnipeg wheat market for a while yesterday and values pumped 1 7-8c to 2 3-8c per bushel. Depressing news was scarce and reports of good export business in Manitobas changed a slow session at the start to a lively scene before the close.

In all, 500,000 bushels were said to have been disposed of as the market slipped off after the start and the effect of the trend was to bring about closing advances, though buying was not aggressive. Cash wheat business picked up, but cash coarse grains business was still restricted to some oats and barley of low grade for domestic use.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK
Live Stock Receipts

	Union Yards Wednesday
Cattle	1,062
Calves	940
Hogs	1,325
Sheep and lambs	876

With receipts only normal at the Union Stock Yards yesterday buyers seemed to be short of killers, and trade opened briskly with prices generally a quarter higher and a little better in spots. By 2 o'clock everything had been sold. Handy and heavy steers cleared within a range of $7 to $9.10 for each grade, with the bulk between $8.25 and $9. Choice butchers were very scarce, the bulk grading medium to good quality. Heifers were from $6.50 to $8.65. Cows were strong and 50c above last week at $6.50 to $7 for choice, with plain mostly $5 to $6.25. Bulls moved more readily at $4.50 to $5.50 for butchers, and at $3.50 to $4.25 for bolognas. Fed calves were strong at $9 to $11, with one at $12. Store trade was very quiet. There were not enough milkers or springers offered to make a market.

Calves were firm to 50c higher in spots. Choice sold at $10.50 to $11, with fair to good at $9 to $10. Common were downward to $5.50. Exporters took a good proportion of the supply.

Hogs were unsettled with bids generally at $10.50 f.o.b. for bacons or $11.50 off cars. There was a good demand from outside buyers and salesmen expected to hold the market steady at $10.75 f.o.b. bacons or $11.75 off cars.

Lambs were strong to 50 cents higher at $14 for good ewes and wethers and at $12 for bucks. The rail supply was cleaned up early, but there were plenty of lambs coming in by trucks. Culls sold at $10 to $12 a hundred. Sheep were no stronger at $3.50 to $4.25 for best ewes and downward to $2 for culls.

BUTTER AND EGGS

TORONTO, July 3.—The local butter market was showing the usual after-holiday dragginess yesterday, with sales not too plentiful and prices steady for Ontario No. 1 at 27c to 27¼, and for No. 2, 26c to 26¼c.

The English market showed steadiness at 137 shillings, and prospects for a better local market for the Ontario product will be governed in the future by conditions in the Old Country.

The report on holdings in Toronto showed 29,657 more boxes of butter on hand this year than last year. But the increase in holdings at July 1 this year, in comparison with June 1 this year was 36,781 boxes, which is usual for June activities. Evidently many buyers have taken advantage of the recent low market to fill up their storages.

Cheese

Cheese was about firm. Quotations to country shippers were 16¼c to 16½c for new large, delivered Toronto; 16½c to 16¾c for twins, and 16¾c to 17c for triplets. Prices to retainers for new cheese were down ¼c at 18c for large, 18¼c for twins, and 18½c for triplets.

Cheese storing on July 1 this year was 1,483 boxes less than on the date last year, though storages increased holdings during the month of June this year by 4,862.

Eggs

The local egg market held firm, with unchanged prices to the shipper, and slightly lower prices for graded eggs. From the tone of yesterday's market it was hard to tell whether stronger prices were due in the near future or not. Production has fallen off and receipts have decreased, but buyers have not shown the necessary interest to create a stronger market. Shippers were quoted 27c for extras, 25c for firsts and 21c to 23c for seconds, ungraded, delivered, cases returned. Retailers were offered supplies at 34c for extras in cartons, 32c for extras loose, 30c for firsts loose, and 26c to 27c for seconds loose. Dealers quoted graded eggs, free cases, at 29c for extras, 27c for firsts, and 24c for seconds.

Storages were up over last year 17,029 cases, and showed increased storages during the month of June this year of 35,651 cases of eggs.

SEYMOUR NEEDS LARGER SCHOOL

S. S. No. 10 Ratepayers Appoint Committee to Secure Plans.

MEET AGAIN FRIDAY

TRENT RIVER, July 3.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A special meeting of the ratepayers of school section No. 10, Seymour, was held on Monday night to devise ways and means of improving conditions at the school as recommended by Inspector Martin.

H. B. Wood was chairman for the meeting and John Thompson secretary. Mr. Wood read the inspector's report as to the grading of school accommodations and also said that the teacher N. P. McNulty had been doing good work under great difficulties. The number of pupils enrolled is more than fifty and the accommodation is not sufficient.

The questions of renting the L.O.L. Hall to be used for the junior classes was brought up also of building a two-room school but the cost of doing the latter was too great on the section at this time.

Will Secure Plans.

On motion of Frank Davidson a committee composed of Thomas J. Brown, Harold Brown and the trustess, was appointed to secure plans and specifications to submit to the ratepayers.

It was decided to enlarge the school to accommodate seventy-five pupils by building an additional room, changing the present cloak room and doing away with the front entrance and changing to the rear, the cost would not be so heavy on the ratepayers although the chairman impressd upon those present that the main issue to be gained was education, not the Government grant. As to the condition at the school if everything was first class the grant is only thirty dollars, but this school under the present conditions would only receive eight dollars and seventy-five cents, according to the inspector's report.

Another meeting will be held on Friday evening to hear the report of the committee regarding the estimates for enlarging the school.

handled in an efficient and beneficial manner.

On Top of the World.

Of the tariff policy, she said that it had placed Canada on top of the world, the proof of which was that Canada was second in exports per capita, fifth in straight exports, and seventh in the value of manufactures. Of the national resources, the speaker said that the Premier of Ontario was standing in the way of progress.

Mrs. Tanner gave a description of the Empire Trade Policy, showing the harmony that existed between Canada and the Motherland and the other Dominions, stressing the fact that the King Government was going to develop that trade in the British Empire.

Mr. McGregor gave an outline of the record of the Government, and asked the people to judge it by its works and not its words. The Premier had done much to unify Canada and to give to the returned soldiers that consideration that belonged to them, and had shown the record of a real friend to the country and a man who keeps his promises.

Of the unemployment situation, the speaker said that Mr. King had made a study of it for thirty-nine years, and had pledged his word that it would be the first problem dealt with, and in his opinion was a better man to handle the situation than the Hon. Mr. Bennett.

Of the United States tariff policy, he said that it was a matter of business, and that Canada has to work out her own economic salvation which could only be done by getting together and working out the Empire Trade Treaty. "The Dunning budget is not Gritism, but Britishism, and when Mr. Bennett says that to comply with the request of the Motherland is mere maudane sentiment, he is not worthy of the traditions of the Conservative party," said Mr. McGregor, and went on to show how Britain had spent large sums of money in trade with Canada, and had in the past five years been preparing for Empire trade by the establishment of the Empire Marketing Board, and appealed to the voters to let Mr. King finish the job he had started.

To Work For Riding.

Mr. Fraser made a strong plea to the people to support him in the coming election, and stressed the fact that he was out to do all he could for the riding. He wished the electors to send him to the House because they thought that he was the best man for the job, and a fit person to represent them in the political world. His idea for seeking election was based on the spirit of service, because he wanted to make the business of Campbellford and the riding of Northumberland his business.

He emphasized the work that had been done by the Liberal party, and brought the Conservative party under scorn for the stand they had taken with regard to the Dunning budget and the countervailing duties, and made a plea that the people send the present Government representatives to represent the country at the coming Imperial Economic Conference at London, England, for the purpose of promoting trade with the Empire.

erica Act, which placed the Prairie Provinces on an identical basis with the older provinces. He went on to speak of Canada's national status.

"When are we going to be a nation?" sang out a man in the front row of the audience.

The Prime Minister did not respond. He went on to say that Hon. R. B. Bennett was not yet willing to admit that Canada was a nation with power to make treaties and perform other national duties.

Canada Has Made Treaties

"My answer to Mr. Bennett" said Mr. King, "is that we have made the treaties and they are in effect."

"And yet we are not a nation?" came a further interruption.

Canada had attained national status and was performing the functions of nationhood, Mr. King stated.

There was a world-wide depression, Mr. King informed his audience. Unemployment in the United States was serious.

The Prime Minister asserted that conditions in the west were bad because of a poor wheat crop, failure to market the wheat, and stock market depression. The Government had worked out a plan, he said, which would in all probability, ensure a steady market for Canada's wheat.

If the Provinces of Canada found themselves unable to meet unemployment and so advised the Dominion Government, the Federal Government was willing to sit down and work out some system of Federal aid Mr. King declared.

INTERNATIONAL PAPER and POWER COMPANY

Owned, including subsidiaries, by 79,000 shareholders in Canada, Great Britain and the United States. The Company's securities are listed and traded in on the Montreal and New York Stock Exchanges

OPERATIONS OF INTERNATIONAL PAPER AND POWER COMPANY IN CANADA provide direct employment for more than 10,000 men to whom, in 1929, the Company paid approximately $12,000,000. In addition, about 12,000 men find seasonal employment through the Company's woods operations in Canada.

Over 90 per cent of the Company's regular employees are protected against emergencies arising from sickness, accident or disease by the insurance plan administered by the Company. Total insurance in force now exceeds $30,000,000, of which approximately $7,000,000 is for the benefit of Canadian employees.

Safety of the employee while at work is a major consideration in every International mill. In the ten years just past, the number of accidents in reporting mills (per 100 employees) has been reduced 67 per cent, while the number of days lost on account of accidents has fallen 51 per cent.

International attaches equal importance to the health of the employee and his family. In 1929 the Company's Community Nursing Service cared for 28,695 cases other than accidents, and made over 33,000 calls at employees' homes.

DANGEROUS CROSSINGS.

With level crossing accidents multiplying and with the day when such crossings will be abolished still far off, there is an obligation on the part of the motoring public to exercise every care in crossing railway lines, and on the part of the railway authorities to so mark every crossing that motorists will have ample warning that they are approaching a danger point.

In this connection the attention of The Examiner has been called to several crossings in this district that should in the interest of general safety be more carefully marked.

Within the city limits, it is pointed out that the only warning at the Romaine street crossing is the old-time railway sign-board, placed so close to the crossing that a motorist unfamiliar with the district might easily drive in front of a train at this point.

On the Norwood road there is a crossing where the signal is on the left side of the road where it would be quite easy for a motorist to miss the warning altogether, especially at night.

Such crossings are unnecessarily dangerous, especially to strangers, and it would be well for the authorities to see that proper warnings, properly placed, are installed.

WHEN A DRIVER IS DRUNK.

The hoary old argument as to when a man is drunk is frequently to the fore in Ontario courts these days when motorists are charged with attempting to drive an automobile while intoxicated.

The magistrate at Teeswater voiced his opinion the other day, and his interpretation sounds like good sense, albeit it may not be good law, for the two are not always the same thing.

Here is his ruling:

> "If to any extent, however slight, his (the operator's) judgment is impaired or his ability to drive the car is lessened, then he is intoxicated in the sense intended by the statute."

Some people may quarrel with that interpretation, but surely the act was not intended to mean that a driver had to be absolutely helpless or stupidly drunk to be charged with an offense under this particular section.

If a man's judgment is impaired or his ability to control his car is affected that should be sufficient proof that a charge of drunkenness lies under the act.

Wise drivers take no chances; when they know they are going to be called upon to handle their cars they refrain from alcoholic beverages.

The man who doesn't puts himself in double jeopardy of being involved in a serious accident and of landing in jail.

MUNICIPAL TAX COLLECTIONS.

Figures compiled by the Citizens' Research Institute and just issued show that per capita taxation increased in 40 of the cities of Canada with a population of 10,000 or over in 1929, compared with 1928, decreased in 25 and was the same in two.

Peterborough is numbered among the cities showing an increase, the per capita tax levy here being $39.14 in 1929, as compared with $37.40 in the previous year.

Incidentally the highest per capita taxation in Ontario last year was $61.07 in Sandwich and the lowest $18.65 in Sudbury.

Twenty-one Ontario cities of over 10,000 population had a higher per capita taxation than Peterborough, while fourteen showed a lower levy per head of population.

In the matter of tax collection—a most important feature of civic activity, for the prompt collection of its taxes by a municipality indicates that its fiscal machinery is well adapted to its needs and that it is within the limits of its taxable capacity—Peterborough makes a splendid showing, the figures indicating that only 6.2 per cent. of the current levy was uncollected.

Only three cities in Ontario did better than that in 1929, while in the matter of per capita total tax arrears this city also showed up splendidly in comparison with other cities in the Province, the local figure being 3.62, a mark bettered only by Kingston, Kitchener, Owen Sound and Woodstock.

THE PASSING OF THE WEEKLY.

It has been with the greatest reluctance, following several years in which the financial returns did not justify a continuance of the weekly issue, that The Examiner has abandoned the publishing of a paper that has been printed every week since The Examiner was established in 1847.

During those eighty-three years when for the most part The Examiner was under the management of the late James Stratton and of his son, Hon. J. R. Stratton, whose names were household ones throughout the district, The Weekly Examiner has passed through many changes.

At one time it was the most popular edition with rural readers, but with the change in transportation facilities and the introduction of rural mail delivery, it has in modern times been more and more superceded by The Daily Examiner until to-day the district around Peterborough is altogether served by the daily edition.

The chief circulation of the weekly for some time has as a matter of fact been among former residents now living in the Canadian Northwest and in the United States to whom the paper was a never-failing record that kept them in touch with their old home town and their old neighbors.

The Examiner, realizing how much these old boys and girls were attached to the weekly, which some of them had read for over half a century, has been issuing the edition at a loss for years, hesitating to sever the link that bound The Examiner with its faithful readers, although it was realized that weeklies published by newspapers which also handle daily editions had long since disappeared.

At last, however, it has been found necessary to abandon the weekly, the passing of which brings to an end an association that has lasted for many decades.

LEADERSHIP ACCLAMATIONS?

(Calgary Albertan, Lib.)

Canadians who do not agree with Premier King's policies will not deny that he is necessary for the good government of Canada, no matter on which side of the House he sits.

Canadians who do not agree with Mr. Bennett's policies will concur in the proposition that Parliament will not be complete without him, on one side or the other, so long as he has life, health and strength to carry on his valuable public work.

It seems to the Albertan, therefore that since the Prime Minister and the leader of the Opposition are public servants of Canada in a rather more real sense than in the case fo the average private member and since we are all agreed that, as leaders on one side or the other they are essential to the good government of the Dominion, a lot of unnecessary expense (to say nothing of unnecessary unpleasantness) might be saved by their constituents, irrespective of party politics, agreeing to accord them an acclamation, Mr. King in Prince Albert and Mr. Bennett in West Calgary.

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS.

Premier Ferguson, as Minister of Education, has prophesied that, within the near future, it may be decided to do away with matriculation examinations in secondary schools of Ontario. Such a step would be merely the forwarding of a principle which has already been carried far in the educational system of the Province.

The underlying principle, it must be admitted, is sound. Basically, the examination system is founded on a false premise. It does not assure the grading of pupils strictly according to ability, which should be the aim of education.

There are certain students, many of them, in fact, who are blessed with not much more than a good memory. There have been numberless cases of such students blundering through their year of tuition, and then passing examinations rather brilliantly, through the simple expedient of "cramming" desperately for a day or two before the test.

On the other hand, there are many students who have a complete grasp of what has been taught them, but who, through self-consciousness or some other insignificant reason, fail to do themselves justice when faced with the annual horror of examination papers.

It would be quite unreasonable, in view of these considerations, to claim that examinations are any kind of true test of a student's capabilities. Much the fairer system is that of passing students on their general standing in their studies throughout the year.

This principle has now been adopted in most of the grades of both primary and secondary education. Even examinations for entrance to high schools have largely been eliminated, and the experiment has been eminently successful. Extension of the system to the matriculation should have equally good results.—Border Cities Star.

WHY INDIA MUST GO SLOW.

(From the Overseas Daily Mail)

In our time no parliamentary document of such overwhelming importance has made its appearance as the first section of the Simon Commission's report. It gives an extraordinarily clear survey of Indian condition at the present time; and, without regard for the guidance which it offers and the principles which it establishes, any forward action at the present time would be dangerous or even disastrous.

The general tendency of this highly detailed volume is to emphasize "the inevitability of gradualness," to borrow Lord Passfield's quaint phrase. Progress towards responsible government must be slow if it is to be sure. Nothing in the pages of the report affords the faintest countenance to the policy, which was approved by Mr. Baldwin in a reckless moment last autumn, of holding out hopes to the Indian extremists the fulfilment of which would mean the ruin of India and of the British Empire.

The members of the commission, who (it should be carefully noted) are unanimous in their conclusions, insist on the numerous stumbling blocks in the way of premature attempts to set up any such system as Dominion Home Rule. The first stumbling-block is the absence of unity of race and language. In the continent which we call India there are no fewer than 222 different languages spoken. In no Western democracy is there such a problem as is presented by the "Untouchables," who in themselves are more numerous than the inhabitants of Great Britain, and are still treated as animals and deprived of the rights which every citizen, even the poorest, enjoys in the West.

The second stumbling-block is the diversity of religious and the fierce antagonism which is always apt or the slightest provocation to develop between the Moslems and Hindus. This hostility, as the commission reminds the world, has grown more violent and murderous since the era of so-called reform began. There is, thirdly, the tremendous stumbling-block of military defence. In present circumstances an all-Indian army would be totally unable to maintain order or protect India against attack. But if India is to become a Dominion, it is quite out of the question that British troops can be left there as mercenaries to do all the difficult and dangerous work and prevent anarchy. This Indian army problem is in itself decisive. There cannot be Indian Home Rule till it has been solved.

Round Lake Couple Are Tendered Shower

HAVELOCK, July 3.—(Examiner Correspondence).—On Friday evening, June 28, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wannamaker of Round Lake settlement were tendered a miscellaneous shower at their home, Poplar Pine Farm, by about one hundred friends and neighbors.

The jolly company, charmingly received and made welcome by the newly wedded pair, spent a very enjoyable evening, games, music and dancing being the order of the night. At the midnight hour a daintly lunch was served to the many guests.

The gifts bestowed on the young couple were many and costly, and included many pieces of aluminumware, granite, china and silver, as well as many pieces of lovely lines, suitable for every household purpose. Among the gifts was a beautifully assembled kit of washday needs, a handsome rocker and a goodly sum of money. The young couple very much appreciated the evidence of good-will and kindness from their friends, and a thoroughly good time was had by all.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

THE GRINGO PRIVATEER

By PETER B. KYNE

CHAPTER 5.

And, with his eyes, Kenneth Burney Burney replied that he would, then murmured: "What a gory conversation we're indulging in.' Your Majesty, you must not permit these worries to obsess you. Take my advice and pull out of El Cajon Bonita. The game isn't worth the candle."

One of his eyelids fluttered a ten thousandth of an inch.

One of the king's eyelids fluttered a ten thousandth of an inch also. Then: "You're right, son. I'm licked. I must abandon my favorite dream of seeing Miguel Gallegos entirely surrounded by German silver handles. But I still have hopes of losing Martin Bruce."

"He's my personal concern, of course, sir. I will not go out of my way to meet him, but—"

"I'll buy you five thousand pistol cartridges, young feller, and you practice pulling and shooting until you're as fast and as accurate as Martin Bruce. Your meeting is inevitable, but at least you can give yourself an even break. Id you kill him I'll hire the best criminal attorneys in New Mexico to exonerate you. I'll protect you while I have a dollar left."

Mr. Burney beamed upon his host. "My father," he said, "Always impressed upon me that it was exceedingly unmannerly of one to whistle at his meals—particularly at another man's table. And yet—"

Very softly, with a beautiful flute-like note, Mr. Kenneth Burney, his smoky eyes cast piously upward, whistled Chopin's Funeral March.

"And that's not for his own funeral either." His Majesty whispered proudly to the princess. "I tell you he's a gift from God!?

The princess had been "out" three years, yet in all that time she had never met any man who remotely resembled this strange guest of her remarkable father had so mysteriously accumulated. Vaguely she resented him. He was a nobody, yet, undoubtedly, he was a somebody; there could be no denying but that he was perfectly sure of himself at all times and never more sure of himself than he was in her presence—which was a condition the princess had come to regard as, most emphatically, not a prescriptive right of young men.

He paid no particular attention to her; he appeared unimpressed with her importance and his own insignificance; her father alone appeared to claim his alert interest, nor had the princess ever known the king to exhibit such a profound liking for any young man. That Ken Burney's personality had quite bowled her father over Muriel had no doubt, for there he was beating slow time with his forefinger, in mock sympathy, as Ken Burney whistled Chopin's Funeral March.

"You're a real whistler, Mr. Burney," she interrupted him presently.

"He's a whistling fool," His Majesty agreed heartily. "He lifts whistling from the level of an infernal nuisance to a high art. Alas! If he could only shoot as well as he whistles!"

"Said Ken Burney:

"The height by great men reached and kept,
Were not attained by sudden flight,
But they, while their companions slept,
Were toiling upward n the night."

"Fine," the princess agreed with a faint touch of scorn. "Now be bromidic and tell us that practice makes perfect."

Don't be snooty, darling," the king pleaded. Ken, my boy, can you whistle Listen to the Mocking Bird?"

Certainly, sir."

"If he attempts it," the princess warned, I shall leave the table."

Happily, no such sacrifice impends Princess. I never whistle it except in the process of making a living. I whistled for forty weeks in vaudeville once—four shows daily—and if you think enough hasn't been sufficient for me you're a poor judge of human nature."

'Har!" the king bellowed, vastly amused. "Har! Har-har! Forty weeks in vaudeville, eh? What did they pay you for whistling, son?"

"Three hundred dollars a week, sir." "Beats punching cows at seventy a month and found."

"If I'd only had cows to associate with in vaudeville instead of the vaudevillians, I'd be whistling still, sir."

"Har! Har-har! What else did you do?"

"A little fancy rope-twisting—jumping in and out of my loop while I whistled. It was a terrible life."

"Why did you do it, you silly?" the princess demanded. And this was a perfectly sensible query for her to make, because, fortunately, she had never had to do anything that annoyed her.

"My father had endorsed a note of mine, Princess, and got stuck with it. So I went to work to pay him out, and when I had done that, I reverted to type."

The princess permitted herself a little throaty chuckle.

"What else can you do that's funny, Mr. Burney?"

"I can play the piano by note, and I can recite The Face on the Barroom Floor and The Shooting of Dan McGrew—all with appropriate gestures. And when I sing Where is My Wandering Boy To-night? You feel like weeping out loud."

"Just an old-fashioned boy," the princess murmured irrelevantly and the king winked at his guest.

When, at length, the princess rose from the table and the king and Burney followed her into the living room, it was evident that the princess' curiosity was far from satisfied. She pointed to the piano. "Do your stuff, hombre," she commanded.

Burney sat at the instrument, ran facile fingers over the keys and played, with the touch of a near-master, Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue.

"Boy passes his ex. as a pianist one hundred per cent," the princess declared. "Now sing something."

He played and sang Handel's exquisitely lovely Where E'er You Walk. He had a sweet lyric baritone voice and it was apparent that at some period in his career somebody who knew music had given him more than a little instruction.

"Boy's crazy," the princess declared. "He whistled in vaudeville when he might sing mammy songs and gotten a real hand."

"Oh, but I did sing in vaudeville," Mr. Burney protested. "After my whistling act, in which I opened the show as The Whistling Cowboy, I appeared two numbers later in evening dress, with a false mustache, as Diego Romero, the idol of Spain, direct from Madrid, in a repertoire of Spanish songs. I used to knock 'em dead with La Golondrina—like this!"

"And what did they pay you for that?" the delighted king demanded at the conclusion of the song.

"Two hundred a week, sir."

"You're right, Muriel. The boy's a raving lunatic. He quit three hundred a week as a fancy rope-twister and whistler and two hundred a week as the idol of Spain to harass cows from the hurricane deck of a disrespectful horse at seventy dollars a month and found. Why, he ought to have a keeper!"

"Here, here, there was a reason," Mr. Burney protested. "I loathed my whistling but liked my singing—all but the false mustache which flew off one night as I took a high note. They gave me the razzberry for that and my accompanist and I had a quarrel about it. He blamed me for queering our act; so we scuffled a little and he hit me a hard soak in the throat and made a basso out of me for three months. It was all so discouraging I just couldn't stand it any longer and quit for good."

The princess gave herself over to the heartiest laughter she had ever known.

"Isn't he precious, Pop?" she cried. "Imagine his mustache getting all tangled up with high C!"

The king was chuckling too, meanwhile thanking Providence that Ken Burney had arrived to-night, of all nights, to save him from the bleakest of despair over the situation in El Cajon Bonita. It occurred to him now that here was the first young man he had ever had in his house who was remotely worth entertaining.

"Ever figure on being a radio entertainer—or announcer, Ken?' he queried presently.

"No, sir. The hours are irregular and the life too confining. What I'm out to do is to earn a sizeable wad, stock up my father's ranch again and go back to my first and only love. I don't take kindly to another man's collar."

What To-day Means To You

"CANCER"

If July 3rd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a.m. to 11.15 a.m., from 3 p.m. to 4.15 p.m. aud 8 p.m. to 9.15 p.m. The danger periods are from noon to 1.30 p.m. and 10.30 p.m. to 11.30 p.m.

Influences on this date will be over-stimulating, and there may be a tendency to overdo things. Special health warnings. Play for safety in all things! Do not change or start new affairs. Listen to a friend's advice!

The child born on this July 3rd will have a clever brain, but will lack stability to achieve marked success. It will never stay "put", and will long for travel and adventure. It would be best for it not to strike out for itself too young in life.

Your directness is startling to most people. You do not only call a spade a spade, but you double spades. Your sincerity is appreciated, but a little more tact and diplomacy would also be appreciated. You do not want to be disillusioned, you want life in the raw, unadorned by veneers of any kind. It would be difficult to shock you, but your feelings are often harrowed by the unpleasant things about which you insist upon knowing or seeing.

There are few people who are more kindly disposed, or who have kinder motives than you have. You may scold, where scolding is due, but your bark is worse than your bite. Because of your abruptness and gruffness you are sadly misunderstood and needlessly grieved. You approach people with gifts in the wrong manner, and for this reason they are not always accepted. You are genuine "democrat," but you lead others to believe that you are a snobbish "aristocrat."

You are so conscientious about your work that you make drudgery about it, and for this reason, others far less deserving, stride ahead of you. You do not know how to conceal any of your faults or weaknesses. You shove them in the limelight and keep your good points behind the scenes. You have a strong attraction into home life, marriage, friendships, social and domestic matters, and to the emotional side of your nature generally, and you will prosper in such matters.

Uncommon Sense

By John Blake

ONE-WAY MINDS.

After the recent spread of exceptional prosperity in the United States, some of my acquaintances who had made enough money to keep them in comfort for the rest of their lives retired.

A few of them continued in retirement and got a great deal of satisfaction out of it.

They played a little more golf than they had ever done; they traveled about and saw something of the world, and they interested themselves in activities outside of money making, joining movements for general city betterment.

But the majority of them went back to work, and as a rule, the work to which they went back was merely the work of making more money.

For in all their hard-working lives that was all they had been really interested in, piling up dollars merely to watch the pile grow higher.

Such people have one-way minds. They always go straight ahead on the beaten track of money making, thinking and talking of nothing else.

Probably they get a good deal of enjoyment out of it, but not nearly as much as do those who turn into the side roads of life now and then and find how interesting they are.

The happiest men I know are not the big money makers, but the genuine success makers, the men who realize that we shall come this way but once, and that it is worth while to look about while we are here and observe what is going on.

There is to-day, no lack of opportunity for those who are able to retire.

There are thousands of books which every one should read and which few ever do.

There are endless topics for thought and investigation which are now known only to a very few.

The world is "full of a number of things," including beautiful wildernesses and ancient, cultivated countries whose history is the history of the rise of man from a dull creature whose chief ambition in life was to get the next meal.

Money is useful and I think everybody should try to get enough of it to be comfortable.

But to become so devoted to its making that you cannot stop making it when you get a chance to do something better is merely stupid.

Had there not been exceptions to this rule we should have no art, no literature and little mechanical progress.

For the builders and the civilizers and the makers of most of our prosperity were not just money makers, but men and women who would have starved rather than abandon their interest in the great things they were doing and the great objectives which they had in view.

Luxury is pleasant, but it is not at all necessary to happiness. Work and achievement are, and so, after middle age, is the opportunity to see life in perspective and try to make it a little easier for others.

COMMENT ON MORNING STOCK MARKETS OVER BIGGAR & CRAWFORD WIRE

Trading was at a low ebb on the Toronto Exchange this morning and no definite trend developed. Noranda and Ford held yesterday's gains while Imperial Oil moved fractionally higher to $20¼. The remainder of the list was dull with Brazilian and International Nickel slightly lower.

The New York market was in the grip of pre-holiday influences to-day and the prices in early dealings showed only fractional variations from the previous close. The volume was the smallest since the exchange began compiling the figures in Nov. 1928. Leading stocks worked lower around noon without any increase in volume of dealings. This selling was mostly due to traders cleaning out accounts in preparation for the three-day holiday—Biggar & Crawford.

MARKET NEEDS REST IS OPINION OF SPECULATORS

Wall Street Ticker Tells Tale of Exhaustion—Prices Go Lower.

CLOSES FOR HOLIDAY.

Day's Activities Appeared to Represent Lightening of Holdings.

NEW YORK, N.Y., July 3 (C.P.)—The stock ticker told a tale of speculative exhaustion to-day. Share prices drifted lower as trading dragged along at the slowest pace in two years, barely keeping in motion until the closing gong suspended activity for the triple holiday.

Most of the active traders had already left town, and customers' rooms were deserted. Messenger boys found ample time to explode preliminary firecrackers in the narrow side streets off Wall and Broad streets, which at least served to keep nodding clerks awak.

Market in Need of Rest

The market appeared to be in need of nothing so much as a rest. The selling movement of June appears to have been completed.

The market has had a thorough house cleaning, as the overnight announcement of a $1,000,000,000 reduction in member loans during June attested.

Most of the day's market activity appeared to represent the lightening of holdings in preparation for the holiday, and bearish activity by flood traders who had no commission business to occupy themselves. A few issues broke rather sharply, evidently reflecting the lack of orders on specialists' books.

Air Reduction broke about 10 points, a sharp drop for this issue. Allied Chemical lost as much, and Gillette dropped 4 to a new low for the past five years. Shares losing 3 or more iincluded American Water Works, Consolidated Gas, May Department Stores, Atchison, Eastman, Colorado Fuel. Such stocks as U. S. Steel, General Electric, Standard of N. J., American Telephone and American Can lost 1 to 2, or more.

Call money renewed at 2½ per cent but sank to 2 as funds were freely offered for employment over the week-end.

Q.—What important things should you know before buying securities of an oil company?

A.—Too much caution cannot be taken in buying securities of an oil company because the element of uncertainty and the chances for loss are so predominant.

In the first place a well established producing mine is in quite a different category from a mere prospect. The latter type is purely a gamble. We shall therefore not discuss them here.

If the mine is operating it should have an honest and expert management. In order to strengthen and diversify its production it should be operating several wells in various districts. These territories should show promise and preferably be adjacent to other good producing wells. Further diversification is obtained if the company is carrying on its own refining and transporting. The chances of securing other good wells should be favorable. Naturally the quality of the oil should be good. The location of the refinery (if any) should be favorable, as also the facilities for marketing.

The company should have sufficient capital to operate advantageously. The earnings of the company should be steady. They should be ploughed back and not all paid out in dividends. The company should preferably have sinking fund provisions. The issue should be a short term one, preferably not over ten years. The company's accounting practices should be conservative. The stock should be listed on a well known exchange. Prospects for greater oil consumption in general should be good.

ORIOLE IS ACTIVE ON DULL MARKET

Noranda and Hudson Bay Show Minor Advances—Nickel is Unchanged.

AMULET STRONG.

TORONTO, Ont., July 3.—(C.P.)—Oriole was the most active issue in a somewhat dull early period on the mining market today the stock opening well below $1 and climbing back at noon to $1.15, 20 below last night's close.

Other stocks were only lightly traded, and price changes were of a confined character with underlying firmness evident.

Nickel was unchanged at $24.50, while Noranda and Hudson Bay showed minor advances over the previous close. Golds were in the discard, only Lake Shore, up 20 to $22.25, and Teck Hughes, off 5 to 6.30, displaying changes. Lindsleys were dull, Ventures gaining 3 to $1.08.

Amulet was a strong feature in the general list, opening at 53 and showing a gain of 11 on the day at 50 at midday. Base Metals came out at $2.40, 40 above last night, and Big Missouri was up 5 to 67.

Chemical Research was under accumulation among the oils, the price rising at noon to 6.35, up 60. Nordon gained 6 to $1.20, Calmont a couple to $1.12 and Home Oil 10 to $4.20. Acme was uncertain in its movements, showing a loss of a point at 54.

CHICAGO, Ills., July 3 (C.P.)—Francis P. O'Hearn of F. O'Hearn and Company, Toronto, Ont., made the first application to-day for membership on the Chicago Stock Exchange since the constitution was amended to admit Canadian memberships.

MINING MARKETS CLOSE SATURDAY

Gold Shares Continue to Show Strength on London Market.

INSPECT HOWEY MINES.

TORONTO, July 3 (Special to The Examiner).— Following a meeting of the directors of the Standard Stocks and Mining Exchange it was announced the exchange would be closed next Saturday in confirmation with the plans of other exchanges here and across the border. When asked regarding development of the recently encountered ore carrying high gold values, an official of Noranda mines stated work has not gone far enough to make any definite statement though the management is very well satisfied with results to date. Construction at the new coper refinery at Montreal east has been under way for well over a month, he said.

President J. E. Hammell of Howey Gold mines leaves for the property shortly to get first hand information on the operation of the mill. Interviewed to-day he stated the present plant would be given a three months' tryout on ore from all parts of the mine. This he pointed out, would give the property a thorough sampling and would also give the management and engineering firm data on which to base future plans, if any charge is needed.

The matter of a reorganization of Howey has not even been thought of by the board, Mr. Hammell stated with regard to the rumors current on the street. The company is well financed to take care of production for the period contemplated, and the actual performance of the mill will be the deciding factor in future action. The present capacity of the plant 500 tons per day, could be doubled at cost of no more than 50,000 or $75,000 he intimated and such a move would permit the treatment of ore over much wider widths.

London advices state gold shares continue to show encouraging strength at a time when most other sections of the mining market are, to say the least, very subdued.

So far as it can be traced, the Transvaal output of 916,000 ounces of fine gold for the month of May is a record for all time and for any gold field. This is so considered a remarkable achievement for an industry more than fifty years old.

Officials of Pandora Gold wire that Hole No. 16 at Pandora has cut high grade in No. 5 vein at a depth of 283 feet. Very heavy free gold is reported present in the core. Due to the excellent results of drilling surface, exploration is to be resumed shortly and it is understood consideration is being given to the sinking of a shaft close to the above mentioned vein, the work to get under way in the near future.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

TORONTO, July 3 (Special to The Examiner). — Bond sales for the month of June approximated $70,000,000, according to figures compiled by Dominion Securities, Limited. One single issue, the Canadian National Railway Dominion guaranteed bonds for $50,000,000, made up the major portion of the total. The only Provincial issues was that of British Columbia short term notes amounting to $4,000,000. In the utility group, Bell Telephone put out $7,500,000 five per cent. bonds and the other large item was that of Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting five-year six per cent. issue for $5,000,000. Municipal borrowings varying from less than $10,000 to over $400,000 made up the remainder. The total sales for the six months are placed at $345,582,502 by Dominion Securities, against $325,389,622 last year. Classified, the Provincials amounted to $71,091,000, municipals $69,701,502, public utilities $79,400,000, railways $93,150,000, industrial and miscellaneous $32,240,000.

Failed To Sign Proxies.

Large shareholders of International Nickel who have neglected to sign and return their proxies for the special general meeting to be held on July 25 are in receipt of a letter this morning asking them to do so. For some time there has been gossip on the street that Nickel might make a change in the issuing of rights or possibly delay the offering of additional shares to stockholders but from this second letter it is evident that officials are determined to have shareholders approve of the capital increase, paving the way for the issuing of rights.

Figures contained in the letter set shareholders of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, Limited, by President and General Manager C. H. Carlisle would indicate that the company had earned the full year's dividend on the 7 per cent. preferred stock nearly three times over in the first nine months of the fiscal year which ends on September 30, 1930. The president reports surplus of over $8,000,000, an increase of $656,987 from that of $7,343,013, as of September 30, 1929. Presuming this addition to surplus is after taxes and preferred and common dividend for the period, net earnings would amount to approximately $1,500,000 or more than double the amount paid for the nine months. In the year ended September 30, 1929, dividends were paid qquarterly on the common shares at the rate of $5.00 annually with a bonus of $3.00 a share at the end of the year. On the basis of the outstanding shares at that time the dividend and ocrus amounted to $1,330,000. "At the present time, when many industrial concerns are reporting lower earnings, it is very gratifying to be able to advise our shareholders that earnings of our company for the year to date have been substantially in excess of any similar period" is the message sent stockholders of Thayers, Limited, by President J. L. Thayer. Volume of business has been largely increased for the first five months of the current year, and this increase is attributable almost entirely to the company's established stations. The expansion program for the year is now practically completed and should materially increase volume for the balance of the year. In view of increased distributing facilities and the present favorable operating conditions, Mr. Thayer considers the outlook to be exceptionally bright.

The market appears to have entered into the season of dog days when prices move slowly, if at all, dipping idly one hour, firming the next, yet never getting far from the mean. The volume this week has continued extremely light, and the prospects are for an even slower day, Friday with New York closed and the Canadian exchanges going on holiday on Saturday. It is difficult to obtain stocks in large blocks without running prices higher, just as it is difficult to unload without unduly depressing prices. Both parties seem content ot place their orders and await dips or rallies to get a filling.

IMPROVEMENT IS NOTICED IN OILS

Massey-Harris Sells Back 26—Other Issues Are Lower.

TORONTO, Ont., July 3 (C.P.)—There was an improvement in the tone of the oil stocks on Toronto Exchange this morning but the trading did not signify other than slow deliberate buying, while elsewhere the list continued to be sluggish and without a definite trend. Those stocks which had appeared firmer before the close Wednesday eased back this morning, though not more than a fraction. Brazilian sold off more than ½ point; Nickel at times dipped; Noranda was just under its previous close, while Massey-Harris sold back to 26. Canadian Industrial Alcohol eased, Standard Paving lost ½ point.

Ford of Canada held yesterday's gain and inclined to go higher; Service Stations sold fractionally above 39; B.A. Oil, Imperial and International Petroleum netted small fractions and the foods gave a better display. Consolidated Smelters commanded 200 for one lot, a gain of 6 points.

JOHNSON CLAN HOLDS REUNION AT MILLBROOK

140 MEMBERS OF OLD FAMILY GATHER FOR ANNUAL REUNION; HISTORY MOST INTERESTING ONE

Family Arrived in Canada 122 Years Ago—Settled in Cavan.

OFFICERS ELECTED

R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., of Toronto, Traces Origin of Old Family.

MILLBROOK, July 3.—(Examiner Correspondence).— Descendants of the Johnston clan, originally of the Border County of Dumfries, between England and Scotland, to the number of approximately one hundred and forty, gathered for their annual reunion at the Agricultural Park, Millbrook, on Tuesday, July 1, representatives coming from Toronto and other points west, and from Smith's Falls and intervening points to the eastward.

The family history is a most interesting one, and in Ontario goes back at least one hundred and fifteen years, the pioneer Johnstones coming out from the north of Ireland, largely from the counties of Cavan and Monaghan, and settling in Cavan township and other points in the central section of the province, their descendants, in many instances, reaching now in the fifth generation.

First Reunion 2 Years Ago

The initial family reunion was held at Orono two years ago, Millbrook being chosen both last year and this, and by unanimous consent has been settled upon as the meeting-place for 1931. Dominion Day is the fixed date for this important family event each year. The plan of having some local organization cater for the service at meal time was adopted last year, the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Andrew's United church accepting this task, the guests bringing with them the necessary provisions but being entirely freed of any responsibility in connection with the dinner and supper, and thus able to enjoy the entire day to the full.

A large flag over the main gateway to the Agricultural Park marked the entrance to the gathering place for the many carloads that kept continually arriving up to the noon hour, some indeed not reaching the grounds until the afternoon, and a reception committee gave hearty welcome to the incoming guests. The singing of grace, followed by the Maple Leaf, preceded the seating of the company about the four long tables, centred with early summer blossoms, and laden with good things to eat, that were laid in the main building, the booth where ice-cream, chocolate bars, etc., were sold being located under the same roof, and conveniently nearby.

Following the dinner, the president, Alexander Johnston, of Cadmus, took charge community singing being the opening item on the program, after which R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., of Toronto, who is related to the Johnston family on his mother's side, was called upon to address the company.

History of the Clan.

Without going as much into detail as his hearers could wish, Mr. McLaughlin, who has made a comprehensive study of the whole subject, gave a comparatively brief outline of the history of the Johnston clan, explaining their origin in Dumfriesshire over one thousand years ago, the border families of that time being a pretty wild lot, with a constant warfare going on between the English and Scotch, cattle stealing being a primary cause. The main families in the border shires were the Maxwells, the Douglases, the Kennedys, the Holmes, the Percys, the Scotts, and the Johnstones, the latter the most numerous and now known all over the world.

Explaining the difference between two names pronounced almost exactly the same, Mr. McLaughlin showed that "Johnson" is simply a patronymic, an abbreviation of "John's son", and originated in many different places; whereas the name "Johnston" or "Johnstone" as it is sometimes spelled, denotes one original clan, Lowland Scotch in origin, with its descendants now found in every part of the globe.

At the battle of Chevy Chase a Johnston held the right wing of the Scotch army and won a notable victory. For centuries the Earl of Annandale, with his home at Castle Lockwood, was the head of the Johnston Clan, but about one hundred years ago this branch of the family became extinct through the death of the last male heir; no successor to the title has yet been found, but as many of the Johnstons had emigrated to the north of Ireland, with descendants later to come to Canada, and also to the United States, "the rightful heir may be here to-day for all I know."

However, Hope, a daughter of this Earl, married the Earl of Hopetown and took the name "Hope Johnston"; and though the last male heir died and the title became extinct, a descendant of Hope Johnston still resides at Castle Lockwood.

There was always a bitter feud between the Maxwells and Johnstons, and in a final battle at Locherby the former were given a bad beating, and to this day there are still many Johnston families in the vicinity of the border village of that name. The preaching of John Knox and the introduction of Presbyterianism stopped a good deal of the fierce border warfare, the families becoming more civilized and fighting less and less of an ordinary occurrence among them; the Johnstons, many of them, were allied with Calvinism, a fact that accounted for changed natures and relationships among themselves and their neighbors.

Went to Ireland in 1645.

An exodus to the north of Ireland of several Johnston families occurred in 1645, and another to the southern States. In the American war two of the most famous generals were Johnstons, and one of these, equal in military ability with Colonel Robert D. Lee, was killed at the battle of Shiloh.

Those gathered here to-day are descendants of the families who settled in Ulster and adjacent territory, some of them later coming to Canada. His own grandfather, Hugh Johnston, the speaker said, came out in 1818, settling in Cavan Township, and clearing the land on the farm now owned and occupied by John R. Thompson, just east of the village. The original Johnston homestead, however, in Cavan, is on the Eighth line, Richard Johnston, a brother of Hugh, having settled there as a hardy pioneer, Mr. and Mrs. David Johnston White being its present occupants.

Modest Clan.

In concluding his interesting remarks, Mr. McLaughlin said: "I have always found the Johnstons to be reasonably modest, but still holding important positions in church and state. The present justice of the Supreme Court in New Zealand is a Johnston, and the Earls of Derwent and of Dundonald were Johnstons on their mothers' side. Members of our family have a splendid history and should have a great future before them. The original Johnstons were men of the very highest character and their descendants should have the same general qualities and delight in carrying out the same principles. I have found that one or two Johnstons were hanged (laughter), but it was for political reasons, and not for being convicted of committing any crime."

Warm applause followed Mr. McLaughlin's fine address, and the chairman suggested that he wished it were possible to display a chart of the family tree, showing the various branches of the clan, and adding: "It is up to us all to keep it in perfect condition."

Mrs. George Rigby, of Bobcaygeon, roused enthusiasm by stating she was connected with the Johnstons on three sides of the house, and that her father still lives on the homestead near Havelock, which has been constantly in the family for over one hundred years, and of which they hold the Crown deed. Greetings from a relative now travelling in Germany were read by Mrs. Rigby, who closed by speaking highly of the reunion, declaring it keeps the family ties fresh and strong.

The vicepresident, Melville Johnston, Springville, mentioned the fact that Tuesday's re-union saw families present who had not previously been able to attend the gathering, these coming from Coboconk; his great-grandfather had settled east of Millbrook, and the descendants from the large family of James, his son, numbered one hundred and eighty-five in one generation. "If any of you can beat that, I should like to hear about it."

Mrs. Edward Scott, of Norwood, also spoke briefly, stating her pride in the fact that her mother was a Johnston, and her personal pleasure in being present.

The election of officers engaged the company's attention for some time, the following being chosen:

President — Alexander Johnston, Cadmus.
Vice-president — Mrs. Herbert Lough, Toronto.
Secretary — Melville Johnston, Springville.
Treasurer — George Johnston, Norwood.
Committee — E. Benson, Peterborough, chairman; David Milne, Toronto; James Roddy, Cavan; Elida Rigby, Bobcaygeon; May Johnston, Cartwright; Maud Campbell, Toronto; Olive Conlin, Oshawa; Mrs. E. Scott, Norwood; Olga Johnston, Peterborough; and Jean White, Hepworth.

A vote of thanks to Mr. R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., for his informative address was moved by Mrs. Heaslip, of Bailieboro, and seconded by Albert Johnston, of Thistletown, the hearty applause showing the appreciation of all present.

The sports program was planned to take in all ages, but a heavy rain storm coming on made it imperative to hold the races in the main building, its length making this quite feasible. Later, when the weather cleared, one or two ball games entertained the onlookers, creating plenty of interest and amusement. The results of the races were:

Boys, 10 to 12—1, Gordon Jones; 2, R. Matheson.
Girls, 10 to 12—1, Opal Johnston; 2, Edna Rigby.
Boys, 7 and under—1, Kenneth Conlin; 2, Neil Johnston.

Girls, 10 to 15—1, Audrey Matheson; 2, Jean Scott.
Married ladies' race—1, Mrs. Williams; 2, Mrs. Conlin; 3, Mrs. Jamieson.
Men's race—1, H. Jamieson; 2, Orville Conlin.
Girls, 9 to 10—1, Kathleen Peel; 2, Eunice Chipps; 3, Etta Weaver.
Three-legged race—1, A. Matheson and Jean Scott; 2, Evelyn Rigby and Josephine Matheson.
Married men's race—1, John Rowland; 2, A. Johnston.

At the conclusion of the supper hour, and previous to a general departure for the several homes, formal votes of thanks were moved to the Agricultural Society for the use of the grounds; and to the Woman's Auxiliary for the excellent service they had given at both the meal times; the president, Mrs. (Rev.) W. W. Jones, replied briefly on behalf of the organization, and the decision to return to Millbrook for another year was passed without a dissenting voice.

The list of those who registered at the Johnston family reunion, held at Millbrook, on Tuesday, July 1, included: Elida Rigby, Evelyn Rigby, Edna Rigby, George Rigby, Jean Scott, all of Bobcaygeon; M. Campbell, R. Campbell, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. E. Benson, Peterborough; Misses Muriel and M. Kay Benson, Peterborough; R. Ormond Benson, Peterborough; Iona Matheson, Donna J. Buchanan, Edith R. COMMUNIST PARTY CRUSHES RIGHT WING OPPOSITION

MOSCOW, Russia, July 3 (C.P.)—All regular forces within the Communist Party to-day were active in crushing out the last vestige of Right Wing opposition.

Joseph Stalin and his central committee again have emerged triumphant and with enormously enhanced political prestige. The fate of Stalin's political foes amounted to policitical annihilation.

Rykoff identfied with Communism for a decade and the holder of many offices; Tomski, executive council member and agitator extraordinary; Uglanov, Commissar of Labor and a strong man by his own right; even Bucharin, one-time editor of Pravda, and Left Wing central committeeman, all these have gone down in the dust at Stalin's feet.

BAN ON CONGRESS PUZZLES INDIANS

Despite Gov't Order Membership Not Regarded As Unlawful.

MEANS WORKING COMMITTEE

SIMLA, India, July 3 (C.P.) Cable via Reuters).—Membership in the national congress is not interpreted as being unlawful, despite the official statement of the Government of India on Monday last regarding the working committee of the Congress. This statement opened with a declaration that "The Governments of the United Provinces, in close consultation with the Government of India have declared the working committee an unlawful association." Questions were raised as to how far the ban applied.

It is now explained that the working committee, which consists of 15 members, was declared unlawful under the Criminal Law Amendment Act, and as such the committee is unlawful throughout British India. Membership in the Congress is not unlawful, however, the intention of the Government of India, being only to end what were thought to be mischievous activities directed by the working committee, which is the central executive of the National Congress.

MANY OLD AND FAITHFUL READERS OF THE WEEKLY READ WITH REGRET PASSING OF 83 YEAR OLD PAPER

Peterborough Examiner Has Grown From a Small Four Page Weekly to a Daily With Twenty-four Page Capacity City Newspaper.

WEEKLY PAPER ESTABLISHED GLORIOUS HISTORY BOUND TOGETHER HOME TIES WITH ABSENT ONES

"Thus times do shift; each thing its turn does hold;
New things succeed; as former things grow old."

So it is with newspapers as with other things. And may old and faithful readers of the Weekly Examiner learned with keen regret that last week's copy was to be the last of their favorite paper. Some of these, living throughout the length and breadth of Peterborough County, have been constant readers of the Weekly since their youth.

The paper delivered through the countryside and carried by mail to former residents in distant points of the West and the United States brought its wealth of news. News of the doings and sayings of persons with whom the paper's readers were well acquainted. News of the happenings throughout the county and district. Live, intimate news of the industry and progress of those engaged in making a living in this district.

The Weekly was depended upon by its readers and the editorial staff of The Examiner knowing this was sincere in every line that went into the paper. So a close bond arose between The Examiner and its weekly readers and the decision that the Weekly must go was made with reluctance by the paper's management and that decision was learned with more than passing regret by the staff.

A Glorious History

The paper had a glorious history, and its work in this district can never be erased. Eighty-three years ago it was launched upon its course. Those were those far away days when every word of printed matter had to be patiently set by hand, and to publish a six page paper of pithy news was no mean achievement. Then The Examiner had stiff competition; it was but one of several papers in the local field. Others fell by the wayside, but The Examiner, by its wise policy of management aided greatly by a faithful band of readers and advertisers prospered.

It grew and thrived, and in 1885, forty-five years ago, The Examiner management decided on the ambitious program of publishing a daily paper. The Weekly was maintained, however and the work of improving it and the giving of its readers the best and most in the week's news was never once relinquished.

Not Content with Weekly

Soon it was found that residents of this district were not content to obtain their news but once a week, and gradually the subscribers of the Weekly joined the ever-growing circle of Daily readers. More from the sentimental desire to maintain its tradition and its link with the early history of this district the Weekly was mantained after its purpose had really been served.

Last week the Weekly's active history was closed, and this week many Weekly readers join the big family of the Daily.

The same wise and true policy that guided the Weekly through so many years is at the helm of the Daily. The self-same principles of truth and keeping faith prevail.

The Daily Examiner gives its readers the same live service, the same great net-work of news as do the metropolitan papers. News from all points in Canada and throughout the world pours straight into The Examiner over the Creed Printer wire. Through its membership in the Canadian Press it has representatives in every town and city in the broad Dominion and in each of the capitals of the great nations. News of interest or importance to residents of this district whether it breaks in China, Borneo or Siam is carried over special wire to The Examiner editorial office and appears in the paper almost within the hour.

Every effort is made to gather all local news of interest. A large and well-trained staff of reporters is maintained in the city and in every community throughout the district The Examiner is represented. Thus The Examiner is giving its readers an unrivalled service.

Now The Examiner really goes to press twice a day. Once at 11 o'clock in the morning, which edition catches the trains and is carried to homes over a wide district embracing four counties. Then at 4 o'clock the edition for the city is run off the roaring press.

GERMAN ROWER

one length in front. Fawley, approximately half way, was reached in 4 minutes 44 seconds. Rowing 20 to West's 28, the German's superior power was obvious.

In the next quarter-mile the German increased his lead to two lengths, and at the mile post to three lengths. He then dropped to 20, and although West was sculling 32, he could make no impression, the German winning easily amid warm applause.

Formidable Opponent

Wright to-morrow comes up against the most formidable entrant among candidates from this side of the Atlantic—Bootzelon, German sculler. Bootzelon to-day won in impressive style from West, London Rowing Club, sculling at 20 strokes to the minute as he finished three lengths in front.

Guest will row against T. D. Collett, who won a slow race against Guye of London Rowing Club. Collett has had much experience in the Diamond Sculls but Guest will be favored to eliminate him.

Guest finished far in front of Edwards. His time was nine minutes and 35 seconds.

Wright apparently faces a harder path to the final than does Guest. For Wright to-day had to dispose of a quadruple champion in Beresford, a man who has become the most famous sculler in England. Beresford won the Diamond Sculls in 1920, 1924, 1925, and 1926. And Wright to-morrow faces another stiff test in the match with the German.

Beresford Plays Sportsman

Sportsmanship on the part of Beresford perhaps meant victory for Wright. The Canadian caught a crab after about 250 yards and lost two strokes while Beresford forged ahead. Beresford saw the mishap and instead of pressing on waited on his oars for the Canadian to recover.

Wright had a weight advantage of 36 pounds, invaluable in view of the strong head wind. The Canadian broke away at 18 strokes in the half minute and 32 in the first minute against 16 and 30 by Beresford. Beresford went in front from the start but Wright caught him at 250 yards. Then Wright caught a crab while Beresford waited.

Recovering, Wright plugged away after Beresford who held on to a lead of a length. Wright had not reduced his lead when they reached Remenham Barrier. The Canadian's powerful stroke began to show effects now and he crept up on Beresford, whose lead was cut to half a length at Fawley, reached in four minutes 57 seconds.

Wright was now sculling much stronger than Beresford and the latter was bothered by the wind. Wright caught Beresford and spurted into a lead and was ten feet in front at the ¾ mile mark. He doubled the lead in the next quarter of a mile. Beresford began to tire and Wright was drawing away at the finish.

Princeton Downs Clare.

Princeton University defeated Clare College, Cambridge, by six feet in a heat off the Henley Regatta to-day. The time for the mile and five-sixteenths course was 7 minutes, 49 seconds.

Weather again to-day favored the International races, although there were the same stiff head winds encountered yesterday.

The crowd began to arrive by the hundreds for the event from early in the day. Every sort of water craft, many filled with pajama clad girls, dotted the sides of the river.

FRENCH PLAYERS IN SEMI-FINALS

California Team Defeats Belgium Pair in Women's Doubles at Wimbledon.

TILDEN IS BEATEN.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 3 (C.P.)—Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, French Davis Cup doubles team reached the semi-final round in the British tennis championships to-day by defeating Bill Tilden and his Dutch partner, Hans Timmer 6—2, 4—6, 6—3, 6—3.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Elizabeth Ryan, the all-California team that holds the French title, reached the women's doubles semi-finals by trimming Madame Henrotin and Jeanne Sigart, Belgium 6—2, 6—0.

The French met with a reverse in a second quarter-final doubles match, Jean Borotra and Christian Boussus being eliminated by the veteran English combination of J. Colin Gregory and Ian G. Collins 9—7, 6—3, 6—2.

That the veteran French combination will be a serious threat for the title was indicated by the play of Cochet and Brugnon against Tilden and Timmer.

Big Bill and his partner, starting slowly, lost the first set 6-2, but they soon led at 3-1 in the second. The Frenchmen levelled it at 4-4. Tilden played brilliantly to take the ninth and then served a love game for the set and they were all square at a set apiece.

Although Tilden made a supreme effort to curb the French pair and Timmer played well beside him, Cochet and Brugnon carried the third set. Cochet was playing with great dash and brilliance, ably supported by his veteran partner, Brugnon.

The victory of Collins and Gregory completed the semi-final brackets and to-morrow the British pair will clash with Allison and Van Ryn, the young Americans who defeated them for the title in last year's final.

In the other semi-final, Cochet and Brugnon encounter Lott and Doeg, holders of the United States' doubles championship.

Pedlow, over seventy years of age, former member of the Federal parliament and until recently a prosperous dry goods merchant in Renfrew, has announced that he will spend his remaining years in pursuing special studies. He started today in Queen's University summer school to study political science and will continue when the University re-opens for the regular Fall term. He is an alert student and will have the experience gained in more than 40 years of business life behind his studies. Two of his daughters are Queen's graduates.

TOM SKEYHILL TO GIVE LECTURE

"With Mussolini and Blackshirts" is Subject of Chautauqua Lecture.

ON FRIDAY NIGHT.

"With Mussolini and the Blackshirts" is the title of the lecture which Tom Skeyhill will give in the Chautauqua tent on Friday evening of this week.

The subject of the address and the man who gives it are both notable and very worth-while. Mussolini is probably the most dramatic figure in international life to-day. Regarded by himself as a re-incarnation of the spirit of the great Napoleon, he is a world figure whose possibilities for either good or evil are tremendous. None knows what he will do next.

Then there is the lecturer himself: Tom Skeyhill, the Anzac orator who has been acclaimed by no less than the New York Herald as the equal in oratory of Birkenhead of England, Viviani of France and Trotsky of Russia.

Here Once Before

Tom Skeyhill spoke in Peterboro' on another occasion, from the Chautauqua platform. He was at that time blinded as a result of the Gallipoli campaign and his listeners thrilled to his oratory at that time and yet were wounded in their sensibilities by the manifest suffering of the man. Now, he comes under different auspices. With his sight almost miraculously restored, he takes his place as one of the outstanding playwrights, biographers and orators of the day.

His address on Il Duce is described as one of enthralling interest. In the manner of its delivery, he is unique. He takes the good aspect of the Dictator's reign and emphasizes it through the first portion of his address. Then after an interval of a few minutes, he comes back to give the dangerous aspect. The audience is enabled to see both sides of the extraordinary career of the man whom many believe to be the greatest political force since Napoleon Bonaparte spread his shadow across a world.

ARCTIC FLYER HAS CLOSE CALL

Al Cheeseman Escapes Unhurt as Plane Crashes in Flames.

DOWN NEAR MILLBRIDGE.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 3 (By the Canadian Press).—Al Cheeseman, noted Antarctic pilot, escaped death by a narrow margin when his burning plane crashed in a lake near Millidge, in Northwest Ontario, according to word reaching here to-day. Reports indicated that Cheeseman, while flying from Sioux Lookout, Ont., to The Pas in Northern Ontario, was forced to land when his machine took fire suddenly. He was uninjured.

Noted as a north-country flier, Cheeseman broke into new prominence last year when he was selected as a pilot for Sir Hubert Wilkins' Antarctic exploration flight. He is now a pilot for Northern Aerial Minerals Exploration Company. Millidge, where the crash occurred, is 40 miles west of Sioux Lookout on the Canadian National Railways.

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

REPLY TO MR. LILLICRAP.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Mr. Lillicrap of Lakefield has done me the honor of noticing my humble effusions on behalf of the new Empire which is the issue at this election. Mr. Lillicrap has hit the nail fairly on the head, but it is his own nail. For example, he says, "And because Mr. Peck does not advocate absolute Empire trade and preference. . . ." Let me tell Mr. Lillicrap and his "Canada First" friends that the London Conference of 1926 called by Baldwin and Balfour, went forth to proclaim to all British dominions that there is no way of forming an Empire except on the basis and principle of actual tariff "preferences," and when Mr. Lillicrap says that Mr. Peck does not advocate "preference," he point-blank rejects the proposal for Empire laid down in 1296, which is to be accepted or rejected at the Conference in September, 1930. Mr. Lillicrap is to be thanked for stating the fact clearly, and that fact is, that Mr. King's budget has been received with profound gratitude in Britain, and Britain will agree also to give a "preference," and South Africa, New Zealand and Australia. But Mr. Peck does not agree, and Mr. Lillicrap—he doesn't agree, and then what?

Mr. Lillicrap scoffs at my statement that the failure of our representatives to successfully advocate the opening of the northern end of the canal has resulted in immense loss and unemployment to the Quaker Oats Company and this district. Well? This company ought to know, oughtn't it, Mr. Lillicrap?

J. H. BURNHAM.

FIVE CHICAGO GUNMEN HELD

Three in Los Angeles Wanted in Connection With Lingle Murder.

TRAIL NARROWS DOWN.

LOS ANGELES, Calif, July 3 (C.P.)—Five alleged Chicago gangsters, three of them wanted in connection with the slaying of Alfred (Jake) L. Lingle, Chicago newspaper reporter, were in jail here to-day, pending extradition proceedings.

Frankie Foster, alias Frost, alias Foreman, former right-hand man and "arsenal keeper" for the "Bugs" Moran gang, was among the quintet. He allegedly owned the pistol used in the Lingle slaying. His bodyguard, George Davis, arrested Monday with him, and Frankie Fisher, known gangster, are the other suspects in the Lingle case.

Edgar Dudley, Chicago police detective, who aided in the round-up here said:

"We know Foster gave the gun to Lingle's slayer, and he is known to have been in the subway ten minutes before the reporter was shot. He took care of the guns for 'Bugs' Moran."

ORANGEMEN PARADE TO MADOC CHURCH

Rev. Rivers Gives Report on Religious Education Convention at Trinity Church.

MADOC, July 3.—(Examiner Correspondence.)— On Sunday morning, June 29th, Madoc Orangemen, L.O.L. 160, met at their hall at an early hour, to parade for divine service to St. Peter's Presbyterian church. Rev. T. G. Marshall was in charge of the service. The subject chosen by Rev. Mr. Marshall was "Is the Orange Order needed to-day?"

At Trinity United Church Sunday School and Bible classes met as usual at ten o'clock in the Sunday school rooms.

Convention Related.

At the morning service, Rev. G. W. Rivers took for his subject, "The International Religious Education Convention." Taking as his text, the Great Commission, "Go ye therefore and teach all nations," (Matt. 28:19-20), Rev. Mr. Rivers gave a brief report of the eight sessions of the great convention held in the Airplane building of the C.N.E. grounds, in Toronto, with the other buildings used for other purposes. This convention, he says, is only held in Canada once in twenty-five years, and was last held in Toronto in 1905.

The keynote of the convention was, "Go teach," and the slogan, "Every church a school of Christian living." Excellent music was furnished by the massed choir and Handel's 'Messiah' was rendered on two successive evenings.

Messages were received from Lord Willingdon, President Hoover and McKenzie King. Forty-two denominations were represented, and international co-operation was evidenced throughout the convention.

Thursday evening was devoted to world work, and reports were received from all the continents. Five delegates were there from Korea, one from Africa, fifteen from Asia, several from Europe, South America, Phillipine Islands, etc., and all spoke perfect English. From U.S.A. there were delegates from nearly every State, there being twelve from Maine alone. The mornings were devoted to group meetings, there being over four hundred in the ministerial group and the afternoons and evenings to mass meetings.

The evening voluntary was a solo by Miss Norma Fair, "Fair are the Roses of Sharon." During the morning service, the small daughter, Barbara Anne, of Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis, of Toronto, was presented for holy baptism.

Anniversary Services.

In the Anglican church of St. John the Baptist, both morning and evening, messages were a continuation of the anniversary services of Tuesday last, St. John the Baptist Day, and for the morning subject, Rev. P. Gatley Reynolds took as his subject, 'St. John the Baptist."

In the evening, the anniversary theme was continued, with a change of thought. Taking as his text, 1st Chron. 29:5, "Who then is willing to consecrate his service this day unto the Lord?" a personal appeal was made, and the thought of personal consecration was pressed home and made clear as a personal matter to each one present. The consecration hymn was used very solemnly and thoughtfully, and the recessional hymn also carried out the thought "Light at Eventide."

ORANGE CORNERS HOLDS SOCIAL

Fine Program Put on by Peterborough Conservatory of Music Orchestra.

QUILT TICKETS DRAWN.

ORANGE CORNERS, July 3 (Examiner Correspondence).—St. John's Ladies Guild held their strawberry social on Wednesday evening. The weather was ideal.

The wonderful program put on by the symphony orchestra of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music under the direction of Mr. R. Gliddon with Miss Elizabeth Webber at the organ was thoroughly enjoyed. A solo "Loves old sweet Song" by Mr. Minicolo accompanied by the orchestra won much applause.

The Rev. Mr. Blanchard of Omemee also sang several selections.

Miss Mildred Magee sang "Songs my mother taught me."

The orchestra also supplied music during the tea hour. Many comments were heard on their playing and a warm welcome will await this orchestra should they return to the Corners again.

Rev. Mr. James Wins Quilt

Tickets for the autograph quilt were drawn by Miss Fine of Peterborough and it was found that the Rev. E. R. James of Peterborough was the winner of the beautiful quilt. Mr. James is a former rector of St. John's church and will no doubt appreciate it very much as so many of his parishioners have their autograph worked on the quilt.

The ladies realized $131 by the sale of the tickets for this quilt.

Eczema Itched Badly. Face Disfigured. Healed by Cuticura.

"Eczema first appeared on my forehead in pimple-like form. Later it spread from my forehead towards my nose and gradually my whole face became affected. It itched and burned badly at times, and when I scratched it caused eruptions. After a while the pimples would dry up and then new ones would come in their place. My face was disfigured. The trouble lasted over a year.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Nellie Gach, Ladywood, Man.

RESORT ACTIVITIES OPEN FOR SUMMER

Official Opening Dance Held at Juniper Island Saturday.

STONEY LAKE, July 3.— During the past two weeks Stoney Lake has revived to life for another summer with the arrival of a large part of the summer population. Many summer homes were opened for the season over the Dominion Day week-end and now the high-pitched hum of the outboard motor and the "putt-putt-putt" of the more old-fashioned craft has displaced the quiet that prevailed but a month ago.

The first dance of the summer, which is generally accepted as the official opening of the summer season at Stoney Lake, was held on Saturday evening at Juniper Island and was followed by a special dance Tuesday night on the occasion of Dominion Day. The younger generation will also find entertainment at McCrackens Landing and other centres on the lake where regular dances are being planned for July and August.

Hotel proprietors on the lake report the arrival of the advance guard of the summer tourist traffic. Many came just in time to toss in their fishing lines on the opening day of the season for bass and "muskies."

"I use Certo in raspberry, strawberry, black currant and cherry jams and I think it is wonderful."—Mrs. G. M. Judge.

"I have used Certo . . . and have found it wonderful."—Mrs. A. Duncan.

Norham Ladies' Aid Hold Strawberry Social

NORHAM, July 3 (Examiner Correspondence.) — A very successful strawberry social was held in the Norham church hall on Friday night under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid. Owing to the inclemency of the weather, the supper was served in the hall instead of on Mr. Platt's lawn as planned.

A ball game between Warkworth and Norham teams was played and was a splendid exhibition of a good game. The score was seventeen-four in favor of Norham. The proceeds of the evening was $68.

Doll certainly put over an "ace"

"My goodness," thought Doll, as she laid down her tennis racket, "I never dreamed it was so late, and Frank is so fussy about his evening meal . . . Ah! I know what I'll serve!"

She took a tin of Clark's Pork and Beans and emptied the contents into a Pyrex dish. Then she popped the dish into the oven until the beans became heated through.

Next she poached some eggs . . . made some toast and tea. Then she took the beans out of the oven and put a generous helping on each plate and dropped a couple of eggs on top of the beans.

And didn't those beans look tempting! . . . neither mushy nor broken, and smothered with luscious tomato sauce . . . what man could resist such a meal (certainly Frank didn't).

You may walk into practically every grocery store in Canada—from the largest to the smallest . . . and find Clark's Pork and Beans on the grocer's shelves.

. . . they MUST be good!

BLUE CREPY WOOL MAKE THIS CHARMING FROCK.

The popular lingerie touch is charmingly treated in this frock in light blue crepy wool. A narrow scalloped collar of white crepe de chine ends in a tie, which slips through a slit in the dress and falls in scalloped ends. The tiny cuffs are placed on an inch or two above the wrist. The ruffle at the waistline carries out the feeling of collars and cuffs.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

A house has to be run something like a coal furnace!

• • • • • • •

The heater has to be stoked constantly, and with almost the same regularity, it has to have the clinker and ashes taken out!

• • • • • • •

The house has to be continually provisioned and supplied with the necessary furnishings and equipments. It has also to have waste and the discarded and useless articles eliminated with almost the same orderly sequence.

• • • • • • •

Neither the furnace nor the house can be well run unless these matters are attended to daily.

• • • • • • •

It is not much of a job to give this necessary care to a house, if it is done systematically. When, through forgetfulness or some perfectly reasonable cause, such as the return after vacation, etc., the larder gets empty it is a bit of work to get it re-supplied.

• • • • • • •

When, through neglect, or some excusable cause, such as illness, company or pressure or other tasks, a house gets littered with unwanted articles it means work to get it freed from the useless things that add to labor without contributing anything to the good looks or the convenience of the place.

• • • • • • •

The useless things of a house may be likened to the clinkers in a furnace. They choke the draughts and stop the proper functioning of the heater.

• • • • • • •

The household clinker does the same thing. The unwanted articles clog the works and prevent the orderly running of the home because they take up the space required for the new supplies, which are constantly accumulating.

• • • • • •

It is only when the way is cleared by the disposal of the unwanted things that the housework can be accomplished with the least labor, and the rooms, closets, and drawers can be in correct order.

• • • • • • •

It is a constant surprise to a homemaker to see the way things accumulate. They apparently collect faster than they come in, but of course, they cannot possibly do this!

• • • • • • •

It is the fact that the incoming of things is greater than the outgo that he house gets clogged. Try getting rid of household clinkers—that it the waste, the things which have served their purpose and are no longer useful.

• • • • • • •

To refrain from getting things until there is a place for them is wise, but to rid a home of articles no longer wanted, is not wise but imperative to good housekeeping.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Alice Michaelis

WITHIN

Without, the palms are lashed to earth,
The gale sweeps down the sand
And shrieks aloft in vicious mirth
Across the cringing land.
How black the sky, how bleak the night
Where furies stalk and roar;
The fishing village shrinks in fright
Along the harried shore!

Within are heartfires' ardent flame
And candles' valiant glow;
A baby lisps its mother's name
While toddling to and fro;
A kitten plays, a housewife waits
The kettle's steaming spout,
As sea and wind that storm their gates,
Unheeded, wail without.

Without the house where being dwells,
An angry world may rave;
And yet within love weaves its spells,
Its charms that bless and save.
Storm may sometimes the stars obscure,
But trust and faith, alight
Will keep the house of life secure
Against encroaching night.

For the first time in history the Festival Service of a great daughter church of the Anglican Communion—the Church of the Province of South Africa—was recently held in Westminster Abbey, the preacher being the Most Rev. William M. Carter, Archbishop of Capetown.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

AFTER EFFECTS OF STRAIN OR SHOCK.

One of the things that is so unfair to our returned soldiers is when the Pension Board of Examiners rules that they can not give pensions unless there is something very definite by which they can reach a decision as to a man's disability.

If there is an amputated arm or leg, a shrapnel wound interfering with motion or use of an arm or leg, where there is evidence in the lungs of damage by gas, where the heart shows direct evidence of overwork or infection, there is no trouble about granting a pension.

However, where the returned soldier says he doesn't eat very well, is restless at night, has lost weight, and feels tired all the time, the Board feels that it can not conscientiously grant a pension on these conditions. They are not definite enough.

And yet the man is not himself, is not the man he was when he enlisted, and finds it very difficult to do the work he did before he went overseas, often having to take work that is less fatiguing mentally and physically.

Now I know it is difficult for the Board to estimate this disability but as a matter of fact it is present just the same as a broken leg, or a heart ailment.

In everyday life we see nervous breakdowns where the individual has been under any strain. Many individuals who have gone through serious disasters have never been the same afterwards, whether it has been fire, earthquake, or shipwreck.

That this affects the ductless glands is now being proven, particularly the thyroid gland in the neck, and the adrenal glands situated one on top of each kidney.

By affecting the thyroid gland in the neck the heart becomes rapid, and sometimes irregular. There is nervous indigestion, and sleeplessness.

The various processes of the body seem to be driven to work faster.

When the adrenals are affected there is a slight mental disturbance such as fear or other unusual sensations.

Now these glands work in harmony with the other ductless glands, acting with or counteracting one another, so as to maintain a mental and physical balance.

Thus, when they are upset as by the shock or stress of war, there is bound to be some effect upon the body and mind.

Fortunately, governments (which after all are the people) are recognizing these effects and these cases are now being treated more fairly.

Rest of mind is a big factor in the treatment.

Summer Activities Call for Intensive Advertising

SUMMER—the season when the world and his wife are out of doors—on the highways—at the beach—in the garden—on the golf links—by stream and lake.

The season that develops a multitude of new wants and makes insistent demands on everyone for the goods and services necessary to the enjoyment of its varied delights.

Hot weather foods and cooling beverages — Summer frocks and garden equipment — bathing suits and sunburn alleviatives—sports clothes and furnishings for the Summer cottage — gasoline and spare tires.

And these in addition to people's normal all-year-round buying activities. For family larders and wardrobes need replenishing fully as much in July as in December. Youthful couples buy and furnish homes in August as well as in February.

Astute advertisers do not cut down their advertising when the mercury goes up. They realize that Summer, which brings Canada its $300,000,000 tourist industry, also brings them sales opportunities afforded by no other season of the year.

And they know that the quickest, most economical means of capitalizing these opportunities are the advertising columns of the daily newspapers.

VISITING YORKSHIREMEN LEARN FARM CONDITIONS AT FIRST HAND

Fail to Find Any Dissatisfied Boys—Gain Faith in Canada's Future.

LAUD PETERBORO HIGHLY

Two sturdy Yorkshiremen, ruddy of face and wearing clothes that stamp them as fresh from the Albion Isle, are in Peterborough and district for a few days on an important mission. They are emissaries of the Yorkshire Migration Committee and the Northumberland and Durham Migration Committees and they landed at Montreal last week bent on learning at first hand just what conditions the English immigrant boys have to face on Ontario farms.

Having tramped over hill and dale on foot these two men are making their tour of inspection—visited farms and talked with farmers and English boys, they have gained an added faith in Canada's future.

Air Of Prosperity.

"We are amazed at the fertility of the country," they told The Examiner this morning. "There is an air of prosperity, happiness and contentment throughout the countryside."

They failed to find one of the thousand and more boys brought out by their country's immigration committee during past four years dissatisfied. They hastened to point out that their society is a citizens' organization and the boys they send to Canada are carefully selected. They are between the ages of fourteen and eighteen, must be strong and healthy and must prove their desire to become Canadian farmers. "Less than two percent of our boys have returned home," they explained, "and those who did come back were in most cases forced to return because of sickness."

They quoted instances of lads brought out by their society who had done remarkably well. Two Durham boys from the mining country had come out two years ago and last month brought out their parents. Now all are re-united on a smiling Ontario farm.

These men are J. B. Adams and Major A. J. Charlesworth, private citizens, who sailed to Canada on their own to learn of conditions. Mr. Adams summed up his impression of Canada by declaring that he intended sending out his own boy soon to become an Ontario farmer.

Cleanliness Impressive.

They stated that they will carry back to the Old Country a warm place in their hearts for Peterborough. "Really," they said, "it is the finest city we have ever been in. Your fine homes, the trees and lawns and the cleanliness of the city is most impressive. To our mind it is an ideal place in which to live."

They could not go before they also emphasized the hospitality and many kindnesses that had been showered upon them in Canada. "Everywhere we go we are greeted most kindly, and this was especially true in Peterborough. We met your mayor and he could not do too much for us."

"There is a man who gets things done" was their final tribute to Mayor Dehne.

CAMP TO OPEN NEXT MONDAY

First Group of Boys Will Leave City at 2.30 by Bus.

DOUG. LOOMIS IN CHARGE

The merry shouts of a horde of youngsters will once more resound on the shores of Clear Lake when the Kawartha Boys' Camp, operated by the Rotary Club, is opened for the season next Monday afternoon. The first group of boys for encampment will be transported to the lake by Border Transit, Limited, leaving the city at 2.30 o'clock.

This year the camp will again be in charge of Doug. Loomis, physical director at the Y.M.C.A., as camp director. Assistant camp director will be Harry Redfern of Belleville who acted in that capacity last year. For each group of eight boys a leader will be provided. These will be young men chosen with an eye to their fitness for leadership.

Camp fees this year have been set at a figure which will enable every lad in the city who wants an outing to take advantage of the opportunity. They are thought to be the lowest of any boys' camp in Canada, being $6 for the first week and $5 for each succeeding week. As in other years, boys will be allowed to stay one week or as many weeks as they wish. In the past it has been found that the average length of stay is two weeks although some boys have spent all summer at the camp. The camp will continue to the last of August.

With the construction of a new bunk house this year the capacity of the camp has been increased so that 125 boys can be quartered. The camp now consists of two bunk houses, a dining hall, a large kitchen, an ice house, a building for stores, two cottages and a boat house. This year springs were put in all the bunks.

This year the boys will be deprived of the daily task of pumping water to the camp tank by hand as the Canadian Johnson Motor Company donated a gasoline engine to drive a water pump donated by the Peter Hamilton Company through James Hamilton. The De Laval Company carried out the installation.

Three new 17-foot utility canoes, wide and safe, have been added to the camp equipment. The water fleet now includes two Hudson Bay freight canoes, a river driver's pointer driven by an outboard motor, a family outboard runabout, three small canoes and a dory as well as the new craft.

It is expected that Byran S. Wood of Toronto will be on hand during the camp as swimming instructor. For the older boys there is a 20-foot diving tower on top of the boat house and for the smaller lads a spring-board on the dock. Beginners are afforded an excellent sandy beach in which to learn.

As well as the usual recreational feature such as baseball on the camp diamond, swimming and fishing, plenty of water hikes are being planned. Overnight trips to Blue Mountain, Eel's Creek, Jack's Creek, Indian River and Burleigh Falls will be made at various times during the summer while two three-day trips down Indian River will be arranged for the boys during the season.

UNEMPLOYED SET RECORD TOTALS

Hon. G. Robertson Claims Liberals Lack Constructive Policy on Problem.

RALLY FOR KAISER.

OSHAWA, Ont., July 3 (Canadian Press). — "There are more unemployed persons in Canada at present than at any other time in the nation's history," Hon. Gideon Robertson, former Minister of Labor in the Meighen Government, told a large audience last night gathered at a rally held for Dr. T. E. Kaiser, Conservative candidate.

"You and I are far more interested in what is going to happen in the future than what Governments have done in the past to help the working man,' Senator Robertson stated in touching upon the serious problem which he claims confronts Canada at the present time.

Premier King, he said, had boasted of Canada's prosperity in the face of facts which were apparent to everyone. It would have been far more becoming, Hon. Mr. Robertson declared, if the Government, instead of spending large sums to maintain embassies at Washington and Paris, had devoted some time and money to solving a situation which finds thousands of Canadians without the means to earn a livelihood.

The speaker charged that the Liberals lacked a constructive policy on the unemployment problem. On the other hand, he claimed that Hon. R. B. Bennett, the Conservative leader, proposed fiscal changes to give more work to Canadian workmen and to increase the buying power of the country.

CARMEL PASTOR BID FAREWELL

Rev. H. B. Herrington and Family is Entertained by W. A. Ladies.

LAST SERMON SUNDAY

WARSAW, July 3 (Examiner Correspondence)—Members of the Carmel Women's Association met on Thursday evening to bid good-bye to Rev. H. B. and Mrs. Herrington and daughter before their departure from the community.

The meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Crowe and Miss Emily Drain, vice president, was in the chair when some routine business was discussed.

Mrs. Walter Crowe read an address to Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Herrington and daughter while Mrs. Alvin Drain and Mrs. Earl Ivy presented Mrs. Herrington with a sandwich set and Lucille with a rose bowl.

Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

Farewell Sermon

Rev. H. B. Herrington preached his farewell sermon in the United Church on Sunday evening, when he spoke on the uncertainties of life. He spoke of the difficulties a minister had in trying to avoid his own problems, in his sermons and realizing the problems of his people.

Never did Rev. Herrington allow his heart to show so much in his words as he did in addressing his Warsaw congregation for the last time, as their pastor. He showed them that their good was what he most desired that nothing could give him greater joy than to know each one was a faithful follower of the Master.

A reception service was held at which two young ladies were received into full membership of the Church and Mrs. Herrington sang, "God Will Take care of You."

Present Play

Bethel young people presented the play "The Road Back" in Warsaw Town Hall on Friday evening, under auspices Warsaw L.O.L.

The hall was well filled and the characters did credit to themselves and their coaches, Mrs. Chester Hamilton and Mrs. Lawrence McCracken. Those who assisted between acts included the Misses Vilma and Dorcas Payne, Tom Davis, Walter Payne, Bryn Thomas and Mrs. George Taylor.

New Class Formed

A junior class of boys was made in the Presbyterian Sunday School recently, by taking some of the smaller boys from the boys' class and some from the beginners' class. Gerald Crowe will be the teacher of this class.

Anniversary Postponed

BALTIMORE CAPTURES LEAGUE LEADERSHIP

ORIOLES WINS DOUBLEHEADER AT JERSEY CITY

Reading Keys Drop Two Games to the Newark Bears.

TORONTO IS IDLE.

Al Mamaux New Manager of Bears is Shelled From the Box.

It doesn't pay to be idle, even for a single day, in the hectic International League pennant race.

Rochester Red Wings found this fact out much to their sorrow, yesterday, when wet grounds forced the postponement of their game with Montreal, and Baltimore, playing a double-header with Jersey City, bounded into the league leadship once again.

Baltimore had to win two games to take a half-game lead over the defending champions, but the Orioles were equal to the task of winning the first, 9 to 1, and capturing the second, 6 to 2. The Birds encountered little difficulty in accounting for the opener, which pulled them up on even terms with their New York rivals, and they continued their heavy hitting in the second to go out in front.

In the only other games played in the circuit, the Reading Keys dropped a double header to Newark, the Bears winning the first 13 to 5 and the nightcap, 5 to 2. Al Mamaux, recently appointed manager of the Bears, was shelled from the mound in the second game, but Lefty Falkner held the Keys in check to get credit for their third victory in successive playing days.

HASTINGS WINS FROM ROSENEATH

Close Game is Played on Holiday in Trent League.

SCORE 3 TO 2

HASTINGS, July 3.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Hastings kept up their winning streak at Roseneath on the holiday taking the league fixture from the homesters 3 to 2 to make it their seventh straight win. Roseneath got their two runs in the first innings on four singles and an error. Scriver held them to three hits for the balance of the game. Hastings won the game in the second inning on three singles and a double and an error for three runs. The last seven innings was a pitchers' battle, scriver having a little the edge on Dunnett in strike-outs, Scriver having 12 and Dunnett 7. There was a large crowd out for the game. The win gives Hastings a long lead in the league and with four out of the remaining five games at home, they are sure of a play off.

Played 300 Games

The little lady shown above is Miss Marie Crane of Toronto, who this summer has played her three hundredth consecutive game of softball. Miss Crane has been playing softball for eight years and in that time never missed a league game and has only missed three practices. She has travelled hundreds of miles to be on hand when the umpire called "Play Ball" and her team was on the sandlot.

C.G.E. DEFEATS BELMONTS 11-10

Clubmen Gain Early Lead But Lose It In Last Frames.

IN SECOND PLACE.

With their 11-10 win over the Belmont Club last evening at Central School grounds, the C.G.E. team, who were tied for second place in the City Softball League with their opponents, retain their position at the expense of the Clubmen, who drop down a notch.

Up to the end of the sixth the Belmonts were in the lead with the score at 9-4, but in the seventh the Generals added another four runs and in the successive frames added two and one respectively.

Nicholls on the mound for the C.G.E. twirled good ball, although he did not receive the necessary support from the fielders at one period of the game, which rather appeared as if the Belmonts would retain their lead. Making a recovery however, the team put in some splendid co-operative effort and some very spectacular hitting was performed. In the last innings with the score even Allard was out at first base, Nicholls flied to short. With two down Griffin doubled to centre and Wilson dropped a short fly to right, scoring Griffin with the winning run.

"Si" Haskell, catching for the Clubmen, received a hit from a fast ball pitched by Galbraith in the opening stanza, but fortunately was able to continue playing. In addition to his work behind the plate he made two runs for his team.

For runs in succession were made in the fourth innings and another four successive runs in the fifth. On the whole the Belmonts displayed good batting form, the effect of which was somewhat counteracted by some good work on the part of Miller and Griffin, the outfielders.

Galbraith twirled for the Belmonts to the end of the seventh when he retired in favor of Delahaye, who had previously played on third base. Both pitchers displayed good form, the former having one strike-out to his credit.

The line ups:

C.G.E.—Griffin, cf; Wilson, 2b; Gore, c; Miller, lf; Calladine, ss; McLeish, 1b; O'Toole, 3b; Millard, rf; Nicholls, p.

Belmont Club—Green, rf; Delahaye, 3b, p; Haskill, c; Batten, 2b; Frick, 1b; Holvman, ss; 3b; Galbraith, p, ss; Scates, lf; Nobbs, cf.

Score by innings:

C.G.E.	010021421—11
Belmont Club	000450001—10

Umpires—Ted Lebarr at the plate; "Lefty" Connors on bases.

Softball Notes.

The old rivals, Harrison's and Sugar Bowl will meet tonight in a softball game at Central School grounds. Tonight's game has an important bearing on the league standing. A win for Harrison's will help them get in a triple tie for second place with C.G.E. and Belmonts. The Sugar Bowl have to win tonight's battle to cinch first place in the league. With so much at stake a great contest can be looked for.

The game will get away at 6.30 sharp and should draw a big crowd.

Friday night Harrison's meet the C.G.E. in another important game. On this game will rest the outcome of the first half of the league.

CAMPBELLFORD CLUB MACHINE TAKES AIR

C. D. Beattie Makes Solo Flight From Mohawk Camp, Deseronto.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 3 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The first flight of the plane owned by the Campbellford Flying Club was made on Tuesday, when C. D. Beattie, the club president, took the air from the flying field at Mohawk Camp, Deseronto.

The machine, which was trucked from Campbellford on Monday, accompanied by C. D. Beattie, Bill Nelson, and Eric Scott, was assembled at that point, and tried out in the air with splendid results. C. D. Beattie made the flight solo, and had no trouble in taking off or landing.

Despite some adverse criticism, the club has done well in taking the machine and re-building it from the group up, getting it fit for the air, and flying it. Although the plane was registered under a commercial license when the club took possession, it has received a new license since it was approved safe for travel, and bears the markings, G-C, A.J.F. It will be brought back to Campbellford in a few days.

EASTERN CLUBS HAVE REAL CLASS

Out of Last 65 Games Played in American League Eastern Club Won 46.

RUTH INJURED.

It is quite obvious from the standings that the Eastern clubs of the American League are the "class" of the circuit, but it takes the comparative performances of the East against West in the long intersectional series just completed to show how far ahead they are. The East made something of a clean-up when it invaded the West, but at home its supremacy was almost complete.

Of the 65 games played in their recent home stand, the Eastern clubs won 46, leaving only 19 victories for the Western clubs, which had the added advantage of a couple of week-end jumps by the Philadelphia Athletics which counted against the champions. Of the whole intersectional series with every team getting its share of the home grounds' advantage, the Eastern clubs turned in 72 victories against 44 for their Western rivals. The three leaders, Philadelphia, New York and Washington, piled up the big winning totals while even the humble Boston Red Sox got more than an even break.

Washington yesterday moved into second place in the standing and brought its total of victories for the home stand to 12 against three defeats by winning both games of a double-header from the St. Louis Browns 5 to 4 and 5 to 3. The first contest went 12 innings before the Senators finally put over the deciding run.

The double victory gave the Senators a game's advantage over their rivals, the Athletics and the Yankees, both of whom divided double bills. They now are a full game ahead of New York and only 1½ games behind Philadelphia.

The Athletics' five-game-winning streak was broken when Detroit beat the champions, 4 to 3, behind the fine pitching of Earl Whitehill in the first game, but they returned to slam Waite Hoyt for a 7 to 2 triumph in the second.

Ruth Injured.

An injury to Babe Ruth and the slugging feats of Carl Reynolds shared the interest as the Yankees won the first game from Chicago, 5 to 1, as the Babe hit his 31st homer of the season, then took a 15 to 4 drubbing in the second. Reynolds equalled two records by hitting three home runs in successive times at bat and by driving in eight runs. Ruth made a great attempt to catch the second home- and only succeeded in entangling his hand in the wire guarding the bleachers and injuring it painfully. One fingernail was completely torn off and the damage may keep the Babe out of the coming series with the Athletics.

Boston put on a fine late rally to take a single game from the sadly slipping Cleveland Indians 5 to 4.

BALLOONS AS SCARECROWS

Gardeners on the outskirts of London are using balloons in place of scarecrows. The bags are inflated and attached to sticks in the ground at certain vantage points. A thieving bird, thinking the balloons are delicious "booty," pecks at one. The pistol-like explosion so frightens the feathered thief that it never returns.

BROOKLYN LEADS NATIONAL LEAGUE

Giants Defeated the Chicago Cubs 9 to 8.

ROBINS BEAT CARDINALS.

The National League pennant race became more complicated than ever as the New York Giants and Brooklyn Robins gave a great display of civic spirit before starting their own private fray. The Giants defeated the Chicago Cubs, 9 to 8, by putting on the better rally in the ninth inning, while the Robins pulled out a 6 to 5 decision over the St. Louis Cardinals on the strength of Ray Phelp's pitching. The result put brooklyn in first place once more by the margin of less than half a percentage point, although another method of reckoning shows the Robins still a half game behind. The Cubs have three more victories but have lost two more games to bring about this odd result. The Giants also benefitted, going a game and a half ahead of St. Louis.

The Boston Braves also improved their position a bit, turning back Pittsburg'hs threat to take fifth place with a 6 to 4 triumph. Harry Siebold, Boston's reliable veteran, did the major share of the work, bearing down heavily when men were on base.

HARWOOD PROTESTS SATURDAY'S BALL GAME

HASTINGS, July 3 (Examiner Correspondence)—Harwood have entered a protest on the game won by Hastings in Harwood on Saturday, 15 to 10. Scriver is supposed to have had an elastic on his fingers; one of the Hastings supporters is claimed to have interfered with a ball, and other reasons along the same line. The game was a hard one for Harwood to lose.

The protest will be dealt with at a meeting in Roseneath on Friday night.

Next week, July 7 to 12, The Examiner is presenting a "two for one" service in its want ad columns, that will give everyone a chance to try out the wonderful pulling power of the classified section. During the six days, all who order and pay for one, two or three insertions of a want ad, will be given FREE as many additional insertions as are paid for, up to three. Anyone looking for work will be given one insertion up to 20 words, WITHOUT CHARGE, during this six day special offer.

It's a chance to get a roomer for that spare room, a few boarders, perhaps a companion, or dressmaker, a housekeeper or a maid a gardener or furnace tender The Examiner can find what you want. If you want to rent a house or find a more suitable home for rent try the classified column. If you want to sell or buy a home The Examiner has 30 to 40,000 readers, and some of them are sure to be ready to meet your wishes in a satisfactory way.

CHAUTAUQUA SEASON OPENS WITH FINE PLAY

so long. But many events intervened in the meantime. Elaine Bumpstead (a dainty lady portrayed very satisfactory by Miss Martha Townsend) decided to defy her maternal parent and marry the man of her heart, the good-looking Bill Clark (a part well filled by Thomas Riordon). Minor actors who do their bit to fill out a very satisfying drama of domestic life are Ralph Mensing, taking a dual role as Sam Grant, a friend of Cyrus, and later, as Chester Armstrong, also Dillon Cornwall, a hard-working actor who has three parts and does them all well: as Bobby, the scholastic son of the house; as Squire Stump, the deaf old Justice of the Peace, and as the detective, Quinn.

Humorous Dialogue —

The play is full of stray bits of humor that appeal to the domestic sense of the hearers. It centers about the home life of the Bumpsteads, with an unsatisfied woman as the dictator of the household, until the worm, in the form of the husband, turns, and dares to smoke a cigar in his own parlor. The Dutch courage needed for the coup is provided by an obliging jug of hard cider, and the appearance of Chester Armstrong in the role of a hunted criminal, does the trick.

Appeal to Sense of Humor

There are many episodes that appeal to the sense of humor and the play was punctuated by frequent and hearty bursts of laughter. The wedding ceremony, impromptu and hurried, in the absence of the mother at the picture show, when Sam Green, the town grave-digger, was pressed into service as a musician, and played with one finger, first, "Nearer, My God, to Thee" and then "Onward, Christian Soldiers" was a highlight. The forgotten dishes of the suppertable and their subsequent breakage, provided the keynote for the title and the play.

The program opened last evening with the playing of "O Canada" by Miss Musa Cox and the introduction by G. A. Gillespie of this year's superintendent, Miss G. Hyndman. As Mr. Gillespie remarked, last year's experience with a lady superintendent proved very satisfactory and the Chautauqua management is following out the system this year. Miss Hyndman made a very pleasing short speech, commenting on the forthcoming programs, and introducing the two young men who have charge of the tent this summer: John Falconbridge and Graham McKnight.

This evening's program takes the form of an original musical spectacle, in which many light opera gems are featured, presented by the Metropolitan Artists. Excerpts from "Rose Marie" "The Student Prince," "The Chocolate Soldier" and "The Desert Song" will be included in this Light Opera Festival.

Tomorrow (Friday) afternoon, the Garay Sisters, Hungarian musicians of repute, will give a concert and will also perform in the evening as a prelude to the lecture by Tom Skeyhill, noted Australian, on "Mussolini and the Blackshirts."

The Chautauqua programs this year are sponsored by a representative group of citizens headed by G. A. Gillespie, to whose interest in the movement Peterborough owes its continuance through many seasons past. The group includes R. M. Glover, M. I. Lewis, P. Westbye, R. L. Dobbin, W. F. Skitch, A. V. Lillow, R. G. Kingan, W. L. Ferguson, Thos. McIndoo, T. H. Gillespie, Rev. J. O. Totten of Bridgenorth, R. F. Downey, F. L. Roy, Dr. M. A. Morrison, W. W. Dawson, G. C. Carruthers, H. B. Cowan, Jas. Dutton, C. A. Salmonsen, Thos. Barrie, John Hill, A. S. Cummer, R. Grant and Dr. J. J. Craig.

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 1 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

In 1888 young Lord Greystoke and his bride of three months sailed from Dover on their way to Africa. He had been commissioned to investigate alleged atrocities on black subjects in a British West Coast African colony. Lord Greystoke never made the investigation: in fact he never reached his destination.

Arrived at Freetown they chartered the Fuwalda, which was to bear them to their final destination. And here, Lord and Lady Greystoke mysteriously vanished forever from the eyes and from the knowledge of man. Two months later, six British war vessels were scouring the South Atlantic for trace of them.

Beyond sight of land, the Fuwalda's captain, with a terrific blow, felled an old sailor who had accidentally tripped him. The swarthy bully's brutality caused big Black Michael to crush the captain to his knees. This was mutiny. The enraged captain suddenly whipped a revolver from his pocket and fired.

Lord Greystoke struck down the captain's arm, saving Black Michael's life and thus forged the first link of what was destined to form a chain of amazing circumstances ending in a life for one then unborn such as has probably never been paralleled in the history of man.

With suspicion of organized mutiny confirmed, they hurried to their quarters. Even their beds had been torn to pieces. A thorough search revealed the fact that only Lord Greystoke's revolvers and ammunition were gone. An undefinable something presaged bloody disaster!

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up by an Examiner Reporter

RETURNS FROM KENTUCKY

Pat White, the genial accountant of the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, having just returned from a trip to Kentucky, recounts a little story which once again emphasizes the smallness of the world in which we live.

Crawling into his bunk, while the train roared on towards Chicago, he came face to face with his old colleague A. J. Reynolds, former manager of the Peterborough branch of the Bank of Commerce; incidentally Mr. Reynolds is in the city at present attending to the task of completing the removal of household effects to Toronto.

HERE'S A GOOD ONE.

The business of selling fish worms to tourists arriving at the railway stations in this city has slumped sadly in the past few years due to the increased use of the automobile. However, some little lad has hit upon the right idea to combat the situation. He was to be seen on Monday outside Sir Henry Drayton's drink dispensary on Main Street approaching those who came from the door marked "Out" with his boxes of worms. He did a rushing business.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN INVITED

The meeting in the Opera House to-night to be addressed by Senator Cairine Wilson, Canada's only Woman Senator and J. J. Duffus, Liberal candidate for West Peterborough is for ladies and gentlemen and an invitation is extended to all electors to hear Mrs. Wilson who is said to be a very clever and interesting speaker. The meeting is called for 8 o'clock, daylight saving time.

WORKMAN OVERCOME BY FUMES

Tetro-chloride fumes overcame one of the garage workers at Selkirk and Elliott's service station on Brock Street at 1.10 this afternoon, when faulty wiring caused a fire in a large sedan car on which repairs were being made. The Fire Department was called and chemicals were used to quench the blaze. There was little damage to the car.

VARCOE—HAWLEY.

The wedding was solemnized at five o'clock on Saturday, June 28th, at St. Andrew's Church, of Laura Ellmyina King Hawley, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Hawley, and Elgin Sherwood Varcoe, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Varcoe, of Bowmanville. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. C. V. McLean.

JOHNSTON—CHARLTON.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at Brooklin, Ontario, on Saturday morning, June 28th, by the Rev. P. L. Jull, formerly of Lakefield, when Marie Viola Charlton, eldest daughter of R. A. Charlton of 159 Rubidge street, Peterborough, became the bride of John Francis Johnston, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnston, of Tamworth.
